MAY FESTIVAL

A Good Time Enjoyed by the Children.

At the Home Science Party.

The Program, the Tables and the Ladies in Charge.

Hundreds of children were present at Music hall on Saturday afternoon at the annual May party of the Home Science Association. That the children were having a good time must have been evident to anyone who was present, or to anyone who was in sound of their voices. They were out for a good time and they shouted to their hearts' content. There was plenty to amuse, for on the tables were hundreds of pretty May baskets, which were quickly sold, while at one table was ice cream, always delightful to children, and at still another table was candy that made the children's mouths water.

Still further along was an exhibition of the work done at the summer Sloyd school, and at this same table the garden seeds for the prize gardens.

During the first part of the afternoon a pleasing entertainment was given upon the platform, after which the floor was cleared for a half hour's dancing.

The program opened with a military drill by the Boys' Brigade of Atlantic, in charge of Lieut. Carl Stocker. This was followed by a skirt dance by Bessie Powers of the Washington school. Then came the Minstrel's delight by pupils of the Adams school under the direction of Miss Maude A. Hickey with Mrs. Samuel Curtis as accompanist.

At this point the announcement of the prizes to be awarded next September for the best flower and vegetable gardens was made. These prizes will be as follows: Vegetables—first, $3; second, $2; and three of $1 each. The prizes for the flower gardens will be—First, $2; second, $1 and three of fifty cents each.

The next number on the program was a flower dance by Misses Barker, Harris, Rogers, Smith, Steele, and Walker. A solo dance by Miss Edna Smith. The accompanist was Miss Charlotte Burgess.

A half hour's stereopticon exhibition followed; then a piano duet by Miss Minnie Packard and Miss Bizzozero.

A sword dance was given by James Reid with Mrs. Grassick as accompanist. The afternoon closed with a half hour's dancing. Delcevare King was stage manager and Miss Balla Wainwright was assistant.

The ladies in charge of the tables were:

May basket table,—Mrs. N. S. Hunting, Mrs. Thomas A. Addison, Mrs. C. H. Burgess, Miss Harriet Johnson, Mrs. Henry L. Kincaide, Mrs. George H. Taylor, Mrs. F. C. Steele, Mrs. J. Percival Sears, Mrs. Henry Tirrell, Mrs. H. C. Wright and Mrs. Frank S. Davis.

Sloyd and garden seed,—Miss F. C. Wainwright, Mrs. C. T. Hardwick, Mrs. Wilson Marsh, Miss Florence R. Faxon and Miss Mary Griffin.

Ice cream,—Mrs. R. R. Freeman and Mrs. Fred H. Smith.

Tickets and floor,—Miss Elizabeth Johnson, Mrs. E. E. Davis, Mrs. W. G. Shaw, Miss Eliza Sheehan, Miss M. F. Underwood, Mrs. J. W. Sanborn, Miss Margaret Thomas and Mrs. J. F. Merrill.

Candy,—Mrs. Charles M. Bryant, Mrs. E. E. Davis, Mrs. Frank Brewer, Miss Mary Holden, Mrs. J. C. Morse, Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann, Mrs. Frank S. Patch, Miss Emily C. Wild and Miss Grace Burke.

Water supply,—Mrs. John Downs and Miss Elise Downes.

The festival was a financial success, as the ladies sold all the May baskets, all the candy and all the ice cream.

Funeral of John Fallon.

The funeral of John Fallon was held Sunday from St. Mary's church and was very largely attended. Mass was celebrated by Rev. John J. Powers. Mrs. Mary White Murphy sang. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery in the family tomb. The bearers were, Michael Monnyhan, James Kelley, Jeremiah Sheehan, Edward J. Lane, John Gilmartin and Stephen Mahoney.

AFTER THE AUTOS.

A Number of Owners Will Be Summoned Into Court.

Chief of Police Burrell started in Sunday to put a stop to the speeding of automobiles through the streets. Quincy is evidently looked upon as a place where automobiles may be speeded at any rate the drivers might wish.

As a result, some of the machines go through the city at a very rapid rate and the wonder is that there has not been a bad accident.

Chief Burrell is now determined that speeding must stop. Officers Goodhue and Milford were stationed on Adams street Sunday on a measured course, and before the day was over had timed many machines and had taken the numbers of seventeen machines that were exceeding the limit.

Summons will be issued today and the speeders will be lined up before Judge Avery some day this week.

Dog Licenses.

The owner or keeper of a dog must cause it to be licensed before May 1, in the office of the City Clerk, City Hall.

A person who becomes the owner or keeper of a dog after May 1, which is not duly licensed, or the owner or keeper of a dog not duly licensed which becomes three months old after May 1, must cause it to be licensed.

HIS ANNIVERSARY.

Chief Williams Completes Thirty Years in Fire Department.

It is 33 years ago today that Chief Engineer Williams first became connected with the fire department of Quincy. With the exception of three years, he has always been connected with the department, so that he rounds out his thirty years of service today.

His first service was with the old Tiger hand engine company on School street. He afterwards served as one of the assistant engineers, and later as chief engineer. He has been chief of the city's fire department for eleven years, serving under six different mayors. This is a record of which any man might be proud.

Chief Williams' efficiency as a fire fighter is known far and wide. He is always one of the first to appear on the scene of action. Let an alarm sound at any hour and from any part of the city and Chief Williams is sure to be one of the early arrivals and personally directs the handling of the fire.

In responding to an alarm he drives at a rapid gait and often takes many chances of being wrecked, but with a clear head and a strong hand he is able to guide his horse safely through sections and obstructions without accident.

Arriving at a fire he enters into the thick of it, and asks no man to go where he does not lead. Quincy can consider itself fortunate in having so efficient a chief.

Second Evening of Fete.

The entertainment on the second evening of the Y. M. C. A. Fair Fete, will be given by the Wollaston friends of the association. In its nature it will be in keeping with the colonial type of the fete. Living pictures, copied from original portraits of the distinguished women of our history, both colonial and national will be presented.

Interspersed with these will be appropriate music and readings. Mrs. H. T. B. Bates will read, Mrs. Mary Hastings Slade will sing songs of the olden time. There will be singing by a male quartette. The minuet will be read by Mrs. Alfred P. Thompson. Accompanying the reading, four children in court costume will dance the minuet.

The affair is in charge of Mrs. E. S. Tenny, who will be assisted by Mrs. J. B. Cornish and Mrs. N. G. Nickerson.

Mrs. A. L. Goodrich is in charge of the minuet.

Not Buried Together.

The funeral of Albert T. Spargo was held Saturday afternoon from the residence of his father. Services were conducted by Rev. William E. Gardner of Christ church. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery. The body of Mrs. Spargo was taken to Stony Creek, Conn., on Friday, for burial by her parents.

SUNDAY ICE.

Is There Any Demand for Its Delivery?

Editors Daily Ledger:

With the approach of hot weather, the question is again forced upon us, should our icemen be required to deliver ice on Sunday? This question was raised in your columns several weeks ago, but did not receive as much consideration as it deserves, and I crave space in which to set forth my views of the situation.

There are to my mind three potent reasons why Mayor Thompson should instruct the police to prevent the delivery of ice on Sundays. In the first place, such labor is not a work of necessity or charity, and is forbidden by the laws of the Commonwealth. See Revised Laws, Chapter 98, Sec. 2. This reason alone should be sufficient, but I pass on to the other reasons.

The ethical and religious sense of Christian people is hurt by the sight of heavy teams lumbering through the streets on the Sabbath morning. The seventh day is a day of rest, so ordained and hallowed from the dawn of creation. I shall not dwell any longer on this point, because the people who should be most vitally interested in the proper observance of the Lord's Day have been strangely silent, only one of them having manifested the courage of his convictions. I refer to the clergy. Their silence is inexplicable.

The third reason is to my mind the strongest of all. Our icemen work from fifteen to sixteen hours per day and their work is especially hard during the hot weather. They need relaxation and rest just as much as we do. Indeed, they are probably more in need of it than any other class of people in Quincy. They are not machines; they have their feelings and sensibilities like other people; they must have one day in seven in which to gather fresh strength or they will break down. Why should they be made "slaves of the wheel of labor," as Markham so tersely expresses it? It is up to his honor the Mayor and the Chief of Police to enforce the law and it behooves the clergy and all other good citizens to create a sentiment which will cause the law to be respected. I am credibly informed that most of the ice dealers would be only too glad to let their men and horses rest on Sunday, if they could get all to agree to it. But a few of the dealers care more for profits than for justice, and it seems the employees have to suffer. Enforce the law, Mr. Mayor.

Yours truly,
Barrister-at-Law.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The Public Franchise League is doing a very commendable work in showing up the iniquities of the trusts. Now is a critical time in the Massachusetts Legislature.

Under the Act of 1903 the Gas Trust is seeking to gain from the Gas Commissioners approval of a capitalization of $20,600,000, and on this large sum desires to pay 6 per cent dividends, which would require $1,236,000 a year.

Think of it. Out of every $1.00 now charged to the gas consumer for 1,000 feet of gas 36 cents is to be profit for the Trust.

This is 56 per cent profit on the cost, which cannot be more than 64 cents per 1,000 feet.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Paderewski has strained the cords of his neck in an effort to render a difficult composition on the piano. He will have to cancel his engagements, for what can he do with a stiff neck. It is rather amusing to think that such an accident should occur to this great master. It suggests the race track, where horses win or lose by a neck.—Lynn Item.

☞"It is beginning to be evident," says the Worcester Gazette, "that the chief defect in the city government lies in the fact that a large number of the city fathers don't know any better." Why not put the blame where it belongs, and say that the chief defect lies in the fact that the voters didn't know any better than to select these alleged city fathers?—New Bedford Standard.

☞A famous physician, when being asked recently what was the chief cause of ill health, replied as follows: "Thinking and talking about it all the time. This ceaseless introspection in in which so many of the rising generation of nervous folks indulge is certainly wearing them out. When they are not worrying whether they sleep too much or too little, they are fidgeting over the amount of food they take or quantity of exercise necessary for health. In short, they never give themselves a moments's peace, and it's no wonder they are sick and miserable."

☞Honor to the hen! She has accomplished unaided what the administration and the attorney general haven't succeeded in doing yet. She has smashed a trust and busted a corner. It is reported from Iowa that the big packing firms are going out of the butter, egg and poultry business. The explanation is that for a year their attempted egg corner has failed to make good. The hens went to laying at the wrong and unexpected time, and before the public had been forced to take the millions of dozens of eggs that the packing trust had in cold storage awaiting fancy prices, the hens had smashed the market. Whether this explanation is complete or not, it is said to be known that the Armours have been selling their plants in Iowa, having dropped a large sum in the venture.—Springfield Republican.

SIMPLE SERVICES

Funeral of Jefferson Free From Ostentation

THE BURIAL AT SANDWICH

Eulogy Pronounced at Public Memorial Meeting In Town Hall--Players' Club Also Holds Memorial at New York

Buzzards Bay, Mass., May 1.—Following services that were free from ostentation, but impressive in their simplicity and suggestive of the character of the distinguished actor, the body of Joseph Jefferson was laid away at the Bay View cemetery in Sandwich Sunday within walking distance of the cottages of many of his Cape Cod friends.

Mr. Jefferson's five sons, a score of intimate friends and a hundred villagers gathered about the open grave while the commitment service was read; then all withdrew with the exception of Charles B. Jefferson, who alone watched the casket as it was lowered to its final resting place. Last night a police officer remained at the grave and this guard will be continued for several days.

At 11 o'clock yesterday a brief service was held at "Crow's Nest," the Jefferson summer cottage here. Only immediate relatives and intimate friends were present. The morning train from Boston brought 25 friends, in addition to those who were already here.

The casket had been placed in the library and was banked on all sides by magnificent floral tributes. There were pieces from the Players' club of New York, the Bohemian club of San Francisco, the Old Colony club of Sandwich, of which Mr. Jefferson was long the president, Mme. Modjeska, and from well known actors and actresses in all parts of the country.

The services opened with the reading by Rev. Dr. Horton of Boston, chaplain of the state senate, of Mr. Jefferson's favorite poem, Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar." Without attempting a eulogy Dr. Horton then referred briefly to the simple life and kindly deeds of the actor. A prayer concluded the service and the casket was immediately placed in a funeral carriage preparatory to its removal to Bay View cemetery at Sandwich, a distance of eight miles. There were no honorary pall-bearers. The acting pall-bearers were Glen MacDonough and Charles J. Rolfe, who married grand-daughters of Mr. Jefferson; Samuel Phillips, Mr. Jefferson's former stage manager; Carl Kettler, his personal attendant; Richard W. Gilder, Edward Black, Dr. George Barry, and J. A. Walker.

Preceded by these pall-bearers the funeral cortege, composed of 23 carriages, left Crow's Nest at 12 o'clock, reaching the cemetery at 1:30 o'clock.

While the procession was on its way a public memorial meeting was held in the Sandwich town hall and at which all the clergymen participated. A eulogy was pronounced by Rev. O. L. Griswold, pastor of the Methodist church. At the close of this meeting those in attendance proceeded to the cemetery to await the arrival of the funeral party, the approach of which was heralded by the bell in the belfry of the historic town hall, and upon which 76 blows were sounded.

At the grave, which had been prepared in the lot purchased by Charles B. Jefferson at the suggestion of his father two years ago, the flowers which had been brought from "Crow's Nest" were arranged in a way to quite conceal the casket from view.

Players' Club Memorial

New York, May 1.—Services in memory of Joseph Jefferson under the auspices of The Players' club, of which he was the only president, besides Edwin Booth, were held yesterday at the Church of the Transfiguration, to which Mr. Jefferson many years ago gave the name of "The Little Church Around the Corner." The service was conducted by the rector, Rev. Dr. Houghton, with the full choir of the church. David Bispam, a member of "The Players," volunteered his services as a soloist. The service was especially arranged, and besides portions of the usual Episcopal service, it was to an unusual extent composed of anthems and hymns.

Supposed Robber's Fate

New York, May 1.—By the parting of a rope by which it is believed he was being lowered by confederates from the roof for the purpose of burglary, a young man was precipitated to the bottom of an air shaft between two flat houses in East Eighty-Ninth street and instantly killed. The man's head was crushed and almost every bone in his body broken.

Alleged Passer of Worthless Checks

Boston, May 1.—Henry Pollack was arrested here, charged with passing worthless checks, several of which were drawn on the First National bank of this city. The local authorities say that Pollack, on two occasions, was arrested and sentenced at New York for uttering worthless checks.

Tornado Kills Twenty-One Persons

Laredo, Tex., May 1.—Twenty-one persons were killed and scores injured in Laredo and in New Laredo by a tornado which tore through the cities, crossing the Rio Grande. The property damage is large. So far as is known the dead are all Mexicans.

THE CHICAGO STRIKE

Employers Reject Suggestions of the Peace Committee

Chicago, May 1.—Chicago had on working clothes yesterday as a result of the teamsters' strike, which has failed of spreading and of settlement. All day down-town streets were crowded with heavily loaded wagons, giving the city a week-day appearance. Business men were anxious to procure an extra stock of material and supplies, and every available team was brought into use.

A committee representing the Employers' association met Mayor Dunne's peace committee, after which a committee representing the unions conferred with the mayor's peace committee. After the conferences the peace committee issued the following statement:

"The representatives of the employers refused to accept any commission or means of arbitration which was suggested, while the laboring men declared their readiness to acquiesce in the plan of submitting the controversy to persons commanding the respect and confidence of the community."

Nine hundred extra policemen were put on duty in the down-town quarter this morning. The streets were free from rioting yesterday, as no effort was made to make deliveries to the firms involved.

Doubts Supreme Court's Honesty

New York, May 1.—At the May day celebration of the Social Democratic party Benjamin Hanford, who has been a candidate for governor of this state and later a candidate for the vice presidency of the United States, said the United States supreme court was divided, 5 to 4, against the 10-hour labor law. He said that that was the usual way; the court always decided against the workmen. "I suppose there is as much rascality in the members of the supreme court as you will find in any body on earth," he said.

Repudiates $1000 Subscription

Akron, O., May 1.—Mrs. Spillman Riggs has sued O. C. Barber, the match king, both prominent in social and musical circles, for $1000 alleged to be due on a subscription for the new organ placed in Music hall. Mrs. Riggs says Barber gave her a subscription for the money and had refused to pay. Barber says the subscription was obtained under false pretences and therefore he refuses to pay.

Not Appreciated by Advertisers

St. Paul, May 1.—After a life of nearly 30 years the St. Paul Globe has suspended publication. The Globe was the only Democratic morning daily in Minnesota and was the recognized organ of its party both in state and municipal affairs. The reason announced by the paper for its suspension was that, in spite of its large circulation, it was not properly patronized by advertisers.

Husband and Wife In Jail

Skowhegan, Me., May 1.—Mrs. Sarah Brown, wife of Rufus Brown, Jr., now in jail, charged with the murder of William Knight, was found guilty of threatening to kill her brother and sisters and was held in $300 to keep the peace for a year. Mrs. Brown, being unable to furnish the bail, was committed to the same jail where her husband is confined.

President Banquets King

Paris, May 1.—The exchange of official visits between King Edward and President Loubet was marked with the utmost cordiality. President Loubet's dinner in honor of King Edward last evening was a brilliant function, entirely non-political in character. There were 120 guests and nearly the entire diplomatic corps were present. No speeches were delivered.

Blown Up and Buried

Altoona, Pa., May 1.—Buried under six tons of salt and with every bone in his body broken, J. M. McCloskey, a business man of Belwood, was instantly killed by the explosion of a gas plant in his wareroom. When the lights went down in the store McCloskey went into the wareroom to recharge the tank and the explosion followed.

The Dominion favored sending this matter to the international water commission.

WASHING WITHOUT WATER

Is Like Trying to Get Rid of Dandruff Without Herpicide.

Did you ever see any one trying to wash themselves without soap or water?

If you did what would you say of him?

It is every bit as foolish to try to get rid of Dandruff and to prevent Baldness by feeding the germs which cause it, with Canthrarides, Vaseline, Glycerine and similar substances which form the principal ingredients of most so-called Hair Vigors.

Newbro's Herpicide is successful because it attacks and kills the parasitic germ which feeds on the hair roots.

It is the original and only genuine scalp germicide manufactured.

SUIT OF MAE WOOD

Wants $35,000 From Secretary Loeb and Others

SHE PROMISES A SCANDAL

Says She Will Show Her Hand When Proper Time Comes--Loeb Declares That He Does Not Know the Woman

Glenwood Springs, Col., May 1.—"Why, I never saw the woman in my life, nor do I want to see her," said William Loeb, Jr., secretary to President Roosevelt, when he was shown a dispatch concerning a suit filed in Omaha by Miss Mae Wood, who also sued Senator Platt, and who is now asking $35,000 jointly of Mr. Loeb, former Postmaster General Wynne and J. M. Miller, a Newark, N. J., newspaper man, who was recently appointed consul at Aix la Chappelle.

Mr. Loeb said: "The only knowledge I have of Miss Wood is in relation to her position in the postoffice department and the notoriety she brought to herself just prior to the marriage of Senator Platt of New York. She called up the White House and asked if she could see me. Assistant Secretary Barnes talked with her and as her business did not seem to be important, I declined to see her. That is all I know personally of the woman. I am at a loss where she gets my name into the action for damages."

What Miss Wood Says

Omaha, May 1.—Miss Mae Wood, who on Saturday filed suit for $35,000 damages against William Loeb, Jr., secretary to President Roosevelt; Robert J. Wynne, consul general to London, and J. M. Miller, consul at Aix la Chappelle, charging that they unlawfully secured from her love letters, said to have been written to the plaintiff by Senator T. C. Platt of New York, refuses to say how Loeb and Wynne are connected with the case. She said of Loeb, however:

"Secretary Loeb should always use the telegraph or a courier. It is a remarkable fact that he knows so little of this affair. I rather think he should say he does not know how I happened to know what he knows of it. I shall have to refrain from going into the details until I shall tell it in court."

She asserted that if Loeb avoided service she would have the suit transferred to the United States courts. She admitted that she had never seen Loeb and that she knew of no reason why he should take any part in the New York affair. Miss Wood spoke in detail of her alleged relations with Senator Platt and closed with this remark:

"They were looking for scandal, and now they have it. I shall show my hand when the proper time comes."

She did not specify to whom "they" referred.

Miller Has Nothing to Say

New York, May 1.—J. M. Miller, consul at Aix la Chappelle, was seen in this city last night and was asked concerning the suit alleged to have been filed in Omaha by Miss Wood. "I have nothing to say," said Miller, "for there is nothing to talk about." Miller left last night for Montreal.

Drunken Army Officer's Deed

Salt Lake City, May 1.—Captain Raibourn, Twenty-Ninth infantry, U. S. A., committed suicide at Fort Douglas after making a murderous assault on Lieutenant Point, also of the Twenty-Ninth infantry. Point was shot twice by his superior officer. After Point had fallen, Raibourn sent a bullet into his own head. He died almost instantly. Point will recover. Raibourn had been drinking heavily, and the tragedy was an outgrowth of his arrest on a charge of drunkenness.

Schwab's Contract With Russia

Berlin, May 1.—Charles M. Schwab, who is on his way from St. Petersburg to Luxemburg to visit the iron works, stopped over in Berlin for a day. In an interview he said it was quite true that he had made a contract with the Russian government for warships, but that those in the Russian government who knew of the contract were the ones to make the terms public.

Explosion In Railroad Depot

Philadelphia, May 1.—Two men were instantly killed last night by the explosion of a tank in the electric light plant at the Broad street station of the Pennsylvania railroad. The station was well filled with passengers when the explosion occurred and the shock shook the building and the lights went out, causing some excitement and much confusion.

Wife Murderer Dead

Providence, May 1.—Gilbert M. Potter, aged 57, who has, since Nov. 8, 1894, been serving a life sentence in the state prison for the murder of his wife, died last evening of consumption. Potter had confessed to the crime, saying that he and his wife had quarreled.

Russian Squadrons Meet

Tsingtau, Shantung Peninsula, China, May 1.—It is reported the Russian second Pacific squadron, together with the Russian third Pacific squadron, are near the Island of Hainan.

Bowen Coming Home

Caracas, May 1.—American Minister Herbert W. Bowen has been recalled to Washington and will leave Caracas probably today.

BEATEN AND CHOKED

Doubt as to Place Where Vermont Man Was Murdered

North Bennington, Vt., May 1.—The local police believe that Fred A. Bartlett of this town, whose body was found here in front of the First National bank, was murdered in Walloomsac, N. Y., a few miles from here, and brought here to divert suspicion. Besides severe bruises on the head there were marks on the dead man's throat, which seemed to indicate that he had been choked either by a rope or the hands of his slayer.

The body was found by Thomas Kipp, who immediately notified the police. An investigation revealed the fact that Bartlett went over the state line Saturday night to Walloomsac. According to the police he was possessed of a small sum of money, but when the body was found there was no trace of any money, and the pockets of the dead man's clothes were turned inside out. The autopsy showed that death was caused by blows on the head.

Professor Scudder Scores the Rich

Boston, May 1.—"The temptation of the power of evil is so strong within me that I feel like throwing a bomb into Commonwealth avenue, among the homes of the privileged classes whose apathy and indifference to the condition of their fellow beings is contemptuous, but I overcome this temptation." With these words Miss Vida D. Scudder, associate professor of English literature at Wellesley college, scored the upper classes in an address at a meeting of the Temple Adath Israel.

Deliberately Went to Death

Worcester, Mass., May 1.—The body of Moses D. Silverman, 45, a clothing dealer, was dragged from Lake Quinsigamond late last night. About the neck was a stone weighing 40 pounds. The legs were tied together below the knees. A coat, hat and gold watch were found on the bank. Members of Silverman's family say he had threatened to take his life and that he was worried about a law suit that was coming to trial today. He leaves a wife and five children.

Satisfactory Labor Conditions

Boston, May 1.—Today sees less workingmen on strike in Boston and vicinity than on any May 1 since organized labor became a power in New England. It is probable that less than 300 union men struck today, a strong contrast to the usual May-day walkout. This condition of affairs is due, labor leaders say, to the fact that employers, in a great majority of cases, readily agreed to a working agreement to be continued for one year.

Water Unexpectedly Turned On

Rumford Falls, Me., May 1.—While four young women were walking up the dry bed of a sluiceway, through which logs are shot from the Androscoggin river into the canal, someone opened the flood-gate, and the rushing water swept Miss Lottie Marer, aged 19, of Fall River, Mass., into the canal, where she was drowned. The others clung to the sides of the sluiceway and kept their heads above water until rescued.

Went Into Pond on Bicycle

Middletown, Conn., May 1.—The body of Charles Johnson, his hands clutching the handlebars of a bicycle, was found in Tamcacha pond, which is only four feet deep at the place where the body was discovered. Johnson's feet were entangled in the wheels of his machine, and it is probable that while riding at a rapid rate along the road bordering the pond his wheel slipped down the embankment.

Scollans Brought to Boston

Boston, May 1.—Thomas J. Scollans, who was arrested in New York on Tuesday last as a fugitive from justice, was brought back by local officers and lodged in jail, to await the calling of his case in the superior court. Scollans is charged with complicity in the teaming frauds of 1897-98 and it is alleged that he left the city while his trial was pending, forfeiting $25,000 bail.

Fatal Gunning Accident

Bangor, Me., May 1.—The body of John Green, 30 years old, of Holden, was found in a pasture at North Holden with the top of the head blown off. It is believed that he was a victim of an accidental discharge of his own gun, which was laying by the side of the body with one of the barrels discharged.

Suicide With Prussic Acid

Pittsfield, Mass., May 1.—Failing in the apparent purpose to cause the death of his family by drinking poisoned beer, Paul Bergman, an electrician, swallowed a glass of beer containing prussic acid and a moment later fell dead in the presence of his wife and 18-year-old step-daughter.

Woman Fire Fighter Killed

Attleboro, Mass., May 1.—While fighting a forest fire, Annie Batnos, wife of Frank Batnos, was burned to death at Rehoboth. The Batnos home was among the buildings threatened with destruction. The dress of the woman caught fire and she was burned almost to a crisp.

Paper Company Owns Township

Farmington, Me., May 1.—The Great Northern Paper company has purchased of Prouty & Miller the whole of Crocker township, which is heavily timbered land. The logs will be used for pulp in the large mill at Madison. The price is believed to have been about $150,000.

Charged With Incendiarism

Wakefield, Mass., May 1.—Jeremiah Shanahan, 18, and John McCormick, 22 years old, were arrested here on a charge of incendiarism in connection with the fire in the shop of John Leahy.

President Attends Sunday Service In the Wild West

A PICTURESQUE CROWD

Roosevelt, In His Hunting Togs, Expresses Views on Citizenship and Shakes Hands With Every Man, Woman and Child

Glenwood Springs, Col., May 1.—Unique in the history of Colorado were the services held at the Old Blue schoolhouse on West Divide yesterday, attended by President Roosevelt and his party and all the ranchmen and their families for miles around. The little district school building was not a tenth part large enough to accommodate the congregation, and as a result the organ was moved to the front porch.

On this porch seats were provided for the president and his party, Rev. Horace Mann of Rifle, Col., the choir and the trustees of the church. The members of the congregation stood or sat on the ground of the schoolyard or in their conveyances, which were grouped around the building.

The sermon by Rev. Mann began with a story, teeming with slang of the western flavor, and was full of advice suited to a congregation inuring itself to the hardships of mountain life. It touched on the responsibilities of the position of president, as well as the characteristics of some of the men who have occupied that exalted place.

The president's party presented a picturesque appearance as they came up. All were on horseback, and were dressed in their hunting clothes. They had no others at the camp. Many of those in the congregation wore their best dresses. The gowns and hats of the women were showy and in striking contrast to the muddy tan, duck, blue jeans and other rough materials making up the costumes of the president and his fellow-hunters.

Mr. Roosevelt was dressed in the same clothes he wore when he left his private car at Newcastle two weeks ago. He wore his slouch hat pulled over his eyes; it was badly out of shape. His jacket was sheep-lined duck, his trousers of duck, tied about his ankles with strong cord, and his shirt was blue cotton. He had discarded his leather trousers and his sweater as a concession toward the proper church-going raiment.

The clothes of Dr. Alexander Lambert of New York and of the guides were even rougher. No mountain band of road agents ever looked more formidable. The western air of the party went straight to the hearts of the people. They applauded and yelled boisterous praise of the president, regardless of the day and the fact that they were virtually in a house of worship, though the ceiling was the blue sky, the floor soft grass and dead leaves and the walls were mountains.

As soon as the party had taken seats, the service was begun. At its close Mr. Roosevelt, at the request of the preacher, addressed the congregation. He told them how glad he was to be there and how much it pleased him to come face to face with so many people who were braving hardships with light hearts and doing their part in life without complaining of bitterness. He told them that the spirit they were displaying was the chief quality of the American people that went to make this the greatest of all countries.

It was at the conclusion of the president's remarks, when he leaned forward and beamed a welcome that took in everyone in the congregation, that the president looked his best. He was the picture of rugged health as he said: "And now I want to shake hands with you all. There are a good many of you, so don't stampede, or get to milling."

As the president made use of the cattle terms, applause was terrific. He took a position in a corner made by the schoolhouse and the platform, where it was impossible for the people to crowd. Dr. Lambert acted as chief of the secret service, with the hunters and cowboys as assistants. They passed the crowd along and, despite the fact that the president shook hands with every man, woman and child present, and had a word for nearly everyone, the congregation was disposed of in about half an hour. All remained quiet, however, until the president's party started back for their camp.

Thirteen Killed In Mine Explosion

Wilburton, O. T., May 1.—Thirteen miners were entombed and probably killed by an explosion in a coal mine near Wilburton. Their bodies may not be recovered for several days. It is suggested that the explosion may have been caused by a bad shot setting off some dynamite which had been stored for work in pushing the entries.

Paderewski Shows Improvement

Boston, May 1.—Ignace Paderewski, who is suffering from nervous prostration, is reported as much improved. He has remained in his private car, which will probably be attached today to an afternoon train for New York, from whence he will sail for home.

Another Fire In Pine Woods

Hyannis, Mass., May 1.—Another forest fire in the pine woods of Cape Cod has broken out near Centerville and has burned over nearly 1000 acres in West Barnstable. It is feared that the fire will extend to the village of West Barnstable.

Edmund C. Sawin of Hampden circle, Norfolk Downs, has the sympathy of his many friends and acquaintances in the loss of his father, whose sudden death occurred at Newton on Friday morning, by being thrown from his bicycle while coasting down Commonwealth avenue, near the corner of Washington street. The Crescent A. A. of Quincy Point journeyed to North Weymouth, Saturday, and after a tough 11-inning game were defeated 9—8. Everything seemed to be going Weymouth's way until the seventh, when a fine drive to right by Capt. Avery sent three runs across the plate and put them ahead 5—4. It was even until the tenth when a change of pitchers proved disastrous for the Crescents as Weymouth got three runs in the eleventh and won. Saunders, Gearwar and Sullivan played good ball for the Crescents, while Delory, Pratt and Tyler excelled for Weymouth.

Cold Blooded Man.

"Man is the coldest blooded animal there is," said a well known doctor. "Man's low temperature," the doctor went on, "is responsible for more than half his ailments. Your normal temperature is 98½ degrees F. It is only when you have a bad temperature that you get as warm as any of the lower animals—that is so say, when you are in a high fever, with a temperature of 102, you are at the normal heat of the cat, the dog, the ox, the rat, and so on. In the coolest of seas the porpoise is never cooler than 100 degrees. The bat, the rabbit, the guinea pig, the hare and the elephant likewise are all cool at 100 degrees. The hen has the highest temperature of all the lower creatures, and it is a good deal warmer, too, when a chicken. Its temperature then is as high as 111, but age and experience cool its blood by 3 degrees."—New York Globe.

The Old Japanese Mail.

In the days before the ports of Japan were opened to foreigners, before telegraphs, railroads and electricity had found their way into the island empire, the infrequent mails were carried by post runners, who wore the merest apology of a loin cloth and blue and white rags around their heads. They wore for the most part an elaborate suit of tattoo, with a red star on each shoulder, the mark of their calling. The letters were incased in a waterproof package and secured to the end of a bamboo pole. With this over his shoulder and a pair of fragile sandals on his feet the runner started on his long journey, making from 75 to 100 miles per day. The distance they covered seems incredible, but the men were trained to speed and had remarkable endurance.

The Massachusetts Fields school defeated Wollaston school by a score of 13 to 5. Mack pitched a fine game for the victors, having 16 strike outs to his credit. He also excelled at the bat, making two home runs and a single. Robbins, MacDonald and Brown also did good work while Parker excelled for the Wollaston team.

CRANCH—CODDINGTON.

WILLARD—GRIDLEY BRYANT.

It was nip and tuck on Saturday between the Willards and Gridley Bryants, both struggling to keep out of last place. The Willards won 16 to 15. Donovan and Lemnix, the battery of the Willards, struck out seven men, and allowed only eleven hits. Winter and Kerr, the battery of the Gridley Bryants, struck out nine men and allowed 23 hits.

ADAMS—JOHN HANCOCK.

The game between the Adams and John Hancock nines scheduled for Saturday will be played this afternoon.

Surprise and Presentation.

The Indomitable whist club collected its members Saturday evening and surprised one of their number, Mrs. William Warren, to give her a rousing bon voyage for her trip to California. She was presented with a large box of stationary as a hint that correspondence would be welcome. Whist was played for two hours, Mrs. Herbert Barker and Mrs. Walter Hill winning prizes. Refreshments were served. Mrs. Warren was genuinely surprised by the timely gathering but with her usual fluency expressed her appreciation and thanks for the thought which prompted the action and for the gift.

The Better Way

The tissues of the throat are inflamed and irritated; you cough, and there is more irritation—more coughing. You take a cough mixture and it eases the irritation—for a while. You take and it cures the cold. That's what is necessary. It soothes the throat because it reduces the irritation; cures the cold because it drives out the inflammation; builds up the weakened tissues because it nourishes them back to their natural strength. That's how Scott's Emulsion deals with a sore throat, a cough, a cold, or bronchitis.

HARMONY PREVAILS

National Secretary Duncan Writes Relative to Granite Workers.

The New York World today prints the following review by Secretary James Duncan of the National Granite Cutters' Union:

"General conditions will be serene in the Granite trade on May 1, and as far as harmony prevails between employer and employe it will be perceptible with us on that date, owing to the efficacy of the mutual recognition of trade agreements, containing the essential paragraph that during their existence disputes as to faithful performance shall be adjusted by conference or arbitration, and strikes or lockouts forbidden.

"As a national organization we have for five years enjoyed the eight-hour workday, and every virtue claimed for the system has been so admirably verified that no employer has suggested changing back to the longer workday.

"Next to the valued spare time our members thus enjoy, comes the benefit of meeting employers now more frequently, which gives opportunity to cultivate better feelings each towards the other, and when sister trades have the eight-hour system with the customary increase of pay thoroughly established, those who are looking for some solution of the labor problem will come as near to a realization of their ideal as will be witnessed for some years to come."

Business for City Council.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held tonight. Reports will be received from the Committee on Public Buildings on the order to procure plans for a single complete addition to the High school, and on the order for $65,000 for building an addition to the High school.

The Committee on Ordinances will probably report on the amended ordinance concerning drivers of junk wagons.

The Committee on Streets will probably report on the order relocating Sagamore street, and reports may be expected from the Finance Committee.

A public hearing will be held on the matter of relocating the lower end of Sea street and on several petitions for locations of poles and attachment of wires.

When the wise ones go to be photographed they resign themselves wholly to the photographer, who pays as much attention to every detail of pose as would a famous portrait painter. At rare intervals women send some picture—sometimes it is an illustration from book or magazine—that they have taken a fancy to ahead of them as a suggestion; but, as a rule, they express few definite desires as to their poses. The photographer studies his subjects from every point of view, accentuates their good points by many interesting devices, eliminates their less favorable aspects by others equally so—in short, devotes himself to them for the time being as if the entire universe revolved only for the benefit of the anticipated result. Women often pose as long as two hours, during which time they have frequently been photographed in as many as twenty-five different attitudes.—New York Tribune.

Bothering a Duelist.

Brantome, a French author, in "Dueling Stories of the Sixteenth Century," tells of the code then in vogue. It was allowed in the challenge to stipulate as many different weapons as one pleased without specifying the particular ones with which one would actually fight. The antagonist was bound to provide himself with all. One duelist insisted "on the provision of no less than thirty different kinds of armament, for foot and horseback; nay, he even specified the kind of horse—coursers, blood horses from Spain and Turkey, thoroughbreds, cobs, some in harness with ears and tail clipped, some saddled in jennet style, some with heavy plated armor and so one. The object was not only to take his adversary by surprise, but to put him to enormous expense and exhaust his resources."

His Write of Way.

"That man has a perfect right to dictate to his wife."

"How so?"

"Oh, he married his stenographer!"—Princeton Tiger.

Leaders in the School Contest Gaining Rapidly.

No school, teacher or pupil will have a walkover in the School contest of the Herald. Three teachers appear to have a big lead over Miss Underwood, but the reserve vote of the Quincy teacher is probably very much larger than any of these, so that she still must be considered among the winners. It will be a hot contest, however, and united work will be necessary for Quincy to be successful.

Humor and Philosophy

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

It is seldom hard to convince a man that he is a mighty clever fellow.

A woman does dislike to see a man act foolish about another woman.

It is a good thing that the devil can't read our thoughts, or he would probably be calling on the most of us much oftener than he does.

As the Japanese are called the Yankees of the east, we should at once put a tariff on wooden nutmegs for the protection of Connecticut.

One woman says that the reason that she never married is because some women marry so much.

Generally when a woman drives a man to drink he jogs along right steadily without shying at anything along the way.

The proof of the pudding is in what the visitors say about it after they go home.

Some men would have more of a desire to take a hint if it were nailed down.

Distance lends enchantment to everything but a pretty girl.

Country Pleasures.

The flowers have come as flowers have done
Since first the buoyant world was young,
When glad creation's newborn son
Voiced happy heart with joyous tongue.
The world's a-thrill with joy intense,
The throstle pipes from wind-swept lea—
Now mother will again commence
From sassafras to make our tea.

The lark is winging through the blue,
Faint comes his glad note from afar;
The sunlit space it travels through
And echoes where his nestlings are.
The boys are splashing in the ditch
And making lots of noise and fuss,
To trousers' band they give a hitch
And wade out after calamus.

The lilac leaves like squirrel's ears
Are standing pointed and alert,
The tulip's crimson head appears
The gladsome season to assert.
Dame Nature now is all awake
And calling to the sons of men,
And in response some eggs I take
And amble out to set the hen.

Down by the pond the willows show
Their golden wands with greening fringe,
The wimpling waters slowly flow,
The wavelets on the banks impinge.
Among the buds of columbine
The bees are buzzing overhead.
I'd like to loaf, but, baby mine,
I have to hoe the onion bed.

More Like It.

"Do you think the serpent tempted Eve with an apple?"

"Nobody knows, but I have always wondered if it wasn't an Easter bonnet."

Its Function.

"What business is your son in?"

"Soap."

"How is he doing?"

"Oh, he cleans up several thousand every year."

Right at Home.

"Are the neighbors friendly out your way?"

"Oh, yes; they will come and borrow things before they have had an introduction."

No Use Living.

When man is too inert
To flirt,
When some young girl can't turn his head,
He might as well be dead.

Out of Place.

"I see Jones riding around in an automobile."

"What's the matter with that?"

"Well, he is only a hack writer."

In Trim.

"How can you crack those great thick nuts so easily with your teeth?"

"That's nothing. I have been studying the Russian language."

They Saved Him.

"He wrote a poem on spring."

"Was it printed?"

"No, the editors to whom it was submitted were his friends."

The Usual Result.

He asked for bread in humble tone
And got what seemed to be a stone,
But careful observation making
He saw it was a bride's first baking.

Where He Failed.

"He is a great artist. He can draw most anything."

"All but a check on the bank."

The Unfortunate Accompaniment.

"Does he want work?"

"Oh, no; he just wants the pay that goes with it."

High School Enlargement Order Advanced.

By Plans of Last Year.

Amendment of Woodward Ordinance Rejected.

The meeting of the City Council Monday evening was an important one, and was marked by interesting debates on the High school enlargement and Woodward ordinance.

Councilmen Adams, Gassett and Hynes were the absentees.

CANAL UNHEALTHY.

The Board of Health forwarded a letter setting forth its conclusions in relation to the canal.

They found the canal in a filthy condition full of garbage and unhealthy. They also forwarded a plan for the improvement with estimate of cost.

The plan proposed is to clean the canal and erect stone retaining walls for a distance of several hundred feet from the Keating buildings at which point the canal would be narrowed to a width of eleven feet. Two methods were presented for accomplishing this, one by a stone wall and the other by sheeting. The estimated cost of the former was $6,500 and by the latter $4,498. Placed on file.

APPOINTMENT.

The Mayor in a communication announced the appointment of ex-Councilman Roger H. Wilde as manager of the Adams Academy vice John A. Bernhard resigned. Placed on file.

PETITIONS.

The New England Telephone Co. petitioned for a location of two poles on Elm street. To Committee on Streets.

JUNK WAGONS.

The Committee on Ordinances reported ought to pass on order amending the junk wagon ordinance. Rule suspended and order passed. Junk wagons must now have metallic number plates and drivers must also wear large metallic numbers on hats.

SAGAMORE STREET.

The Committee on Streets reported on substitute order relocating Sagamore street. Substitute accepted and order took its second reading.

Mayor Thompson said this relocation was the result of an agreement between the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. and the Old Colony street railway, who with the city would bear the expense in the same proportion as the bridge was being built. Referred to Finance Committee.

Upon motion of Councilman Gearwar it was voted when the Council adjourn it be until next Monday evening.

PUBLIC HEARINGS.

Seven public hearings were held. Six of these were for locations of poles and attachment of wires. Thomas L. Green of the Telephone Company explained why these attachments and locations were needed.

There was no opposition and the orders were recommitted.

The other hearing was on the discontinuing the lower end of Sea street.

Commodore Crane of the Quincy Yacht club had no objections if the the rights of the Quincy Yacht club were not jeopardized.

Quincy, April 1m

Councilman Bass opposed passage. Hoped Council would wait until after hearing before Attorney General.

Councilman Chamberlin favored. He only urged the matter to keep the city from a law suit.

Councilman Bass—The gentleman the last speaker is representing went to the Attorney General to intimidate the Council. Let us fight the matter out and get the opinion sought for.

Councilman Chamberlin. I represent no one but myself. The gentleman did not want the city proceeded against. He simply wanted an opinion, not knowing that the city would be notified.

The order was put on its final passage and failed to pass, 6 voting in the affirmative and 13 in the negative, as follows:

YEAS,—Chamberlin, Polk, Savage, Sawyer, Stewart and Stone—6.

ABSENT,—Adams, Gassett, Hynes—3.

NOT VOTING,—President Nichols.

Councilman Chase offered an order for a committee consisting of the chairman of the Finance Committee and chairman of Public Buildings Committee together with a committee of three to be appointed by the President, to confer with the School Committee in regard to changes in the High School plans, and that the Superintendent of Schools, Mayor and Commissioner of Public Works be invited to be present at the meeting.

Councilman Piper asked the object of the order.

Councilman Chase—My object is to try and see if there is not some way to reconcile the difference of opinion between the Public Buildings Committee, School Board and certain members of the Council. Nothing can be done unless the opposing elements come together.

Councilman Burgess thought the idea a good one. Hoped Council would get together and do something this year.

Councilman Piper. No one would go further to settle this matter than I would. He moved to include the five sets of plans secured by the Public Buildings committee.

Councilman Stone hoped citizens would not be deprived of a High school any longer. Hoped original order would pass.

Councilman Hughes. It simply amounts to the School Board saying you have got to accept the Gould plans or nothing. The sooner the Gould plans were relegated out of the Council, the sooner the building will be completed.

Councilman Burgess—It was time something was done.

Councilman Piper—If we accept the Gould plans as they are there will be no need of a conference. The order calls for changes in plans. Could not see why the five plans should not be included.

Councilman McLane—The Council should stand for its rights. He did not think School Board should dictate to the City Council.

Councilman Crane thought it a reflection on the Public Buildings Committee. If a suitable building could be erected for $80,000 he did not see why city should pay $120,000.

Councilman Stone—Mr. Gould was obliged to make complete detail plans. Were the other five sets that way?

Councilman Burgess—None of these five plans had over five or six pages of specifications while the Gould plans have 35.

Councilman Chase. — The School Committee have approved the Gould plans. All this opposition is because of the name of Gould. Is there anyone who dares criticise the Gould plans. It was idiotic to criticise plans simply because they were Gould's. The specifications call for elaborate finish. These can be modified. We want every man to state his position so we will know where he stands. The cause for further delay ought to be placed. Those responsible for past delays are placed. We want all factions to get together. This was the object of his order.

Councilman Piper's amendment was adopted by a vote of 12 in favor and 7 against.

Councilman Bass asked if this order was passed did it take the matter from of the Finance Committee. It might preclude some of that committee from participating.

Councilman Chase did not wish to take any rights from the Finance Committee.

The amended order of Councilman Chase was then put and defeated.

SHOT HIS WIFE.

Aged Atlantic Man Insanely Jealous.

Was Father of Seventeen Children.

But Had Only Had Two Years of Peaceful Life.

There was quite a little excitement at Atlantic Monday aternoon, caused by Thomas Martin, aged 68 years, shooting his wife Eliza, aged 65 years, at their home at 43 Charles street.

After doing the shooting Martin ran from the house and was captured later by Inspector Bradley who locked him up for safe keeping.

According to the stories told, Martin has not been in his right mind for some time, and although he had been married 40 years and had 17 children, he was insanely jealous of his wife.

The neighbors say that he had not the least reason for being jealous, and that it was only a disordered mind that made him act so.

Martin and his wife had an argument in the afternoon, and while it was in progress he drew a revolver and fired at her. The bullet, a 32-caliber, ploughed through the fleshy part of the arm and became imbedded in the wall.

It is said that he attempted to fire a second shot but was knocked down by his daughter-in-law. Picking himself up he ran from the house.

The police were notified and when Chief Burrell and Inspector Bradley arrived they found everybody at a high pitch of excitement, and Dr. Johnson attending the injured woman. Martin was gone, no one knew where.

Just then a young man came in, and said Martin was making a short cut to Hancock street. Inspector Bradley rushed out and soon overhauled the would-be murderer. As Inspector Bradley approached Martin put his hand toward his hip pocket and Bradley thinking him about to shoot, made a rush for him and grappling Martin took the revolver from his coat pocket.

At the police station he was examined by Dr. Johnson. He talked rationally and seemed surprised when told he had shot his wife. He said he fired simply to frighten her. He said he had stood things as long as he could, and thought it time to do something, as he had only had two years peaceful life since he was married.

Mrs. Martin injuries are not of a serious nature.

Martin was examined for his sanity this morning and will be sent away.

Death of Former Resident.

Thomas B. Roche, a former, well known resident of Quincy, and a brother of David Roche, of Carruth street, died at San Francisco, California, April 20.

Mr. Roche removed from Quincy to California in the early fifties, and engaged in the quarry business until 1868, furnishing the stone for many of the early structures throughout the state.

He at that time was located in Folsom. He then removed to Angelos, and engaged in the contracting business, which he conducted up to the time of his death.

He leaves a widow, and six sons and daughters.

Tramps Must Work.

Gov. Douglas has signed the new tramp law, which reads:

"Cities and towns which provide lodging for tramps and vagrants shall require them, if physically able, to perform labor of some kind in return for their lodging and for food furnished them, and the places in which such persons are lodged shall be kept in such order and condition as may be prescribed by the state board of health."

Elaborate Decorations.

The ladies who have charge of the Y. M. C. A. fair-fete will commence tomorrow to decorate the rooms to represent the thirteen original colonies. The whole building will be used, and the decorations will be on an elaborate scale and eclipse anything of the kind ever attempted in Quincy.

HIGGINS--ADAMS.

One of the early spring church weddings was that of Miss Sadie Isabelle Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Adams of Quincy, and Mr. Thomas Joseph Higgins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Higgins of Hingham, at St. Mary's church, Monday evening at 7.30.

The bride, who is a graduate of the Quincy High school 1901 and salutatorian of her class, was gowned in white satin, en princesse, wearing the conventional tulle veil caught with a coronet of lilies of the valley. In her hand she carried a bouquet of the same flowers, arranged in shower effect.

The maid of honor was Miss Margaret G. Reilly, a classmate of the bride. She looked charming in a gown of light blue crepe de chine, white tulle hat and carried a bouquet of white roses tied with white satin ribbon.

Mr. William Howe of Hingham was best man.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. Callahan in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends.

A reception was held at the residence of the bride's brother, Mr. William B. Adams, Jr., from 8 until 10. Mr. and Mrs. Higgins were the recipients of a large number of beautiful presents.

After their wedding tour to Washington, they will reside at Assinippi and will be at home to friends after June 15.

BETHANY CONCERT.

An enjoyable concert was given at Bethany chapel Monday evening, by the church choir and other talent under the direction of Mrs. E. C. Page.

Three of the numbers, one of two selections, were by the choir of thirty or more voices, who occupied chairs on the platform during the evening. The selections were:

"Hoist the Sail,"	E. Broome
"Forget me not,"	Giese
"Waves of the Sea,"	Anderton
"Greeting to Spring,"	J. Strauss

There was spirit and rhythm in all the selections and they were liberally applauded. A male quartette, composed of Messrs. Sellar, Beale, Sherburne and Pollard appeared in the first number.

One of the best musical numbers was a trio, "The Cuckoo Calls," by Mrs. Page, Mrs. Charles Tanner and Miss Young.

Mrs. Isabelle Davis, the reader, is always a favorite with Quincy audiences and of course encores were given. Her first number was Celia Thaxter's "Pocohontas," and the second, "Zenobia." Selections in lighter vein were given on the recalls.

The decorations included flags, plants and flowers.

Bates Vs. Linscott.

Judge Marden of Stoughton, to whom was referred the Bates-Linscott lawsuit as master, has drafted his report, and will read the same to counsel this week, after which it will be laid before the judges of the Superior court.

Boiler Makers Ball.

The Boiler Makers Union held their annual ball Monday evening at the Coliseum. It was largely attended, upwards of 150 couples being present. Dancing was enjoyed until 4 o'clock, the only intermission being at midnight when a supper was served.

A REIGN OF TERROR

Nearly a Hundred Killed or Wounded at Warsaw

SLAUGHTER UNPROVOKED

Troops Became Uncontrollable and Fired Upon Peaceful Parade -- Women and Children Among Those Shot While Vast Crowd Was In Retreat--Disturbances of Serious Nature In Other Parts of Poland

Warsaw, May 2.—Nearly 100 people were killed or wounded in disturbances in various quarters of Warsaw yesterday. The troops were apparently uncontrollable and violated all orders to act with moderation. They fired into crowds of demonstrators, and workmen in retaliation resorted to the use of firearms and bombs. Many women and children are among the dead and dying. What approaches a reign of terror exists. The city presents a most gloomy aspect, and the temper of the entire community augurs ill.

May day opened with every prospect that the recent gloomy forebodings would find contradiction in a peaceful ending. Glorious weather ushered in the beginning of the celebrations, and all factories, shops and offices of every description were closed. The presence of a number of patrols of Cossack cavalry and infantry were the only reminder of lurking danger.

The first disturbances occurred between 1 and 2 o'clock p. m. when a procession of several thousand workmen, carrying red flags, marched along Zelaxna street. The demonstration was quiet, orderly and proceeded without molestation for some distance.

Suddenly several squadrons of Uhlans appeared, but without interfering with the procession, and took up a position along the sidewalks while the workmen passed through the lines. Then a company of infantry approached from the front, and immediately the cavalry charged into the procession, driving it with the flats of their swords into a disorganized mass. When the cavalry withdrew the infantry fired a volley, whereupon the demonstrators turned and fled. The infantry continued to discharge volleys into the retreating, shrieking multitude. Thirty-one persons were killed and many wounded and of the latter it is believed that 15 will die.

The shooting is described as having been quite unprovoked. It has aroused the most intense indignation among all classes in Warsaw. Many of those who were killed or wounded were shot in the back, showing that they were running away when they were struck.

Another terrible scene was enacted at 5 o'clock p. m. at the corner of ...ota and Sosnore streets, when workmen fired from behind a wall at a patrol, which immediately opened fire on the passing crowds, killing or wounding 20 persons.

The first bomb throwing occurred at 9:35 o'clock last night, when a bomb was thrown into a Cossack patrol near the Vienna station. Three Cossacks and one policeman were killed and two women who were leaving the station at the time were severely wounded by the explosion of the bomb. Cossacks and infantry fired a number of volleys, and it is reported that many persons were killed or wounded. Troops surrounded the whole neighborhood. It has been impossible up to the present time to secure accurate information as to the casualties in this affair.

At 10:45 o'clock p. m. disturbances broke out in the suburb of Praga, across the Vistula river. A great crowd had assembled there, threatening the troops, when hussars fired upon the crowd and killed four and wounded many others.

It is reported from Lodz that a crowd there stoned a military patrol, whereupon the soldiers fired and killed two men and wounded a boy. Later a similar scene occurred in Lodz, when two persons were killed.

In Lodz last night a bomb was thrown at a patrol, but it was not effective. The patrol fired into the crowd and killed three and wounded two persons.

A student who was distributing proclamations in Wola, a suburb of Warsaw, last night, was killed by a patrol.

Political Significance Dwindling

Berlin, May 2.—Sixty-six trade unions held public meetings yesterday and the socialists celebrated May day in 52 halls. Public interest outside the socialist party, however, was very slight. The newspapers point out that the political significance of May day has dwindled to zero.

Italian Workmen Well-Behaved

Rome, May 2.—May day passed off throughout Italy without any notable incident. Anarchists persisted in an attempt to parade the streets here in violation of a prohibition by the authorities, but were dispersed by troops without serious difficulty.

Austria Had No Trouble

Vienna, May 2.—May day passed off quietly throughout Austria. In Vienna 30,000 workmen paraded without disorder. There were the customary meetings of socialists.

MURDER OR SUICIDE

What Nan Patterson's Counsel Says of Young's Death

New York, May 2.—"This case is one of deliberate murder or suicide. There can be no manslaughter about it. There should be no compromise verdict. She is either guilty of murder in the first degree or not at all." With these significant words, Abraham Levy, counsel for Nan Patterson, brought to a close his five-hour argument in defense of the former chorus girl charged with the murder of Caesar Young.

During the long argument Miss Patterson faced the jury unflinchingly and watched every movement of the men who are to determine her fate.

Mr. Levy reviewed all the testimony in detail and declared not a word had been introduced which showed any purpose on the part of Miss Patterson or her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Smith, to threaten the life of Caesar Young.

The suicide theory was strongly emphasized by Levy, who contended that the powder stains on Young's fingers proved that he had shot himself. Mr. Levy scouted the idea that a girl would be able to make such an assault on a trained athlete like Young. He also ridiculed the idea that Miss Patterson should have chosen a crowded public street as a place for murder when she had so many opportunities to attack Young where there would have been little danger of detection.

Assistant District Attorney Rand will close for the people today and it is probable the case will go to the jury this afternoon.

Memorable Event Celebrated

Washington, May 2.—Seven years ago yesterday Admiral Dewey, then commodore, sailed into Manila bay with the Asiatic squadron and gained a victory which won for him the title of admiral. In commemoration of the event 22 officers who served with Dewey called on him at his office and paid their respects and later, with ladies, were the guests of Admiral and Mrs. Dewey at luncheon at the admiral's home.

Uncomplimentary to Admiralty

London, May 2.—The Daily Graphic, citing as confirmation of its allegation that the heavy guns of the British battleships are practically worthless, the news from Hong Kong that the 12-inch guns on the Qcean and Vengeance will have to be replaced speedily, returns to the charge against the admiralty, and gives a list of 13 first-class battleships, all of which have had to send for repairs for one or more guns.

Intends to Remain Neutral

Paris, May 2.—The renewed agitation in the Japanese press relative to France's alleged non-observance of neutrality attracts attention here, but the foreign office says no further official consideration of the subject has occurred or is expected, as France has given the most ample assurances that she intends to observe neutrality and these are being fully carried out.

Considering Greene-Gaynor Case

Quebec, May 2.—After hearing arguments, the court of appeals took the appeal made by the attorneys of Gaynor and Greene from the decision of Judge Davidson of Montreal under consideration. No time was set for a delivery of judgment. Judge Davidson's decision was to the effect that Extradition Commissioner Lafontaine was qualified to hear the case.

$100,000 Gift From Wanamaker

Paris, May 2.—Announcement was made at the dinner last night terminating the Young Men's Christian Association congress that John Wanamaker of Philadelphia had given $100,000 for Young Men's Christian Association buildings at Pekin, Seoul and Kyoto. This supplements Wanamaker's former gifts for buildings at Calcutta and Madras.

Top Values on Wool Clips

Rawlins, Wyo., May 2.—The excitement of wool buying here continues; the Miller clip, 125,000 pounds, has been sold for 21 1-4 cents; the Pioneer, 200,000 pounds, for 22½ cents; the Nelson and Jones, 100,000 pounds, for 23 cents, costing 70 cents, scoured, landed. The prices on the last two clips are the highest ever reached in Wyoming.

Concession on 2000 Miles of Land

St. Johns, May 2.—The lower house of the legislature last night confirmed a contract granting the Harmsworths, the English publishers, the pulp concession on 2000 square miles of the interior of the island for the establishment of pulp mills. The Harmsworths paid $500,000 for the property.

Cheated the Government

Portland, Or., May 2.—Henry W. Miller, indicted on Jan. 13 by a federal gand jury in conjunction with three others for conspiracy to defraud the government out of a portion of its public lands, pleaded guilty in the United States district court. Sentence was reserved.

Peru and Chile at Peace

Santiago, Chile, May 2.—The announcement that the Peruvian government proposes to send a legation to Chile, restoring the entente between the two countries, has created a very good impression here.

ANOTHER WONDER OF SCIENCE.

Biology has Proved that Dandruff is Caused by a Germ.

Science is doing wonders these days in medicine as well as in mechanics. Since Adam lived, the human race has been troubled with dandruff, for which no hair preparation has heretofore proved a successful cure until Newbro's Herpicide was put on the market. It is a scientific preparation that kills the germ that makes dandruff or scurf by digging into the scalp to get at the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality; causing itching scalp, falling hair, and finally baldness. Without dandruff hair must grow luxuriantly. It is the only destroyer of dandruff. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

HELD ON SUSPICION

Six Arrests In Connection With the Bartlett Murder

IS NO SPECIFIC CHARGE

State Attorney Says Evidence at Inquest Was Very Conflicting, but Expects Some of Young Witnesses to Break Down

Bennington, Vt., May 2.—Six young men have been placed under arrest on suspicion, pending further investigation of the death of Fred H. Bartlett, the North Bennington young man, whose body was found in the street of that town early Sunday. The prisoners all belong in this town, and are said by the police to have been with Bartlett in the saloon of Charles Allen, at Walloomsac, N. Y., Saturday night. The police theory is that Bartlett was murdered and his body carried to North Bennington and left in front of the First National bank building. The arrests were made during yesterday and last night.

The prisoners, who were locked up at the county jail here, are James Kelly, Jr., aged 22; John Wonderland, 20; Edward Sweet, 20; Fred Debelle, 20; George Greene, Jr., 22, and "Bub" Clark, 20 years old.

Kelly and Wonderland are mill hands. Sweet and Debelle had recently left school. Kelly, Wonderland and Sweet were arrested early in the day at their homes; Debelle was taken into custody in the afternoon, and Greene and Clark last night. There is no specific charge against any of the young men, who are held only on suspicion.

All were witnesses at the inquest begun before Judge Bates in police court and conducted by State Attorney Daley. Daley said last night: "We have been working hard on this case and it has developed into one of the most complicated affairs in my experience. While I cannot make public the testimony developed during my examination of 20 witnesses, it seemed as though every witness helped to make the case more involved. The testimony was conflicting and it will be several days before we have finished the hearing.

"I, however, feel much encouraged over the day's developments and rather expect some of the boys in custody will break down and tell more about the case than they did at the hearing.

"What little evidence we had Sunday night seemed to indicate that Bartlett met his death in New York state. Now I feel quite sure that the murder took place in Vermont, quite close to North Bennington, where the body was found. It is true that Bartlett's hat was found about 120 feet from the body, and in the direction of Bennington, which would seem to indicate that after the body had been left in North Bennington the team drove on in the direction of this place, and the hat later thrown out when discovered in the carriage."

The inquest was behind closed doors, but it is understood that it was sought to determine the whereabouts of Bartlett on Saturday night, and in whose company he left Walloomsac to return to his home in North Bennington.

CARRYING RIFLES

Non-Union Men at Chicago to Defend Themselves

MORE STRIKE BREAKERS

Guaranteed Permanent Positions and Given Full Pay of Union Men--Latter In an Ugly Mood and Conditions Worse

Chicago, May 2.—Conditions in the teamsters' strike are now worse than at any preceding time. The strikers are in an uglier mood, and the rioting yesterday was more open and vicious and the attacks on non-union men more frequent and daring than at any time since the beginning of the strike.

The chief cause for the increased belligerency on the part of the strikers and their friends is the fact that the Employers' Teaming association has brought 1500 men into Chicago to take the places of strikers and 500 more are said to be now on the way. These men will receive the full pay of union men and it has been guaranteed to them that their positions will be permanent.

On every wagon of the Employers' Teaming association a rifle is carried in open view. During the last week there has been much complaint on the part of strike sympathizers of the readiness with which non-union men, particularly negroes, have used revolvers. A number of strike-breakers have been arrested on a charge of carrying concealed weapons and yesterday the attorneys of the Employers' Teaming association called on Chief of Police O'Neill and asked if their men had not the right to carry weapons provided they were held in open view. O'Neill replied that there was no law against it, and over 1000 rifles were promptly purchased. During the latter part of the afternoon a number of wagons went through the streets with a rifle lying across the knees of the driver and his assistant.

The reason for this move on the part of the employers is that yesterday, notwithstanding the utmost efforts of the police, non-union teamsters did not have the protection that the employers regarded as adequate.

When Mayor Dunne was informed that rifles would be carried by non-union men, he declared that the police would not be permitted to authorize the carrying of arms by any one. Chief of Police O'Neill, however, declared that if the employers armed their men, the police could not legally interfere, as long as the weapons were not concealed.

"There is no law against the carrying of weapons in the open," the chief declared. "If the men keep the weapons in full view the police cannot interfere. There is a law against shooting within the city limits, and also a law against brandishing a weapon in a threatening manner, and both of these laws will be strictly enforced. I disapprove of the arming of those engaged in the strike, and as far as my influence goes, I shall discourage it."

Five men were seriously hurt during the fights yesterday. All will recover.

The Employers' association last evening informed the five largest team owning companies that if coal was not delivered all of their contracts would be cancelled at once and they would not be renewed at any time hereafter, strike or no strike. The team owners agreed to make the deliveries as demanded.

The union labor leaders who were indicted last Saturday appeared at the criminal court building and gave bonds in the sum of $1500 each.

Two serious riots took place last night. The first was at West Harrison and Desplaines streets, where a mob, numbering fully 2000, attacked 16 non-union men going to the depot under guard of a squad of police. Stones and other missiles were hurled at the men and it was with difficulty that the police were able to protect them from the crowd. Several non-union men were injured with stones and many of the mob suffered wounds from the clubs of the policemen. A number of arrests were made.

A second fight took place at Twenty-Second and State streets, where a crowd attacked four coal wagons guarded by eight private detectives. The non-union men were pelted with stones from the second story of a building. The detectives, drawing revolvers, charged into the place and the inmates fled, no shots being fired. A riot call brought the police and the crowd was dispersed. The detectives were at once arrested for carrying concealed weapons.

Claimed to Be an Accident

Albany, May 2.—Franklin Havens, secretary of the Albany Board of Fire Insurance Underwriters, was shot by Miss Julia Craver, a clerk in his employ, last evening in his office, and died late last night. Miss Craver, who is under arrest, claims that the shooting was accidental, and the police say they have found no evidence to cast doubt upon her story. Havens was unconscious and therefore unable to make any statement. Havens was 35 years old, married, and the father of two children. Miss Craver, who is 22, bears an excellent reputation.

Scollans Held on Old Fraud Case and New Indictment

Boston, May 2.—Thomas J. Scollans must stay in jail until the jury tries him for the old teaming fraud case, and on a new indictment charging him with being an accessory to the bribing of Juror Milliken at the old trial in 1899.

Bail was fixed at $10,000 in the bribery allegation, while on the teaming fraud default Judge Fessenden decided that, in view of all of the circumstances, he would deny the motion made by Lawyer Baker that the default be removed and the prisoner be allowed to go on bail.

The hearing on both matters was rather lively and lengthy. Scollans wore a poorly fitting drab business suit, and had on an immaculate white tie, into which a stickpin was thrust. He looked little like the dapper Scollans of a few years ago with rosy cheeks and sprightly walk. He seemed, however, to have lost none of his nonchalant manner, and he was apparently at ease.

Four More Incendiary Fires

Boston, May 2.—Soon after three fires of incendiary origin at the South End were extinguished after hard fighting last night, another incendiary blaze at the Fitchburg yards, Charlestown, caused general apprehension at 1 o'clock this morning, lest a repetition of the big dock fires was to come. Fortunately, the Charlestown fire was put out on the first alarm, after causing a loss of a few hundreds to two cars standing in the freight yards. The South End fires, however, were more serious, as more than a score of sleeping children were in peril.

Gem Thief Collared

Boston, May 2.—Blazing away into space with their revolvers, Patrolmen Cobb and Ridlon chased David Keefe through the West End shortly after midnight this morning, when they discovered him in the act of taking the jewelry from the store window of Joseph Sandler at 194 Merrimac street. None of the shots took effect. Keefe finally gave up exhausted. He said he was 21 years of age, single, and lives at Somerville. He was charged with breaking and entering and larceny in the night time.

Wage Agreement Hangs Fire

Providence, May 2.—Indications point to trouble between the Carpenters' union and the Master Builders' association directly affecting over 1400 men, no agreement regarding a demand for $3 a day, an advance of 20 cents a day over last year's minimum rate, having yet been reached. It is also expected that the Plumbers' union will soon present a demand for an increase of at least 50 cents a day. The Plumbers' union comprises about 1000 men.

SUPERIOR COURT.

An Unusually Large Attendance at Opening.—Few Cases Ready.

The trains from Boston to Dedham, Monday morning carried scores of lawyers and litigants to the Superior court, where the May Civil term has opened. The former filled the bar enclosure to overflowing, and the latter taxed the capacity of the spectators' seats. It was the largest attendance ever known, —so the court officers remarked.

The session was opened as usual by an invocation for courage, and a deepened sense of justice in the minds of those who had the responsibility of adjusting the differences of their fellow men. The jury list was then called, and the court was ready for business. Judge Hardy is presiding, but will shortly be succeeded by Judge Crosby who will preside during the remainder of the term.

At the calling of the list it was found that most of the lawyers had come not to try their cases, but to "beg off" until later in the term. All kinds of excuses were offered, and it looked as if there was nothing ready for immediate trial. His honor manifested his displeasure with this state of things and said he might as well excuse the jury for the week. He then asked those who had cases ready for trial, regardless of their position on the list, to indicate that fact. There were several responses, and special assignments of those cases were made.

THAT "GET ROSY" KNIGHT

Traveling Man Explains What "Get Rosy" Apitezo Means.

"I see the city of Quincy is 'Getting Rosy,'" remarked Edward Broderick, a representative of The American Advertiser, who was in the city yesterday.

"As an advertising man, of course, I'm keenly interested in new ads, and I want to tell you that this plump Apitezo Knight is capturing the country. He is 'a creation' in the class with the Gold Dust Twins, The Smile That Won't Come Off, etc.

"These ads are notable ones. What is the significance of the 'Get Rosy' in every one? What does the Knight's armor stand for? Why is Apitezo called "Iron Food?" How many readers have puzzled over these questions?

"Now, this new food has been advertised a little longer in some cities I've passed than it has here, and the later ads explain the mysteries. 'Get Rosy' means get the color in your cheeks that red blood and perfect health give. The Knight is in armor, as he is out to fight false food notions, particularly the fancy that you have to eat stuff you don't like for health's sake. Apitezo is the 'Iron Food' because it is rich in plant iron, such as is found in peas and spinach. A Government test in Iowa proved this food to be richer in protein, or building qualities, than the best steak, far ahead of any other cereal food.

"And just notice this! They don't talk health food to you in their ads—they know something else about Apitezo that is better to tell. It's Delicious. That is why the food is scoring the greatest success ever known. A food that is substantial and healthful in the highest degree and yet delights the taste! The ads help, of course, but it is the distinctive difference, the delicious taste that is winning favor for Apitezo. At the same time they do say it makes even indoor workers 'Get Rosy.'"

His Generous Offer.

She—No, my dear; there are too many things to give up to get married.

He—Well, then, you keep your job, and I'll give up mine.—New York World.

Hill of the Poison Plant.

Close to the frontier of Nepal is the mountain of Sandook-Phu, which means in the Tibetan language "the hill of the poison plant," or aconite. This plant is so abundant and so deadly in its effects that all sheep and cattle passing over the mountain are muzzled by their drivers. An English traveler saw at its foot great heaps of discarded bamboo muzzles. Curiously enough, only those cattle that are newly imported from the plains are fatally affected. The natives believe that the sheep of the district learn to shun the youngest leaves, which are the most virulent. A more likely explanation is that they grow habituated to the drug by taking it in small quantities.

MAYOR AND OTHERS

Before Legislature in Favor of River Improvement.

A hearing was held before the Legislative Committee on Harbors and Public Lands, Tuesday, on the bill for an appropriation for $20,000 by the State to be used in combination with the $80,000 government appropriation for improving Weymouth Fore River. Congressman McNary, President Bowles of the Fore River Company, Mayor Thompson, City Solicitor Thomas, Henry M. Faxon, representing the Electric Light & Power Co., and Mr. Currier representing the Old Colony Street railway, were present and urged the passage of the bill.

Congressman McNary said Massachusetts has a splendid chance now to take advantage of the opportunity for industrial development and aid materially several industries of the state. The United States government he said agreed to spend $80,000 in the next two years, while Massachusetts was required to expend $20,000 at the utmost, of which sum $14,000 is available from an appropriation made a few years ago.

Referring to the manner in which the appropriation was made by the United States, Mr. McNary stated that the proposition was submitted to himself and Congressman Lawrence, the Massachusetts member of the river and harbor committee, by Congressman Burton, chairman of the committee. A stipulation was inserted in the general bill that this state should take care of the interior waterways, and the federal government of the approaches.

There was no opposition to the bill at the hearing.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Barker of Hancock street entertained the Tuesday Evening club last evening. Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Packard carried off first honors at whist and Mrs. Roger H. Wilde and Mr. Thomas Hinkley second. Music, dancing and refreshments rounded out a most pleasant evening.

MOST MODERN AND COMPLETE IN THE UNITED STATES.

INTERIOR OF POWER STATION AT QUINCY POINT

[CUT KINDLY LOANED BY THE BOSTON HERALD.]

One of the chief points of interest for some years to come, in Quincy, already noted for its granite, its shipyard, its schools and its history, will be the mammoth steam turbine power plant of the Old Colony street railway, which furnishes the motive power for 400 miles of trackage.

The Boston Herald says: Development of electrical traction has gone far beyond the remotest flights of the fancy of those who were prominently identified in first adapting it to the uses of transportation. It was only as recently as the spring of 1885 that Prof. S. H. Short of Denver University inaugurated, in the city of Denver, the first commercially operated trolley line in the United States. The application of electricity as a motive power had been made many years before Prof. Short started his railway, but he was the first to give a practical demonstration of its utilities in the carriage of passengers and freight. Since then the growth in this particular field of energy has been phenomenal, not only in the methods of handling the subtle force, but also in its generation and transmission.

From the first, effort has been directed toward affecting economies in the development and in the uses of electricity, and to this end important changes have taken place in the equipment of power stations. At first the engines were belted to the dynamos, then came the direct connected engines and dynamos, to be followed by the turbine units.

This is the limit to which improvement in this direction has gone, but no one would be foolish enough to say it will stop here. Effort now is being directed, with a prospect of success, to securing a method by which the latent energy of coal can be used in the direct generation of electricity, but until this has been accomplished attention will be centred upon the turbine unit.

In referring to this latest achievement of the electrical engineer, no better sample of the practical workings of the turbine could be had than that shown by the recently established power house of the Old Colony street railway system at Quincy Point. It is known as the

of this combination of roads, and is said to be the most modern and complete in the United States.

It is notable from the fact that it is the first station of its size to be exclusively equipped with steam turbines, and was designed to furnish power for operating all the lines of the company. These extend from Boston south to Providence, Newport, Fall River, New Bedford, Nantasket, Hyde Park, Dedham and Norwood, with a trackage of about 400 miles, and serving 33 cities and towns in Massachusetts, with a total population of 350,000, not taking into account Boston or Providence, Newport and other towns in Rhode Island.

This station has a maximum capacity of 22,500 horse power, and was designed to take the place of 11 small engine-driven stations. A concrete wharf has been built in front of the station which is located on the banks of the Fore river, for the discharging of coal, and vessels drawing 25 feet of water can be unloaded at this wharf. The coal is automatically conveyed through a tunnel from the wharf to the station and delivered into a pocket at the top of the building above the boilers, from which it is taken automatically and delivered directly into the furnaces by mechanical stokers.

Two large concrete water mains, terminating in a substantial uptake at the wharf, convey the water necessary for condensing the steam from the turbines. There are five large pumps installed in the station for this purpose, and some idea of the amount of water handled can be gathered from the fact that when running at maximum load each turbine requires for condensing purposes about 500 tons of water per hour, or a total of 2500 tons per hour for the entire plant.

The most novel features in connection with this plant is the steam turbines. The wisdom of the company in installing these engines has already been demonstrated, as they have shown a great

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The combination of dusty streets, blustery winds and food stuffs displayed on sidewalks in front of the stores—a combination which prevailed a good part of the time last month—constitutes a situation that is open to criticism. In Brockton the board of health has enacted a regulation forbidding the display on the sidewalks of meats, vegetables and fruits. Such must be kept under cover, and the penalty for a violation of the rule is $100. In speaking of the rule, a Brockton health officer is quoted as saying: "When it is considered the number of loose dogs that are roaming the streets, and the practice of some of the local stores in setting boxes of vegetables, greens and other food supplies out on the sidewalk, and then again the exposure of these food articles to the nasty winds and particles of all sorts of foulness which find lodgment in these places, I do not think that the people will hesitate in their approval of the action of the board in taking this step."—New Bedford Standard.

RIOTS AT CHICAGO

One Man Killed and a Long List of Injured

WHOLE CITY IS AFFECTED

Non-Union Men Attacked With All Sorts of Weapons--Though Outnumbered, They Put Up a Desperate Fight -- Interests Which Opposed Striking Teamsters Not Quite So United

Chicago, May 3.—The death of one man and the injury of scores of others was the immediate result of Tuesday's fighting between the striking teamsters and their sympathizers on the one side, and the police and the non-union men on the other. There were riots in all parts of the city. Men were clubbed and stoned almost to death within a square of police headquarters and five miles away men were shot down in the streets.

At a hundred other places there were assaults and fights in the streets. Blood was shed in State street, in the heart of the fashionable shopping district, and furious riots took place almost in the doorways of the leading hotels. Non-union men were pelted with stones, bricks and every other conceivable sort of missile. They were dragged from their wagons, beaten, clubbed, stabbed and stamped upon. But for the splendid service rendered by the police the list of dead would be 20 instead of one.

The non-union men, although hopelessly outnumbered in every struggle, fought desperately. In several instances they drew revolvers and emptied them into the crowds that pressed around their wagons, pelting them with stones and threatening their lives. The negro drivers especially were quick with their weapons. Large numbers of the non-union drivers carried heavy clubs and they swung them with terrific effect throughout the day.

As far as can be ascertained the list of injured numbers is in the neighborhood of 40, but it is far short of being accurate. Many men who were in the mobs that attacked the wagons went down before the clubs of the police and of the wagon guards, but they were carried away by their friends and there is no chance of learning their names or of even guessing at their number.

The outlook is for more fighting and there is not the slightest evidence of the approaching end of the strike.

The interests which have been opposing the striking teamsters are not as united as heretofore. The cause of this dissension is the action of the Team Owners' association, which has contracts with the railroads and many large firms and employs none but union teamsters, in refusing to make deliveries to any of the firms involved in the strike when ordered to do so by the Employers' association. When the employers received this ultimatum they notified the team owners that unless the request that no discrimination be made in deliveries were granted, an effort would be made to have all existing contracts between team owners and the business houses and the railroads cancelled.

At a meeting held between representatives of the Employers' association and the large team owners, the latter declared they would not attempt to deliver coal to any firm where a strike was in progress, as they did not wish to be involved in the trouble with which they considered they had no direct concern. Railroad men, invited to the conference by the Employers' association, took practically the same stand, declaring that the fight was something into which the railroads did not propose to enter; that they had contracts with the team owners which were being fulfilled to their entire satisfaction.

The Commission Team Owners and the Lake Transportation Team Owners' associations have taken a similar stand to the Chicago Team Owners' association.

Important Bills Signed

Harrisburg, May 3.—Governor Pennypacker has signed the bill creating a state department of police, the bill to abolish child labor in the anthracite coal mines and the bill to abolish child labor in factories and workshops. The police bill creates the office of state superintendent of police, who will have under him 200 men, who will do duty in any part of the state.

Great Increase In Importations

New York, May 3.—Importations to this port during the month of April show an increase of nearly $10,000,000 over the corresponding month of last year. The whole value of importations during April was $60,464,603. Sugar was the chief item showing an increase.

PATTERSON JURY OUT

Woman Accused of Murder Appears Confident of Acquittal

New York, May 3.—The fate of Nan Patterson, on her third trial for the murder of Caesar Young, will be in the hands of the jury today. Assistant District Attorney Rand completed the closing argument for the prosecution shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon and Recorder Goff begun his charge to the jury this morning.

At the close of the argument, after Prosecutor Rand had arraigned her in the most scathing terms, had asserted that her silence in this trial was a confession of her guilt, had declared that her sister had lied on the stand and that her counsel had based his plea for her life on a foundation of fabrications, Nan Patterson said she still felt confident the jury would bring in an early verdict of acquittal. "Mr. Rand is a fine orator," she declared, "but I know those 12 men will not hang a girl on oratory."

Mr. Rand consumed practically the entire day. He devoted a large part of his speech to a defense of himself and his methods in the present trial. He declared the charges made against him by Abraham Levy, attorney for the defendant, were unjust and misleading. He denied that he had been guilty of suppressing evidence that might have helped Miss Patterson.

Anti-Graft Law Hits Menials

Madison, Wis., May 3.—The anti-graft bill is now a law, the governor having signed it. It provides that whoever corruptly gives or offers any agent, servant or employe any gift or gratuity whatever, with intention to influence his actions in relation to his employer's business, or any employe who requests or accepts such a gift, shall be liable to a fine of from $10 to $500, or by such fine and imprisonment for one year. This law, if enforced, will put a stop to the giving of tips to porters, bootblacks or waiters.

New York, May 3.—Hope that funds belonging to the Franklyn syndicate may be obtained for the creditors of William F. Miller was revived when James Butler produced before the referee in bankruptcy at a hearing in Brooklyn a key to a box in the Lincoln safe deposit vaults which he believes contains the funds. Butler says he found the key on the street, but he declined to turn it over to the authorities until he was brought before a United States judge.

SAFE SHATTERED

"Burglar Proof" Affair Yielded to an Explosive

EXPLOIT OF MASKED MEN

Tackled Country Bank After "Killing" Wires Connecting Town With Outside World --Villagers' Fruitless Pursuit

Oneonta, N. Y., May 3.—A band of masked robbers rode into the sleeping village of Gilbertsville, about 18 miles from here, at 3 o'clock in the morning, blew open the modern and supposedly burglar-proof safe in the private bank of E. C. Brewer and made good their escape with booty which may reach nearly $10,000. When the startled villagers were awakened by the muffled roar of the explosion and had been halted by the pistol fire of the retreating bandits, they found that the robbers had completely isolated Gilbertsville from the outside world by cutting all the telegraph and telephone wires. Efforts to communicate with neighboring towns were futile and when the village folk finally started in pursuit the robbers had gained a lead which could not be overcome.

Gilbertsville, which is a community of 500 souls, is dazed by the bold attack. It is believed there were five men in the band. That all were heavily armed was shown by the frequency of their fire when the first of the villagers arrived in the vicinity of the bank.

The men first pried open the front door of the bank. Not a light glimmered in the village and they evidently set about their work leisurely. Two holes were drilled in the heavy steel doors of the newly installed safe and into these the explosive, believed to have been nitro-glycerine, was inserted. The explosion wrecked the safe and shattered every window in the bank building. Portions of the safe were found many yards from the building.

The robbers hastily gathered up all the money exposed by the explosion and started on a run just as the first awakened villagers reached the scene. Among the first to arrive at the bank were W. F. Ward and C. A. Daniels, who encountered the robbers and were held in check by their threats to shoot. Other residents quickly came up, but in the meantime the invaders were making good their escape, firing as they went.

The alarm spread rapidly through the town and in a short time everybody was awake and hurrying to the bank. Then an attempt to communicate with the neighboring towns was made, in the hope of intercepting the burglars. Telegraph offices and the telephone exchange were opened, but the operators found only dead wires.

Then plans for pursuit were quickly made. Postmaster Root and his brother started for Mount Upton, the nearest railroad station, six miles away. They had gone but a half mile when they came upon a team hitched to a telegraph pole. One of the horses had become entangled in the harness and fallen. The robbers apparently had made an attempt to right the harness in the darkness, but finally abandoned the effort and made off. The team proved to have been stolen from a neighboring barn.

Continuing on their way, the Root brothers came upon a one-horse surrey near Mount Upton. An axle of the vehicle was broken and a short distance away was the horse, belonging to a farmer in the vicinity and taken from his barn during the night. It is believed that after this vehicle failed them the robbers made their way into the woods, as no further trace of them could be found.

From Mount Upton word of the robbery was sent to all the neighboring towns. Posses were organized, but their efforts to locate the men have so far proved futile. The search is being continued. A good description of the men is lacking and if they have separated, as is probable, their capture will prove a difficult task.

Apaches Promised Liberty

Lawton, O. T., May 3.—With conventional dignity and ostentatious ceremony, Quanah Parker, chief of the Comanche Indians, yesterday delivered a message from President Roosevelt to Geronimo, the Apache warrior, at Parker's home near here. Geronimo departed with the assurance, it is said, that he and his tribe will get their liberty from martial subjection within one year.

Benefit Realized Over $10,000

New York, May 3.—Prominent actors and actresses now in this city joined in a testimonial benefit to Mme. Modjeska and appeared before an audience which filled the Metropolitan Opera house. More than $10,000 was realized from the performance. Mme. Modjeska briefly expressed her thanks in a curtain speech and was warmly applauded.

Strike Against a Student

Lancaster, Pa., May 3.—The students of Franklin and Marshall college executed their threat to ostracise Oscar Gingrich, who recently shot a fellow-student while being hazed, by leaving the classroom upon his entrance. The faculty has not yet taken any action.

New Vessel Stranded

New York, May 3.—Fishing schooner Wesley W. Sennett of Cape Porpoise, Me., went ashore last night on the point of Sandy Hook while bound in. She is a new vessel, of about 75 tons. The vessel is lying in an easy position.

WAVE OF INCENDIARISM

Boston Authorities Appear to Be Unable to Check It

Boston, May 3.—Incendiaries who for a month past have started fires nearly every night, causing thousands of dollars' damage to property and in many instances endangering human life, were at work in this city again last night.

The operations of the firebug shifted last night to the crowded tenement district in South Boston, where, within three hours, four alarms were sounded, and three of the fires were beyond doubt, the police say, incendiary.

A serious fire at the Jenny Oil works, in South Boston, was averted only by the prompt arrival of the fire department. A bunch of cotton waste and newspapers, saturated with kerosene oil, had been placed in one of the small buildings connected with the main plant, in which was stored several hundred barrrels of oil. The firemen confined the fire to the small building, the damage to which amounted to $2500.

A short time later a fire was kindled under a string of freight cars, but the flames were discovered before serious damage had been done.

The third fire, close by the scene of the other two, was discovered in a livery stable. Several horses were saved from suffocation by smoke with considerable difficulty, but the damage to the stable was not great.

Attempt to Burn a Block

Woodbury, Conn., May 3.—An attempt was made to burn the Reynolds block, the biggest in town, at 1 o'clock this morning. When the fire department reached the scene there was a lively blaze in the main stairway and an investigation revealed a huge bundle of rubbish, papers, etc., which had been soaked with kerosene. In the block are the postoffice, the Woodbury Savings bank and several stores and tenements.

Thousand Acres Burned Over

West Kennebunk, Me., May 3.—A fire that started late yesterday near Day's siding on the Boston and Maine railroad, one mile east of here, burned over about 1000 acres of woodland and partially destroyed about 150 cords of cordwood and a barn. The fire started presumably from a spark from a locomotive. It was estimated that the territory burned over was about two miles long and one mile in width.

Walker's Widow Gets Estate

Concord, N. H., May 3.—The disposition of the $200,000 estate of the late Gustavus Walker of this city has been determined by the supreme court. Nephews of Walker had petitioned for the appointment of a trustee, but this petition is denied, and the court rules that Walker's widow is entitled to one-half the real estate and personal property in fee and a life interest in the other half.

Compromise Proposition Rejected

Providence, May 3.—The reply of the Master Painters' association to the compromise proposition of the Painters and Decorators' union is to the effect that they do not propose to change their scale of wages. The strike of the painters will continue until some agreement is arrived at, the number of workmen now out being about 150.

For Granite State Highways

Concord, N. H., May 3.—State Engineer Dean announces that two cities, Franklin and Rochester, and 191 towns have applied for state aid under the act of the legislature which appropriated $125,000 a year for six years for the permanent improvement of main highways. The time in which applications could have been made has now expired.

Buildings and Timber Burned

Portsmouth, N. H., May 3.—Sparks from a passing locomotive kindled a fire that destroyed the farm buildings of C. H. Hayes, a mile outside the city, and, spreading to an adjacent forest burned over 60 acres. The loss on the building is $5000 and on the timber, consisting of heavy spruce and pine, as much more.

Held as Incendiaries

Bath, Me., May 3.—The police last night arrested, as the result of their investigation of the fires on April 26 and 27, Alphonso Burnham, aged 30, Edward Morey, 28, and Maurice Cushing, 21 years old, on a charge of incendiarism. The men are unmarried and live not far from the scene of the recent fires.

Queer Defense For Bigamy

Calais, Me., May 3.—Edgar H. Kelly of New Bedford, Mass., was convicted of bigamy in the supreme court. It was alleged that Kelly married Flora B. Allen of Harwick, Mass., in 1899, Dolly N. S. Beekman of Boston in 1903 and Winifred Pyne of Millbridge, Me., in 1904. The defense was insanity.

Stonecutters Back at Work

Rockland, Me., May 3.—About 150 stonecutters at Crotch island who refused to work until their demand for 25 cents a day for work done out of doors was granted, have returned. It is understood concessions were made whereby they will have more indoor work or more sheds will be erected.

Receiver For Savings Society

Hartford, May 3.—Judge Roraback of the superior court has appointed Charles W. Rohne receiver of the Co-Operative Savings society of Connecticut, with headquarters in this city. The society has several agencies throughout the state and was founded in 1893.

Fishermen's Paradise Open

Kineo, Me., May 3.—The ice left Moosehead lake yesterday, and the regular steamer began her trips to Greenville Junction. The customary crowd of early fishermen have arrived and the sport commenced to-day.

NATURE SPARES

The Stricken Rose From Grief.

What a fortunate provision of nature it is, that deprives the rose of mental suffering; for how poignant would be its grief to discover, in the height of its blooming glory, that a canker fed at its heart, and that its beauty and fragrance were doomed forever. Nature always spares the suffering; she is a veritable store-house of pleasing rewards, for those who seek her aid. In the years gone by falling hair and grayness have cast a gloom over the lives of thousands of young women, but thanks to the investigations of scientists the true cause of hair destruction is now known to be a germ or parasite that burrows into the hair follicles. Newbro's Herpicide absolutely destroys this germ, thus permitting the hair to grow as nature intended. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Murder Traced by Crooked Finger

Kalamazoo, Mich., May 3.—Bert Miller, aged 29, was found dead in his bed in a room which he rented from his aunt, Mrs. Milo Sexton. His skull had been crushed. In the dust on a window ledge in the room the police found the imprint of a hand with a clearly marked crooked little finger. This resulted in the arrest of the husband of Miller's landlady, who has, it is alleged, a crooked finger said to correspond to the mark found in the dust. Mrs. Sexton had secured an order from the court forbidding her husband to visit her and it is said that Miller had been living with her to protect her.

Warsaw People In Bitter Mood

Warsaw, May 3.—The May day death roll totals 62. Probably 200 were wounded. All day yesterday infantry and cavalry patrolled the streets which were crowded with people who did not spare their criticism of what was generally termed unnecessary slaughter. The population is most bitter against the military, and the government officials expect many attempts at revenge upon the officers commanding the troops.

Woman Killed In Church

Kalisz, Russian Poland, May 3.—During an encounter between police and soldiers on one side, and workmen who were participating in a big religious procession on the other side, a bullet penetrated the walls of the church, killing a praying woman. Following the canonical rule, the church, having been defiled with blood, has been closed until it can be purified.

May Breakfast.

In many cities the May breakfast has become a great annual event. This year the W. R. C. of Somerville served breakfast from 5.30 to 9 in three different halls to about 1000 people. In Lynn the associated charities catered to about 4000 in the State armory. In Lawrence fully 5000 took breakfast at City hall, as guests of the Ladies' Union Charitable society. In Wakefield the Woman's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. also served. All were financial successes.

Surprise Party.

A very pleasant surprised party was tendered Miss Ethel Smith at her home on Prospect avenue, Wollaston, Tuesevening, by aboht twenty of her friends. During the evening Harold Sanders of Boston University, presented Miss Smith with a ring in behalf of those present. The evening was spent in playing games, after which refreshments were served.

Among those present were: Ethel Smith, Grace Mehaffy, Bessie Wilbur, Helen Campbell, Ethel Bland, Fannie Keith, Cherry Nervell, Florence Waite, Ida B. THE W. R. C. FAIR.

The three days' fair under the auspices of the Woman's Relief Corps was successfully opened Tuesday evening at Hancock hall with a large attendance.

Tables for the sale of useful and fancy articles were arranged about the hall, and were presided over by the ladies of the corps.

Flags, bunting and flowers were used in abundance in decorating the hall, adding effectiveness to the scene.

The opening exercises were of a pleasing nature. Mrs. Fox, president of the corps, made a few opening remarks, and then introduced Mrs. Annie Warner, Past Department President, who spoke briefly on the aims and objects of the Woman's Relief Corps.

Mayor Thompson was then introduced and formally declared the fair open. He spoke of the good work which the Woman's Relief Corps had done in the past and were doing now, and which they would continue to do in the future. He bespoke success for the fair and hoped that the tables would be well and liberally patronized. Later the Mayor contributed generously to the fair.

During the evening music was furnished by an orchestra.

The tables are prettily decorated, and under supervision of following ladies:—

Refreshment, Mrs. Baxter, and Mrs. Hewson.

Rink Reopened.

Roller skating, which was a popular pastime a few years ago, is being revived, and the popularity of it is coming up almost as quickly as it went down. As in days of old it is enjoyed at the Quincy Coliseum. The opening day was Tuesday afternoon and evening. There was not a large attendance at the afternoon session, but in the evening the old familiar sound of many rollers resounded throughout the rink. The promoters announce their intention to run the rink as a business proposition and to keep it entirely free from objectionable features.

Good music is furnished which adds enjoyment to the sport. There have been some changes in skates from the olden time. Then boxwood rollers were used exclusively. Now nothing but ball bearing steel rollers are used, which run considerably easier. The rink will be open every afternoon between 1.30 and 5.30, and in the evening between 7.30 and 10.30 o'clock.

To an Asylum.

Thomas Martin, who shot his wife at Atlantic, Monday afternoon, was examined Tuesday by City Physician Hallowell, and Dr. E. R. Johnson as to his sanity. He was then taken before Judge Avery who ordered him committed to the Insane Hospital at Taunton.

Incendiary Fire.

The alarm from Box 445 at 4.24 this morning was for a brisk fire in an unoccupied double house on Hall place, owned by Jeremiah Donovan of Atlantic. The fire, which evidently was of incendiary origin, started in the cellar and was burning briskly when discovered. The department however, promptly checked it. Chief Williams estimates the loss at $200.

GRAND CONCERT.

The Manet Club Close Their Series of Entertainments.

The Manet club of Christ church closed its series of entertainments Tuesday evening by a concert at Colonial hall. It was the largest in attendance of the season about two hundred being present.

The program consisted of vocal solos, quartet singing and readings, all of which were very enjoyable. It was one of the finest concerts given in the city for some time.

Those assisting were: Miss Fanny Ellsworth, Miss Ella Raymond, Arthur Peverly and Charles Prout in the quartet, with solos by Miss Raymond, Miss Ellsworth, Mr. Greene and Mr. Peverly. Two readings were given by Miss Marcia Eacker, which were heartily encored, calling forth repetitions. At the piano Wendell Luce added to the enjoyment, as did Miss Streiford who accompanied Miss Ellsworth on the violin.

Mr. Green was a favorite and it was a dissapointment that he did not respond to the appreciative encores.

Miss Ellsworth was in good voice in her solos, as was also Miss Raymond who gave one solo. Mr. Peverly is always satisfactory whether in solo or quartette, and his selection was pleasing. The singing by the quartette was smooth and harmonious, and the selections good.

It was a concert of much merit. The arrangement of the program was pleasing and the committee for the evening are to be congratulated.

The ushers were: Miss Clara Emery, Miss Sara Thomas, Dr. Marstin and Lincoln Rice, and the patronesses: Mrs. William E. Gardner, Mrs. Frank Moore, Miss Mary W. Holden, Miss Grace Isaac, Miss Hattie E. Sargent, Mrs. J. W. Johnson, Mrs. George H. Brown, Mrs. Frank Brewer, Mrs. W. G. A. Pattee, Mrs. Hazen E. Ricker.

Q. H. S. VICTORY.

Defeat Milton High 6 to 4 at Merrymount Park.

Quincy High played its first game at home on Tuesday with Milton High and won 6 to 4. The Miltons scored one run in the first inning, but the Quincys went them one better and then kept the lead until the finish, not finding it necessary to go to the bat in the ninth inning.

Errors were equally divided between the two teams, four and four. The Quincys hit safely six times with a total of seven, while the Miltons obtained but seven scratch hits off Gram.

NEW POWER PLANT

saving, both in fuel and cost of labor for operating, and it is probable that this plant is now producing power of the highest grade at as low, if not lower, cost per horse power than any other station in the country. There are five turbines installed, each of which has a of 4500-horse power and occupies a space less than one-third of that which would be required by the horizontal type of engine.

At the Quincy Point power station there are employed two shifts of 15 men each. There is about one ton of coal burned under each boiler per hour, or a total of 10 tons per hour with all the boilers in service. The station runs 18 hours per day, and the maximum energy possible to develop is sufficient to run 500 cars.

There are about 900 miles of feed and trolley wires running from the sub-station and about 177 miles of aluminum transmission wires running from the central power station to the various sub-stations or distributing points.

The power may be transmitted by several different methods, one of which is by the use of an alternating current of high voltage and low volume, this being generated at a central power plant and conducted over transmission wires to sub-stations. At these distributing points the high tension alternating current is transformed by means of special apparatus to a low voltage alternating current of large volume, this being fed in at one side of a machine very similar to a dynamo or generator and passing through it emerges at the other side of the machine a low tension direct current, in street railway work, of 500 volts.

In overcoming the friction of the heavy shaft of the turbine a very novel device is used. This shaft has two bearings, the lower one carrying all the weight of the shaft and its attachments, and the upper one being used simply to steady the bearing. On account of the great weight resting upon the lower bearing, there is a very high friction, and this is overcome by making the bearing water-tight, with a joint that will stand a very high pressure, and by forcing water into the bearing at a pressure of about 650 pounds per square inch.

This raises the end of the shaft a fraction of an inch from the bearing surface, and the pressure being applied constantly, the effect is to float the shaft, and the weight it carries upon a film of water between the end of the shaft, and the bearing surface. The water is kept constantly circulating through the shaft.

DESIGNER AND ENGINEER.

The Old Colony Street Railway Company's system of power generation and distribution was designed by Charles F. Bancroft, superintendent of motive power and machinery of the Old Colony Street Railway Company, who is also electrical engineer of the Massachusetts Electric Companies. The plans were prepared and all the engineering work carried on under his supervision by the engineering department of the Old Colony Street Railway Company at their executive offices, 84 State street, Boston.

Mr. Bancroft was born in Masonville, Can., and educated at St. John's school Montreal, and Lincoln college, Sorel He entered the employ of the Edison General Electric Company in 1899 and remained with that company until 1893, when he accepted a position with the Royal Electric Company, Montreal, as superintendent of their testing and experimenting departments.

In 1894 he left Montreal to become electrical engineer of the Lowell & Suburban Street Railway Company of Lowell, where he remained until the formation of the Massachusetts Electric Companies, when he received his present appointment, in 1900.

N. L. Young, chief engineer of the turbine station, was born in Trenton, Me., in 1870, where he received his education. For two summers he worked for the Nantasket Steamship Company, and then entered the employ of the Mallory Steamship Company, running from New York to Galveston. He has worked as engineer for the Cambridge Electric Light Company, the Quincy Market Cold Storage Company, Boston Manufacturing Company, Waltham; the West End and Boston Elevated roads, Westinghouse Company, Church & Kerr during the construction of the steam, electric and ice plant of the Boston Terminal Company.

In the early part of 1902 he became chief engineer of the Lowell power station of the Boston & Northern Street Railway Company, where he remained until he was transferred to his present position.

HOW CURRENT OPERATES.

In connection with a description of the method of generating electricity, it may not be out of place to tell just how the current operates in moving a car, as this is a matter that very few people who patronize street cars have taken the trouble to inform themselves upon. They know the cars move through the agency of electricity, but beyond this their understanding does not go. Again, if they had a desire to learn something more of the application of electricity as a motive power, it would be difficult for them to enlarge their knowledge from technical treatises or from an electrical engineer, on account of the bewildering use of trade terms. Therefore the following lay explanation will be given:

Everybody knows that two magnets placed near each other attract each other. Each exerts a distinct force which can be measured. Now a motor is two magnets. One of these magnets is fixed and is called the field; the other revolves and is called the armature. When a pole of the armature of revolving magnet approaches a pole of the field or fixed magnet, the latter pulls the former toward itself. When the two get into line, the electric current is changed by the commutator into another pole of armature, and the same prosses is repeated. The more poles, the greater the pull.

Now, when the armature is fastened to the axle of a car, naturally, the axle has to move when the armature moves in obedience to the pull, and when the axle moves the wheels must revolve, and when they revolve the car must move ahead. And it is always to be borne in mind that these magnets are only magnets while the electric current is passing through them, so that, as soon as the electric current is broken, they cease to exert their force.

UP TO PRESIDENT

Will Take the Loomis-Bowen Controversy In Hand

MINISTER QUICKLY ACTS

Is Homeward Bound, While Hay's Assistant Has Left Washington -- Doubt About Latter's Official Propriety

Washington, May 3.—President Roosevelt will settle for himself the Loomis-Bowen controversy, which threatens to prove one of the most complicated affairs of recent years. Mr. Bowen's promptness in heading for the United States indicates that he is "loaded with ammunition," while Loomis' absence from Washington this week is believed to be connected with the gathering of the evidence which he needs to sustain his interpretation of the Bowen charge.

Secretary Taft desires to be excused from acting as referee in the matter. It is probable that the president will assign some expert to make a study of the facts, possibly Charles W. Russell of the department of justice, who is familiar with Venezuelan law and an excellent Spanish scholar. The decision, in Mr. Hay's absence, the president will then make for himself.

Mr. Loomis, despite his attractive personality, has not impressed the country as a man possessed of a delicate sense of official propriety. Many little incidents have arisen indicative of his extremely cordial attitude toward the New York and Bermudez company in its dispute with the Venezuelan government. Perhaps his sense of outraged justice made him aggressive, but a more judicial attitude would have looked better. It is assumed that the president felt this way in assigning Taft to act in Hay's absence in state department affairs, rather than Laamis.

It is pointed out that the mission to Menelik, upon which he sent his brother, Kent Loomis, who lost his life, involving the carrying of a treaty, and, it was supposed, the promotion of certain trade interests, was one upon which it would have "looked better" to send somebody else.

Mr. Loomis is thought to be responsible for the ultimatum to Venezuela from which this government has virtually backed down, leaving Castro in a position which the nations of the world cannot but respect. It was also an indiscretion on Loomis' part, no matter how fully it can be explained, to do his banking through the company which was chiefly concerned in his diplomatic activities. It is unlikely that he will continue in his present position, though the evidence shows him to have been straight, as it is expected will be the case.

Whether Bowen would have made the charges against Loomis without substantial backing is a much disputed point. He is in disfavor at Caracas with the government and with the diplomatic representatives of other nations. When an official organ of Castro some time ago printed an attack upon his integrity he is said to have gone to the foreign officials to demand the suspension of the paper, in accordance with custom there. The Venezuelans refused to accede, talking "free press."

Mr. Bowen then called a meeting of diplomats to get them to join him in making a protest, but was unable to muster a quorum. This showed that he had lost his hold among his associates. Castro has been eager for the overthrow of both Bowen and Loomis, and his efforts in Caracas and in Washington, where he has maintained several representatives besides a press agent, have been attended with extraordinary success. He may have brought, by indirection, under Bowen's eyes the material upon which his charges against Loomis rest. If so he is likely to accomplish the dislodgement of both his enemies. Castro's present position is seemingly so strong that those who got this government into the awkward attitude of having to swallow its open words cannot well claim a place among the president's list of those "who do things."

The controversy over our relations with Santo Domingo, still unsettled in the senate, makes it highly inopportune to advance the much more radical doctrine that we can overrule the courts of a country, which would virtually leave its sovereignty one of name only. What the United States would have thought if Sir Mortimer Durand, representing British holders of Northern Securities stock, had declared the decision of our supreme court wrong in view of the British attorney general, and had asked the president to override it, may be well imagined. Castro holds that the dispute is in the courts, and so long as this country recognizes his government it must ask its citizens doing business in that country to abide by the decisions of its judicial tribunals. The pecuniary prize is so great for Castro in these asphalt franchises that it is possible great injustice has been done. But what is the United States to do about it?

Committee of Granite Cutters Issue Statement.

Say the Manufacturers Were Unfair.

Section in Question Means What it Says.

Editors Quincy Daily Ledger:

Owing to the publication in a Quincy paper, of a misleading statement by a committee of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers' Association, in reference to the wage rate in the recent agreement entered into between that Association, and the Quincy branches of the Granite Cutters' National Union, Quincy branch of the G. C. N. U. has authorized the committee representing the granite cutters, to issue a statement setting the whole matter right, lest silence on our part might be misunderstood by the public, for beyond doubt the employers know our position to be correct, notwithstanding their affidavit.

We hereby aver that the statement made public by the Manufacturers' Committee is unfair. No understanding, side issue or qualification whatsoever, was entered into between the committees, other than what is borne out on the face of the paragraph in the agreement regulating wages. The section in question as stated by the Manufacturers, was offered by Mr. Duncan of our committee, and was passed exactly as offered, as follows:

The minimum rate of wages to be 37 1-2 cents per hour. Any man incapacitated by old age or physical disability from earning that rate and whom the employers do not want to hire by the piece, to have a rate established by committees representing both associations, on his earning power by the piece bill, but in no instance to have his rate established on a stone figuring less than $12 by the piece.

The language says what it means and means what it says, so much so that amendments to strike out the word "disability" and insert instead "inability" and next, to strike out the word "disability" and insert instead "unable to earn" were both in turn rejected and the motion as quoted was passed without dissent from any one present, and manufacturers and journeymen alike are in honor bound to respect and carry it into effect during the existence of the agreement.

Michael J. Boyle,
George K. Smith,
M. J. O'Brien,

April Court Record.

Probation Officer Francis A. Spear reports the total number of criminal cases in the district court at Quincy during the month of April to have been 186 against 117 for April last year.

Of this number, 79 were for drunkenness; 26 for assault; 16 for larceny; 15 for violation of the park rules; 7 each for breaking and entering and violation of by-laws; 8 liquor cases; 4 for assault on an officer; 5 for violating the fish and game law; 2 each for disturbing the peace, having obscene pictures, neglected child, vagrancy, one each for assault with a dangerous weapon, bastardy, disorderly conduct, evading fare, incest, exposure of person, trespass of fowl, truancy, auto laws, search for obscene literature and search for stolen goods.

Of the cases unfinished five were continued for hearing; 6 were continued for disposition; 15 were continued to pay fines; 2 appeals; 1 defaulted.

Fires Numerous.

The first four months of this year broke the record for fire alarms, the department having been called out 106 times by bell or still alarm. As the number of alarms for the entire year is usually about 160, it will be readily seen that the whole year will probably exceed by far any previous year. Thanks to the efficiency of the department, however, the losses thus far have been very small.

There was a good crowd in attendance at the skating rink Wednesday night.

THE NEW PASTOR.

Rev. E. W. Hunt Has Held Pastorates in Michigan and Maine.

Rev. Ernest W. Hunt, who will be installed a pastor of the Wollaston Unitarian church tomorrow evening, was ordained in the Church of England. After holding parishes for some years he was called to the rectorship of St. Pauls church at Lansing, Mich. While there Mr. Hunt's views became so changed that he resigned his charge and later announcing himself a Unitarian was called to the pastorate of a church of that denomination in Bangor, Me.

He comes to Wollaston from Boston, where he has been associated with the Rev. James Eels. He has a wife and two children.

The Daily Ledger expects to announce the program for installation tomorrow. Rev. St. John, Rev. Frank W. Pratt, Rev. E. C. Butler and others will take part.

A NUISANCE.

Condition of the Canal Should Be Remedied Immediately.

The communication of the Board of Health to the City Council relative to to the nuisance at the Canal is of interest because they have carefully considered the matter, suggested an abatement, and give figures as to the cost. It is given in full:

Gentlemen:—In accordance with the order of your honorable body of April 3, 1905, the Board of Health beg to submit the following report.

On April 8th, 1905, the Board in company with the City Engineer visited the Canal, situated near Canal street and found the place in a very filthy condition. A once navigable canal is now turned into a dumping ground for all sorts of refuse material, including waste paper, ashes, old boots and shoes, tin cans, bottles, broken furniture, stable manure and garbage.

Owing to this deposit of refuse material and to the natural causes of river deposits, this canal, in which a few years ago a vessel of six or seven feet draught was able to sail within a short distance from Washington street, has now become not only a shallow distorted water way, but an eye sore and a source of grave danger to health. In regard to the danger to health we would like to call your attention to the following facts.

It has long been a universally acknowledged fact that dampness on or near the surface of the ground has an injurious effect upon the health of those living near-by. In addition to rheumatism, neuralgias and diseases of the respiratory tract, typhoid, diphtheria and malaria stand out most prominently

Now, but a single glance at this most unsanitary locality, is enough to satisfy the most arbitrary person that we have here a most beautiful habitat for these germs. Surely no person can truthfully say that this condition should not be remedied immediately and in the most thorough and permanent manner within the power of this city. We feel positive that on a test vote every man in this city, had he previously visited this place, would vote for the removal of the present conditions at any cost.

In regard to the best method of abating this nuisance we have, through the City Engineer, prepared a plan showing two ways of accomplishing the end in view. The first consists in narrowing the canal to eleven feet by means of two stone retaining walls, from a point where the brook emerges from under a building owned by Mrs. Annie M. Keating, to a point three hundred and fifty feet distant as shown on the accompanying plan. As to the cost we beg to submit to you the figures furnished by the City Engineer.

Excavation,	930 cu. yds. at	$1.50	$1,395.00
Stone work,	920 cu. yds. at	4.00	3,680.00
Filling,	1,650 cu. yds. at	.70	1,185.00
Fencing,	700 feet at	.40	280.00
			$6,510.00

The second method is like the first except sheeting is substituted for stone. These figures are also from the City Engineer:

Sheeting,	45,000 ft. B. M. at	$35.00	$1,620.00
Bracing,	9,000 ft. B. M. at	22.00	198.00
Filling,	2,000 ft. B. M. at	.70	1,400.00
Fencing,	700 feet	.40	280.00
Labor and driving,			1,000.00
			$4,498.00

These figures are exclusive of damages to water privileges. The first method is the only one which should receive your attention from the fact that if once done, it is done for all time. The second, while of course in the beginning is really only a temporary piece of work. What we need is something which is permanent and it will be much cheaper in the end.

With these stone retaining walls we shall procure a narrow straight water way which is bound to be kept clean by its own rush of waters. The filling in of that part of the canal behind the walls will do away with all filth now deposited there and what is now a menace to public health and an eye sore, will be turned into a healthy locality and a pleasant spot to look upon.

We hope that this plan will be given your earnest consideration for we feel that if you should find the time to visit this canal you could not fail to look upon it as we do.

Against the Law.

To Editor of Ledger.

Can you tell me how it is people have revolvers so handy always? If they get hysterical and unreasonable out comes the "pocket-gun" and the first we know we are in the midst of a terrible tragedy. Is there no law covering promiscuous fire-arms as a menace to peace and happiness? Jane M. Smith.

The Case Heard in District Court.

Against A. A. Linscott the Jeweler

Watches Recovered at a Loan Company in Boston.

The continued case of Albert A. Linscott, the Quincy jeweler, for larceny, were heard in the district court this morning. The first case was that for the larceny of a watch from James W. McLaughlin.

Mr. McLaughlin testified that on March 25, he took the watch to Linscott's to be repaired. He went after it a week later and was informed that it was apart and if he would come in an hour later he could have it. At the end of an hour he returned. This time Linscott informed him he had made a mistake, that his watch had been sent to Boston to be repaired, but would surely be out the next week.

A week later he went in but Linscott was absent; his clerk informed him that the watch was not ready. He then reported the matter to the police. The third week he met Inspector McKay by appointment in Boston, and upon payment of $15 to a collateral company he got his watch. After the watch had been redeemed Linscott refunded him the $15.

Lieut. McKay testified that after conversation with McLaughlin, he got the number of his watch from Linscott's books, and then through the Police headquarters, Boston, located it at the Collateral Loan Co.

He redeemed the watch upon the payment of $15. They came to Quincy and swore out the warrant. They then went to Linscott's store where McLaughlin got his money. Warrant was then served. Later Linscott's counsel in the presence of Linscott gave me a bunch of pawn tickets.

George E. Hall, assistant appraiser of the Collateral Loan Co., testified that Linscott placed the watch there March 27. He recognized Linscott. Took his name, address and amount, $15. Told the modus operandi of placing articles in pledge.

Inspector Shields of the Boston police testified to putting a stop on the watches at the Collateral Loan Co. pledged by Linscott.

No defence was offered.

The next case heard was the George Ellis case. This was also for the larceny of a watch.

Mr. Ellis testified that he took his watch to Linscott's in July, 1904. Went after it several times. Linscott said it had to go to Boston and then to New York to be repaired, as it was a foreign watch. As a matter of fact it was a Waltham watch. These visits continued until a few weeks ago, when he had talk with Lieut. McKay.

As result of this conversation he gave the officer $5 and later saw the watch in the officer's possession. Identified watch shown by initial "M. J. E." on the case.

The evidence of Lieut. McKay, Mr. Hall and Inspector Shields was practically the same in this case as the McLaughlin case.

It was nearly 1 o'clock before the Ellis case was completed and the court then took a recess until 2 o'clock.

This afternoon a hearing will be held on the W. E. Morrison case. This is for the larceny of two watches and a diamond ring valued at $100. These articles were also pledged with the Collateral Loan Co. for $105. These have not been redeemed.

May Day Meeting.

Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, met in the birthplace of President John Adams on Monday afternoon for its May meeting. A short business meeting was held. The entertainment which followed was unusually interesting, two original papers being read, one on Egypt by Miss Annie R. Dyer of South Braintree, the other by Miss A. P. Allen of Randolph telling her experiences during a trip up Mt. Vesuvius.

Both ladies told of their travels most entertainingly and the chapter showed their appreciation by hearty applause.

The hostesses, Mrs. F. Eugene Dyer and Mrs. Susan J. Wilde of South Braintree, Mrs. Willard E. Dow of Braintree and Miss Houghton of Randolph, served a dainty lunch during the social hour. It was one of the happiest meetings of the season.

Recreation.

Should whole families be seen, on these lovely spring days, starting for a trolley ride to historic Lexington or some other place of equal note, or should they be noticed going to the Park with a nature book tucked conspicuously under the mother's arm, you will know that mother attended the Mothers' Meeting at Bethany chapel on Wednesday afternoon and heard the excellent paper by Mrs. E. L. Beale on the subject of "Recreation." The beautiful solos rendered by Mrs. Irene Tirrell and the devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. A. L. Hayden are worthy of honorable mention.

WHAT "GET ROSY" MEANS

Explanation of the Knight of Apitezo's Slogan

The "Get Rosy" man was in Quincy yesterday. He represents the American Cereal Company of Chicago which is now running that series of curious ads about the new food, Apitezo. In all these ads you notice the words "Get Rosy." One of our reporters called on the Cereal man to ask this question:

"What the deuce do you mean by 'Get Rosy'?"

The man laughed. "We mean, get the color in your cheeks that stands for good health," he said. "Our latest food, Apitezo, is the greatest builder of red blood in the world. It is made of the best selected grains. It is crisp, ever fresh"—"But why didn't you explain in these ads that 'Get Rosy'?"

"Because the best thing about Apitezo to most people is its delicious flavor. Here at last is ready-to-eat food that tastes good. While it is the most nutritious of all cereal foods and is rich in plant iron. It is not to be looked upon as good for you so much as good to eat. See?"

"You don't care to call it a health food?"

"Would you call a juicy tenderloin steak or a perfect apple a health food? They are, you know. Now, Apitezo is even more a health giver. It is easily digested by all, the strengthening qualities all get into your system—which isn't always the case with the steak—and at the same time there is more protein in Apitezo than in the best steak—more than in any other food. There is a good deal of plant iron—the kind one gets in very small quantities in peas and spinach—in Apitezo. And in spite of it being such a health builder, it's delicious.

"Your town agrees with us here. During the last 10 days, or since we've begun advertising it, Apitezo has sold here at a great rate. Wherever it has been put out, it has done the same, though."

JURY DISAGREED

Could Not Decide as to Guilt of Nan Patterson

WERE HOPELESSLY SPLIT

Accused Woman Expressed Confidence That Delay Was In Her Favor--Sentiment For Acquittal Shown by Crowd When Jurymen Went to Dinner

New York, May 4.—Having failed to reach a verdict and declaring that they were hopelessly disagreed, the jury in the Nan Patterson case was formally discharged at 2:20 o'clock this morning.

At 1:30 o'clock this morning the jury in the case of Miss Patterson, tried for the third time on the charge of murdering Caesar Young, was called into the courtroom by Recorder Goff. When the 12 men were in their places and the court officials had all arrived, the recorder asked why the defendant had not been brought into court. A deputy sheriff replied that she had been feeling ill and had retired, but was then being dressed. After a wait of 12 minutes Miss Patterson appeared, looking pale and in a highly nervous state.

"Gentlemen, have you been able to reach an agreement?" asked the recorder of the jury.

"No sir," replied the foreman.

"Is there any question of law or evidence in which I can instruct you? Is there any way in which the court can help you?"

The foreman looked for an instant at his fellow-members of the jury, then turned to the recorder and said: "No, sir; I don't believe you can help us."

"Then you will retire to reconsider the matter."

The jury filed out and the courtroom was cleared. Recorder Goff remained in his chamber to receive a verdict if rendered or to further instruct the jury. At 2:15 the jury reappeared and announced a hopeless disagreement, whereupon they were discharged.

It was a long, dreary wait for Nan Patterson while the jury was out, but she was buoyed by the hope that at the end of their deliberation the 12 men would agree to a verdict of not guilty.

Miss Patterson's hopes were based partly on rumors which were current about the criminal court building during the afternoon that the first ballots taken in the juryroom were decidedly in her favor. The jury had the case since shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday.

During the afternoon the jury sent to the courtroom for articles of clothing worn by Young at the time he met his death, and for the skeleton which was exhibited during the trial by the prosecution in its endeavor to show that the victim of the tragedy could not have inflicted the wound himself.

The jury was taken out to dinner at 8:30 o'clock. They were surrounded by a platoon of police and followed by a great throng. As they made their way toward a restaurant, the jurymen were greeted by cries of "Set her free." "Set Nan free. She deserves it."

It was 10:05 o'clock when the jury returned to the criminal courts building after dinner and resumed its consideration of the case.

A NOTABLE SEIZURE

Lottery Tickets Valued at Nearly $5000 Found at Boston

Boston, May 4.—Several thousand lottery tickets of Panama and Mexican lotteries, valued at nearly $5000, were seized by United States officers in an express office in this city.

The tickets, it is understood, are the consignments to the representatives and agents of the two lotteries and for the June drawings. They are in denominations of 25 and 50 cents and $1, and were packed in a dress suit case. With the tickets there was also seized a large quantity of advertising matter, circulars and envelopes, the list of winners in the last drawing and other matter of an incriminating nature.

The seizure, which was made by the United States marshal and Secret Service Agent Murphy, is the largest and most notable of its nature ever made in this section of the country.

The owner of the dress suit case, the police say, is Walter S. Roberts of San Francisco, who was in this city several days ago, and who was arrested in Chicago last Tuesday. He came to Boston last Saturday and plans had been laid to apprehend him here, but on Monday he hurriedly left for the west.

Roentgen Rays Cure Cancer

Berlin, May 4.—The treatment of cancer by Roentgen rays rather than by the knife was discussed at yesterday's session of the international congress called to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the discovery of the Roentgen ray. Professor Lassar of Berlin, who is regarded as an authority on diseases of the skin, read a paper averring that he has had only three failures in this cure for cancer in some hundreds of cases he had treated, but only where the growths were not deep seated.

Opera Director Calmed Panic

Vienna, May 4.—Near the end of the first act of "The Magic Flute" at the Imperial Opera house last night, the electric wires behind the stage became short circuited. The cry of "fire" was raised and a panic resulted, but serious results were averted by Opera Director Mahler, who proceeded to the piano and played it vigorously. The people who had not got out were thus finally quieted and the performance was concluded to a half-filled house.

Absconding Cashier Caught

Chicago, May 4.—Henry G. Goll, absconding cashier of the First National bank of Milwaukee, was arrested at a hotel here, where he had been for four days, under the name of A. C. Smith. Detectives had tracked Goll from Milwaukee to several towns in Illinois, then into Indiana and finally to Chicago. Goll said he was willing to go back to Milwaukee. He refused to be interviewed.

Grecian Flags Removed

Canea, Island of Crete, May 4.—International troops have removed the remaining Greek flags displayed here. A great demonstration of protest was held, a procession marching to the various consulates with the Greek flag draped in black and half-masted. The Russian officer in command of the international troops expressed his sympathy with the Greek aspirations of the populace.

Robbers Cornered In Swamp

Woodburn, Or., May 4.—The bank of Woodburn was robbed of $2000 by two masked robbers who covered Cashier Poorman and the bookkeeper, Miss Gertrude Eddy, with revolvers. Soon after the robbery most of the male population of Woodburn was armed, and inside of an hour the two robbers were located in a swamp. It is believed the robbers will be captured.

Washington, May 4.—The trustees of the Catholic university are in session here, Cardinal Gibbons presiding. The financial condition of the university was found to be encouraging. More than $200,000 has been recovered from securities held by Thomas E. Waggaman and about half that amount on other investments.

Austria and Russia Come Down

London, May 4.—Austria and Russia have acceded to the demands of Great Britain, Italy and France that the new Macedonian financial scheme shall be controlled by all the powers signatory of the Berlin treaty, and not only by Austria and Russia. This is considered here as an important diplomatic victory.

Veto of Osteopath Bill

Harrisburg, May 4.—Governor Pennypacker has vetoed the bill which was designed to put osteopaths on the level with the other schools of medicine. The governor's main objection was on the ground that there is nothing in the bill to indicate what constitutes the science of osteopathy.

Paderewski to Leave America

Under the new ordinance passed by the City Council, drivers of junk wagons must hereafter display their license number on a metal badge on the front of their hat and on a metal plate on each side of the wagon used. The police will now be able to keep some track of these people.

Principal Assessor Johnson gave an interesting and instructive talk last evening to the Quincy Board of Trade, at their rooms, on "Taxation." It was an able and clearly explained talk on this important matter, and would be of benefit and interest to many of our citizens if more could hear this talk from one of large experience.

The first of May was a lively night for the young people in Atlantic and door bells were kept ringing until after curfew. ROSY VIEW INDEED

Russian Success Predicted In Coming Naval Fight

WILL BE AT LONG RANGE

Rojestvensky's Ships Are Better Equipped Than Was Port Arthur Fleet--Harassing Warfare by Japanese Unlikely

St. Petersburg, May 4.— Captain Von Essen, the hero of Port Arthur and one of the ablest of Russian naval officers, discussing the coming naval battle in the far east, took a rosy view of Rojestvensky's prospects and asserted that he had a great advantage in many respects over the original Port Arthur squadron.

Von Essen declared that the engagement between Togo and Rojestvensky was bound to be at long range. He smiled at the idea that the Japanese might be able to disorganize or damage the Russian squadron by torpedo attacks, pointing out the impotency of such tactics after the first surprise at Port Arthur.

"Take the matter of telescopic sights, for instance," said the captain. "which are almost indispensable in engagements at the extreme ranges now usual. The Port Arthur fleet was without them and was unable to obtain the sights on account of the cutting of communications, while Rojestvensky's big guns are all equipped. Furthermore we know that Togo's ships were severely pounded in the battle of Aug. 10.

"Without taking into consideration the unavoidable depreciation and the fact that, though repaired, it was far from being good before the battle, the ordnance of the Japanese ships suffered especially, and though some of the 12-inch guns may have been replaced, it is impossible that all can have been renewed. Some of the smaller guns on the Japanese ships actually went to pieces during the engagement. After the battle we found a large piece of the muzzle of one of the Japanese 13-centimetre guns on board the Sevastopol. The Japanese, however, were able to renew their secondary armament, having a plant capable of building such guns. The battle will be decided by the 12-inch guns."

"But may not Togo elect to conduct a harassing warfare with his torpedo boats in the hope of sinking one of the Russian ships?" was asked.

"One of the lessons of the present war," replied Von Essen, "is the ability of warships to defend themselves against torpedo attacks during naval engagements. After the opening surprises the Japanese torpedo boat flotilla accomplished practically nothing until the last act of the naval drama, the torpedoing of the Sevastopol before the surrender of Port Arthur, and then it took five night of continuous attacks under the most favorable weather conditions—snow squalls, etc.,—to get one of the hundreds of torpedoes home against a stationary ship."

Captain Von Essen commented on the high state of efficiency to which Rojestvensky has brought his squadron during the long months of the voyage eastward, and said that the results of target practice with the big guns corroborated the opinion of British critics that the marksmanship of the Russians would be apt to surprise the Japanese. He discussed the possibility that Rojestvensky will not incorporate Nebogatoff's ships in his fighting squadron, but will leave them to cover the transports, but frankly he declared that he was ignorant of Rojestvensky's intention on this as well as on other points in the present situation, in which the admiral is keeping his own counsel.

A Japanese letter captured in Manchuria contains indications that the Japanese have naval bases in the north at the port of Sominanto, and in the south at the port of Mekonna, on one of the Pescadore islands.

A CALL FOR MILITIA

Chicago Business Men Think It Necessary

FIERCE RIOTS CONTINUE

Police Unable to Prevent Attacks Upon Non-Union Men--Mobs In Streets Are Growing Larger and Uglier--Indiscriminate In Assaulting People

Chicago, May 4.—Rioting in the streets yesterday in connection with the Teamsters' strike was so prolonged and so fierce that many of the leading business men have concluded that there will be neither peace in the city nor safety for business interests until the state militia has been called out to restore order.

A committee of members of the Employers' association left for Springfield to request Governor Deneen to give orders to the state troops. The labor unions have several representatives at the state capital and it is likely that they also well be heard before any action is taken by the governor.

Chief of Police O'Neill says he is confident that he has control of the situation and can keep peace in the city. Mayor Dunne supports him in this view and declares that the emergency has not arisen requiring the presence of troops. On the other hand, business men point to the long list of injured which marked the rioting of Tuesday and the greater number of persons who were hurt yesterday and declare that this list is sufficient proof that the police department is not sufficiently strong to cope with the situation.

While policemen have been able to disperse mobs and guard wagons, they have not been able to prevent the many attacks that are made on non-union men in the business portion of the city alone. Despite the orders of Mayor Dunne, many wagons of concerns against which strikes have been declared are handled by men armed with rifles and shotguns.

The first rifle shot during the strike was fired by a guard on a wagon of the United States Express company, while it was passing through a crowd of strike sympathizers. In driving past a corner the driver of the wagon reined his horses suddenly and the guard, seeing a street car conductor stooping as though to throw a missile, fired without the slightest hesitation. No person was hit.

One hundred and fifty wagons of the seven express companies went to and fro across the city yesterday, each carrying a guard armed with a rifle or double-barreled shotgun. No attempt was made to interfere with any of the express wagons. The trucks of the Scott Transfer company also were guarded in the same manner. The company transacted its business as though there had been no strike against it.

Both sides have made gains, and the result leaves them about as evenly balanced as before. The accession to the ranks of the teamsters was made when a strike was declared against the coal firm of Crerar, Clinch & Co., employing several hundred men. One of their drivers was discharged for refusing to make deliveries and the rest walked out.

The gain for the Employers' association was made when members of the Hay and Grain Dealers' association, employing 1200 teams, declared that deliveries would be made to any place in the city. If drivers refuse to obey orders, they will be discharged.

The mobs that filled the streets in the business quarter yesterday were larger and uglier in disposition than those of Tuesday. There was fighting in all parts of the down town quarter throughout the day and a dozen times policemen were compelled to use their clubs, and wagon guards, armed with Leavy canes, swung them whenever they thought an assault was about to be made.

On the other hand, the strikers and their friends were equally indiscriminate in assaulting people. There were a number of instances where mobs boarded street cars and wantonly attacked people riding in them, giving as a reason that they were strike-breakers, when in fact they had nothing to do with the strike. W. Jamison and Edward Boswel, the latter a negro medical student, were dragged from a car and beaten unmercifully.

A score of men were taken to hospitals with all sorts of injuries, and fully two score were injured in the various fights of the day, whose names could not be learned.

T. C. Carlson, who has had charge of the operations of the auto trucks for Montgomery Ward & Co., where the strike first started, was probably fatally injured, in front of the Teamsters' union headquarters. Carlson was riding on the first of a caravan of six freight-laden auto trucks, when a brick thrown from a window struck him on the side of the head. He was picked up unconscious and hurried to a hospital, but has slight chances of recovery.

To Buy 10,000 Freight Cars

A FIREBUG'S WEAPON

Interesting Discovery Made by a Boston Patrolman

Boston, May 4.--A bundle, soaked in turpentine and containing combustible articles, was found in the centre of the oil district last night and at headquarters the authorities expressed the belief that the inability of police to capture the incendiary has been solved.

Patrolman Curran, while making his rounds in the oil district last night, saw a man carrying a bundle. Returning along Batterymarch street a few moments later the officer saw the same bundle close to a big building occupied by the Murphy Varnish company. Curran picked up the bundle and found it to be hot. He hurried to headquarters, where an investigation showed the bundle would, within a short time, have burst into flames. It contained rags and paper saturated with turpentine, and in the centre of the mass was a piece of tin from which the spark to start the fire would emanate.

The police are of the opinion that many of the recent incendiary fires have been started by a bundle similar to the one which was found last night, thereby accounting for any failure of the police or firemen to find any trace of the firebug after the fires have been discovered.

An excellent description of the man who originally had the bundle in his possession has been sent throughout the city and the police hope to capture the man who, they believe, is the perpetrator of many of the incendiary fires of recent date.

Experiments with the contents of the bundle last night show the police that, properly constructed, it might remain in a building for two days before bursting into flames.

Capitalized at Over $15,000,000

Boston, May 4.—A bill for the capitalization at $15,124,600 of the Boston Consolidated Gas companies was unanimously reported in the lower branch of the legislature by the joint committee on public lighting. The bill fixes the price of gas in this city after one year at 90 cents a thousand feet. The capital includes the outstanding indebtedness of the several companies which are consolidated in the new company.

Good Progress on Inquest

Bennington, Vt., May 4.—The inquest on the death of Fred H. Bartlett, whose body was found at North Bennington early Sunday morning, was resumed yesterday, and 12 witnesses were examined. I., May 4.—Patrick Foley of Provincetown, Mass., a member of the crew of the fishing schooner Victor, was found exhausted in a dory off this place, having rowed for 14 hours, after having been separated from his vessel in a fog. The Victor arrived here a few hours later and Foley was taken aboard.

Strychnine Given to Horses

Somerville, Mass., May 4.—Some unknown person visited the stable of William H. Smith, teamster, on Washington street, and administered strychnine to 24 horses which were kept there. So far three of the horses have died. Mr. Smith reported the case to the police.

Probable Work of Firebug

Made Noose of Shoestring

New York, May 4.—Miss Mamie Van Ranst, aged 44, a daughter of the late C. W. Van Ranst, a publisher of this city, was found dead in her apartments. A shoe string was tied tightly about her neck. She left a note in which she said she was tired of life. The woman had been dead several days. Locked in the room with the body was a pet bulldog, almost dead from starvation.

President's Party Storm-Bound

Glenwood Springs, Col., May 4.— For three days President Rooseveit's hunting party has been stormbound in the mountains. Rain and snow have fallen continuously and there is no sign of a break. The roads are muddy and the trails accordingly dangerous for horsemen. The party will break up on Saturday.

Holy Ghosters on a Cruise

St. John, May 4.—The yacht Coronet, now the property of the "Holy Ghost and Us" sect, has anchored here, having been towed in for a harbor. On board are Captain Perry and 19 members of the denomination. They are on a coasting cruise and will go to Nova Scotia.

Very pleasant reports come from Miss Nan Carter, who is teaching in Westminster, Vermont, She was fortunate in obtaining a position in one of the best schools of that town.

Work has not commenced on the Atlantic bridge as was first thought. They are only grading from both sides so as to make travel better to the one side of the bridge which is being used.

John Hancock lodge of Wollaston will observe the 86th anniversary of Odd Fellowship by attending divine service at Park and Downs church on Sunday, May 7, at 3.30 P. M. All members of the order are cordially invited to attend meeting at I. O. O. F. hall, Wollaston, at 2.30 P. M.

It has been generally reported that Rolland Harris, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Harris of South Walnut street, died of spotted fever, but such is not the case. The disease was scarlet fever and of short duration, the little fellow being taken sick on Saturday.

There was a sudden and decided change in the weather early last evening. The weather was warm and balmy all the afternoon and early evening until about 8 o'clock. Then without warning the wind whirled round to the east, and it was decidedly cold. Wraps which had been discarded were put on and fires started up. This morning the wind continued in the east and threatened a storm.

There are a certain crowd of boys in Atlantic who feel called upon to speak to every stranger who enters the town, not to greet him with civility, but to call out those ill-bred remarks that make such a deep contrast between classes. It may be an amusing thing to do, but it gives the town rather an unenviable name. A harmless jest no one but a cad would refuse to take in the right spirit, but the pride of any man who is by birth a gentleman rises in revolt at the personal remarks of malicious idlers.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN,

A little child of Mr. and Mrs. Pierce of the Wollaston Hotel is ill with diphtheria.

A house on South Central avenue has been secured for the Rev. Ernest W. Hunt and family.

Thomas Skinner and family have moved from North street to Sargent's lane, Quincy Neck.

The Hook and Ladder company of Wollaston went to Atlantic on Tuesday afternoon to adjust the rope on the flag pole at the schoolhouse.

Mr. Frank E. Hall of Wollaston has recently been called to Jacksonville, Florida, on account of the serious illness of his wife, who has been spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Joel Pillsbury, of Jacksonville.

Theodore Gullickson had a fainting spell this noon while in the store of V. E. Miller. Mr. Gullickson was seen to stagger. One of the clerks ran to his assistance and he fell over into his arms. He recovered in a few minutes and was sent home in a carriage.

A Simple Statement.

It is told of a certain minister that one Sunday morning he preached his sermon with the following notice: "Brethren, I have forgotten my notes and shall have to trust to Providence, but this evening will come better prepared."

An Easy Way.

A sentimental poet writes, "How can I meet my darling?"

After some deliberation over the question we have come to the conclusion that he can meet her by approaching her from an opposite direction.

FIVE TO THREE.

Boston Latin Wins Game With Adams Academy.

Adams was beaten Wednesday by Boston Latin, 5 to 3. At the end of seventh innings it looked like a close game with the score standing 3 to 2 in Boston's favor. But in the eighth, with two men out, Sweeney fumbled an easy grounder and allowed Reardon to reach first. Then Finn got wild and gave two bases on balls. Then the bases were full and Sweeney had a pop fly which he muffed letting two men score. Adams got one in the eight but was shut out in the ninth.

Finn was not in his usual form. Although he struck out seven and held his opponents down to four scattered hits, he gave seven bases on balls.

The postponed game of Saturday between the John Hancock nine and the Adams boys resulted in an overwhelming victory on Monday for John Hancock, by the score of 35 to 3.

The game on the Ward Three playground ended in a dispute. It was played on the Ward Three playground and the score was 3 to 2 in favor of Massachusetts Field. In the last inning the John Hancock claimed to have scored, but the umpire called it out, which gave the game to John Hancock.

GRIDLEY BRYANT—CRANCH.

An exciting game was played Wednesday between the Gridley Bryant and Cranch schools, the former winning 6 to 1. No runs were scored until the third inning, when with the bases full and two outs, a grounder was sent toward third and a wild throw allowed three to score. O'Rourke of the Gridley Bryants and Ryden of the Cranch team struck out five each.

The score by innings:

CODDINGTON—WILLARD.

The Coddingtons claim the game scheduled for Wednesday because the Willards were not ready to play. The Willards on the other hand say they were unable to find Bigelow's field, and some of the team did not report. So they declined to play.

Jeffery Judson, the Dwarf.

One of the most notable of dwarfs was Jeffery Hudson, who was introduced to Henrietta Maria, consort of Charles I., in a noble venison pie. "When the pie was opened," out stepped Jeffery in all the dignity of his eighteen inches and made a courtly obeisance to the astonished and delighted queen, begging to be taken into her service, a favor which was promptly granted.

Jeffery was a man of stout heart and adventurous spirit. He fought two duels, one with a turkeycock and the second with a Mr. Crofts, who faced the little man armed with a squirt and was forthwith shot dead. Twice Jeffery saw the inside of prison walls—once when he was captured by the French on his way across the channel and again when he was captured by Barbary corsairs—and to crown his career of adventure he was accused of being mixed up in the popish plot and ended his rather troublous days in the Gate House in 1682.

Women and Tobacco.

Master Prynne, the weak, well meaning Puritan who in 1633 wrote an attack upon the stage, tells us that in his day tobacco pipes were offered to ladies at the theater in lieu of apples between the acts. A French traveler, M. Torevin de Rochefort, who published his journal in 1677, confirms this by telling us that he found smoking a general custom in England, as well among women as among men. Both sexes, he adds, held that life without tobacco would be intolerable "because, they say, it dissipates the evil humors of the brain."

When ladies stopped smoking they took to snuff. Women of quality about a century ago would not stir without their snuffboxes, beautifully enameled receptacles of perfumed mild rappee. Lord Bolingbroke said of Queen Anne and her grace of Marlborough: "The nation is governed by a pair of snuffers. No wonder the light of its glory is extinguished!"—London Standard.

Visitors are surprised to see the splendid provision, which has been made for the comfort, education, pleasure and development of young men in Quincy, and are glad to see our old city coming into line with the rest of the world, as it recognizes the wonderful adaptability of the Y. M. C. A. to meet the needs of men.

The growth of Quincy proceeds at a rapid pace, and all of its real friends desire that it grows good as well as big. Now is the time to reinforce good lives, good homes, good schools, good churches, good clubs with the great added influence of the Association work. Parlors, reading-rooms, game rooms, class rooms, gymnasium, bowling alley, dormitories, baths (all under wholesome, Christian supervision) can be made mighty factors in the making of true men. Why not help,—big?

Investments are being made. Many prove unprofitable. Investment in Y. M. C. A. work is rational, brotherly, helpful; its dividends are not passed.

John Wanamaker, who gave $100,000 to the Philadelphia building said: "I have made a great many investments that have disappointed me, but the Christian Association work has never disappointed me."

If we have already put some money into this Quincy plant, may we not advantageously add to the same. If we have withheld all assistance pending development of the enterprise, and proof that "it is a go," let us now take notice that It Has Developed, and Is A Go.

A prompt, hearty and strong lift by many (impoverishing none) can make available the payment of about $6,000 additional (offered conditionally) by those who have already invested in the enterprise. Lift hard, extract their stump, and have no debt. Observe the following notable gifts for Y. M. C. A. buildings.

Studebaker Bros., So. Bend, Ind.,	$200,000
Peabody Bros, Columbus, Ga.,	50,000
Senator Proctor, Proctor, Vt,	30,000
Mrs. J. M. Judd, New Britain, Ct.,	20,000
L. A. Crossett, No. Abington, Mass.,	18,000
Mrs. B. Wann, Thomasville, Ga.,	10,000
Mrs. William McKinley, Canton, Ohio	5,000
etc., etc., etc.

During 1903, $2,400,000 worth of Y. M. C. A. buildings opened.

The development of this work is one of the greatest movements of the age, and Quincy is, at last to have a share in it. C.

Arrested for Milton Officers.

James Kerr was arrested at Farnum's hall, West Quincy, Wednesday night by Officer Hinchon for Milton officers, by whom he was wanted for breaking and entering at the Cunningham estate. Kerr at that time suddenly made his disappearance and did not return until this week. Wednesday night Officer Hinchon found him at Farnum's hall and knowing that Milton officers had a warrant for him, placed him under arrest.

Since Kerr disappeared from Quincy he has been working in a coal mine in Canada.

The Quincy police also want Kerr for the larceny of dynamite last July and have obtained a warrant for him.

This morning Inspector Bradley arrested Edward J. Kerwin and Edward Ford who are also wanted for the larceny of dynamite at the same time.

While in Canada Kerr wrote to Quincy telling where the dynamite stolen was hidden and it was later recovered by the police.

Y. M. C. A.

Opening of New Association Building.

With Grand Colonial Fair.

The Banquet and Toasts—Booths and Ladies in Charge.

The Colonial fair-fete, which really marks the opening of the completed Y. M. C. A. building, is the great event of the week. It is under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary, Mrs. E. W. Sheppard president, and is probably the grandest festival ever held in Quincy, and it is expected that the net proceeds will be several thousand dollars.

It is a three days' fair, opening Thursday afternoon, and closing Saturday night. The great attraction Thursday evening was the supper served by the ladies, with Mrs. A. H. Gilson as chairman. It was a great undertaking to cater to so many, but Mrs. Gilson has it it down to a science.

THE BANQUET.

At 6.30 P. M. a banquet was served in the gymnasium and the attendance was limited only by the seating capacity. Over 300 were accommodated, many others being unable to procure tickets. On an occasion of this kind the price should have been fifty cents or $1 instead of 25 cents.

It was a pretty sight as viewed from the running track or gallery. Five long tables were spread lengthwise of the hall, with a head table across the head of the hall. The tables were spread with new linen and new dishes, and decorated with pinks and spirea.

Add to this the effect of the ladies in quaint Colonial dress, as worn at the tables, and the happy faces of all, and it was an occasion long to be remembered.

At the head table were Mrs. E. W. Sheppard, the president of the Woman's Auxiliary, and Mr. Sheppard; Theophilus King, the toastmaster, and Mrs. King; Mayor Thompson and Mrs. Thompson; R. D. Chase, president of the Quincy Y. M. C. A., and Mrs. Chase; Hon. Louis A. Frothingham, speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives; R. M. Armstrong, State Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and Mrs. Armstrong; Charles A. Coburn, who secured subscriptions at the start for the building, and Mrs. Coburn; Rev. and Mrs. E. N. Hardy; Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Gourd; Mr. and Mrs. George H. Brown, and Secretary E. G. Gay.

The blessing was asked by Rev. E. N. Hardy, pastor of Bethany Congregational church.

With A. D. Albee as leader and orchestra accompaniment one verse of the old hymn was sung:

O God our help in ages past,
Our hope for years to come;
Be thou our Guide while life shall last,
And our eternal home.

The banquet included cold meats, escalloped potatoes, radishes and pickles, pies in great variety, assorted cakes, coffee and ice water.

Mrs. Sheppard welcomed all most heartily. She said life is what we are alive to. We as an auxiliary are alive to the needs of the Young Men's Christian Association.

Theophilus King was introduced as toastmaster and the word achievement was his main thought. This plant represents achievement, not along the line of selfishness but for the public good. He proposed five sentiments.

"The Young Men of Our State.—Our dependence in the future.—May this and kindred institutions give the strongest stamp of character to our boys becoming men."

Hon. Louis K. Frothingham, Speaker of the Legislature, responded. He said his earliest recollections were of Quincy, where his grandfather lived, and where he attended Adams Academy. He was glad to be here because of what the Association stood for. He had done great work in the country, both in time of war and peace. He recalled the prominent part that Quincy men took in the formation of our country and in arbitration with foreign countries—John Adams, John Quincy Adams and Charles Francis Adams.

"The Young Men of Our City,—To whom this Association desires to assist in imparting mental, physical and spiritual health for their greatest good, and the greatest good of the community."

Mayor Thompson responded. He appreciated the opportunity to convey official greetings of the city. The Quincy Association was to be congratulated. It belongs to a world-wide association, successful because it is cosmopolitan. This Association is to be congratulated because it has the support of an Auxiliary. When women undertake anything it is bound to succeed. This noble building that works for young men physically, mentally and morally represents the work of Quincys best efforts. It behooves us to play well our part. Then results will be satisfactory.

"Our Young Men as Sons—To assist the mother heart in making the boy permanently good, is the inspiration of the work here attempted."

Mrs. O. H. Durrell of Somerville was to have responded to this toast but was unavoidably absent. Mr. King, however, gave praise to the ladies saying they were pretty near the whole of it.

"Our Young Men as Old Boys of sweetness, purity and strength.—The grand embodiment of Y. M. C. A. work.

The heartiest applause was reserved for R. D. Chase, the president of the Quincy Association, when introduced to respond to this toast. The applause was long continued, and then all stood in appreciation of the interest and financial aid he has given the Association.

President Chase was visibly affected by the greeting and said he was not unmindful of it, but said it belonged to the Association. As on the 4th of July the first sod was turned for this building, and this dedication was on the 4th of May, the fourth day of the month meant much to this Association. The Quincy Y. M. C. A. is planning to raise timber. As trusses are needed in this gymnasium, so the city needs good timber.

He compared the Y. M. C. A. plant to the new power plant of the street railway at Quincy Point, which is the most modern and complete in the United States. Both were great power plants. At the Point push and speed were the object, so with this Association.

I am not indifferent to the influences of the old home, the old church and the schoolhouse, but this plant combines all and seems to be necessary to furnish men good and true; good citizens; good Councilmen; good city officials.

"Our Young Men everywhere.—To make them most potential in life and in the use of life's powers is the sacred ambition of all Y. M. C. A. work."

Secretary Armstrong responded. He said seven new Y. M. C. A. buildings would be dedicated within a year in Massachusetts. He knew of none in the State, for the price, which could be compared with the new Quincy plant dedicated tonight. He urged the payment of all the debt before July 4, and continued hearty support.

With the singing of "America" the banquet closed. The booths then claimed attention and good sales were reported.

During the evening there were popular songs by Helen and Marion Greene, and the buck and wing dance and silver bell lay by Florence Barker.

THE BOOTHS.

The thirteen original colonies were represented by booths in the different rooms of the building. These were presided over by ladies gowned in costumes of colonial times who offered a large variety of articles for sale. Cherry blossoms, some genuine and some made of paper, but so perfectly that it required a close examination to distinguish them from the real article, were used in abundance, making a very pretty effect, especially at night when the rooms of building were illuminated.

Entering the building by the main door it is a pretty sight that greets the eye, and for a moment one thinks that the lapse of time has been obliterated, and he is living in the good old days of our grand daddies. At the right of the entrance, in what is known as the reading room, are the booths representing Virginia and New York. On the Virginia table were china, pictures, calendars, etc., while at the New York table were baskets and fancy bead worked article. In this room was Pocohontas of John Smith fame, admirably represented by Mrs. Wilson Marsh; Martha Washington, in the person of Mrs. Charles A. Spear, who held a reception all the evening; also Dolly Madison, impersonated by Mrs. Garey, and Nellie Custis, represented by Mrs. J. W. Sanborn.

At the left in the ladies' parlor were the tables of North Carolina and Rhode Island. Here useful and fancy articles of every description were on sale.

Then came the booth assigned to the good old Bay State. Here was fancy and handsome table sets in great variety, pewter ware, etc. Here also tea was served by Colonial-dames.

Next in order was the Georgia broth where useful and fancy articles were on sale. There was a popcorn popper in corner, and business was good. The room was very prettily decorated.

On the opposite side of the corridor was the Pennsylvania room, one of the most interesting in the whole fair. Here one saw the liberty bell and a coal mine. At the opening to the mine were two miners with their coal car, which would disappear, and then come forth with bags of coal. This room was prettily decorated with palms.

Passing through the archway to the rear the visitor enters the balcony over the gymnasium. Several booths were arranged around this balcony all of which were prettily decorated.

At the New Jersey booth ice cream was for sale.

Delaware had a large supply of preserved fruit and flowers.

South Carolina had confectionery in large variety.

Connecticut had a floral grab bag.

Going back into the main building, and then up a flight of broad stairs the visitor comes to Maryland or it is named "Merryland." It might have been called a Kingdom, for a King ruled. Here there are games without number to amuse. It would require much space to ennumerate them all. Mention should be made of the scrimmage between Gen. Kuvoki and Gen. Kuropatkin. The visitor should not neglect to see Madame Centste, the Crystal "C. R.," who tells your fortune by Crystal Gazing.

Up still another flight of stairs on the dormitory floor, was the New Hampshire room, where loan exhibition was located. Here there were antiques in great variety, such as pictures, spinning wheel, crockery, etc.

TOOK AN APPEAL.

Jeweller Linscott Sentenced for One Year

On Two Cases for Larceny.

Held for Grand Grand Jury on the Other Count.

The hearing in the case against A. A. Linscott of Quincy for larceny from W. E. Morrison occupied the greater part of Thursday afternoon at the district court. This was a case for larceny of two watches and a diamond ring valued at $400.

Mr. Morrison testified that some of the articles had been in Linscott's possession three years. That whenever he he called for them Linscott put him off with some excuse.

The police testified that the articles had been located at the Collateral Loan Co., where they were pledged for $105, Mr. Morrison has not redeemed them.

No defense was offered by Linscott.

The court then sentenced Linscott to six months' imprisonment in the McLaughlin case; six months in the Ellis case, and held him in $500 for the grand jury in the Morrison case.

Linscott took an appeal in the frist two cases and was ordered to recognize in $300 on each for the superior court. The total amount of bonds he must furnish to keep him out jail until the sitting of the grand jury in September is $1100.

Late in the afternoon bail was furnished Linscott by relatives in the sum of $1,100.

The appealed cases will come before the superior court in September, and the other case before the grand jury at the same time.

LOVERS OF BEAUTY.

A Photographic Contest Inaugurated by Street Railway.

The Boston & Northern and Old Colony Street Railways have a plan for making the people of Massachusetts acquainted with the beauty spots along their lines by inaugurating a photographic contest, open to amateurs only. The lines of these two roads run through scenes of natural beauty which cannot be surpassed in Massachusetts, and it is to find out what spots appeal most to lovers of beauty that this contest has been started.

There are everywhere, along the routes of the trolley, scenes that only need the appreciation of the photographer to bring them into prominence, and it will be interesting to observe what particular sections of these two lines are most favored. On every hand there is plenty of artistic material waiting for the appreciative to bring it into notice.

The companies offer liberal prizes in cash and goods to those who take pictures that have real artistic merit and which show the most beautiful spots along their lines, no other restrictions being placed upon the field of the amateur photographer's operations.

We are advised by R. H. Derrah, the Passenger Agent, who has the contest in charge, that the following conditions will be observed. Photograph must not be less than 4 by 5 inches, nor larger than 8 by 10 inches. They must be printed on matte surface paper and mounted, and on the back of each must be plainly marked the location of the photograph and the name and address of the sender.

The contest will close September 1, 1905 and all photographs are to be addressed to the Boston office of the Passenger Agent, 309 Washington street.

Sunday Trips via Fall River Line.

NOT BROKEN DOWN

Miss Patterson's Condition Is Practically Normal

MAY NOT BE TRIED AGAIN

District Attorney Will Consent to Her Release If Vote of Majority of Jury Which Disagreed Was In Her Favor

New York, May 5.—No positive steps have been taken toward having Nan Patterson released on bail, it being agreed by her counsel and her father that even though bail were possible at once, it would be better for the girl to remain quietly in the Tombs for a rest after the ordeal she underwent Wednesday night.

During the day alarming reports were circulated as to Miss Patterson's condition, it being declared that following her collapse at 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning, when the third jury was dismissed without a decision of her case, she had lain for hours in a comatose condition and was a physical wreck. It is stated at the Tombs that Miss Patterson's condition is practically normal. She shows the effects of her trial, but is far from a real break-down. She spent a large part of yesterday sleeping in her cell, being thoroughly exhausted from her long vigil and the nervous strain of Wednesday night.

Miss Patterson's lawyers will endeavor to reach an agreement with the district attorney's office as to the amount of bail their client shall be required to give. They hope the sum will be a nominal one, but say they are ready to furnish a bondsman for any amount within reason. District Attorney Jerome is out of the city, and this fact acts as a stay to further proceedings.

Various rumors are current as to how the jury stood. One is that the poll was 7 to 5 in favor of acquittal. It is quite certain that the former show girl will be given her liberty on nominal bail, and that the indictment will be quashed. She has faced trial three times. Twice the jury disagreed and once there was a mistrial, owing to the illness of a juror.

There is much speculation as to what course the district attorney will pursue with reference to the trial of J. M. Smith and his wife on the charge of conspiracy and to what effect the testimony adduced at their hearing might have upon a possible fourth trial for Miss Patterson. No definite statement has been made on the subject, however.

Verdict Did Not Surprise Jerome

Albany, May 5.—District Attorney Jerome, who has been here looking after certain legislation, said that the vote of the jury in the case of Nan Patterson would determine to a large degree his decision whether to put her on trial again for the murder of Caesar Young. If the jury was preponderantly against her, he might try her again; if the majority was in her favor he might consent to her release. He said he was not yet reliably informed as to how the jury stood. He would not comment on the jury's disagreement, though it evidently did not greatly surprise him.

Serious Disturbances Likely

St. Petersburg, May 5.—The social democratic committee is going ahead with plans for great demonstrations on May 1, according to the Russian calendar, which falls on May 14, according to the western calendar. The committee's proclamation announces a number of parades in various quarters of the city, converging at a central point. It also declares the intention of offering armed resistance if the police or troops endeavor to disperse the parades.

Canada Needs Soldiers

Halifax, May 5.—Canada's attempt to garrison the fortifications at Halifax and Esquimault, B. C., with Canadian troops has practically failed. The recruiting officers sent to the cities and towns of the Dominion have been unable to enlist more than 100 men. Under the new plan the imperial troops were to have left Halifax in July, but they will probably remain on this station for at least two years longer.

Considered Equitable Affairs

New York, May 5.—After a lengthy conference, the insurance commissioners from five states outside New York announced that they had informally considered the situation in the Equitable society and had decided to await the result of the investigation, which will be completed in June. Further than this official statement the commissioners would not discuss their meeting.

Won't Deliver Ships During War

Buenos Ayres, May 5.—The foreign minister of Argentine denies the reported sale of Argentine warships to Russia. Tempting offers were received from both Russia and Japan, but the government replied that while it was willing to sell now, it would not deliver the vessels until peace is signed.

Seminary Gets $1,000,000

Chicago, May 5.—At the banquet of the alumni of McCormick Theological seminary last night, announcement was made that the McCormick family had added $1,000,000 to the endowment of the institution. The money is to be used for the general support of the seminary.

GOLD IN SOILED LINEN

Patient Work of Inspector Reveals a Smuggling Scheme

Boston, May 5.—What is believed to be a colossal scheme of smuggling of gold leaf from Europe was unearthed by a shrewd customs inspector last evening, when a bundle of laundry from the Ivernia fell on the dock at the Cunard wharf, disclosing a box of the thin golden sheets.

Investigation of the wagonload of soiled linen yielded up more than $5000 worth of metal, packed carefully in 21 small boxes. A certain employe of the big liner was absent when sought for an explanation.

The duty on the metal which was seized is 45 percent ad valorem, or $2250.

With characteristic reserve, Inspector Mason kept his own counsel. "What gold?" he asked, when information was sought. He added, rather shortly, that what he did concerned the treasury officials. But from another source it was learned that Inspector Mason's detective work and the successful ending of his long, patient vigil surely means that a larger field awaits him.

Mill Secrets to Be Revealed

Fall River, Mass., May 5.—It is said that the long delayed report of Governor Douglas on the Fall River strike may be looked for some time next week. Manufacturers and labor leaders concede that the governor's report will have no immediate effect on wages. But it also conceded by some manufacturers and by most of the labor leaders that the report will give official information concerning the earning power of the mills in a form that will be useful in computing margins hereafter.

Favored Harvard-Tech Merger

Boston, May 5.—The alumni of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Boston and vicinity gathered in Huntington hall last night to listen to a recital of the various phases of the proposed merger agreement with Harvard. Each of the speakers strongly urged upon the alumni the benefits to be derived by the alliance. The proposed agreement was explained in detail and a ballot will be mailed to all former students of the institute in order that they may express their views on the matter.

No Trace of Missing Baby

Canaan, N. H., May 5.—Persistent and almost continuous search and a reward of $200 for the return of Elwyn Braley, the 27-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Braley of Grafton, have utterly failed to reveal a trace of the child who mysteriously disappeared a week ago. The Braleys were married about five years ago and have had three children, two having died.

Greenwich, Conn., May 5.—As a result of the confession made him by a young man giving the name of Frank C. Prucha, who surrendered himself to arrest, declaring that he had embezzled $500 from the Medart company of St. Louis of which he was formerly superintendent, Sheriff Ritch is corresponding with that firm. The young man is being held pending a reply.

Railroads May Buy Railways

Boston, May 5.—By a vote of 111 yeas to 74 nays, the house passed to be engrossed the bill authorizing the railroads to purchase street railways. The bill allows the purchase of the road without the sanction of the railroad commissioners, except to determine how much bonds and stocks may be issued to meet the contract already made.

Held on Charge of Fraud

Providence, May 5.—Requisition papers signed by Governor Glenn of North Carolina have been received here for the extradition of Selwyn N. Blake to Salisbury, N. C., on a charge of fraudulently obtaining money under false pretences and conspiracy to defraud. Blake denies that he is guilty of the charges preferred against him.

Alleged Firing at Neighbor

Skowhegan, Me., May 5.—Herbert I. Nason, a farmer of Canaan, was arrested last night, brought here and locked up in jail on the charge of assault with intent to kill on George Pottle, a neighbor. Pottle alleges that Nason, without a word of warning, fired three shots at him, none of which took effect.

Liquor Agency Shutters Up

Lewiston, Me., May 5.—At a meeting of the city government last night to elect a city liquor agent, 142 ballots were taken, without a choice being made. The meeting finally adjourned to Monday night, when the matter of balloting for a liquor agent will be resumed. Meanwhile the agency is closed.

Appointed to Office at 85

Boston, May 5.—Major Edward J. Jones, 85 years old, has been reappointed by Governor Douglas to another term of five years as master in chancery, an office he has held for the past 36 years. In point of service as well as in age Jones is the oldest master in chancery in Massachusetts.

Rockville, Conn., May 5.—Frank Sherrie, who has been on trial here for two weeks on the charge of murdering Mrs. Joseph Kulas, a Polish boarding house keeper, was found guilty last night, the jury deliberating for three hours. Sentence was deferred.

Work of Supposed Firebug

Woburn, Mass., May 5.—Two barns, together with considerable livestock, were destroyed, and the house gutted on the farm of William G. Richardson last night by a fire which is believed to have been incendiary, entailing a loss of $14,000.

"The Hummock," which has always been a popular place toward which to direct the steps when out for a walk, is not safe these balmy days on account of the tramps who make it their headquarters. Of course these mendicants may be harmless, but like braving a bull-dog in his kennel it is much safer to keep on the outside.

Credit is due those who have united their efforts in making the best of things and tinkering up the Squantum car so that it runs smoothly. Its windows have regained the appearance of glass now that the dirt has been removed, and altogether the car looks as well as can be expected owing to constant use and inclement weather.

It is planned to have a gathering at the old rendezvous, Chestnut Hill Reservoir, with runs to various points of interest, races at the Charles River Park, and Revere Beach tracks, and a banquet in the evening.

Sheriff Takes Charge of Chicago Strike Situation

A PRESSURE FOR TROOPS

Business Men Tell Governor That Conditions Demand Presence of Militia--A Conference Looking Toward Settlement of Strike Results In Nothing

Chicago, May 5.—Sheriff Thomas E. Barrett of Cook county has taken active control of the strike situation. So much pressure has been brought to bear on him and on Mayor Dunne by business men who believe their interests to be seriously imperilled by the constant rioting in the streets that the sheriff has sworn in a large force of deputies, and he will take active steps to do away with the present disorder.

Two hundred deputy sheriffs were sworn in yesterday afternoon at the office of Sheriff Barrett and it is expected that 2000 deputies will have been enrolled by this evening.

A committee of prominent business men went to Springfield to lay the situation before Governor Deneen and to declare that in their opinion conditions in Chicago were such that the militia is imperatively needed. The Chicago Clearing House association adopted sweeping resolutions declaring that the riots in the streets were constantly increasing in fury and had gone beyond the civil power of the city and county to control. It was therefore the opinion of the members of the Clearing House that the state troops should be at once called out.

Both Mayor Dunne and Sheriff Barrett have been deluged with letters and messages declaring that conditions have become insupportable and that a stop to the rioting should be made at once. Notwithstanding pressure for troops, Sheriff Barrett is determined to take the situation in hand himself, declaring that until he has done all he can he will not be justified in calling for the militia.

Mayor Dunne for three hours yesterday afternoon rode through the down town streets in a buggy and on his return to the city hall declared that he had seen no violence and he believed the police to be fully able to cope with the situation.

Business men who are anxious for troops point as an argument to the long list of injured which is printed every day and declare that this alone is sufficient evidence to prove that the rioting is not suppressed. They declare that they are unable to make detailed deliveries in any part of the city and that but for the fact that many of their men are accompanied by guards carrying rifles and shotguns, the drivers would be murdered in the streets.

A conference was held last evening between Levy Mayer, attorney for the Employers' association, and the leaders of the Teamsters' union. It resulted in nothing. President Shea of the Teamsters' union asserted that the teamsters were responsible for the attacks on non-union men and the rioting in the streets. Attorney Mayer declared with much emphasis that the teamsters were responsible for the entire trouble. The labor men left and the conference closed.

The teamsters made an attempt to call out the employes of the Chicago Union Traction company, which operates all street cars on the north and west sides of the city and is in charge of receivers appointed by United States courts, but the attempt failed.

Notwithstanding the constant fighting in the streets and the numerous attacks made on non-union men, the large drygoods houses and wholesale grocers report that they are steadily increasing shipments.

There was less disturbance yesterday in the wholesale quarter, but the fighting went on with its usual persistence and viciousness near the fashionable shopping district. A number of non-union men were clubbed and beaten and their wagon guards and the policemen retaliated with vigor on the rioters. In every instance the crowds were dispersed after a brief, sharp scrimmage.

The number of injured was about the same as that of the last two days. About 30 or 40 men have been cared for at various hospitals, and there are fully as many more who have received medical attendance and whose names are not known to the police.

FIVE DROWNED

Barge, With All Hands, Sinks Off Point Judith

Newport, R. I., May 5.—The New London tug Gertrude put into Newport harbor and reported the loss of the barge Moonbeam off Point Judith, with all on board. The barge, which was being towed from Hoboken to Providence, foundered during a gale and five persons—the captain, engineer, steward and two children of the captain—went down with the vessel. Charles Ackers, the captain of the Moonbeam, had his 13-year-old daughter and his son, aged 7, with him.

Captain Halyburton of the tug said that the Moonbeam had been steering badly for some time before the disaster, and from her behavior he was of the opinion that the water poured through the hatches when the seas swept over the decks. There had been, evidently, so little time between the rush of water into the hold and the foundering of the craft that there was no chance for the men on the towboat to assist the barge crew.

Captain Halyburton stated that the steering wheel of his tug was out of order for half an hour and that he was unable to navigate the boat during that time. Halyburton states that the accident occurred while he was on his way to the Moonbeam, but that he doubts whether any of those on the barge could have been rescued had the mishap not occurred. The Moonbeam carried 903 tons of coal.

The petition for habeas corpus was rejected with costs. The petition to be admitted to bail was also rejected.

BRANDEGEE WINS

Congressman Will Be Promoted to the Senate

A PROLONGED DEADLOCK

Caucus Balloted For Twelve Consecutive Hours Before Decisive Indication of Preference of Legislators Was Reached

Hartford, May 5.—At 2 o'clock this morning, on the 37th ballot, Congressman Frank D. Brandegee secured the nomination as United States senator by a vote of 128. The nomination is equivalent to an election. The caucus adjourned after having been in continuous session for over 12 hours.

Hartford, May 5.—A deadlock developed last night in the caucus of Republican members of the Connecticut general assembly, called to nominate a successor to the late United States Senator Platt. The supporters of ex-Governor McLean were offset in numbers by the friends of Congressman Brandegee of New London, while, in addition to these leading candidates, State Senator Paige and Congressman Hill figured as interesting factors in the situation.

Both Paige and Hill had a score or more supporters in all the ballots and the possibility that each ballot as announced might show a break from one or the other of these candidates to one of the leaders kept the interest at fever heat. In the nine hours following the opening of the caucus at 2 o'clock over a score of ballots were taken, differing not essentially in results.

Throughout the afternoon and evening the balloting was without result. Ballot after ballot was taken without any decisive indication of the preference of the legislators, the leading candidates, McLean and Brandegee, receiving from 90 to 100 votes each, while 124 were required to nominate.

It had been predicted that should McLean fall of the nomination on the first ballot, the strength of Brandegee would become formidable in the caucus, and this prediction seemed borne out by the results. On the first ballot McLean had 103 votes and Brandegee 69, Hill having 30, while there were scattering votes for other candidates. The second ballot showed an increase in the strength of Brandegee, who received 86 votes, McLean getting 98.

All through the following ballots the support of McLean and Brandegee varied by less than 10 votes, while the figures for Hill and Paige were less than 30. Votes were also cast for Donold T. Warner, state attorney, who was regarded as a favorite of the men of the small towns on account of his prominence in their behalf during the constitutional convention of 102; ex-Governor Chamberlain, Charles Phelps, Marcus H. Holcom, the presiding officer of the caucus and speaker of the house and Samuel Fessenden, a state senator who was the leading candidate opposed to ex-Governor Bulkeley when the latter was chosen recently to succeed the late General Hawley as United States senator. Fessenden's withdrawal from the present contest for senator was announced a few days ago, but in spite of that he received yesterday a few votes, his protest in the caucus against the "throwing away of votes" being unheeded.

Tie Race of Thoroughbreds

New York, May 5.—The greatest crowd that ever gathered to see a thoroughbred race in America was at Belmont park to witness the sensational running of the Metropolitan handicap, in which James R. Keene's 3-year-old, Sysonby, and O. L. Richards' 4-year-old, Race King, finished so closely together that the judges were unable to separate them. Both owners announced their satisfaction with the result as it stood and the purse, amounting to more than $14,000, was divided.

Bluebeard Hoch's Trial

Chicago, May 5.—In the case of Johann Hoch, Mrs. Bertha Sohn, sister of Mrs. Marie W. Hoch, the wife for whose alleged murder by poison Hoch is on trial, testified to various calls at the Hoch home in response to letters from Hoch which said that his wife was very sick and that he wanted Mrs. Sohn to attend her. She testified that Hoch always prepared the medicine. The fact that Hoch personally attended to the preparation of the fluid which was injected into the sick woman was given emphasis by Assistant State Attorney Olsen.

"Light Work at Home"

Washington, May 5.—The postoffice department has issued a fraud order against the Phoenix Construction company, with offices in New York. The company advertised light work at home, suggesting $10 a week reward for a few hours each day. Applicants were offered a contract for 2000 lace medallions at 2 cents each, but before beginning it was necessary to pay $2 for a Phoenix lace constructor, which the department found costs but a few cents. Persons doing the work found it of little practical use.

Troops Wield Whips

Warsaw, May 5.—With the exception of a few minor disturbances, Thursday passed quietly. Crowds which gathered here and there were quickly dispersed by troops armed with whips, and several persons were seriously injured with these whips. Great popular unrest continues. FIFTY CENTS

In some conditions the gain from the use of Scott's Emulsion is very rapid. For this reason we put up a fifty-cent size, which is enough for an ordinary cough or cold or useful as a trial for babies and children. In other conditions the gain is slower—health cannot be built up in a day. In such cases Scott's Emulsion must be taken as nourishment; a food rather than a medicine. It's a food for tired and weak digestions.

THE MINORITY

Make a Report on High School Plans.

As a majority report of the School Committee on the plans for a single complete addition to the High school has already been made public the minority report will be read with interest. It is made by Thomas L. Miller and James F. Burke, as follows:

Dear Sir,—Your committee submitted five plans or sketches to the School Committee for a completed addition to the High School building, and after some consideration the majority of said School Committee voted not to approve any of said plans, either in part (open to alteration) or as completed plans.

The minority of said School Committee dissent from said vote, and do report that in their judgment there are two of said plans, that with slight changes, will meet all the requirements of an up-to-date High School.

The Hurd & Gore plans have many commendable features. The corridors are broad and straight and the rooms well arranged. With the false front left off, and the granite trimmings extended round the new part, and the rooms arranged as per supplementary ground plans, will present an imposing appearance, and give ample accommodation for seating 1,000 pupils without crowding, or the use of the assembly hall for study purposes.

This would provide for a standard desk of 26 inches, 18 inch aisle between the desks, a 26 inch aisle at the walls and 6 feet on the teacher's side. There would be no room having over 49 pupils.

Then there would be an assembly hall for 1100 people, a library, principal's reception room and private office rooms, a teacher's room for the male teachers, also one for the female teachers. There are ample toilet rooms with 50 closets, drawing room and labratories, lecture room, book storage and lunch room. What more can be desired?

Then the McFarland, Colby and McFarland plans built as per supplementary elevation plans with the projecting pediment on the front enhances the beauty, provides more accommodation and splendid light for the third floor. And by changing the gymnasium from the southwest to the southeast corner better light would be provided, and with other slight changes will make a symmetrical building, and one that any city of the size and wealth of Quincy can feel a just pride in.

This plan provides for 1,028 scholars without the use of the assembly hall for study purposes, with all the rooms as mentioned in the first named plan. One admirable feature of this plan is that the boilers are placed outside the main building, thereby eliminating any possible danger from that source.

In our estimation, if either of these plans can be executed for from $75,000 to $80,000 one of them should be adopted. For when we consider the stringent condition of the finances of our city and the burden of the taxpayers, and the pressing demand for other improvements, surely we are called on to economize.

Consider the condition of the Coddington school right in the centre of the city. Rooms that were condemned years ago for school purposes have been opened up and used for class rooms. We contend that there is urgent demand for a new building to replace this antiquated structure, or we may find to our sorrow, that we have been playing with disease.

Again we would call your attention to the pressing demand for a new building in Ward Six, where we have been renting outside rooms for years. These rented rooms are not in any way fit for the purpose and the results are unsatisfactory.

Then the Lincoln school has been overcrowded for several years, and many children have been sent out of the district to the John Hancock building (until it is full to the attic), and yet the Lincoln school is not relieved. There have been 84 pupils in one room and 76 in another, yet the maximum that these rooms was intended for was 56. On account of the crowded condition of these rooms, the teachers have been taken sick on several occasions the past winter and had to go home.

Therefore, taking cognizance of the pressing demands for school accommodations, we cannot find any reason for an expense more than the two plans above mentioned call for, and we are of the decided opinion that it should be a completed building without any further patching.

STYLES FOR WEE FOLKS.

Openwork Embroidery For Tub Frocks—Picturesque Sleeves.

The tub frock for "very best" wear is of openwork embroidery for tots of from three to six or seven years. They are made with a long bodice and short standing out skirts. A noticeable model designed for girls from six to ten years is arranged with the dearest little directoire coat of fine linen over an

Sleeves in juvenile modes are as startling in their development as in the new grownup gowns. For coats they are large picturesque affairs, with the fullness at the top all gathered into the seams. This sleeve stamps a model as of the hour.

On frocks the elbow puff sleeve is carrying all before it, and short sleeves and slightly decollete necks are coming into vogue for baby girls.

In hats there is a strong feeling for bonnets of the most fascinating description.

A tuscan model, for example, is in a sunburnt tint, wreathed with roses and raised off the face by a bandeau that is softly ruffled with pink chiffon.

The little manikin this spring will wear the comfortable loose coat of the Russian blouse style in pale blue cloth, belted with a white kid band and arranged with three shoulder capes, crowned by a Napoleon hat of blue straw.

The dainty costume in the cut is a directoire frock for a tot of seven years. A dainty little tricorne hat of white chip trimmed with slightly curled ostrich tips is the smart piece of headgear that goes with the dress.

For heaven's sake, don't worry
As you live from day to day,
Wear a smile for all who meet you,
Cheering all upon your way;
Like the sunshine in the spring time
Bringing forth earth's buried treasures,
So may we, by deeds of kindness
Add to some poor brother's pleasures.
Spring, O joyous springtime's with us,
Brightest time of all the year;
Nature clothes the earth with beauty.

Those who remember Mrs. George T. Bigelow's generosity to the hospital, and churches in Quincy, will be glad to hear of her good health in her pleasant home on Marlborough street, Boston. Presiding over her tea-tray one afternoon recently she entertained her visitor with reminiscences of her early days in Quincy. She described the wishing rock on Elm street, where she and her neighbor playmate, Miss Elizabeth Adams used to stand, and wish when they wanted some particular thing to come to pass. And the great tree so broken by a gale that part of the trunk was hollow making a nook where she and Miss Adams could put their little chairs, and sit, and study. Mrs. Bigelow still takes an interest in Quincy, and its welfare.

HEARTY WELCOME

At Installation of Rev. Ernest W. Hunt at Wollaston

A large number of people were present last evening at the installation of the Rev. Ernest W. Hunt as pastor over the Wollaston Unitarian church.

The opening services included an organ voluntary by Miss Eugenia Hatch, an invocation by Rev. John H. Holmes, of New Dorchester, and scripture reading by Rev. Benj. F. McDaniel, of Dorchester.

Rev. Charles E. St. John, of Boston, preached a very strong sermon, taking as his text—"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might: Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself."

REV. ERNEST W. HUNT.

Rev. James Eells of Boston, with whom Mr. Hunt has recently been associated, gave the charge to the minister. He spoke of the troubles and trials of a minister's life, and told how to overcome them. He concluded by giving Mr. Hunt a few friendly words of advice.

Rev. Ellery C. Butler of Quincy gave the "Right Hand of Fellowship." He welcomed Mr. Hunt heartily, and extended to him congratulation, encouragement and advice.

Mr. Frederick H. Bishop extended the parish's greetings to their new pastor, and in a few well chosen words he welcomed Mr. Hunt in their behalf, to the church, their homes, and their hearts.

Rev. Frank W. Pratt of Hopedale, the recent pastor, spoke to the people, and tried to impress upon them the fact that the minister can not do his work without the hearty co-operation of the people, and he felt from his five years' experience at Wollaston, that this would be given freely.

"The Welcome of the Local Clergy" was extended to Mr. Hunt by the Rev. E. A. Chase of the Wollaston Congregational church. Mr. Chase described Wollaston to him in its different aspects and congratulated him on coming to a place of such natural beauty, and among a class of people who are alive to every human interest. He extended a most cordial welcome to Mr. Hunt for himself and the local clergy.

The closing prayer was given by the Rev. Eugene R. Shippen of Dorchester, and the benediction was pronounced by the new pastor.

Divorce Granted.

Mrs. Mary I. B. Glover, who, while wearing her widow's weeds, married Ebenezer B. Glover of Quincy, agent of a tombstone company at Washington, D. C., was yesterday granted a decree nisi by order of Judge Bond. The libel alleged cruel and abusive treatment and gross and confirmed habits of intoxication on the part of the husband. Mrs. Glover lives in Dorchester and is reputed to be worth $200,000, while her husband has practically nothing.

Mrs. Glover testified, says the Herald, that two days after her marriage her husband started in on a career of drinking and so far as she knew, never let up. He drank a quart of whiskey a day. She said he made repeated demands for money and when it was not forthcoming he produced a pistol.

THE SECOND NIGHT.

Increased Interest in the Grand Colonial Fair.

Fully 1000 people attended the Colonial fair-fete of the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary yesterday, the second day. In the evening there was a big crowd, and the grand festival promises to be a great financial success, as well as a social event.

The capacity of the well appointed hall on the second floor was taxed to its utmost, and the entertainment given by the Wollaston friends of the Association was a rare treat. Great credit is due Mrs. E. S. Tenney and her assistants, Mrs. J. B. Cornish, Mrs. N. G. Nickerson and Mrs. A. L. Goodrich.

"Through Colonial Doorways" was the appropriate name given the entertainment, and included living pictures, both Colonial and national; songs of ye olden tyme by Mrs. Mary Hasting Slade, readings by Mrs. H. T. B. Bates, and the dancing of the minuet by children, while Mrs. Alfred P. Thompson read.

This afternoon is Automobile day, and for this evening some of the best talent in our city has offered their services for the entertainment of patriotic songs.

SCARCITY OF MEN.

Business Good Now in the Granite Industry.

Business is rushing in the granite business just at present. All of the manufacturers report having considerable business on hand, which they are trying to rush along, so as not to disappoint customers who desired their monuments set for Memorial Day.

Aside from the Memorial Day orders they have an amount of work for delivery later in the season. The quarries are also busy getting out rough stock for the cutting sheds.

Aside from the monumental work being cut there are several large building jobs being gotten out. The largest of these is that for the Carnegie Institute at Pittsburg, Pa., by the Quincy Quarries Co. The contract price of this job is $50,000. Aside from this order the company has an order for a number of polished granite columns.

There is a scarcity of good men.

The Horse Teaches the Man.

While there is no royal road to learning the game of polo in its entirety, there is a plebeian way that leads straight to its secrets. Let the novice get on an old broken down polo pony that knows the game all the way through from a lifetime of playing. Then the pony will play the game for him and will be his teacher. The learner will start in with a few strokes of his mallet till his seat and guidance are assured and later his aim and strength of stroke, and gradually he will work into regular play. Then, like other faithful teachers, the wise old horse will be superseded, but his work will live.—Country Life In America.

We Are All Queer.

Call a girl a chick and she smiles; call a woman a hen and she howls. Call a young woman a witch and she is pleased; call an old woman a witch and she is indignant. Call a girl a kitten and she rather likes it; call a woman a cat and she hates you. Women are queer.

If you call a man a gay dog it will flatter him; call him a pup, a hound or a cur and he will try to alter the map of your face. He doesn't mind being called a bull or a bear, yet he will object to being mentioned as a calf or a cub. Men are queer too.

A Troubled Conscience.

"I had a horrible dream last night," said Huddieston when he came down to breakfast the other morning.

"What was it?" asked his wife.

"I dreamed that I was in purgatory and was made to do all the things I had told my friends I would do if I were in their places."—Town and Country.

The Contrary Dog.

"Can dogs find their way home from a distance?" is a question frequently asked. It's according to the dog. If it is one you want to get rid of he can find his way back from Africa. If it is a valuable one he is apt to get lost if he goes round the corner.

Why Run the Hazard

of accepting personal security upon a bond, when corporate security is vastly superior?

The personal surety may be financially strong to-day and insolvent to-morrow; or he may die, and his estate be immediately distributed. In any event, recovery is dilatory and uncertain.

Because of its greater stability, the United States Government prefers Corporate Suretyship; and many firms require it of their bonded employees.

TRIBUTE TO CHOATE

Great Gathering of Notables at Farewell Dinner

HE IS HIGHLY PRAISED

Declared to Have Ever Played His Part With Distinction--Retiring Ambassador Says He Is on Verge of Anglomania

London, May 6.—"Certainly the crowning hour of my life is this farewell benefit to the English stage."

So Joseph H. Choate characterized the farewell dinner at the Mansion house last night, which undoubtedly was the most remarkable gathering of notables ever assembled at the historic residence of the lord mayor of London. In the words of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, "It would be impossible to collect a more representative gathering." All parties, classes, professions and opinions from the great Metropolis were there. Mr. Choate sat at the right hand of the lord mayor; next to him was Mr. Balfour, and then Lord Lansdowne. At the left of the lord mayor were the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Duke of Wellington.

The lord mayors of several large cities came to London for the occasion, and there were present the editors of the London dailies, authors, many members of the house of commons of all political parties, and many other notables, the aggregate numbering 300.

The Archbishop of Canterbury pronounced grace and the benediction. The aged lord mayor, a white-bearded, picturesque figure in his rich costume, rose and toasted the king and queen. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman proposed "The President," eulogizing him as "a genuine typical character, characteristic of America, a firm friend of peace, though not perhaps of a quiescent disposition."

Premier Balfour, in toasting Choate, congratulated the lord mayor on being the host of Great Britain on this memorable occasion. Mr. Choate, he said, had been with Britons in days of mourning and of rejoicing, of disaster and of victory, not only as the representative of a great state, but ever ready to take his part in any phase of British public life not connected with politics, and he had ever played his part with distinction. He hoped Choate would carry away with him much more than merely diplomatic ideas.

Mr. Balfour dilated on the close relations between the two countries and the common sentiment of amity which survived always, despite the mistakes of official leaders. He said that with the lapse of decades the old bitterness had been lost in the historic past; that all causes of difficulty had vanished, and that there had emerged, slowly, but surely, a feeling of common brotherhood, the surest prospect, he thought, of international peace and progress. In conclusion Mr. Balfour said that their farewell to Choate was not formal and official, but came from their hearts.

Mr. Choate spoke at considerable length and with much feeling. He said that he was home-sick and glad to be returning to his native land, where old friends were diminishing as fast as new ones were making here. If he remained much longer, he said, he would have a worse disease than home-sickness, namely, Anglomania. An American president had once wisely said that he would not trust an ambassador in England more than four years because the English would spoil him by heaping compliments and benefits upon him. He said he did not dare trust himself to speak of the honor he felt in being the guest of such an assembly gathered to say farewell.

"Altogether too much credit has been attributed to me," Choate said, "for the happy and delightful relations now existing between the two countries. If I have contributed to maintain what I found on taking up my post, the last six years will be the proudest of my life. But the real reason for the happy state of affairs between the countries does not belong to any ambassador, but to Lord Lansdowne and Mr. Hay. I never have been called into the presence of the king or his illustrious consort without finding them also full of friendship for the country I represent. The king's instincts for peace are unerring and his genius for conciliation perfect, as he has shown the world in recent weeks."

To Call For Resignations

New York, May 6.—The Post says that an informal meeting of the directors of the Equitable Life Assurance society, not including its executive officers, has been called for next Monday afternoon. At this meeting, it is declared, the resignation or suspension of President Alexander, Vice President Hyde and Second Vice President Tarbell will be discussed. It is known that at least one director will demand that these officers be suspended.

THE OPENING GUN

Active Fight Over Rockefeller's $100,000 Gift Has Begun

Boston, May 6.—What is described in a circular as "the first gun in our 'educational campaign,'" was fired today by the committee acting for the Congregational ministers of New England who protested against the acceptance of John D. Rockefeller's gift of $100,000 by the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.

Today the committee mailed to every Congregational church and every Congregational clergyman in the United States four circulars. One of these circulars is a letter explaining the significance of the movement; another is the statement recently issued by Dr. Gladden of Columbus, O., moderator of the National Congregational council; a third is a sermon entitled "The Spirit of Protest," recently delivered by Rev. Artemus J. Haynes of New Haven, while the fourth is the work of the protesting committee and bears the caption "The Issue Before the Church."

The members of the committee whose names are appended to the last mentioned circular say that it was prepared "to call attention to the specific moral question confronting the churches if the principle avowed in accepting this gift from Mr. Rockefeller is to be maintained."

Incendiary Fire In Lodging House

Boston, May 6.—An incendiary fire in a lodging house at 96 Appleton street early this morning nearly caused the death of one of the inmates and several others had narrow escapes, two of them being compelled to hurry from the building in their nightclothes. A fire was discovered in the same house at 8 o'clock last night, but was extinguished before serious damage was done. The second fire was started in a heap of kerosene-soaked rags and paper in the basement. Two thousand dollars will cover the damage done by the fire.

Great Blaze In Pine Forest

Plymouth, Mass., May 6.—What at first appeared an insignificant blaze in a pine forest developed into a destructive forest fire that has already burned over a tract of about four square miles. The fire is believed to have been caused by sparks from a passing locomotive. Large parties of firefighters are at work trying to check the onward march of the flames, but their efforts seem to meet with but little success. The loss by the fire will be heavy.

But Little Gold Leaf Smuggled

Boston, May 6.—A careful examination of the seized boxes found in the laundry of steamer Ivernia showed that six of the boxes were filled with Dutch metal, a base alloy used for gilding. In these boxes were 35,000 sheets. Sixteen boxes contained 17,500 sheets of silver. There was but little gold leaf. It is estimated that the total value of the seized articles will not exceed $1000, exclusive of duty charges.

May Have Been Foul Crime

Canaan, N. H., May 6.—Investigation into the disappearance more than a week ago of Elwyn, the 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Braley of Grafton led to the inspection of a box of ashes back of the Braley house. Some bones were found which medical men who examined them were inclined to think included a lower vertebra. The police decided to have the bones examined by an expert.

Used Pistol Without Cause

Skowhegan, Me., May 6.—Herbert I. Nason of Canaan, who was arrested on complaint of George Pottle, a neighbor, was arraigned on the charge of assault with intent to kill. He pleaded not guilty, but probable cause was found for holding him for the supreme court. It was testified that without provocation Nason fired three shots from a revolver at Pottle and his mother.

Sherrie Gets Death Sentence

Rockville, Conn., May 6.—Frank Sherrie, who was convicted of first degree murder for killing Mrs. Joseph Kulas, keeper of a boarding house, was sentenced to be hanged on Oct. 31, 1905. Still Looking For Bear

Glenwood Springs, Col., May 6.—Ice-ccated mountains, with slippery trails, could not keep President Roosevelt under cover yesterday. At noon the clouds lifted and the snow and rain, which had fallen continuously for four days, ceased. With the first appearance of the sun the president's party started out, but, though the hunt was continued until dark, it was unsuccessful. An early start was made today, and the president hopes to get one more bear. His health is excellent.

Miners' Awful Experience

Calumet, Mich., May 6.—The cable attached to a passenger cage in the Calumet and Hecla copper mine broke while 34 men were being lowered into the mine. The cage dropped 1400 feet before the safety catches checked it. Several of the men sustained minor injuries during their wild plunge, but none of them was seriously hurt. The shaft in which the accident occurred is a mile deep.

Show Stopped by Sprained Ankle

New York, May 6.—Mrs. Leslie Carter, the actress, is confined to her apartments, suffering from a severely sprained ankle, and the Belasco theatre, where she has been playing, is closed. Mrs. Carter was stepping from her carriage when the horses started and she almost fell to the sidewalk. She probably will not be able to appear again for some time.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Lucius T. Robinson, 60 years old, a farmer of Hudson, N. H., committed suicide at his home by shooting. Despondency, due to ill-health, is believed to have been the cause.

Attached to a goat, a new bullet-proof shield, the composition of which is a secret, has been tried by the Swiss military department with satisfactory results.

The federal grand jury is conducting a secret investigation at New York into certain matters concerning the American Tobacco company and its subsidiary companies.

Bad Dreams

Too often seemingly trifling complaints of children are put off as things of no consequence. Every unnatural action is a symptom of disorder and deserving of careful investigation. Worms more than anything else are the cause of childhood sickness. Attacking, as they do, the stomach and bowels, the effect of their presence is felt throughout the whole system and made known by nervousness, peevishness, disturbed sleep, erratic appetite, weak stomach and general lassitude.

Dr. True's Elixir

is the surest and safest worm remedy ever compounded—but it is more than that. As a tonic and general corrective it is unexcelled. It tones stomach and bowels, cleanses and enriches the blood and sends renewed health tingling through the veins. For over 50 years the most popular home remedy. Sold at all druggists, 35c. NEW TRIAL LIKELY

NO STAY OF EXECUTION

Woman's Reprieve Will Not Expire Before Arguments Have All Been Submitted--Insanity Plea to Be Introduced

Montpelier, Vt., May 6.—Chief Justice Rowell and Judge Munson of the state supreme court announced last night that counsel's application for a hearing by the full bench on the petition for a new trial of Mrs. Mary M. Rogers has been granted.

Mrs. Rogers is now in the state prison at Windsor under sentence of death, having been convicted of the murder of her husband, Marcus M. Rogers, in Bennington, on the night of Aug. 12, 1902. She was sentenced to be hanged on Feb. 3, but on Feb. 2 Governor Bell granted her a reprieve until June 2, in order that newly discovered evidence might be presented to the supreme court in an endeavor to give the woman a new trial. The full bench will hear the petition on May 17.

In granting the application for a hearing, the justices stated that they would not issue any order for a stay of execution at this time, inasmuch as the reprieve granted the condemned woman by Governor Bell will not expire until June 2, and the court will before that time hear all the arguments and evidence in support of the petition. It was also announced that by agreement of counsel a document attached to the petition would be treated as a transcript of the evidence taken at the woman's trial.

In affidavits attached to the petition Attorneys Archibald and Guilteman, who were Mrs. Rogers' counsel at the trial, state that at the time of the trial they knew nothing of the evidence on which they base their petition for a new trial. This new evidence relates to the allegations that there has been insanity in Mrs. Rogers' family and that she is a hereditary victim, and that her mental and physical condition at the time of the trial were not normal. The attorneys also depose that they did not know until after the trial that Mrs. Rogers went to an insurance agent to collect her husband's life insurance after the murder, at the request of the agent.

James Reilly, the agent in question, has filed an affidavit to the effect that when he learned of Marcus Rogers' death he asked Mrs. Rogers to come to his office to arrange for the payment of the dead man's insurance.

Perry Not an Incendiary

Chicago, May 6.—Isaac N. Perry, formerly president of the National Bank of North America, was acquitted of the charge of setting fire to the Chicago car and Locomotive company's plant at Hegewisch, Ills. BRITT DEFEATS WHITE

Californian Becomes Champion Lightweight of the World

San Francisco, May 6.—James E. Britt of California became champion lightweight of the world last night when he got the decision over Jabez White of England at the close of a 20-round fight.

With just 20 seconds to go, Britt hooked the Englishman with a left on the jaw and the latter went to the mat, where he lay flat on his back for eight seconds. He staggered to his feet, but was powerless to defend himself and Britt swung right and left on his jaw.

The referee, to save the plucky Englishman from needless punishment, stopped the contest, although White was on his feet leaning up against the ropes in a helpless condition.

White was carried to his corner and in a few minutes revived sufficiently to make a little speech in which he said: "I fought the best I knew how. I received fair play, but Britt is evidently the better man."

All through the battle White showed that he was a clever boxer and an experienced ring general. White landed on Britt's jaw many times, but apparently did not hurt Britt. In the 12th round it looked as though White had a chance. He landed a vicious straight right on Britt's jaw and Britt went to the floor and rolled under the ropes. He was not hurt and came back fighting faster than ever.

Britt forced matters all through the fight. He paid particular attention to White's stomach, occasionally swinging for the jaw. The Englishman's cleverness enabled him during most of the fight to block Britt's punches to the stomach.

Looks Like Foul Play

New York, May 6.—The police of this city have telegraphed the authorities of Norfolk to arrest Susie Edwards, a negro woman, on the arrival of steamer Jefferson in that city. Later the girl lapsed into an unconscious state, and was taken to a hospital, where she died late night without recovering consciousness.

NORMAN E. MACK ON WILLIAM J. BRYAN.

Nebraskan His Party's Leader, Says Buffalo Editor.

CLAIMS REAL ISSUES ARE NEEDED

Committeeman Says the Democratic Party Must Stand For Something Definite if It Hopes to Win—Is of Opinion Radical Campaign Against Special Privileges Could Succeed. No Room For Two Trust Parties.

Norman E. Mack, the editor and owner of the Buffalo Times, who is the Democratic national committeeman of New York state and a member of the executive committee, spoke as follows about William J. Bryan when he was recently interviewed by James Creelman for the New York World:

"I recognize William J. Bryan as the national leader of the Democratic party. Mr. Bryan has polled more votes than any other living Democrat. He has polled a million more votes than Mr. Cleveland or Mr. Parker. Until some other Democrat receives a larger number of votes Mr. Bryan will continue to be the national leader of his party."

Mr. Mack was not anxious to talk about politics, but when the divided condition of the Democratic party was mentioned he spoke with frankness.

"The Democratic party at this time reminds me of the boy baby in the advertisement reaching for a cake of soap and labeled 'He won't be happy till he gets it.' The people who make up the rank and file of the Democracy will never be satisfied till the men who have been engaged in securing and making money out of special governmental privileges have been sent to the rear of the party. The party just now seems to be made up of two elements. Ninety-eight per cent of it consists of men who seem to be in favor of progressive Democracy, which says what it means and is honestly opposed to the use of the party or the government for private advantage. Those who make up the remaining 2 per cent seem to be convinced that they are the real Democrats, but—we might as well be honest, they call themselves conservative Democrats—with the exception of a very few who have been misled you will find that in nearly every case the so called conservative Democrats who have opposed the party most of the time for the past ten years are either at the head of big corporations looking for special privileges or are attorneys hired by such corporations to secure special privileges for large money considerations.

"The Democrats of the country might as well understand clearly that they can never win by the use of boodle. I intend to speak frankly. Take my own county, Erie, for instance. In 1900 we had a fund of about $4,700 in that county. We lost it by about 4,800 votes. Last year we had a fund of more than $50,000. We lost the county by more than 13,000 votes.

"Now, in 1896 it is a well known fact that there was not a county in the Union in which we had money enough to buy the necessary postage stamps, and yet we came within 601,854 votes of electing a president. Last year we had plenty of money. I don't believe that the public should be misled, and I will speak plainly. Last year we had all the money we could use in this (New York) or any other state. Yet we lost the election by 2,542,062, a defeat, in spite of our abundance of money, more than four times as great as in 1896, when we were so hard up for funds. If it had not been for the strength furnished by local issues and local candidates in states like New York, Michigan, Massachusetts and Minnesota we would have come out of the campaign stripped bare.

"The truth is that the Democratic party must stand for something definite if it hopes to win at the polls. You don't need any better evidence than that last fall Chicago went 110,000 Republican, while this year, indeed within the past few days, when the municipal fight was made on straight out and out issues, Chicago went 25,000 Democratic. These things ought to be a lesson all Democratic leaders.

"It is given out constantly that the leadership of the so called progressive or radical Democrat is opposed to big business interests. That is not true. It is not opposed to legitimate private enterprise on however large a scale. I have never heard of any Democrat being opposed to Mr. Wanamaker's establishments or to any other of the great dry goods stores or similar businesses. The things that progressive and radical Democrats object to are the policies of men advocating special legislation and engaged in bribery and so consolidating and watering corporations as to menace the business of the country. The legitimate merchant has to buy land, to build on it and to pay taxes. He gets no special privilege from the government."

"Whom do you recognize as the national leader of the Democratic party today?"

"The man who received a million more votes than any other living Democrat and will remain leader until some other Democrat can show a larger vote."

"You mean Mr. Bryan?"

"I mean Mr. Bryan. He polled a million more votes than either Mr. Cleveland or Mr. Parker. I look upon him as the national leader of the party."

"But, Mr. Mack, would not New York reject Mr. Bryan again?"

"That may be true, but it is also true that the other states rejected the candidate and leadership presented by New York last year. New York must take its chances with the other states. If the Democratic party is to have any chance to win it must have a Democratic leadership and a Democratic platform.

"Last fall's campaign was not a fair test of the Democratic party's position. In our national convention we attacked the trusts and appeared to be vigorous and in earnest about it. But what did we do afterward? The first thing was to eliminate the national committee from the conduct of the campaign from Maine to California, apparently for the purpose of raising money from trusts, syndicates and corporations. We put what might be termed managers and corporation lawyers at the head of the campaign. I thought then and I think now that that made the Democratic party look ridiculous. I have no desire to make a personal criticism of any man.

"If the Democratic party does not stand against centralization of power and against organizations of capital devoted to grafting and bribery in the state and nation I consider that it has no mission and ought to be defeated. There is not room enough even in this big country for two trust parties or two Republican parties."

"Assuming Mr. Bryan to be the national leader, will he be nominated for president again in 1908?"

"It is hard to say. My notion is that if Mr. Roosevelt succeeds in controlling the next Republican national convention by his own acceptance of a renomination or by the nomination of any man he may favor and secures the adoption of a platform such as I imagine he will make if he has his way it is difficult at this time to deny that it will be a hard job for the Democratic party to defeat him. No one can dispute the fact that Mr. Roosevelt has impressed the country with the idea that he is honest and that he is earnest in opposing vicious trusts. However, in spite of that general impression, I doubt his real sincerity of purpose.

"On the other hand, should the plutocratic element dominate the next Republican national convention the duty of the Democratic party will be very plain. It should nominate some man who has honestly and fearlessly stood for the principles which Mr. Bryan has represented for the past ten years. If it makes such a nomination, with a progressive and radical platform, I believe that it will be sure of carrying the country by as big a majority as Mr. Roosevelt got in the last election."

"That means that you look forward to the renomination of Mr. Bryan?"

"There may be some man who will better fit the situation than Mr. Bryan three years from now, but I do not anticipate it. If we had a national convention now I do not see anything in sight except the nomination of Mr. Bryan unless we want to try again the experience we have just had in attempting to beat the Republicans at their own game."

"How about a fusion with the Populists?"

"No fusion—no, sir! All the Democratic party has to do is to be democratic. It should turn away from trust magnates and trust lawyers. If it stands on democratic ground the Populists will vote the Democratic ticket. There is not the slightest chance of another fusion with the Populist organization.

"My own idea is that in order to have the Democratic party win again successful men who do not profit by special privilege—men like Douglas, in Massachusetts, and Folk, in Missouri—must come to the front. We need leaders who are not asking favors from common councils, state legislatures or the national government. Such men as these are beginning to open their eyes. Processes of revelation are at work. Thomas W. Lawson of Boston, for instance, has done more to arouse and hold the attention of honest business men to existing evils than any other man who has touched the subject since the civil war. I believe that honest business men will come to the front in Democratic politics and that the hired men of the trusts will go to the rear.

"Unfortunately an impression has gone abroad that the Democrats of New York are not sincere. In traveling around through other states I find that a great many people believe that New Yorkers are tied up to the trusts and syndicates and other seekers after special privilege. That is a mistake. The great mass of the Democratic voters in New York are just as much opposed to special privilege and the bribery and grafting that accompany it and are just as good Democrats as you can find, say, in Missouri. What they need is sincere, straightout and fearless Democratic leadership. That, I believe, they will have."

She'll Show India How to Farm.

With a complete outfit of plows, rakes and other agricultural equipments, including a windmill water pump, Miss Alice L. Yoder, a native of Bechtelsville, Pa., sailed a few days ago, returning to India to labor not only as a missionary, but to introduce American farm methods in that far off land, says a Boyertown (Pa.) dispatch to the Philadelphia Record. She owns several hundred acres of land there, where she is training 200 children in the manner and custom of the western continent.

Scarcity of Horses.

There seems to be a scarcity of good horses, while the demand for all kinds of horses is unusually large, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. A few seasons ago shipments of western horses to the east were so large as to overstock the market, but the raising of the animals has declined in the past few years. A dealer in New York said that if he could only get horses there would be no trouble in disposing of them at good prices, but they are not to be found.

THE CODDINGTON

Should Have Been Replaced Years Ago by Modern Building.

The fact that Miss Julia E. Underwood has taught at the Coddington school for fifty years, is a forcible reminder that the Coddington is an ancient building as city school houses go. The city should show more appreciation of the faithful services of Miss Underwood, Miss Dearborn and other teachers by giving them an up-to-date building.

When built the Coddington was not a three story building, but two stories and a basement. Miss Underwood taught more than one generation in the basement. There were two rooms on the street floor as at present, but on the second floor only one large room.

The cost of the Coddington when built in 1855 by the late William Parker was but $7,367.98, and this sum included furnishings and extras as will be seen by these expenditures from the Town Report of Feb. 1, 1856:

W. Parker, Jr., for plans,	$16.00
W. Parker, Jr., building per contract,	4,950.00
W. Parker, Jr., fence and extra work,	471.78
Newcomb & Chapin, stone work per contract,	725.00
Newcomb & Chapin, extra work,	72.17
J. L. Ross, school furniture,	1,018.50
E. B. Hersey, painting fence,	52.88
A. Furnald, carting,	26.00
West Castleton R. R. & Slate Co., blackboards,	29.72
O. White, wire netting,	4.63
Total cost,	$7,367.97

Well Known Editor.

Daniel H. Huxford, editor of the Randolph Register and Holbrook News, and in 1878 editor and publisher of the Braintree Observer died Thursday at the home of his mother in Edgartown, Martha's Vineyard. Mr. Huxford has been ill since last February and has been under treatment at the Homœopathic hospital until last Monday.

He was prominent in Masonic and Odd Fellow circles, the Suburban Press association, the Massachusetts Press association and was a past president of the old Stoughton Musical society which has many members in this town. Mr. Huxford was never married. Besides a mother, whom he generally spent Saturdays and Sundays with, he has a brother residing in Brockton.

Thoughtfulness Counts.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

May I through your columns express my appreciation of the kindness, and courtesy shown by the car despatcher in the Square last evening. The Wollaston contingent bound for the Y. M. C. A. entertainment was packed closer than sardines in the early evening (no fault of the railway officials, and a worse jam was to be expected homeward bound.

I ventured to suggest this to the despatcher, who replied that if this was to be the case, he had an extra car to press into service. It was soon brought on to the main line and then without waiting for the regular car to arrive this courteous official invited a tired crowd to enjoy the luxury of the car for the remaining quarter of an hour's wait. This was especially appreciated because so many had stood up during the entertainment at the hall. It was in the line of duty, some one may say. Yes, but his thoughtfulness and kindness put a special stamp upon him. Rufus B. Tobey.

Wollaston, May 6, 1905.

—The passage by the Massachusetts and Vermont legislatures of the "pure food law," has cut down the sale of alleged maple sugar and maple syrup in so large a degree that dealers in the frauds are in despair. Lovers of buckwheat cakes and maple syrup, however, are largely the gainers, and are rejoicing in knowing that they are before the right article when it is offered them. The law provides that when the spurious article is offered for sale it shall be plainly designated.

It was a battle royal between Adams Academy and the Quincy High school yesterday at Merrymount park and the former won, 6 to 5, in the presence of many rooters for each school.

The High scored two runs in the first and blanked their opponents, but Adams evened things up in the second, and the score continued a tie up to the sixth.

Then Adams scored one. High however took the lead in their half of the eighth, with a score of three, but Adams did likewise and then blanked High, winning by one run. High led at the bat.

HAIR NATURALLY ABUNDANT.

When It Is Free of Dandruff, It Grows Luxuriantly.

Hair preparations and dandruff cures, as a rule, are sticky or irritating affairs that do no earthly good. Hair, when not diseased, grows naturally, luxuriantly. Dandruff is the cause of nine-tenths of all hair trouble, and dandruff is caused by a germ. The only way to cure dandruff is to kill the germ; and, so far, the only hair preparation that will positively destroy the germ is Newbro's Herpicide—absolutely harmless, free from grease, sediment, dye matter or dangerous drugs. It allays itching instantly; makes hair glossy and soft as silk. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. THE MINSTRELS.

Puritan Lodge of Odd Fellows of Braintree Entertain.

The second grand minstrel show given in the Town hall, Wednesday evening, under the auspices of Puritan lodge 179, I. O. O. F. was attended by about 600 people many of whom came from nearby towns. Every available seat was in use and the audience was very appreciative.

It was a pleasure to note the presence of Joseph Belcher of Randolph who is the grand warden of the grand lodge of Massachusetts.

At 8.15 o'clock the young men's orchestra with Charles Gordon Whitcomb as musical director struck up the opening chorus "The Puritan Lodge, I. O. O. F. Original," a medley.

As the curtains parted a handsome group of niggers, as you ever saw, in rich costumes circled the stage. The interlocutor, Mr. H. W. Mansfield, occupied the important centre chair. He looked very pale, surrounded by so much black, but never so charming and so much at home.

The program:

Solo, Beneath the Pines of Maine — A. A. Saunders
Make a Fuss over me, Chester Hollis
Santa Claus, Frank Allen
Solo, Amalia H. Parker Hobart
Shame on you, Edward Blake
I Aint got no use for Sleep, Henry Barnes
Solo, I'm trying so hard to forget you — Alex. McGibbon
Oysters and Clams, Warren Osgood
Topical song, Harry Simonds
Solo, Manuelita Edward Cuff
Coax Me, Harry Snow
Don't make those Scandelous Eyes, Prof. Dan. Haley

Sandwiched between each number on the program many local hits were sprung, our popular news agent Charles M. Lothrop receiving the most attention. He was unable to be present to appreciate them. Charles G. Whitcomb also received many shots and they were taken in good spirit.

The first bouquet brought to the stage was for Edward Blake and the second for Warren Osgood.

Master George Abell as accompanist for all the soloists and also pianist with the orchestra deserves special mention for his excellent work.

The orchestra consisted of C. Gordon Whitcomb and Henry Arthur White, violinists; Harry White, claronet; Arthur David at the drums; J. Arthur Whitcomb, cornetist; George Abell, accompanist; and Mr. C. G. Whitcomb, director.

This young men's orchestra received many compliments from the audience and it is hoped they may keep together and furnish music at future social events. Their gratuitious work was very much appreciated by the members of Puritan lodge.

From the gallery came numerous echoes which of course were entertaining, at least Chester Hollis thought so.

Nearly all niggers have large feet but our chorus was composed of men with small feet and excellent voices and their fine looks were magnified by their rich costumes.

A large American flag was hung over the clock, back of the minstrels, as we thought to keep the incorrect time from the audience but in the grand finale the chorus stood and pointed with pride to our flag.

Dancing was enjoyed by a large num- of people, after the show, until twelve o'clock.

The whole affair was a great success financially and socially and was a credit to Puritan lodge and its committee in charge.

River Appropriation.

The Committee on Harbour and Public Lands of the Legislature were in Quincy yesterday viewing the need of better waterways. The National government has appropriated $80,000 for dredging outside the Quincy Point bridge, provided the State will make an appropriation for the Fore river above the bridge, and for Town river. The bill in the Legislature is for $20,000.

The committee arrived about 11 A. M. and under the escort of interested parties went immediately aboard the tug Confidence. Stops were made at the big power plant of the street railway, at the Baker yacht basin and at the shipyard. A lunch was served on the tug.

In the party were Congressman McNary, President Bowles of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., Hon. Guy W. Currier, counsel for the Old Colony street railway, and others.

New German Warships.

The German marine office has just contracted for the construction of two battleships and two cruisers as part of the regular plan for the increase of the navy. One battleship will be built at the Germania yard in Kiel, and the other by the Schichau Company at Elbing.

CITY BREVITIES.

The fire hydrants throughout the city are being painted black with aluminum tops.

The smallpox patient was removed to the contagious hospital last night, in a Boston ambulance.

The Choir festival at the Church of the Advent, Boston, will take place next Tuesday evening.

The Victors and the Makaria nine are playing on the lower field at Merrymount park this afternoon.

Thayer Academy was defeated yesterday by Newton High 4 to 3. Thayer tied the game in their half of the ninth, but Newton also scored one.

The Nonquit Social club have organized a strong base ball team and are willing to play any team in or around Quincy. Address P. McDonald, 12 Deldorf street, Quincy.

It is reported that the Grace E. Whitten estate of five acres of shore property on Town River, Germantown, has been sold to J. Sumner Draper. The house, stable and land are assessed at $10,400, of which $7000 is on the land.

Constable N. B. Furnald has received an appointment as agent of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, to investigate all cases of children who are neglected, abused, abandoned or otherwise cruelly treated or dealt with in violation of law, within the city of Quincy.

The Quincy Defenders defeated the Golden Rods on the School street field on Thursday 9 to 5. The make up of the Defenders includes: Bert Smith, William Pratt, Joseph Berlucchi, Edmund Ford, Joseph Driscoll, Charles Knight, John Mulcahy, James Fontoni and Fred Baker.

Daniel J. McLane, formerly of Quincy recently electrician with the street railway at Schenectady, N. Y., has gone to Spokane, Washington, where he has accepted a more lucrative and promising position. Mrs. McLane will spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Delorey at North Weymouth.

Woodward Hearing.

The hearing on the legality of the Woodward Ordinance, relative to salaries paid the treasurer, clerk and auditor, was held Friday before the Attorney General. The hearing was not a lengthy one, and at its close the matter was taken under advisement. A decision will be rendered later.

Knew the Man.

"Higgins says you aggravate him."
"I aggravate him? Why?"
"He says you always laugh at the wrong place when he tells a story."
"Bless you, that's the only place you can laugh at his stories."

Monday Evening Club.

Miss Lilla Elizabeth Kelley, vice president of the Ruskin club of Boston, read a paper on Ruskin before the Monday Evening club of Atlantic, at its meeting held May 1. The club found Miss Kelley's charming enthusiasm in her subject irresistably contagious and her portrait of John Ruskin lifelike and appealing.

Mr. Charles E. Finch, principal of the Wollaston and Massachusetts Fields schools, read a paper on "Indian Myths and Legends." Mr. Finch related in the simple, beautiful language of the Indians, some of their myths, in which they accounted for certain natural phenomena, and showed the origin of many of their customs.

Miss Louise Kolb and Mr. George Sawyer were the music committee for the evening.

The program was as follows:

"Slave Song," Teressa Del Piego
"May Day," R. H. Mathew
Miss Bernice Wright, soprano
"A Dream of Paradise," Hamilton Gray
Miss Ewell, contralto
"Happy Days," A. S. Strelvski
Miss Bernice Wright,
Violin obligato, Mr. Fred Kolb
Miss Josephine Wright accompanied.

The next and last meeting of the club for the season will be held May 15. The Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern of Braintree will address the club on that evening. There will be no fifteen-minute paper, that time being given to extra music.

Should Pinch Him.

Freeman Gray, of Milton, according to the police, devised a scheme whereby he could come into possession of a half dozen pairs of Oxford tie shoes. His scheme failed, however, and instead of the shoes for a walk, he took a ride to the police station.

According to the police, Gray telephoned to the Atlas Shoe Co. to send out half dozen pair of shoes to Quincy, for Smith. The shoes did not come, but a dummy bundle did.

Inspector Bradley, and Officer Murray were at the depot waiting for Smith to turn up. Along came Gray, under the influence of liquor. He evidently became suspicious, for walking up to Officer Murray he informed him that a half dozen pair of shoes was coming out for the Granite Shoe store, and that Smith was coming for them, and that they should pinch Smith. The officers took his advice, and pinched Gray. He was in court this morning for drunkenness.

Charles Dudley Lewis.

After several months' illness Charles Dudley Lewis passed away on Thursday. Until recently the family have resided at Framingham, spending the summer at their farm in Sherburne. About two years ago, they built a larger, and more permanent home in Sherburne, which, however, Capt. Lewis was not destined long to enjoy. He leaves a widow, and seven children, who were devoted to him during his long illness. Mrs. Lewis belongs to the well known Clark family, of Framingham, and Mr. Lewis to the Dudley family, of Roxbury. The family have the deepest sympathy of many friends, and relatives in this city. The funeral will be held this afternoon from the First Unitarian church at Framingham.

First Eighty Degree Day.

Today's temperature at noon is a record breaker for the year. The mercury at that time registered 80 degrees, which is the highest point it has reached at noon since Sept. 2, 1904. There were several days in May last year when the mercury climbed to 80 and over at noon, a year ago yesterday it being 83 degrees.

AMONG THE WOMEN'S CLUBS.

The first business meeting of the Quincy Women's club since organization is to be held in the chapel of Bethany church on Tuesday afternoon, May 9th, at three o'clock. Admission will be by membership ticket and it is hoped there will be a large attendance as business of importance will be discussed.

An executive board meeting of the Quincy Women's club is to be held on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock in Bethany chapel.

Next Tuesday afternoon will be home day with the Dorchester Woman's club. Members of the club are to take part assisted by the choral class.

The Natick Woman's club has just closed a decade of the club's existence. It continues prosperous and is doing good work along all lines.

The Hyde Park Current Events club has adjourned until October fourth.

The Lynn Women's club holds its annual meeting on Tuesday afternoon, the ninth.

On Tuesday afternoon May ninth the Riverside club of Saugus holds its annual election.

Monday afternoon after the annual business meeting the officers of the Maplewood New Century club are to entertain the ladies of the club as their guests.

A week of business and annual meetings among the Women's club in and around Boston.

The Friday club met with Mrs. George G. Saville of Saville avenue last week for the annual meeting and elected the following officers: Mrs. A. F. Schenkelberger, president; Mrs. D. E. Wadsworth, secretary; and the president, secretary and Mrs. Z. S. Arnold, Mrs. F. A. Tupper, Mrs. Ernest Cockayne on the executive board. The club will continue next season the study of the Victorian era taking the latter portion, studying the history and literature.

A special meeting of the Quincy Home Science association has been called for Saturday morning at ten o'clock in the parlor of hotel Greenleaf to consider the recommendation of the executive committee that the association be dissolved and its work passed over to the education committee of the Quincy Women's club, with the understanding that the work shall be conducted as far as possible along the same lines. It seems a good move for by consolidation the summer schools and sloyd classes will have a larger backing and without doubt new interest will be taken in the work by members of the club not now acquainted with the good work heretofore accomplished.

The Philergians met in Cochato hall the afternoon of May 2d the president Mrs. O. W. Allen presiding. Invitations having been extended by the club to the Bird club of Braintree, and all scholars and teachers interested in the the study of birds, the hall was well filled. Mrs. Kate Tryon of Attleboro gave a lecture on bird life, illustrated by sketches made by herself. May 16 will be the annual meeting of the club and the last of the season.

The monthly Home Afternoon of the Milton Woman's club was held in the parlors of the First Parish church on Monday, May 1, when Miss Ware, in a delightful, informal talk, gave an account of her visit to Egypt, and the members had an opportunity to examine her interesting collection of photographs. An interesting incident of the afternoon was the presentation to the club by Mrs. Henry Shields of a block and gavel, made of wood from the old Polly Hollingsworth house, which was built in 1712, and was recently torn down to make way for improvements on the Blue Hills Parkway. The afternoon closed with the usual social hour during which tea and light refreshments were served.

NO SALARY.

City Officials Should Not be Paid from Woodword Fund.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

If not too late, is it not possible to stop this controversy in the City Council over the drawing of pay for handling the Woodward school money? It seems hardly a question that admits of discussion. It is an honor to hold any public trust, and a matter of conscience to hold it for the best advantage of the thing in charge.

The Woodward School is not doing its best possible, because it is hampered for necessary funds. Its library shelves are lamentably bare and its teachers under-paid, though the standard required is the highest in the city. The school as now managed is ranked naturally with our other public schools, but is without some of the advantages found in the other schools. The clergymen of the city have had the care of the Woodward school thrust upon them, it is true, but there is a grave moral question as to their right to deligate it to a paid substitute and to one already pledged to harder school problems and who has more work than any superintendent in New England.

But, to be brief, no salary should be paid to any city official handling the Woodward funds. The whole thing was a gift—and a very valuable one—and should be accepted and manipulated as such, willingly and gratefully. The school has already been a power for good, and has undoubtedly a large future. Quincy is proud of having "born and reared" the Adams family, but needs to remember their prime quality has always been far-sightedness, looking ahead, avoiding any penny-wise and pound-foolish methods, and working in every public matter, impersonally, which is always unselfishly.

A $2,500 HOUSE.

Up to Date Dwelling of Unusually Attractive Design.

This house should be erected on a plot not less than fifty feet wide, but can easily be placed on a larger plot to advantage. The design is arranged for two rooms in the attic, which would make it a nine room house. Its cost is estimated at $2,500. There is a stone cellar under the entire house, with cement floor, coal bins, storeroom and covered entrance to the yard.

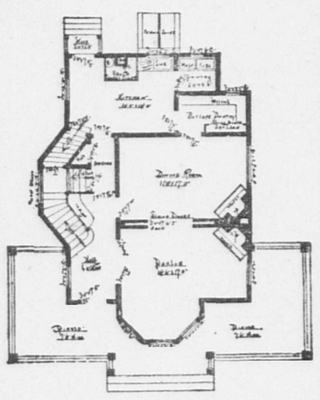

The frame is hemlock lumber, balloon style, sheathed, covered with two ply paper, pine siding and shingles. The roof is of cypress dimension shingles. The main gables and panels on the bay windows are cemented on metal laths. The windows, except those of the cellar, are fitted with outside blinds with rolling slats and hung with wrought iron angle hinges and spring back hooks. The piazza columns are turned yellow pine and have turned caps to match, finished in natural wood.

The floors are of narrow North Carolina flooring boards, blind nailed. The interior walls are of hard patent plaster, white finished. The stairs are yellow pine, with square boxed and paneled newels, rails and balusters of oak. The attic stairs are whitewood, boxed with round hand rails. The first floor trim is stained oak, properly rubbed and finished with two coats of varnish.

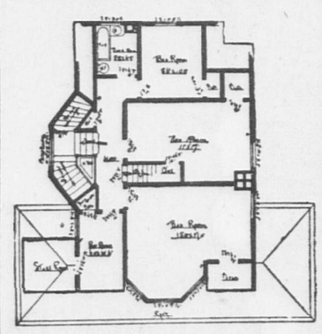

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

The second floor trim is cherry, finished in the same manner. The main stairs are filled and varnished in natural wood. The hardware is dark bronze, with oak knobs, roses and escutcheons. The house is fitted for gas.

The arch between the hall and parlor is oak, with boxed pedestals, turned columns and fancy turned spindles. The sliding doors are hung overhead. The parlor and dining room contain cabinet, quartered oak mantels with large mirrors, tile facings, open fireplaces and bronzed summer pieces.

The pantry has a large dresser, with closets, drawers and shelves placed to suit. The kitchen is provided with a modern portable range, with gas attachment, large boiler, iron enameled sink and stone wash trays with metal rims and iron covers, all polished exposed pipes, brass faucets and fittings. Tubs are placed by themselves in a small separate room.

The bathroom has a solid copper tub with enameled exterior and oak rim, a porcelain front washout water closet with oak seat and a porcelain tank basin with marble slab and sides. The faucets, fittings and exposed work are heavily nickel plated, and the fixtures are properly vented.

The entire house is heated by a hot air furnace in the cellar, with registers placed in the side walls over the base.

Some Furnishing Don'ts.

Don't overload your rooms with furniture or pictures.

Don't imagine that plenitude of furniture means a well furnished house. It does nothing of the sort.

Don't choose elaborately designed curtains, hangings or tablecloths for a room with a floral paper.

Don't waste your money on an accumulation of cheap bric-a-brac, so called. It only helps to gather dust and dirt.

Don't choose plain curtains with a plain carpet and wall paper.

Don't buy a carpet with a big pattern for a little room.

—The new tramp law which was signed by Gov. Douglas last week is confidently expected by the state police to enormously decrease the tramp evil in Massachusetts. Under the law tramps may not be given lodging by the town or city authorities, except in buildings especially provided, whose sanitary conditions have been approved by the state board of health. Besides, the new law says, tramps must perform a certain amount of work in payment for their entertainment. Towns and cities are held responsible for the enforcement of the statute.

FARM AND GARDEN

MARKET CLASSES OF HOGS.

The Bacon Type of Hog Receiving Greater Attention In This Country.

In selling hogs to the local buyer or shipper the farmer is very often at a decided disadvantage because he cannot interpret market reports to the full extent of their meaning and therefore either does not get what his hogs are worth or loses a sale by asking too much for them.

An attempt has been made by the Illinois experiment station to explain how swine are classified and graded on the Chicago and other markets. This attempt has been made with a view to benefiting the average farmer, who seldom visits the market. It is submitted under the title of "Market Classes and Grades of Swine," by William Dietrich, and is on lines similar to the well known classification of cattle by Professor Mumford.

In discussing bacon hogs Mr. Dietrich says that the representative English bacon hog belongs primarily to Great Britain, Denmark and Canada. In recent years this hog has been introduced into the United States and is rapidly establishing for itself a market class. Many hogs are sold on the Chicago and other markets of the United States for bacon purposes, but the greater part of them are not of the ideal bacon type.

This hog must be long in body, deep in side, with comparatively narrow back, narrow and light hams and shoulders and light, muscular neck.

In the countries where hogs of this class were in the past principally produced corn is grown in very limited quantities, and the principal feed for hogs is barley, oats, peas, rye, roots, wheat and its products.

The bacon hog of the United States type differs considerably from the English bacon hog. There is, however, a growing tendency toward the typical bacon type. The indications point to the fact that we are at the "parting of the way" and that in the future we will have a place for the ideal bacon hog as well as for the fat or lard hog.

Corn is at present being used for other purposes, such as the manufacture of cornstarch, whisky and oil. At the same time a ration of all corn, which usually forms the principal part of the feed of the fat or lard hog, is coming to be generally recognized as detrimental to the best development of swine from the breeder's standpoint. Coupled with this there is not so great a demand for fat pork as there formerly was, and shipping and cold storage facilities are much better; consequently more fresh and lean meats are used.

There is a demand on the markets of this country from foreign countries and more largely from our own country for bacon, and, there being few bacon hogs to supply the demand, the trade is supplied from the lighter hogs of the fat or lard hog type. This bacon, however, does not command so high a price on the market as does bacon from typical bacon hogs.

The Oat Crop.

The oat crop is one that requires a great deal of moisture throughout the season, and the best crop is assured by preparing the soil so it will conserve moisture. The reason the old plan of seeding oats in corn stubble fails so frequently is because the ground is stirred shallow and wet early in springtime and when a few weeks of dry weather come it bakes as hard as the road and remains in this condition until harvest. It is not a good plan to be in too big a hurry about sowing oats. When the ground has dried out so it is in good condition to break then start the plow.—Ohio Farmer.

The Celery Seed Bed.

Make the celery seed bed level and fine it well. Then make a drill by pressing down the edge of a half inch board. Sow the seed. Now, instead of the usual method of covering take a sieve and sift over the seed about a quarter inch of soil and press this down with a roller or back of a hoe or shovel. Shade the soil with a mulch of straw evergreen.—Farm Journal.

West, who in a few well chosen words gave an outline of the work of the association and its advantages to the community. Supt. MacDougall, also made a few remarks.

Andrew L. Cram and family of Hall avenue are planning to make their home in Barrowsville and will move their household goods about the tenth of May.

Drinkwater, father of Mrs. Costello. The little one had been ill for several weeks, but had improved so much that Mr. Costello assumed his business interests in Cuba. The message was cabled at once.

News has been received from Framingham of the serious illness of Mrs. Long, widow of the late John Long formerly of Braintree. Lieut. and Mrs. G. G. Mitchell have been summoned from Annapolis.

The many friends of Mrs. Henry L. Dearing will be pleased to learn that she is much improved from a severe attack of acute bronchitis.

The next meeting of the J. P. S. A. will be held May 17th with Mrs. J. Frank Perry, when the annual election of officers will take place.

Minstrel Show.

There was a large attendance at St. Mary's hall last evening at the minstrel show and May dance given under the auspices of Division 5, A. O. H.

Photograph Garter Buckles—Wash Silk Petticoats Are Dainty.

Jewelers say that one of the most salable of their novelties just now is a garter buckle in the shape of a locket which opens and discloses either the picture of one's fiance or some cherished friend or relative. These buckles are favorite bridesmaid gifts at smart spring weddings and in dull Roman gold are very handsome.

Wash silk petticoats are to be worn with dainty summer dresses. A charming model is of white liberty silk trimmed with two graduating flounces of accordion plaiting in which insertions of lace are inset.

Accordion plaited skirt flounces are not possible to launder, and where a skirt is to be "tubbed" they should be avoided.

A sensible as well as pretty way to make a wash silk petticoat is to trim it with a deep gathered flounce of the material edged with a ruffle of three inch val. In the center front of the ruffle is embroidered a spray of cherry blossoms.

Voile in the softest of grays is charming made up over opalescent silk, which is also used as a trimming on the gown, possibly deep flounce and girdle and long narrow strips, which hang in panel effect down the back and resemble sash ends.

Serge messaline is a new material with all the luster of silk and the weave of serge.

The inexpensive petticoat illustrated is of mohair at the top. It is perfectly fitted about the hips and extends to the knees. At this point begins a series of plaited ruffles of silk. A beading insertion threaded with narrow satin ribbon conceals the union of the flounce with the skirt. JUDIC CHOLLET.

STRIKERS LESS VIOLENT

Express Wagons With Armed Guards Do Business With but Little Interruption--President of Teaming Company Beaten

Chicago, May 6.—A crisis in the teamsters' strike is expected to come when State street retail merchants send out 1100 wagons to make deliveries in all parts of the city. As far as possible these wagons will be guarded by deputy sheriffs and in some cases by policemen. It will be impossible for all of the wagons to be guarded by deputy sheriffs.

Sheriff Barrett has 200 deputies in service and says that he thinks this number will be ample for the work outlined for today. If it is not, it is said, he will conclude that the sheriff's force and the police are not able to control the situation, and a request will be made for the state militia.

Governor Deneen has said that he will order out the troops if a request is made by Barrett and on the failure or success of the attempt at retail deliveries today depends the coming of troops. Fifteen wagons were sent out yesterday by the large drygoods and department stores, and all of them made deliveries with little interruption.

Either because of the threatened appearance of the troops or because of the addition to the police force in the shape of deputy sheriffs there was much less rioting and fighting in the down town streets yesterday than on any day this week.

Express wagons, each carrying a guard armed with a rifle or a double-barrelled shotgun, went to and fro between depots and express offices without interruption other than that of an occasional stone thrown from the sidewalk or of some missile hurled from a window. An order issued early in the day by Chief of Police O'Neill directing that all persons should be prevented from following wagons as they went through the streets had much to do with the absence of rioting. While there was less rioting in the down town streets, there were numerous assaults committed in all parts of the city remote from the principal business quarter. In several cases drivers were beaten and their wagons overturned and the goods stolen.

Three coal wagons were attacked in Ohio street by a crowd which pursued them for more than half a mile, raining stones, bricks and bottles on the police officers and the drivers. Policemen charged the crowd repeatedly, but were unable to keep it back. The mob was composed almost entirely of young men and women, the latter taking an active part in the rioting and urging the men to further violence. At the Dearborn street bridge the police made a final charge and dispersed the crowd.

Edward Lashem, president of the Lashem Teaming company, was terribly beaten by union teamsters. Lashem was driving one of his own wagons and was asked to show a union button. Before he could explain that he was a team owner and therefore ineligible as a member of the Teamsters' union, he was pulled from his wagon, knocked down and kicked. Police Lieutenant O'Connor went to Lashem's assistance in time to capture seven of his assailants. Lashem's condition is serious.

Sheriff Barrett expresses the belief that the crisis of the strike is over and its backbone is broken. "I do not believe that conditions will develop in such a manner that troops will be found necessary," said the sheriff. "Not until we see that we cannot cope with the situation will Governor Deneen be called on for aid. We will man every wagon in Chicago with a deputy sheriff in order to preserve peace if such a step is necessary."

An Arbitration Agreement

New York, May 6.—To preclude the possibility of a strike which might tie up the building trades of Brooklyn in the midst of a big building boom, an arbitration agreement affecting every trade connected with, or in any way allied to the building trades, has just been signed by the Employers' league of Brooklyn and the board of delegates of the building trades of Brooklyn and Queens. The agreement provides for the arbitration of every grievance that may arise in the future.

Waiters Will Not Yield

Lynn, Mass., May 6.—A conference between a committee of the striking waiters and the proprietors of one of the largest restaurants in the city did not result in a settlement of the strike. The proprietors were willing to make some concessions, but the strikers insisted that all the demands of the union must be accepted.

Strike of Meriden Bakers

Meriden, Conn., May 6.—Most of the bakers in this city are idle because of a strike of the union journeymen bakers, who refused to work for the alleged reason that the bosses have not signed an overtime contract submitted by the union. Both sides say they will remain firm.

Czar Displeased With Witte

A Question Of Caste

IN the florist's window a bunch of orchids of a rare green gray hue flaunted their imperial beauty in the face of a family of roses of different complexions, white tulips and yellow jonquils. Every head nodded attentively on its stem. It was evident the orchids had something important to impart.

"We've just been bought for Ruth Delorme. She's the only American we would care to have own us," they drawled. "She's the season's beauty, which is the best we can expect in this parvenu country, where there's not a title in sight unless it's borrowed. We will say goodby to you all very soon. No doubt we'll be taken to a dinner and the opera and perhaps look in at a couple of dances. That's the life we are meant for. It's so stupid here, ogled at through the glass by people one couldn't really know."

"Oh, how lovely! And we are so glad for you. But we wonder who will buy us."

The orchids could not imagine for a moment where the little sighing whisper floated from, but after a surprised circular gaze they saw resting against the base of the jade bowl which held them a bunch of wood violets in a goblet.

Offended surprise made them gasp, and, leveling the insolent stare which only the socially secure permit themselves, their petals assumed scornful curves.

"Well, upon my word! So much for your moth eaten reputation for modesty! If this isn't underbred familiarity, what is it? Wild, untrained creatures without a cent.

"Some well meaning, badly groomed clerk will doubtless take you home to his dowd of a wife," the aristocrats continued.

"That will be nice if we can make her happy." And the drooped blue heads nodded wistfully.

"A plebeian ambition rightly suited to your station," said the orchids. "We'll be glad to leave this place," they whispered to an American Beauty rose in a tall cut glass vase. "The society is so mixed! Think of them daring to address us! We're not at all in the same set! Those weeds are not even of the English species or the double sort.

"OH, BUT, I SAY, WHAT'S THIS?"

They're not even distantly connected with the Italian family. We know the Parmas well."

"No; we make no claims at all," the violets replied. "We were plucked this morning on the banks of the Bronx."

"The Bronx! Heavens! It sounds so bourgeois, suggestive of cheap table d'hotes and suburban villas!"

"Oh, we know we're cheap," said the violets, stung to revolt.

"Cheap? Well, rather! Twenty-five cents for how many of you?"

"A hundred."

The orchids laughed.

"And not very particular about the counting, eh? There are only six of us, and we cost $8. Well, here's the clerk coming for us. We're off, thank heaven! Goodby, Miss Bronx."

"Petal proud things, I'm glad they are gone," said one violet, angry dew in its eyes.

"So are we," said the tallest American Beauty in the jar. "Far be it from me to decry family. I'm proud of my own branch, but those orchids talk too much. Thank heaven, we can all get an afternoon nap now."

They were roused by the door opening as a man entered. He was handsome and young, though somewhat haggard, as if from loss of sleep. If his clothes were somewhat shabby they were well cut, and he carried them with easy grace.

"I like his face," said each little violet to the other as they preened and prinked their petals while eying the stranger, who was fingering some loose change in his pocket, a quizzical smile on his lips.

"You florists are a species of highway robber," he laughed to the clerk. "Have you any violets not worth their weight in gold?"

"Not a violet in the place. Every one went before noon. The matinee girls just made a raid on them."

The violets felt their hearts sink.

"I wonder what he calls us—cabbages?" murmured one of the little bunch, still sore from the orchids' taunts.

The young man regarded with a dubious air the flowers heaped about so prodigally.

"Oh, but, I say, what's this?" as he caught sight of the violets that seemed to have deepened in hue in their efforts to be seen.

"Oh, would you want those—that is, we hardly expect to sell them to our patrons. We bought a lot of them as a sort of charity from a little lame girl in Bronxville and should probably have given them away to a footman or other servant of some customer—just give them away as a grocer does a chromo with a pound of tea. If you want them a quarter will pay for the lot."

When the violets saw the coin given and felt themselves lifted from the glass they breathed a sigh of content, and when the clerk, wrapping them in tissue paper, placed them in a pretty box a fragrant breath of excitement escaped them.

"This must be the padded brougham the orchids spoke of to the roses. Think how we were heaped in the corner of a basket this morning! Oh, exclusiveness has its charms!" And they winked contentedly in their soft wrappings.

The crackling of a wood fire—for the spring day was damp—was the next thing the flowers heard as they were lifted out and put in water. At first their eyes were dazed, but after a few moments they absorbed the details of the place.

The big, bare studio looked rather eerie in the approaching dust, and with its half finished canvases, its walls covered with studies in glowing color, it looked more a workroom proper than a home. But it was the home of youthful, ardent and dominating dreams, and as Robert Dorset looked about it in his eyes was a blending of the enthusiasm of genius and the steadfast fixity of purpose that annihilates all obstacles to reach a goal.

"I've always felt I must succeed, even when the impolite and intrusive wolf sat grimly on my door mat," he thought. "And now that Marchmont, the magnate, has just ordered his portrait, I have little to fear."

He walked over to where an unfinished canvas on an easel showed a girl's charming face.

"How different this winter is from last!" he mused. "Then you were my companion at the art classes, my little friend from the country, studying, oh, so faithfully, but painting so badly; this year the protegee of your rich aunt and chronicled in the papers as Miss Delorme, the new beauty. I can understand her ideas when she decided you were worth chaperoning. Her own girls are placed—one the wife of a consumptive lord, the other of a banker close to seventy. Now you are on the auction block, going, going, but not yet gone—not yet, thank heaven!" And the eyes in his pale face had the expression of a soldier in battle. "I've taken Aunt Mary's polite and unmistakable hint that I am to her an unwelcome worshiper at your shrine—'no beggars or artists allowed'—but I may win yet."

He took a letter from his pocket. It showed signs of many readings. Now, with his head thrown back as he lounged in a big chair before the fire's blaze, he read it again:

"This is the last night of the opera, my friend. Why don't you go? I've discovered the ethics of Aunt Mary's campaign, and I know why you come no more. In fact, my visitors are now narrowed exclusively to those who know the merry clip of the scissors as the coupons fall. If I'm right, let's have our vengeance. Go to the old place in the gallery tonight, where I've so often sat with you and Ted and Mabel and will again. We can make eye notes about Melba, with the horseshoe sweeping between us. What fun to cheat Aunt Mary! She thinks, foolish woman, I'm easy to mold because I'm little; but, although I've made no fuss over her treatment of my old friends, I've my own way of getting my own way. I've given aunt her fling with me this winter to please mother, so for the nonce I'm pleasing myself. RUTH.

"Does this mean anything more than chumship? I'll find out tonight."

He took pen and paper and, having written and destroyed several sheets, finally appeared fairly satisfied with one, which he kissed before folding it, his eyes heavy with love.

He put the note, with the flowers, back in the box, while the violets, scenting a romance, fluttered excitedly as they were taken from the studio.

On a table in a pretty boudoir on Madison square a cluster of orchids in an eastern vase and a bunch of wood violets in a small jug waited the coming of Ruth Delorme.

"We beg your pardon," drawled the orchids after a long stare, "but did you come from Brighton's? Are we mistaken, or did we see you there today? It's so hard to tell exactly; you lack individuality, you know."

Rustling with excitement at the meeting, the violets nodded their fragrant heads.

"The same," they answered bravely.

"Well, of all the luck!" broke in the winged aristocrats. "But you'll be sure to make some break and queer yourselves. That's one comfort."

Just then Ruth entered.

She was so daintily lovely in her gown of white, filmy lace. The violets were sure they saw an angel at last. Her eyes were just like themselves, they thought, or as they might look if a star lurked in the heart of each.

In the gloom of the firelit room she did not see the little blue worshipers and carelessly picked up the small envelope beside the orchids.

"A small thing to secrete such weighty, apoplectic adoration," she thought, with a mutinous look, and rapidly glanced over the lines, mumbling them half angrily:

"My Dear Miss Delorme—Your aunt—um—um—given the privilege of speaking to you tonight. You know—um—um—I would say. Will be there at 8. You will be alone—um—um—before we leave—opera. Hope you will wear the flowers—um—um—
"JAMES ARMSTRONG.

"Well, Jeemes," she mocked, "come an you will. No doubt you will have fortified your usual brilliance with an extra glass for the occasion. Your burgundy blush will present the deeper hue of the plum when you get my answer. Ugh! Why can't they let me alone?"

The maid entered, bringing Ruth's carriage shoes, and before putting them on she turned on the electric light, which revealed to Ruth the violets in the shadow of the orchids' vase.

"HE DARED DO IT! THE DARLING—OH, THE DARLING!"

"Where did these come from, Ann?" she asked.

"Oh, Miss Ruth, they came while you were at dinner, not long after the orchids. I hope you'll excuse me. I quite forgot them after putting them in water."

"Where is the card that came with them?" the girl asked more imperiously than she had ever before spoken.

"Why, there was a note. Oh, here it is on the floor."

At sight of the writing Ruth's face grew radiant. She dismissed the maid, and, with lips trembling slightly and fingers not quite steady, she broke the seal and read:

"Ruth, you know all I would say to you if I dared. The words 'I love you' and 'Will you marry me?' so poorly express all I feel, but perhaps your own heart can put the witchery upon them. Tonight I will be in the old place in the gallery and look for my answer. If you wear these little flowers it will tell me that I have not been a mad, rash dreamer and that you love me. If you do not—well, God bless you, anyway—but God help me.
"ROBERT."

Ruth gave a little shiver of delight as she raised the note to her lips.

"He dared do it! The darling—oh, the darling!" she whispered as she caught the violets to her heart.

"Will I marry him? Ah, will I not? And now, my dear aunt, trot out all the eligibles you wish. I'll scan them with comfortable composure. Bob loves me—loves me—loves me!"

Her fingers trembled as she pinned the flowers securely upon her breast, and the orchids looked at them with a furious sneer, scarcely believing their eyes.

"It's rank socialism, putting you out of your place like that," they said spitefully.

"You'd like my place, I dare say," crowed a violet from its vantage point.

"What could one expect from a mere ex-art student?" they retorted. "She's not like us 'classy' people. What does she mean to do with us, I wonder?"

As if in answer Ruth called in the maid.

"Tell William to take these orchids to my little sick girl on East Seventeenth street, near the river; he knows the place. Say I'll be in to see her tomorrow. They will cheer her tonight in that awful tenement."

The clock struck 8, and a few minutes later Mr. Armstrong was announced.

"Goodby!" cooed the violets as Ruth was leaving the room. "So sorry you're going to miss the opera. You'll be gone before we get back or we'd tell you all about it."

"All about what?" snapped the orchids.

"Why, the music, of course."

"That shows what country things you are. No one listens to the music. It's bad form. Besides"—

But the violets lost the rest of the sneer as they went down on Ruth's white bosom to witness the discomfiture of the man of millions with the bibulous flush.

The orchids, left alone, learned the lesson of humility hard.

"We'd rather be dead than lose caste!" they groaned. "A tenement house! Horrors!"

Had they been able they would have given a human shriek when the footman, after tossing one to Ann, flung the rest into a box.

In the morning as they looked at the sick child, felt her hot fingers, saw the expanse of factory roofs and clothes-lines beyond the windows, they grew very blue. As the days went by they grew bluer and bluer.

But the little girl laughed as the stems were clipped every morning and they were put in fresh water.

"Ain't they changed a pretty color, mother?" she said. "They look almost like violets now."

NOTES OF THE RAILWAYS

ROOFLESS OBSERVATION CARS.

Denver and Rio Grande's Scheme to Let Passengers See Lofty Scenery. Barnum's Old Sleeping Car Still on the Rails—Wireless Telegraphy on Moving Trains—Smoking Customs on Mexican Railroads.

The Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific railroad has been subjecting its enginemen to a series of "surprise" signal tests, with the purpose of determining and improving the standard of efficiency and safety in train operation on the line, says the Railway Age. The only warning which the engineers had was contained in a general circular, sent out prior to the tests, urging all employees not to rely on "customary practice" in case of doubt. The surprise tests not only included the use of the semaphore signals, but whistle signals of all sorts, placing of rear end flagmen, torpedo tests, burning fuse tests and safety signals of every kind.

Since the tests were inaugurated the discipline of the enginemen has improved, and General Manager W. A. Garrett is much gratified with the results. The Queen and Crescent railroad has appointed a train rule examiner for each division, whose duty it is to subject trainmen who fall in signal tests to a rigid examination on their knowledge of the rules. Hereafter the words "Safety Before Speed" are to be stenciled in bright letters in the cab of every locomotive where the engineer will constantly see them.

The Denver and Rio Grande Railroad company is now building a number of open top observation cars, to be attached during the summer months to daylight trains running through the Royal Gorge, Grand Canyon of the Arkansas, Canyon of the Grand River and the Black Canyon of the Gunnison. These cars have a seating capacity for seventy-two persons, low sides, but no tops, being entirely open, thus giving a free and unobstructed view of the scenery of the Rocky mountains. These cars will be completed and placed in service not later than June 1 of the present year.

The caboose on the freight which passes Tina, Mo., each day is perhaps the oldest car in use in Missouri, says the Tina (Mo.) Herald. About thirty years ago it was a passenger coach; but, being torn up in a wreck, it was purchased by P. T. Barnum, the great showman, who had it repaired and used it as a sleeping car on his show train. After the death of Mr. Barnum the car was purchased by the Burlington and was put on the branch road which runs from Carrollton to Laclede. Its appearance shows that it is very old. It is perhaps the oldest and has the most remarkable history of any car in Missouri.

Among the interesting facts about the new Pennsylvania railway tunnel and terminal in New York are these, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger: Total cost, $60,000,000, in addition to the $10,000,000 for the station site, on which were about 300 dwellings; daily train capacity 900; passenger accommodation daily, 200,000; men at work, about 10,000; time required for trip under the Hudson, two minutes. In projecting this enterprise the engineers believe they have solved all the problems which baffled the most daring engineers of twenty-three years ago.

In Mexico the railroad authorities put on Pullman cars for the fastidious who can afford to pay the charges and give no attention to the conditions in the common coaches, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. An official of the Rock Island system says that on Mexican lines "men, women and even children smoke in every part and section of the train except the Pullmans. The men mostly smoke cigars, and the women and children of all ages inhale cigarettes." The trainmen take it as a matter of course, although the tobacco smoke in every car would choke an American.

Experiments at Purdue university, Indiana, have in view the use of wireless telegraphy for running trains. The idea is to enable a train dispatcher to communicate directly with the locomotive engineer at any time. Many of the stops of a train are to enable the engineer to get orders through the station agent, and accidents have resulted from a failure to stop for such orders.

Railway carriages transformed into ambulance compartments for the use of passengers who are taken ill have been provided on the Prussian railways for express routes.

Tree Culture In Western Kansas.

More than 10,000 trees will make glad the rich tree barren plains of Sherman county in Kansas this year, says the Goodland News. These will be the 1905 addition to the thousands that already dot the fields and surround the homes of our people. Tree culture in western Kansas has passed the experimental stage, and all doubt as to its practicability has passed away. People now buy trees not with the fear that it is a mere gamble, but from the standpoint of a gilt edged investment. They see that such improvements add not only to the value of their farms, but to the beauty and comfort of their homes.

WITH FRUIT FLAVOR

Eat Plenty of Ice Cream in Warm Weather.

PHYSICIANS RELY ON IT TO REFRESH AND NOURISH.

Nothing Better for Children in Moderation

IF ONLY NATURAL FLAVORING IS USED.

If there ever was any prejudice against ice cream in the minds of physicians it has entirely disappeared. The prejudice has been not against the creamy, palatable, cooling mixture of such nutritious ingredients as eggs, sugar, cornstarch and cream, but against the harmful unscrupulous flavoring extracts that imitated the natural fruits by means of chemicals.

None of these doubtful or harmful extracts need ever be used. Chefs and cooking school teachers some time ago refused to have their labor spoiled by the addition of rank, strong, sickening flavors. Foss' Pure Extracts was the result of this determined agitation for a pure, honest extract that should simply be the natural fruit in liquid form.

Because Foss' Extracts are the natural fruits in liquid form, cakes, pies, puddings, and ices always come up to your expectations. When other Vanilla Extracts besides Foss' are used, the cook is apt to keep on increasing the amount of the flavoring to secure the proper strength. In this way the delicious vanilla flavor is destroyed, and a rank, strong taste imparted to puddings, pies, cakes and what not.

Foss' Vanilla is especially recommended. No other flavoring shows to better advantage in ice cream. The manufacture of vanilla extract is a business in itself, demanding long acquaintance with the selection of the bean and the best extractive processes. Unscrupulous extract manufacturers adulterate their goods with Tonka Bean, which does not cost one twentieth as much as the Vanilla. It imparts a rank, strong sickening flavor resembling the odor of sweet grass. Tonka Bean is erroneoueously supposed by many people to be Vanilla Bean. It takes one year to make Foss' Vanilla and the resulting product is distinctly superior to any known vanilla extract in purity strength and desirable flavor. This assertion is certified to by the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanics' Association, who awarded over all competitors the Gold Medal issued in 1892 to Foss' Pure Flavoring Extracts. Also by the Boston Cooking School, large confectioners and Hotels, North, East, South and West, and the public at large.

Mortgagee's Sale.

BY Virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage-deed given by Franklin Hardwick to the Quincy Savings Bank, dated October 9, 1896, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 770, page 476, for breach of the condition contained in said mortgage-deed, and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction on the third lot hereinafter described, on MONDAY, May twenty-ninth, 1905, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, all and singular the premises described in said mortgage-deed namely:

Mr. A. Edwin Clattenburg has accepted an invitation to become the assistant rector of the parish of St. Chrysostom's church. He is completing his studies in the Theological seminary at Alexandria, Va., the seminary from which Bishop Brooks was graduated. He will be ordained in June, and will begin his work the first of July. He will live in the parish and devote his entire time to its work.

Mikado to Aid Y. M. C. A.

Those who heard the recent talk at the Y. M. C. A. on the progress of Association work in Japan in face of opposition, will note with pleasure that the Emperor has just notified Mr. Griscom, the American minister to Japan, of his intention to donate $5,000 to the Japanese army branch of the Young Men's Christian Association. At the outbreak of the war the Association opened branches at the principal bases of operations in Manchuria, following the armies afield, and opened recreation and reading tents for the benefit and comfort of the soldiers. Three American secretaries assisting in the field work made the movement so successful as to win the commendation of the army commanders and gain the recognition and assistance of the emperor.

PARK THEATRE.

Should the Indian marry the girl? This question is every where debated in Boston. One hears it in the clubs, the restaurants, the drawing-rooms, on the street cars, in fact, wherever people congregate. It has been inspired by the great college play "Strongheart" in which Robert Edeson is now appearing at the Park Theatre. Rarely has a play started as great a discussion among Boston theatregoers. Since the first week of its tenancy at the Park Theatre where it is now in its seventh week with an undiminished record of large attendance, "Strongheart" has been the most talked-of play in town. The novelty of its second act showing the training quarters of the Columbia eleven between the halves of the season's biggest game furnishes in itself enough sensation for continual comment. Mr. Edeson's characterization of the educated red man is undoubtedly the greatest of his career. Playgoers should not miss the opportunity to witness this popular actor at his best. Mr. Edeson's manager, Henry B. Harris, has arranged another dramatic delight for patrons of the Park Theatre for on the afternoons of May 18 and Friday, May 19, he will present Mrs. Sarah Cowell LeMoyne, a conspicuous favorite in Boston, in Robert Browning's tragedy "A Blot in the 'Scutcheon." Mrs. LeMoyne who is universally regarded as the foremost exponent of Browning's works, won several seasons ago a distinctive triumph in this city in the presentation of Browning's "In a Balcony."

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The vaudeville programme announced from Keith's Boston theatre for the week of May 8 is unquestionably one of the strongest of the season. The leading entertainer on the bill will be Cissie Loftus, who will present a series of imitations of stage celebrities, for which she is noted, including one of Albert Chevalier, who lately was seen at this popular amusement resort. Included in the surrounding bill are Eva Williams and Jac Tucker, two of the most original and popular comedians in the varieties. The Empire City quartet, one of the greatest comedy singing organizations in the varieties. Eddie Girard and Jessie Gardiner, in the exceedingly funny comedy sketch, "Dooley and the Diamond." Avon Saxon, a talented baritone soloist. Carleton Macy and Edna Hall in a bright little playlet, called—"A Timely Awakening," and Roy Alton and Lillian Thelma, pleasing vocalists, in operatic selections.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The Castle Square theatre will have as its attraction next week Sunderman's great drama "Magda," a play that has, in recent years, been seen with such artists as Mme. Modjeska, Mrs. Fiske, Mme. Bernhardt, Mme. Duse and Mrs. Patrick Campbell in the title part. For this production the Castle Square management has made a special engagement with Miss Mary Lawton a young actress who recently created a sensation in New York dramatic circles by her presentation of the familiar heroine of Sunderman's play. Miss Lawton is described as a tall, queenly looking, young woman whose powerful, clean cut authoritative handling of the great scenes of the play showed the possession of rare natural dramatic gifts, a temperament exactly suited to stage triumphs, and skill and intelligence gained by well directed studies.

BCAUSE IT'S GOOD TO EAT.

A Hancock street grocer said yesterday that the new food, Apitezo, has made the speediest run to a popular success ever known. The "ads" with the Apitezo Knight and his "Get Rosy" injunction have been running only 10 days; yet the crisp biscuits are selling like hot cakes.

"Tell you why it is," said a customer to the grocer; "it's because here at last is a breakfast food that is good to eat. It has not made me 'Get Rosy' yet, but it has made me enjoy my breakfast more than I have for years."

OVER $1,000.

Netted at the Colonial Fair-Fete.

Pleasing Patriotic Entertainment—Autos a Feature.

The three days fair-fete at the Y. M. C. A. came to a successful end Saturday night. It was most successful in every way. In point of attendance and financially, and great credit is due to Mrs. E. W. Sheppard and the large corps of ladies who assisted.

While at this time it is impossible to tell just how much was netted it can safely be said that it will be over $1000.

Aside from affording an opportunity to help along a worthy cause it was an excellent opportunity to inspect the new building.

Many had but a vague idea of the arrangement of the interior of the building, or how well it was adapted to the needs of Association work, and it was a revelation to see what an opportunity there was and how well the Association is fitted to do its grand work for young men.

Saturday afternoon was known as "Automobile day," the chief feature being automobile rides about the city. Several gentlemen offered the use of their cars for this purpose and during the afternoon hundreds of ladies and children enjoyed the experience of an automobile ride, novel to many of them.

As fast as a car returned and deposited its freight another party was taken aboard and they were off again.

The cars started from in front of the Association building and the route was down Washington street through Elm to Miller Stile road, Bigelow and Chestnut streets, City Square, around the Stone church and Washington street to the starting point.

It was great sport and many there were who enjoyed their first experience at automobiling.

Aside from those who participated in this sport, there was a large attendance of ladies who took great delight in admiring the many pretty as well as useful articles displayed at the several booths.

It was not until evening however, that the great crush came. Then the rooms were full, and there was a perfect crush all the evening. The entertainment was in charge of Mrs. F. J. Moore and was unique as well as instructive and entertaining.

It was called patriotic night, and consisted of a description of some of the well known popular and patriotic airs with the accompanying song.

The stage setting for the evening was a quaint old fashioned one, representing a room of one hundred years ago.

Mrs. D. E. Wadsworth was the historian, and she told of the origin of the song, the author and how it had come down through a century of years to the present time. First there came "Home, Home, Sweet, Sweet, Home," one of those songs that will ever live as long as music continues to be heard. Mrs. N. S. Hunting sang the song which was beautifully rendered.

"Hail Columbia" followed, and was sung by Mrs. F. A. Page. Then came that soul stirring tune, "Yankee Doodle came to town a riding on a pony." This was rendered by Arthur Peverley.

Mrs. J. F. Hunt also gave an instrumental village dance.

An attempt was then made with some success to auction off the articles remaining unsold. Theophilus King was the auctioneer, and several good sales were made.

All things come to an end sometime, and so did the fair-fete, and when at last the ladies who had worked so hard for its success left for home they were thoroughly tired out but happy in the thought of having done their allotted part and of having done it well.

SQUANTUM FIRE.

Barn Destroyed, But House Near by was Saved.

Alarm from box 68 at 5.22 P.M. Saturday sent the department on a long run to Squantum. A telephone message from that place said that a large barn was burning fiercely, and that there was great danger of the house adjoining also taking fire. The Atlantic apparatus was the first to arrive on the scene, and was soon followed by the Wollaston and Central station apparatus.

The fire proved to be the large stable of Timothy Callahan, superintendent at Moon Island, at Squantum hill. The fire had made great headway when discovered and there was little that could be done toward subduing the flames until the apparatus arrived. Frank L. Bowen of the Titus farm, who rang in the alarm, did praiseworthy work with a garden hose.

The barn was practically destroyed when the Atlantic apparatus arrived, but the firemen were able to prevent the house from burning. Had the house gone, the house and barn on the Richards estate would probably have been burned also.

There were a quantity of farming tools in the building, which were also destroyed. The loss is estimated at $1500. The fire is supposed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion.

Brotherhood Service.

Old anthems, written one hundred or more years ago, were sung at the Bethany Church Brotherhood service on Sunday evening, and were enjoyed. Mr. A. J. Sidelinger of Weymouth was the director, and the church chorus was enlarged for the occasion, so that there was volume and spirit, so essential in the old hymns.

Mrs. E. C. Page sang as a solo, "Sancta Maria." The prelude, offertory and postlude on the organ by Frederick H. Johnson, A.B., were also features.

PRESIDENT SIDELINGER.

Mr. V. E. Miller, the vice-president, led in the responsive readings, W. F. Sidelinger, the president, read the scriptures, and Rev. E. W. Hardy offered prayer.

The address was by Mr. F. F. Davidson of Newton, who is interested in a Boston mission. He took his text from John 2:15. He maintained that christianity was necessary to perfect success. That he who covers his sins shall not prosper. Men can do an honest business and be Bible christians. First a thorough conversion was necessary; then a careful study of the word of God; there was nothing like the precious word of God. Learn to pray. Be what God wants you to be, and your life will be what it should be.

The decorations included a pretty banner on the wall back of the platform—"Because I live, ye shall live also."

Wanted a Ride.

There was quite a funny smashup in City Square this morning, and while the carriage was badly smashed, no one was injured. The combination was an open democrat wagon in which was a woman and child. Tied on to the back of the wagon was a cow.

While the team stopped a few minutes in front of the old court room building, the cow became uneasy and climbed into the back of the wagon. She then became tangled in the wheels. The next thing that happeded was the turning of the wagon upside down. The woman was thrown but uninjured. Someone caught the child and kept her from being injured. The horse, one of the farm variety, never moved a peg; the damage was therefore entirely to the wagon.

The young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Elwell is visiting friends in this city. The Elwell family, who have lived in the West for some time, will make their future home in Gloucester.

ASSUMPTIONS

Of the Minority of School Committee

Not Warranted Says Dr. Record.

Believes the Majority Stands for True Economy.

Mr. Editor:

The minority of the School committee in its report to the Building Committee of the City Council, after having described the excellence of the two plans which the minority approved, etc., which the majority rejected, makes the following statement:—"If either of these plans (meaning the ones they favored) can be executed for from $75,000 to $80,000, one of them should be adopted."

The weight of the whole report depends upon the correctness of this supposition. That these figures can be even approximately correct seems impossible.

The High school building, as it stands today, covers less than 8,000 square feet. Either of the plans recommended by the minority proposes the addition of not less than 10,500 square feet and one 11,000 square feet.

The old building, exclusive of the architect's fee, cost $62,000. As the expense of construction has increased 15 per cent. to 25 per cent., it would, at the present time, cost to put up a building like the old, dangerously, near to, if not quite, $75,000.

Assuming that it costs but 15 per cent. more to build now than formerly, and that the proposed addition is but one and one-fourth times as large as our High school building (all of which is well within the actual facts), the proposed addition would cost $89,125. When we add to this the expense of tearing out and remodeling, the installing of heating plant, plumbing, and ventilation for the whole building; and consider also the fact that 15 per cent. is much too small a per cent. to add, and that the additions, by whichever plan construeted, are considerably more than one and one-fourth times the size of the old building, it would appear evident that the expense of the completed building could not be less than $100,000, and probably considerably more.

The minority concluded its communication with this statement: "Therefore, taking cognizance of the pressing demands for school accommodation (in various sections of the city,) we cannot find any reason for an expense more than the two plans above mentioned call for, and we are of the decided opinion that it should be a completed building."

Here again is the covert assumption of a fact, in regard to the comparative cost of the additions approved by the School Committee and the additions recommended by the minority of the School Committee, which is not admitted or proven.

As the plans approved by the School Committee call for about the same number of square feet as the two which are recommended by the minority, and as all must be of material and finish to correspond with the old building, it is difficult to see where there can necessarily be any very material difference in outlay. And yet, if one believed all that is said, he would be led to conclude that there is difference enough to almost bankrupt the city.

In the interest of economy, and, also, that there may be money saved with which to increase school accommodations in various parts of the city, the minority recommended the erection of a complete building for 1000 scholars, when there are only 650, and by the most extravagant estimates will not be 1000 scholars under eight and very likely ten or fifteen years.

The majority, also in the interest of economy (it is believed with better reason), that there may be money left with which to build a school house at Atlantic, recommends the addition at first of a north wing, covering some five or six thousand square feet, of sufficient capacity to take care of the School for several years to come; the installing of a heating plant ample for the building when completed; also plumbing for the completed building; a gymnasium; and the leaving of the work in the best possible shape for completion in the future when the city shall have scholars enough to warrant it.

Which is the greater economy and which the safer plan would seem plain.

That no other member of the School Committee may be held responsible for this letter, I sign myself

Most respectfully,
W. Record.

The Merrymounts opened the season by defeating the Boston Y. M. C. U. team at Merrymount Park on Saturday, 23 to 7.

The home team outclassed the visitors and the game was a runaway from the start.

For the visitors Hunter and Young did the best work.

Patient Has Recovered.

A red flag denoting the presence of smallpox was placed on the residence of Edward L. Bean on Turner street, on Saturday afternoon. This morning an officer was placed on duty at the house to keep all persons from entering or leaving the house until it has been fumigated.

The Board of Health has been criticised somewhat in this case, as people have been permitted to enter and leave the house. The Board of Health, however, feel that they should not be censured. There have been rumors about Mr. Bean for several days, but it was not until Saturday that the case was pronounced smallpox.

Saturday morning Dr. Morse, the State expert, visited Mr. Bean and pronounced it a case of smallpox. The Board of Health were then notified and a red flag immediately put up.

Dr. Morse said that the case was a mild one, and that the patient had practically recovered.

Drift of Opinion.

☞High collars have ruined many a young man's chances for promotion. When style prevents you from getting right down to hard work, quit the style. Perspiration and choker collars don't go well together.—Star Monthly.

☞Fitchburg is entitled to some claims to the honor of being a model city. Its citizens have just bought 11,000 square feet of land and presented it to the city for the purpose of enlarging the post office site. In most cities they would have bought the land and then charged the city double what they paid for it.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞The primitive methods of food supply are recalled by the statement in regard to an old man born in Boston 85 years ago. When he was 16 years old he drove a flock of 1,000 sheep from Brighton to Quincy. Those were the days before the invention of the abattoirs, and every town had one or more butchers who depended on drovers to get their "critters" from Brighton to the slaughter houses. The days of the drovers have gone by, and the meat trust fattens on the appetites of the people. If the man who drove the sheep to Quincy could tell us what the price of mutton was in 1836 we might make a comparison between the cost of meat in the good old times and what we have to pay to-day.—Lynn Item.

☞Soon after the battle of Manila, the birthplace of Admiral Dewey in Vermont was valued at ten thousand dollars. The other day it was sold under a mortgage foreclosure for twenty-five hundred dollars. There is often a difference between a valuation and a value, as appears in this case. This valuation of the Dewey birthplace was only one of the queer exhibitions of the emotional hysterics in which this country indulged over a gentleman who really deserved better treatment, and the fact that an auction sale has knocked the stuffing out of it is not an indication that the nation has forgotten his services, but that it has recovered from an attack of temporary insanity. Admiral Dewey has the honor of his fellow citizens in a marked degree, but that honor is more sensible than to pay ten thousand dollars for a house and lot that are not worth more than twenty-five hundred.—New Bedford Standard.

☞It would take a psychologist to explain why all the world shudders at the blotting out of St. Pierre or the drowning out of a Johnstown—and gladly puts its hand in its purse in order to aid the survivors, while today it regards the far greater loss of life in Manchuria with comparative equanimity—the excuse for a few banal remarks. Let natural forces but triumph over and destroy a few thousand human beings, and everybody groans. But if your supposedly civilized nations set their hundreds of thousands to smashing of skulls, blowing each other to pieces, and wholesale maiming, we merely speculate as to whether the losses are proportionately greater than in other battles, or whether this is the largest slaughter of men on record, and even bet on the exact date when Harbin is likely to fall. Why this distinction when it comes to the taking of human life en masse?—New York Evening Post.

FIRE STILL RAGING

Sweeps Large Section In Southeastern Masaachusetts

ROCKYNOOK IS IN DANGER

About Fifty Square Miles Already Burned Over--Belief That Flames Can Be Extinguished Only by Heavy Rain

Plymouth, Mass., May 8.—The forest fire which started on Friday near Darby station, on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, and which has twice been believed to be under control, burst out afresh yesterday and, propelled by a strong southwest wird, swept onward toward the little settlement of Rockynook, in the town of Kingston. The settlement was saved from destruction last night by a sudden shift of the wind from the southwest to the northeast. Should the wind again shift to the southwest it is believed that Rockynook will be wiped out.

The breast of the fire is 10 miles in extent, and probably 50 square miles has been burned over. Practically all the residents of Kingston and Plympton have turned out to fight the flames and a large force has been brought to the scene by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company. Immense tracts of white pine and birch have been destroyed and the loss will be very heavy.

The fire is said to be the worst that has ever scourged this section of Massachusetts. Dense walls of smoke have covered all the towns in the vicinity and at times the odor from the burning forests is so strong as to be almost choking.

Late Saturday night it was believed that the fire was under control. The wind had died down, there was a large party of fire-fighters along the fire line, the flames had subsided and the smoking trees and smouldering stumps gave but little evidence of the fierceness and extent of the fire. The fire wardens were of the opinion at that time that they would be able to cope successfully with any fresh outbreak that might occur when the wind freshened.

Those who were fighting the flames worked at a great disadvantage. They had no water supply to fall back upon, it was not considered prudent to use "back fires" to any extent and the burned area was characterized by soil so rocky as to make it almost impossible to fight the flames with sand. When the blaze was temporarily checked Saturday night it had reached a sandy country and the fire-fighters believed that they would be able to control it yesterday.

The freshening southwest wind, however, fanned the smouldering stumps into flames and as the wind increased in force the tongues of flame leaped from branch to branch of the tinder-dry trees, and in a short time the forest became a roaring sea of fire.

The vanguard of the flames halted Saturday night near Little Smelt pond, some 10 miles from where the fire started on Friday. Sunday, with a constantly expanding front, the fire was driven in a northeasterly direction for three or four miles in the direction of Rockynook, a small settlement midway between Kingston and North Plymouth. Between Little Smelt pond and Rockynook the country is elevated and there are no ponds or swamps and only one small stream to present any obstacle in the path of the advancing flames.

This section of the country is covered with a virgin growth of white pine and beech trees. Some of these trees are of great size, their straight trunks, two feet in diameter near the ground, tapering and towering high in the air. This is the most valuable timber land in Plymouth county, and the loss will be great.

It is believed that nothing but a heavy rain will extinguish the fire. The fire-fighters may be able to check its progress, but it is believed that so long as the dry weather continues the fire will break out afresh each morning and die down again at night.

Last night four different fires could be seen from the electric car line running from this town to Middleboro. The sky was lighted up for miles and the reflection of the flames attracted large crowds of sightseers from this town.

Few persons in Rockynook retired last night, all desiring to be prepared to fight to save their homes in the event of an adverse change in the wind.

Peabody Has Three Fires

Peabody, Mass., May 8.—Several fires of wood and pastureland were burned over by three fires in different parts of the town. The fire that caused the most alarm broke out in the woods back of the poor farm. The firemen had a hard time in checking the flames, which advanced towards the pauper institution, but last night the fire was brought under control. Another fire burned back of Lake Shore park, near the Lynn line. Apparatus from this town and Lynn was sent to the scene and the flames were checked. The third fire was in pastureland.

Brookline Has a Big Fire

Brookline, Mass., May 8.—The Brookline and Newton fire departments were called out last night to fight a forest fire near the boundary line of this town and Newton. Before it had been controlled the fire had burned over about 16 acres of heavy pine woods.

NIP IT IN THE BUD.

First Appearance of Dandruff a Forerunner of Future Baldness.

That such is the case has been conclusively proven by scientific research. Prof. Unna, the noted European skin specialist, declares that dandruff is the burrowed-up cuticle of the scalp, caused by parasites destroying the vitality in the hair bulb. The hair becomes lifeless, and, in time, falls out. This can be prevented.

Newbro's Herpicide kills this dandruff germ, and restores the hair to its natural softness and abundancy.

Herpicide is now used by thousands of people—all satisfied that it is the most wonderful hair preparation on the market to-day.

STEAMER IS SUNK

ONE PASSENGER IS LOST

Was Half Way Down a Ladder When She Fell Into Sea--Vessels Collided In a Fog Near Pollock Rip Shoals Lightship

Vineyard Haven, Mass., May 8.—The Joy line steamer Aransas of the Boston-New York service, Captain Rood, was sunk in collision with the barge Glendower 1½ miles southeast of the Pollock Rip shoals lightship at 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

Only one life was lost, that of Mamie Kelley, aged about 25 years and address unknown. She was a passenger from New York for Boston. The other passengers, of whom there were 36 with the crew, were brought here by the tug patience and landed at midnight last night.

The collision was due to fog. There was no wind stirring. The Glendower, one of a tow of three barges, struck the Aransas nearly amidships on the starboard side, and the steamer went down 15 minutes later.

Following the crash, the passengers were quickly awakened, and the boats manned, but while all on board were going over the side the tug came alongside and took all off, with the exception of Miss Kelley. Mate Crocker said that he helped Miss Kelley over the side, and when she was half way down the ladder she fell into the water.

Shortly after 1:30 the Aransas ran into the thick fog. All the passengers were in bed. Captain Rood was on watch, assisted by First Officer Cotter. The fog horn was sounded at intervals of half a minute. The lights were shining, but had little effect.

Suddenly there came a tremendous shock and the coal barge crashed into the steamer amidships, on the starboard side.

Immediately after being struck the steamer began to sink. Captain Rood realized the danger. The steward was summoned and in less than three minutes all of the passengers were on deck. Few were able to get any clothes, except what they wore when they retired.

Women screamed and even brave men shook in fear. Life preservers were immediately rushed out. By this time the boat had settled to the main deck.

There were four women passengers, one of whom had a baby. In the panic the men rushed in a mad scramble for the ladders. First Officer Cotter drew a revolver and said he would shoot the first man who tried to get ahead of the women.

The Aransas had four lifeboats. In the collision one of these boats was shattered to kindling wood. Captain Rood found himself in a serious predicament. Nominally there was room for but 18 men in a boat, but he succeeded in getting 26 people in his boat.

When the women were about to go down the ladder Miss Kelly fell into the water and was lost to sight.

The Glendower was in tow of the Reading railroad tug bound east from Philadelphia. Sixty-five persons have been landed here.

The Aransas was an ocean passenger steamer, running between New York and Boston. She was of 1156 gross and 678 net tonnage. Her length was 241 feet, breadth 35.5 and depth 16 feet. She carried a crew of 36 men. She was built at Wilmington, Del.

The barge Glendower was a converted schooner of 855 tons gross and 822 tons net; 192 feet long, 34 feet broad and 16 feet deep. She was built at Noank, Conn., in 1894. She carried a crew of three men and was bound from Philadelphia, loaded with coal for an eastern port.

French Violation of Neutrality

London, May 8.—The Times, in the course of a strong editorial warning to France of the extreme danger and gravity of the situation in the far east, and appealing to that government not to treat the Japanese protests lightheartedly, says it has reason to believe that Foreign Secretary Lansdowne has spoken very strongly to the French government on the breaches of neutrality permitted to the Russian Pacific squadron.

The Elusive Pat Crowe

Omaha, May 8.—Chief of Police Donahue has personally offered a reward of $200 for the capture of Pat Crowe, wanted on a charge of highway robbery in connection with the Cudahy kidnapping. Although the hunt for Crowe has been kept up continuously since Saturday morning, when Crowe called at an Omaha newspaper office, no clue to his whereabouts has been obtained.

Gloucester Fisherman Ashore

Canso, N. S., May 8.—The Gloucester fishing schooner Judique, Captain Goodwin, is ashore on the south end of Burying island. The vessel is among the rocks and her position is dangerous. She is making considerable water. While leaving the harbor the schooner missstayed and ran ashore.

THIRD WEEK BEGUN

Chicago Employing Teamsters Have an Advantage

STRIKERS HANDICAPPED

Will Be Forced to Yield or Call Out Tradesmen--Guards on Wagons Have Instructions to Shoot to Kill If Forced To

Chicago, May 8.—After a strenuous week, during which street riots were frequent and the calling of troops seemed imminent, and at the end of which scandalous charges were made against the peace officers of Chicago, the teamsters' strike yesterday rested at the beginning of its third week with the employers apparently in the advantage.

The teamsters now appear to be in a position where they must either yield or decide to extend the strike by calling out thousands of other workmen engaged in affiliated unions. The Chicago Federation of Labor has taken no action looking to an extension of the trouble, although resolutions charging the Employers' association with conspiracy, and asking that State Attorney Healy start an investigation of their business methods, were passed.

The business men will now increase their efforts to bring the strikers to terms. Arrangements have been made by every business house involved in the trouble to double their force of non-union men. All preparations have been made to start out 1000 wagons today, manned by non-union men. Each of these wagons will be guarded by deputy sheriffs or policemen, and all these men have received explicit instructions from superior officers to prevent disturbances of any kind. The instructions of each of the deputy sheriffs and each of the policemen is to use every peaceable means in their power to quiet the rioters, but if this proves unsuccessful, to use their revolvers and to shoot to kill. The strikers and their friends during the past few days have shown little inclination to clash with the deputy sheriffs or the policemen.

Express companies have made deliveries in all parts of the city. Each of the wagons carried two armed guards and in not a single instance did any of the wagons meet with opposition.

During the day several firms involved in the strike replenished their coal supply, which in many cases had dwindled down to almost nothing. All these coal wagons were driven by non-union teamsters, but no opposition was met with on the part of the strikers and their friends.

The Employers' association announces that they will do everything possible to assist the committee appointed by Mayor Dunne to investigate the causes of the strike. Charges of conspiracy by both sides caused Mayor Dunne to appoint the investigating committee. President Shea of the Teamsters' union says that the unions will be found ready to assist the mayor's committee in every manner possible to bring to light all the facts concerning the difficulty.

Nan Patterson Expects Release

New York, May 8.—Counsel for Nan Patterson are to renew their efforts to have the girl admitted to bail. District Attorney Jerome, who has been absent from the city since the trial, is expected to be at his office today and will be asked to take the case up immediately. Miss Patterson is bright and cheerful and declared yesterday her belief that it would be her last Sunday in the Tombs.

Infernal Machine For Police

Viborg, Russia, May 8.—The police officials investigating the attempt to assassinate Governor Myasoyedoff received by express a package of papers and clothes, with a letter stating that they would throw light on the crime. The package contained an infernal machine charged with dynamite enough to destroy a building, but the mechanism failed to operate.

New York Leads In Unionism

Albany, May 8.—Statistics received by the state department of labor show that only three foreign countries have as many organized working people as New York state and in proportion to population New York leads even these. The ratio is 1 to each 18 inhabitants in New York; 1 to 22 in Great Britain; 1 to 44 in Germany, and 1 to 53 in France.

Official Hurt Aboard Ship

London, May 8.—Lieutenant Commander William S. Sims of the bureau of navigation at Washington, who was a passenger on board the steamer Philadelphia, New York to Southampton, was thrown to the deck during a gale and sustained a fracture of the collarbone. He will be confined to the hospital probably for five weeks.

A Combat With Flowers

Mexico City, May 8.—The "Battle of Flowers" was held here Sunday and hundreds of people fought with flowers. The air was filled with various colored petals. Along the principal avenues of the city the fronts of the houses were adorned with flowers in immense profusion and of charming designs.

Hawaiian Volcano Active

Honolulu, May 8.—There is marked activity in the volcano of Kilauea. The flow of lava is increasing and a rising in the crater gives indications that there may be an overflow.

A Task For Hebrews

New York, May 8.—The statement that 90,000 Russian Hebrews are preparing to emigrate to this country, "turning their backs on tyranny and persecution and coming to the land of freedom and liberty," was made by Edward Lauterbach at the annual meeting of the patrons and members of the Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews in this city. "The time is coming," declared Lauterbach, "when the care of thousands of your Russian brethren will be in your keeping. Nowhere else can they turn to escape this persecution but to this country."

HOMEWARD BOUND

President's Hunting Trip In Colorado Wilds Has Ended

Glenwood Springs, Col., May 8.—President Roosevelt last night entertained at dinner his companions on his three weeks' hunt in the Rocky mountains. After the dinner the president bade them farewell and promised that all would live forever in his fondest memory. At the dinner were P. B. Stewart of Colorado Springs, Dr. Alexander Lambert of New York, Guides Jacob Borah, John Goff, "Bick" Wells, John Fry and G. M. Sprague, Courier Chapman and Secretary Loeb. In describing the function, Chapman said:

"We sat just as we did at the camp. Mr. Loeb was the only dude at the party. You reporter fellows ought to have been there. You could have got all kinds of pieces for your papers."

The president spent a quiet Sunday. Three weeks ago the railroads planned to run excursions into Glenwood Springs yesterday, but the plan was discouraged by Loeb, who announced that no program would be permitted which called for an address by the president. In spite of that fact, large numbers of persons arrived in every train and rather than disappoint them, Mr. Roosevelt stepped out on the second floor balcony of the hotel after luncheon and spoke briefly. The presidential train started east this morning.

Young Rockefeller In Poor Health

New York, May 8.—The superintendent of John D. Rockefeller, Jr's., Bible class announced yesterday that young Rockefeller will not take charge of his class. "It may surprise some of you," said the superintendent to the class, "that Mr. Rockefeller is not to take charge of the class. But he is not well enough. His complaint, whatever it is, has not been cured by his trip abroad, and he will not be able to lead us next Sunday, though it is certain that he will be home from Europe before that time."

Fine Work of Secret Service

Portsmouth, Va., May 8.—After a vigorous chase that led through several cities, Secret Service Officer Land of Boston arrested Thomas Brewster, Charles Fairbanks and Robert Slack, all of San Francisco, charged with extensive counterfeiting operations. Together with the prisoners, Land captured $9000 in counterfeit money, most all of which is in the denomination of $20 bills. The men are in the Norfolk county jail at Portsmouth.

Long Race of Autoboats

Algiers, May 8.—Seven autoboats have started in the long distance race from this port to Toulon. Lewis Nixon's Gregory, which was to have represented the United States in the contest, was not present. Every precaution has been taken to prevent mishaps, two cruisers and seven torpedo boat destroyers accompanying the racers. A mail steamer reports passing the boats, two of which were being towed.

Serenade Ends In Murder

New York, May 8.—Because several men who were playing accordeons and singing in front of his home at an early hour would not stop when asked to do so, Peter Novelino of Williamsburg shot Patrick Ketchwa, the leader of the serenaders, through the heart. The murder aroused the Italian colony in the neighborhood and several additional shots were fired. No one else was hurt. Novelino was arrested.

Hydrophobia Brings War on Dogs

Nyack, N. Y., May 8.—Frances Stewart, the 4-year-old daughter of Arthur Stewart of Upper Nyack, died at her home with hydrophobia. The child was bitten by a stray dog and for three days before her death was in terrible convulsions. The Stewarts are prominent citizens of Upper Nyack and the wide publicity given the child's illness has resulted in a general war on stray dogs.

Stork to Visit Royalty

Rome, May 8.—According to The Patria a fourth child will soon be born to the King and Queen of Italy.

Their first child, Princess Yolande, was born June 1, 1901; their second, Princess Mafalda, Nov. 19, 1902, and their third, Prince Humbert, heir apparent to the throne, Sept. 15, 1904.

Ocean Steamers In Danger

North Sydney, N. S., May 8.—Heavy drift ice is hampering navigation on the St. Lawrence and steamers cannot enter the gulf. Steamer Bruce, from Newfoundland, reports having sighted eight ocean steamers in the ice pack. The ice is the heavy Arctic kind and in many places is 15 feet out of the water.

Persians Killed Hundred Russians

St. Petersburg, May 8.—Persian frontier reports state that the governor of Ardebil has been recalled to Teheran in consequence of an attempt to move the frontier post at Beljasuwara into Russian territory. A conflict with the Russian frontier guard occurred, in which 100 Russians were killed.

Clan McGregor will receive a visit this evening from Grand Chief Scott and other grand officers.

Mrs. John Crotty of Coddington street, has been the guest of her sister, at Canton, the past week.

Mrs. Thomas C. Hewson of Newcomb place is the guest of her son George at Everett for a few weeks.

The annual meeting of the Quincy Women's club is to be held on Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock in Bethany chapel.

Mr. Winnifred Pote and family have moved from Edison street, corner of Charles, to the Vining house on Washington street.

The Brownie whist club will be entertained at the home of Mrs. M. A. H. Crane on Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Adelaide McGrath.

Stacy B. Southworth sub-master of the Roslindale, High school with about thirty of his pupils visited the Dorothy Q house on Saturday afternoon and were much interested in its renovation and collection of antiques.

The many friends of Mrs. Stillman Fisher of School street will be surprised to learn of her illness at Quincy hospital. Mrs. Fisher is one of our well known nurses and her patrons will be pleased to hear that her speedy recovery is assured.

Leo Elcock was tendered a surprise party at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Elcock of Marsh street, on Friday evening, by the members of the Iroquois club. During the evening Master Leo was presented with a gold signet ring.

Members of the Quincy Women's club will be disappointed at not having their president with them tomorrow afternoon at the annual meeting in Bethany chapel, for she is detained at her summer home at Windsor by a badly-sprained ankle, and unable to come to Quincy. Mrs. Chandler W. Smith of Wollaston, vice-president, will preside at the meeting.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Roy Thornton of Stanley avenue has accepted a position in a Boston machine shop.

The schooner-yacht, formerly owned by Thomas Crane, has been put into the water.

Mrs. Ida E. Eaton has moved from the Souther house Foster street to Edison Park.

At the Association foot ball on Saturday at Fall River, the Fore River team of this city was defeated 3 to 2.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther H. Bump of Randolph are guests of there granddaughter, Mrs. Alice Fisher of this city.

Anniversary week of the American Unitarian Association will open in Boston May 22. Among those to take part will be Rev. W. S. Key, formerly of Wollaston.

The police were out on the war path again Sunday after automobile speeders. They were stationed on Washington street and Franklin street, and during the day held up ten speeders. They will be summoned into court later.

The police station does not seem to cause any fear among the rude boys of School street and vicinity. During May week a large, well-filled basket was hung to an aged lady almost opposite the station, but before she could get to the door some boys rushed off with the basket, and divided the contents. Such acts are contemptible.

AMONG WINNERS.

Miss Underwood's Friends Have a Large Reserve Vote.

Although Miss Underwood appears to have dropped in the Herald contest, her friends authorize the statement that the reserved vote is sufficiently large to put her among the winners. A continuance of the good work of pupils, teachers and friends is sure to win the prize for her—a trip to the World's Fair in Portland, Oregon, in July. There should be no let up among her friends now that success is assured.

Consumption

The only kind of consumption to fear is "neglected consumption."

People are learning that consumption is a curable disease. It is neglected consumption that is so often incurable.

The use of Scott's Emulsion at once, has, in thousands of cases, turned the balance in favor of health.

Neglected consumption does not exist where Scott's Emulsion is.

Prompt use of Scott's Emulsion checks the disease while it can be checked.

SUBMARINES.

To be Built Here by the Holland Co

Office Being Moved to Quincy.

Will Bring Several Well Paid Officials.

The Holland Submarine Co. have begun to move from New York to the works of the Fore River Co., where a number of their submarines are to be built. Quite a force of men have already arrived, and they will be augmented by others later.

The moving of the work office to Quincy does not mean the giving up of the New York office which will be continued.

The company's force which will come to Quincy at present, includes four or five officers of the company, eighteen draughtsmen, and six or seven machinists. All are skilled workmen and will mean the addition of a desirable class of men.

Business for City Council.

An adjourned meeting of the City Council will be held to-night. The meeting is largely to hurry along the Sagamore street relocating order. The order is before the Finance Committee, who will doubtless report upon it.

The Committee on Licenses will report upon a number of petitions for minor licenses.

The Committee on Ordinances will report upon the orders granting William Cashman a location for a private railroad track across Furnace avenue, and upon telephone attachments on Squantum, Taylor, Edwards, Union, Cranch and Whitwell streets.

Leader of City Band Dead.

Alexander Raleigh, a well known resident of South Quincy, died Saturday at the Carney hospital, Boston, where he was taken last week to undergo a surgical operation.

Mr. Raleigh was a stone worker by trade, and resided on Federal avenue. He was prominently identified with Clan McGregor, O. S. C., and with the City band of which he was the leader.

Mr. Raleigh had been suffering from a stomach trouble for sometime, and the only hope for relief was an operation. He went to Carney Hospital on Wednesday where the operation was performed. He, however, was not able to withstand the shock.

He was 42 years of age and leaves a widow and three children.

Bed Sores.

Bed sores are sores that form on those parts of the body that are undermost in the position taken up by the bed occupant. As a rule they never form unless the sufferer is confined to one position. When set up they are most distressing. Whisky or brandy used as a lotion to the healthy skin once daily will prevent them. When there are commencing sores they should be treated with white of egg mixed with powdered alum. The two should be well rubbed up together. If one has not a mortar and pestle it is a good plan to mix the things in a basin with a bone knife handle.

Why?

Why do we always talk of putting on our coats and vests when we always put on first our vest and then our coat?

Why do we refer to the coverings of our feet as shoes and stockings when the stockings are first put on?

Why do we invite people to wipe their feet when we mean their shoes?

Why, in the olden times, did a father tell his son he would warm his jacket when every one knew he meant his pantaloons?

Purely Business.

"Of course," said the shrewd business man, "I don't want to be sick, but it looks as if I'd have to call in Dr. Borroughs for a couple of weeks."

"What for?" demanded his friend.

"He owes me $100, and that's about the only way I can collect it."—Philadelphia Press.

Altruistic.

SCHOOL LEAGUE.

Victories for the Willards and Gridley Bryants.

Misunderstandings and disputes promise to disrupt the Grammar Schools league. The Wollaston School was scheduled to play Cranch school Saturday afternoon, but came up in the morning instead. Cranch was not ready in the morning, and Wollaston would not play in the afternoon.

The Coddingtons were defeated on Saturday by the Massachusetts Field nine by the score of 6 to 4.

GRIDLEY BRYANT—ADAMS.

The Gridley Bryant had a walkover with Adams school. O'Rourke did good pitching for Gridley Bryants, striking out 12, while Troope and Knight did the pitching for Adams only striking out 5.

The score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

WILLARD—HANCOCK.

An exciting game was played between the Willard and John Hancock at Spring pasture, Saturday, in which Hancock was defeated by the Williard 16 to 12 in 9 innings. Donovan, Torchi, and Lemieux were the battery. Charles Shortle knocked a three-bagger, which scored three runs.

WHEN ROJESTVENSKY WON.

How the Russian Admiral Sank Three Turkish Ships.

"The story of how Admiral Rojestvensky, commander of Russia's second Pacific squadron, won his St. George's cross for bravery is told differently in Russia from the way it is here," said Dr. M. W. Pickard recently to a reporter of the Kansas City Times. Dr. Pickard is a Russian by birth and spent several years in the Imperial Naval academy at Odessa. "The story I learned at the academy," he said, "tells of sinking three Turkish vessels in his first engagement.

"The boat Vesta was a little vessel, not more than 150 feet long, and was engaged in carrying munitions of war from Russia's larger cities to the Danube. Captain Popoff was in command, with Rojestvensky second. One day in 1877 this little vessel was steaming along toward a point on the Roumanian coast, traveling through a fog and mist. Suddenly it came in sight of a ship and as usual cleared its deck for action. The Vesta carried few guns, just enough to protect it in case of attack.

"The Vesta started into the big ship, but when it drew nearer it found itself confronting a Turkish battleship which had two obsolete vessels with it. The battleship turned a broadside loose at the Vesta, and at the first shot Captain Popoff was killed. Rojestvensky took command and fought out the battle. His gunners did their work so well that the battleship and the two smaller vessels were sunk. The Vesta itself was disabled, but managed to get back to the island of Pheodonis, or Snake island, where it was beached. It was afterward raised and taken to Odessa and repaired. For a number of years it was used in passenger service in the Black sea. It was ever afterward known as the Rojestvensky ship.

"A peculiar feature of the Vesta history was its ending. In 1887, while sailing near Roumania, it ran into a storm and went down with all on board. The ship sunk not ten miles from where it had fought its fight with the Turkish vessels.

"The Russians look upon Rojestvensky as one of their bravest and most expert commanders."

TERRORIST BOMBS.

Russian Police Discover Secret Preparation of the Dreadful Missiles.

A considerable quantity of materials for the making of terrorist bombs has fallen into the hands of the authorities, says a St. Petersburg special cable to the New York American and Journal. It is stated that this material was sent from Geneva in separate packets and that the bombs were charged in St. Petersburg.

The covering of the bombs is formed of sheets of white metal, and to the bottom sheets a tube is fixed, the center of which contains two glass pipes in the shape of a cross filled with sulphuric acid and surrounded by other chemicals. The hollow between the metal sheets is filled with picrine.

At the moment the bomb is thrown the glass tube would break and the sulphuric acid mix with the chemicals, which would cause a flame, producing on contact with the picrine a terrible explosion.

CANNIBAL ALTAR.

Archaeologist Makes Strange Discovery Near Albany, Ore.

While excavating on a farm five miles southwest of Albany, Ore., near the bank of the Calapooya river, J. G. Crawford of Albany, Ore., discovered the remains of five bodies of prehistoric men and also a small altar, undoubtedly used for sacrifices, says an Albany (Ore.) dispatch. The skeletons showed that all had been mutilated.

Crawford, who is an archaeologist, thinks the people undoubtedly were cannibals. In one case the whole face had been broken out from the top of the head to the jaw.

The altar was built on a rock foundation in oval form and was constructed of clay which had been burned until it was as red as brick. Crawford says it was the custom to offer the hearts of the dead on these altars as a burned sacrifice to some deity.

Love From a Balloon.

The Swedish aeronaut, M. Frankel, while engaged in an ascent found that his balloon had sustained damage and descended in the island of Oeland, says the London Globe. The balloon came down in the park of a country house occupied by a large employer of labor, who was then celebrating the silver jubilee of his wedding. The unforeseen guest was welcomed, and between him and the eldest daughter of his host there sprang up such a near approach to love at first sight that when the aeronaut left the pair were already engaged.

The Song of Kansas.

From Broken Bow to Cotton Sock,
From Wagon Tire to Rolling Rock,
Our oil wells high are gushing.
All the way from Hurrah Boys,
Big Blue Fork and Roaring Noise
You may see the dark streams rushing.
But they've rushed and gushed for others;
Now a change must come, my brothers;
Things must not be longer thus,
They must squirt and spurt for us.
So then—three cheers for our spouters!
Get in line, you halting doubters,
Fall in with the lusty shouters,
They are going to spout for us!

From Frozen Man to Little Branch,
From Poker Park to Trigger Ranch,
You may hear the people rising.
All the way from B'iled Shirt Flat,
Peekaboo and Bob Tail Cat,
Mighty hosts are mobilizing.
They have stopped and dropped their laborers,
They are fetching 'long their neighbors,
John D.'s sun is going to set;
We will bust his trust, you bet!
So then three cheers for our crude oil!
While our prairies shall exude oil
John will find it mighty rude oil!
We are going to win, you bet!
—Hayden Carruth in Harper's Weekly.

French Mothers.

There is one thing that French mothers do not do enough. That is to separate from their growing boys, to send them to the school of life outside the home and into situations where they must look after themselves. The mother's happiness is complete only with her children around her. Let life not keep them too much apart. From this arise too fearsome ideas of distance and a too timid attachment to the natal soil or the maternal city.

The difficulty is that it is very reluctantly admitted among the French that the time must come for the nestling to use its own wings. I have seen most excellent parents worry themselves nearly to death because a daughter will not acquiesce in their ideas or wish to accept the husband of their choice. To a son or a daughter very devoted but independent it is often said, "You love me no longer."

But if we have touched here upon a somewhat delicate point the good will and love of the French mothers are above all praise, even if sometimes farsightedness and breadth of mind be somewhat lacking.—Charles Wagner in Cosmopolitan.

Queer Hatching Processes.

The Chilean frog, known also as Darwin's frog, is unique in its method of hatching eggs. The female is not abnormal, but the male has a large pouch which underlies its whole body and is connected with its mouth by two openings, one on either side of its tongue. When his mate has laid her eggs this devoted parent takes them into his fore paws and places them inside his mouth, whence they presently pass by the two passages into the expectant pouch. Here they remain in warm and safe seclusion until they are hatched and emerge as newborn tadpoles to the light. The breeding habits of the midwife frog are not less singular. He winds the strings of new laid eggs round his hind legs and vanishes into a convenient hole till they are hatched. The Surinam toad places eggs one by one in hexagonal cells formed in the back of the mother toad, whence in due time they hop out, not tadpoles, but perfect toads.

The Ease of Normal Death.

According to a scientist, the immediate cause of death in all but very exceptional cases, such as accident, is the poisoning of the nervous centers by carbonic acid, which accumulates in the blood owing to the failure of the arrangement for its removal. "This gas is an anaesthetic," he explains, "and has, indeed, been employed as such, both locally and otherwise. This property of carbonic acid may be termed a merciful provision of nature. Normal death is a painless occurrence, usually preceded by gradual loss of consciousness entailing no more suffering than going to sleep. The accumulation of this merciful gas often induces muscular contraction or spasms, which are preceded by loss of consciousness, but which may have suggested to uncritical observers that their moribund subject was in agony.

Lucky.

A story that comes from Ireland relates to the custom among farmers there of depositing money in the bank in the joint names of husband and wife, so that when one dies the survivor can draw out the money without any legal formalities.

To a farmer who recently made application for money deposited for himself and his wife the manager asked: "Why, Pat, how can this be? It is not much more than a year since you came with a similar application on the death of your wife."

"Well, your honor," was the reply, "I'm a bit lucky wid women."—Harper's Weekly.

The Perfect Prescription.

A patient at a metropolitan hospital goes away best satisfied when he is given something to drink out of a bottle. The drinking, according to ancient ritual, must not be less often than three times a day and the ceremony must have some reference to meals. The draft to be efficient should be colored. It must have a marked odor, so that he may invite his friends to smell it. It should be loathsome to the taste, so that the taking of it may call for some heroism. Above all, it needs to possess an evil looking sediment which will require a formal shaking of the vial.—London Hospital.

Paternal Confidence.

The Young Man (with some embarrassment)—There is one question you haven't asked me yet, Mr. Hurpop. You haven't wanted to know whether or not I think I can make a living for your daughter. The Other Man—That isn't necessary, Henry. She'll see that you make the living, all right, if she's at all like her mother—and I think she is.—Chicago Tribune.

Made Up For It.

"Do you remember, love, twenty years ago we sat one moonlight night by this lake? I had my head on your breast and for an hour spoke not a word."

"Yes, and it has never happened again since."

His Own Way.

"Do you ever have your own way?" asked the cynical near relative.

"Yes," answered Mr. Meekton. "Sometimes I have my own way, but not without consulting Henrietta very carefully before I make up my mind."

Getting Up Courage.

Knicker—Jones and his wife are singing "The Marseillaise." Bocker—Yes; they are bracing up to discharge the cook.—Harper's Bazar.

Lost time is never found again, and what we call time enough always proves little enough.

CITY COUNCIL.

Vote to Relocate Sagamore Street.

After a Protracted Debate.

Councilman Bass Alone in the Negative.

The Sagamore street relocation was thoroughly thrashed out at Monday night's meeting of the City Council, and after being debated for an hour, was passed. The relocation of this street seems to be the key to the solution of the Atlantic bridge nuisance which will now probably be pushed to its completion.

Councilman Barry, Chamberlin, Gassett, Gearwar, Hynes, Sidelinger and Piper were absent.

APPRECIATED.

A communication was received from Mrs. Christopher A. Spear, thanking the City Council for the embossed resolutions on her late husband who was clerk of the Council. Placed on file.

PETITION.

William Harkins petitioned for the refund of one-half cost of brick sidewalk on Goffe and Dimmock streets. To Finance Committee.

Several petitions for minor licenses were received and referred.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Licenses reported orders granting licenses to common victuallers, for junk wagon and other purposes. Adopted.

The Committee on Ordinances reported correctly engrossed on the following orders:

Granting the N. E. T. Company attachment on Taylor streets. Passed.

Granting the N. E. T. Company attachments on Squantum street. Passed.

Granting the N. E. T. Company attachments on Edwards and Union streets. Passed.

Granting the N. E. T. Company attachments on Cranch and Whitwell streets. Passed.

Granting William Cashman permission to cross Furnace avenue at grade with a private railroad track. Laid on the table.

SAGAMORE STREET.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass on the order relocating Sagamore street.

Councilman Bass did not feel that the order was in proper shape. His only criticism was that it did not provide that work be done under the betterment act. We are at sea as regards prices that will be charged for land, and the results will be suits against the city. If laid out under the betterment act the city can obtain a set off.

Councilman Stone believed the Mayor had looked into the matter thoroughly, and it would be only a small matter, and the city would be protected.

Councilman Bass moved to amend by adding words so as to provide the relocating be done under the betterment act.

Councilman Adams was called to the chair.

President Nichols, taking the floor, said this matter was an important one to the city. This seemed to be the best solution of the whole problem. It was necessary for the city to act promptly. He had thought it might be advantageous to lay out under the betterment act if we could show betterments, but it is not apparent that they can be shown. Therefore there would be little if anything gained. He moved to lay on the table.

In reply to a question, Councilman Bass said he would be content if the railroad and railway company knew it was not being laid out under the betterment act.

Councilman McLane hoped members from Ward One would not insist on betterment act. People have long been put to much inconvenience at this bridge. The street was worse today than a month ago.

Councilman Bass asked City Solicitor if the betterment act would not place the city in a stronger position.

City Solicitor Thomas—In most cases, but in this case of no benefit, because, it is going to be difficult to show betterments.

Mayor Thompson spoke at length, going into the history of the bridge widening. The railroad claimed it was city's place to take land for slopes. An order to that effect was introduced last year. A hearing was held on it this year.

At that time the two gentlemen representing land owners did not favor. Reference was made to a plan for relocating Sagamore street. This plan impressed him favorably. The matter was gone over carefully with the railroad and railway companies. They were prepared to meet the city if expense was not too great. The expense compared favorably with the cost under the plan as decreed. The railroad said we oppose a retaining wall and the city will not take slopes. We will go to the courts and have the matter settled. No one wants that delay. Under this plan there is no question but what the County Commissioners will change the decree. The railroad says, if this order passes work will be resumed at once.

Councilman Burgess was not opposed but desired some information. He asked several questions which the Mayor answered, which apparently set his mind at rest.

Councilman Chase could not see how a reduction could be made under the betterment act. If it goes to the courts the chances are that we will get but little more than now. It would be of advantage to the city to hasten improvement even if we had to pay $2000 more. We have shut up the main artery to Boston, and as it now is the railroad can delay matters as long as they see fit.

Councilman Bass—This land is near the railroad and a good case could be worked up against the city on values. There had never been a time when we did not know what we are to pay for land.

Mayor Thompson quoted several streets that had been widened where the cost of land was not known—Water, Copeland, Coddington and others.

Councilman Loud moved the previous question.

The amendment of Councilman Bass to add a betterment clause to the order was put and lost.

The order was then passed to be ordained, Councilman Bass alone voting in the negative.

MAYOR AUTHORIZED.

Councilman Bass offered an order authorizing the Mayor to sign an agreement with the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, and the Old Colony street railway in relation to expense of relocating Sagamore street. Adopted.

CHANGE OF DECREE.

Councilman Bass offered an order authorizing the Mayor to petition the County Commissioners to change the decree relative to the widening of the bridge at Atlantic. Adopted.

Councilman Stewart offered an order changing the locations of Henry L. Miller's victuallers license from Vinten's lot to Leonard's lot. Adopted.

HIGH SCHOOL ORDER.

Upon motion of Councilman Bass the order for addition to the High school was taken from the Committee on Finance and referred to the Joint Committee on Finance and Public Buildings.

Adjourned at 10 o'clock.

District Deputy Susie A. Furnald and suite and members of George L. Gill Rebekah lodge will be the guest of Golden Star Rebekah lodge of Randolph at their anniversary on Friday evening.

FOR INSPECTION.

Opening of Y. M. C. A. Building to Contributors.

The contributors to the building fund of the Y. M. C. A. have been invited to the opening and inspection of the new Association building on Saturday evening of this week from eight until ten o'clock.

At the time of the Colonial fair the floor had not been polished and there were finishing touches to be put here and there. Then the rooms were not equipped for Association work, and were not seen at their best.

The directors will take pleasure on this date in showing friends the building completely furnished.

—Sarcastic Guest—You call this an omelet, do you? Would it have been any different if I had ordered scrambled eggs? Waiter Girl—Yes, sir; there would have been a difference of 10 cents in the check.—Chicago Tribune.

—The Lowell Citizen is calling for more local pride, and declares that "what we need in the city is less of the doleful Jeremiah business and more push."

It is all right to plan and work, headwork; but don't do it when you ought to be abed and asleep. That never paid anybody, but on the other hand it's a losing game every time.

RECEPTION TO

MISS JULIA E. UNDERWOOD.

A general invitation is extended to the public at large to attend the testimonial reception on FRIDAY EVENING, May 19, 1905, at High School hall, to Miss Julia E. BATTLESHIP RACE.

The Missouri Leaves Massachusetts and Alabama Behind.

News of an eight-hour ocean race, in which seven big United States battleships participated, reached New York on Monday by the battleship Alabama, which arrived in command of Rear Admiral Charles E. Davis, and will go to the navy yard to be overhauled because of the poor showing which she made in the contest, says a dispatch to the Boston Herald.

The ships were coming up the coast last Saturday, and were about 200 miles south of Cape Henry, when the word was given for a speed test. For two hours it was nip and tuck, there being scarcely a change in the relative positions of the participants. By that time excitement was running high on board the battleships, and the speed test had developed into a race.

Finally the Massachusetts and the Alabama began to fall behind, and when the signal ending the race was flashed both these ships were far in the rear. The Alabama, which has the record of being one of the fastest battleships in the navy, was fully 1 1-2 miles behind the Massachusetts.

At the finish the battleship Missouri, which had drawn away from the others, was only 73 1-2 miles south of Cape Henry, having covered 126 1-2 miles in the eight hours.

During the last six hours of the race the battleships were under forced draught. With the exception of the Alabama all the vessels went to Hampton roads for repairs.

DAMAGES AWARDED.

Against the Milton Water Company in Superior Court.

The cases against the Milton Water Company, for supplying water through lead pipes unfit for drinking purposes, were concluded in the Superior court on Monday, and damages aomunting to $6100 awarded as follows: Maurice Duffy, $30; B. W. Duffy, $1,100; J. H. Duffy, $500; Edward Duffy, $150; Mary Duffy, $1000; W. J. Duffy, $300; administrator of Johanna Duffy, $3,000.

The Golden Rod.

The annual issue of the Golden Rod, the Quincy High school paper, is out this week. It is the largest number ever published, and a very interesting one. The cover is golden rod in color and black cord is used in binding. The name appears in an original design by a pupil of the school. There are also original designs on the editorial, athletic and school note pages. Three prize stories by pupils appear, also a letter from Hampton Institute by Miss Corrinne L. Hayward, a recent Q. H. S. graduate; and a class prophecy of merit.

The issue is well patronized by advertisers. The editors are pupils of the class of 1905: Avard Sproul, Clark G. Boynton, Marion J. Hatch and Marion E. West. The business manager, Horace T. Jenkins. The printers were Geo. W. Prescott & Son.

Assault Case.

Through false information given to the police, Arthur Dunn, an estimable young man, was arrested with others for assaulting Robert Elder on Hancock street on the night of April 18. At that time one John S. Johnson was detained. He admitted being one of the parties to the assault and named Dunn and others as also being connected with it.

Upon Johnson's statement, warrants were sworn out against the parties, including Dunn. When the case came up later Johnson said he had made a mistake in regard to Dunn, and that he was not a party to the assault. The police then requested that the case against Dunn be nol prossed, which was done and his case was dismissed without arraignment. The other parties were fined $15 each.

TODAY'S COURT.

H. M. Stonematz was fined $10 for speeding an automobile at Quincy.

Olka Kukkone was arraigned for assault on his wife at Quincy. Case continued until May 16.

—"Dear," said the melancholy wife, "If you die first you will wait for me there on that far shore, won't you?" "I guess so," replied her husband, wearily. "I always have to wait for you everywhere I go."

Drift of Opinion.

☞The plan before the legislature to have moving picture machines regulated in churches and other public buildings as well as in playhouses is one that deserves success. These machines have caused fire loss and panics on several occasions, and a panic is no respecter of places—it is quite as likely to break out among crowds in the churches as it is to stampede the people from a playhouse or a hall.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞It is the business of the church to educate the community upon all social problems. She has no more urgent business. She must not stand and look on while such tremendous forces are at work destroying the bodies and the souls of men. She is here in the world to save men, and she needs a larger understanding of what that means. She must learn to read her commission in the light of the twentieth century and in the terms of modern social life. Where else shall we look for an authoritative and commanding interpretation of the ethics of the new industry and of the existing social order? If the church can not do this work she has no business in this world. If she unfits herself for it by taking bribes of tainted money she ought to perish with her money and she will.—Dr. Washington Gladden.

☞Teamsters and expressmen should yield the right of way to the fire apparatus, when an alarm has been rung in. In some cities a fireman is sent ahead to clear the road for the following engines or hose wagons, but it should not be necessary. Every good citizen ought to recognize the desirability of a prompt response to an alarm of fire by the department, and put no obstacle in the way of the hurrying firemen. The firemen ought to be aided in every possible way, but sometimes an obstinate driver of a private team is encountered, and valuable time is lost. It does not count that the obstructor can be punished for the delay may have disastrous results. Give the firemen a show, not only when they arrive at a fire, but when they are doing their best to get there quickly.—Lynn Item

☞The cost is only one adverse consideration to the location of the states prison on Nashawena island. The prison would be far removed from the courts, and the location would seem to call for the maintenance of a regular ferry. At New Bedford there would have to be a receiving station for prisoners, and their transportation to and fro would call for many more guards. Visitation of prisoners by their friends would be more difficult and almost prohibited. The expense of transporting prisoners would be much increased. The isolation which is praised would work both ways. It would take the state prison away from such close public inspection and criticism as all such establishments are better for. Experience has shown the very great difficulty of keeping such a great public establishment up to the best standards of management when isolated amid such conditions as Nashawena would provide. All of which goes to show that this is a very important matter, and that the legislature should not lightly or in haste commit the state to a step, which once taken, must be so well-nigh irrevocable. Delightful as is a visit to this island, the problem which this scheme involves is a very serious one.—Springfield Republican.

BEYOND CONTROL

Fires Have Firm Hold on New England Woodland

THE BAY STATE BLAZE

Area of Seventy-Five Square Miles Already Laid Waste--Loss of $50,000 Results From Flames Near Wells Beach, Me

Boston, May 9.—A heavy downpour of rain only will, it is believed, permanently check the forest fires which have broken out with startling frequency in many sections of New England.

Thousands of weary fire-fighters find but little encouragement in the weather forecast, which promises nothing better than showers before Wednesday. In many instances local departments have become quite exhausted and paid laborers have been hurried from the cities to relieve them. The loss on standing timber and cut wood bids fair to reach in the aggregate hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The fires are now more extensive and apparently further beyond control than at any time since they began. Small blazes are reported throughout Maine, parts of New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

The most serious fire has extended into the four towns of Plymouth, Kingston, Plympton and Carver, Mass., where it is estimated that 75 square miles has been laid waste. Several buildings were burned, and the settlement of Indian Pond barely escaped being wiped out. This fire remained beyond control.

A fire that started at North Harwich, Mass., destroyed 700 acres of thickly grown forest, caused a loss of $15,000, and has reached Pleasant lake, five miles distant. It is hoped to check it there.

A smouldering fire at South Weymouth, Mass., was fanned into new life by a southwest breeze, and last night had destroyed timber valued at $10,000 and covering 250 acres. The blaze is believed to be under control.

Maine's most serious fire is in the vicinity of Wells Beach, where a loss of $50,000 has resulted. Standing timber covering immense tracts and several hundred thousand feet of sawed lumber have been burned. Railroad companies there have united with the citizens and local fire departments, and special trains from Portland and North Berwick carried hundreds of section hands to the scene. A big force of men worked throughout the night, and a fresh gang of men is ready to take up the work.

Colorado Welcomed Roosevelt

Denver, May 9.—The entertainment of President Roosevelt by the citizens of Denver last night was a fitting conclusion of a day of royal welcome as he journeyed through Colorado from Glenwood Springs to Denver. All the towns along the railroad over which the presidential party traveled centred their population at the stations to greet the president. A banquet was tendered to President Roosevelt last night by the Denver Chamber of Commerce. The presidential train left for Chicago at 7 o'clock this morning.

Small Fortune Lost and Found

New York, May 9.—Mrs. Mary Slavin, a Williamsburg woman who has been almost crazed for a week because of the loss of her life savings, amounting to $8500, had her missing money restored to her mysteriously by an aged man and woman, who disappeared before the surrised woman was able to ask the names of the people. Mrs. Slavin lost her money while carrying it in an envelope to deposit it in a bank. It was restored to her in its original envelope and had apparently not been touched by the finders.

Fast Express Tipped Over

Moncton, N. B., May 9.—A Canadian Pacific express from Halifax for Montreal and Boston was derailed at Dorchester, 20 miles east of here. The locomotive and seven of the eight coaches left the irons and were overturned. Engineer White was dangerously injured, but others of the train crew and the passengers escaped unharmed. The cause of the accident has not been made public.

Korea Grants Concessions

Washington, May 9.—Minister Allen reports from Seoul that after several years of effort, in which he participated with the British and Italian ministers, the Korean government has been induced to grant a concession to a syndicate for the exploitation of the valuable Sooan mines. A valuable mining concession has also been granted to an American firm.

Eight Years as President

Detroit, May 9.—After standing at the head of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers for eight years, President Shaffer of the association, which is in annual convention here, will, this year, yield his place to a successor. This announcement was made to the convention by Shaffer when he finished reading his annual report.

Hawaiians Not Polygamous

Honolulu, May 9.—The federal grand jury which has been investigating the charges that polygamy was practiced in Hawaiian colonies reports that there is no evidence that polygamy was ever practiced in the Hawaiian islands.

THE ARANSAS WRECK

Only Person Drowned May Have Been a Suicide

Boston, May 9.—A score of those who were on board the Joy line steamer Aransas, which was sunk by the barge Glendower in Vineyard sound, early Sunday morning, have returned to Boston. Nearly all told the story of one of the most remarkable accidents of the kind in recent years and admitted that they considered themselves extremely lucky to be alive to tell of their experiences. Most of them were without the clothing they had on when they left Boston and in their place they wore articles of wearing apparel which had been provided them at Vineyard Haven.

The Aransas left her berth here at 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, with a passenger list of 36 and a crew of 29. Of this total of 65, all but one were saved. The one drowned was Anna Field. Of late she is said to have been a waitress. While the passengers were being saved she was drowned, and at first it was thought as the result of the accident, but the officers of the company now insist that the woman committed suicide. They say that during the entire trip the woman had been acting in a despondent way.

A Windfall of Millions

Bridgeport, Conn., May 9.—Notification of heirship in the alleged vast estate of the late Captain Samuel Allen, a whaling master, has been received from the English court of chancery by David Allen of Stratford and Charles Allen and Mrs. Frank K. Rogers of Bridgeport. David and Charles Allen are factory employes. According to their information, money deposited by Captain Allen in the Bank of England in 1742 now amounts to several million pounds.

Result of Hart Inquest

Providence, May 9.—The report of the coroner's inquest into the death of John A. Hart of this city, who was killed in his stateroom on board the steamer Larchmont on a trip of the vessel from New York to this city, has been filed by Coroner Lincoln, who finds that Hart came to his death as the result of a gunshot wound in the head, caused by the act or neglect of a person or persons unknown.

Arraigned on Murder Charge

Northampton, Mass., May 9.—In the district court, Charles H. Braman pleaded not guilty to a charge of the murder of George E. Waite, whose body was found in the water under a street railway bridge in the Northampton meadows. Braman was remanded. The body of Waite was decomposed to an extent which led the authorities to think that it was in the water for several days.

Consigns His Ashes to the Sea

Cambridge, Mass., May 9.—"The intent of this is that my wife shall not feel sad thinking of a lonely grave, as she will not know where it is." These words conclude a codicil to the will of William H. Lovelace of Maplewood, filed at the registry of probate. The will directs that his body shall be cremated and the ashes be "put overboard at such convenient time and place as seem fit."

Bridge Abutments Sinking

Saybrook, Conn., May 9.—The west span of the double-track draw bridge of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad over the Connecticut river at this point was found to be lower than the draw and all traffic over the bridge has been held up. A diver found that the abutments were sinking. It is expected that the repairs will be completed tonight.

Street Railway In Idleness

Worcester, Mass., May 9.—At the request of a number of bondholders, Receiver Tafter of the Hampshire and Worcester railway will petition the United States district court for permission to resume operations on the road. The company went into the hands of a receiver last January and for the past two months all traffic on the road has been suspended.

Would Have Tariff Revised

Brockton, Mass., May 9.—At a meeting of the board of trade last night it was voted to start a movement in the interests of tariff revision. Resolutions expressing the sentiment of the board were adopted and copies of the same will be sent to other commercial bodies in New England and to the senators and representatives of Massachusetts.

Ninety-Cent Gas For Boston

Boston, May 9.—The Boston consolidated gas bill was passed to be engrossed by the Massachusetts house without a division. This measure provides for the consolidation of all Boston gas concerns, fixes the capital stock and orders the price of gas reduced from $1 to 90 cents a thousand.

No Proof of Foul Play

Bethel, Me., May 9.—A coroner's inquest was held on the death of James A. Barcard, who was killed by a train near here. Foul play had been suggested, but the verdict returned was that Harcard was killed by a train in some unknown manner. No further action will be taken by the authorities.

Lewiston Elects Liquor Agent

Lewiston, Me., May 9.—At a third meeting last night of the mayor and aldermen to elect a city liquor agent, J. M. Scannell was chosen on the 95th ballot. In all 293 ballots had been taken to elect an agent.

Striking Limeworkers In Parade

Rockland, Me., May 9.—Headed by a band, the 170 striking lime-burners in this vicinity marched through the principal streets of the city last night and later held a mass meeting. There is no change in the strike situation.

CITY BREVITIES.

The days are over five hours longer than they were in winter.

W. T. Spargo & Co. have secured the contract for a large granite tomb.

The City Council Committee on Licenses will meet Thursday evening.

The Appalachian club was at West Quincy on Saturday, and left for a tramp through the Blue Hills reservation.

Miss Bessie Drew of Walker street, who has been teaching in Hampton, Virginia, is expected home the last of May.

Mr. Duggan, formerly of the Braintree police force, has been appointed watchman at the Fore River Ship-building Co.

James F. Burke has sold the Eliza Conlon estate off Crescent street to John M. O'Brien, who will improve the property and build.

In spite of the closed car, the Squamtum trolley line was well patronized on Sunday and the early crowds augur well for the coming season. The inn is not yet open but the need may bring this about sooner than usual.

On the field near the United Presbyterian church on Monday the Junior Defenders defeated the Victors by a score of nine to eight. The batting of Knight and the stealing of bases by Fontone and Fader were the features of the game. Bishop, Sugrew and Robertson did great fielding.

Auto Depot Carriage.

It would be an excellent chance for an energetic young man to make a few dollars this summer by buying an auto and using it for conveyance to and from the Atlantic station. For those in a hurry, for the weary, the indolent, the pleasure-seeker, such a means of travel would be pleasant; and for a moderate fee the chauffeur need not worry for lack of patronage. It is a necessity in a rising and prosperous town like Atlantic, and some man ought to grasp the rare opportunity of doing the public and his own bank account an equal service.

Buildings at Peddocks.

The new Government buildings to be erected at Fort Andrews, Peddock's Island, Boston harbor, will include a two-story barracks, 140 by 38 feet in size; a double set of quarters for lieutenants; one set of quarters for field officers, and a dormitory. The buildings will be of wood and brick and will cost about $60,000.

A New York contractor and a Boston contractor have secured the jobs for the submarine work in connection with the water supply system at Peddock's and Nut islands.

Card of Thanks.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. beg to gratefully acknowledge the innumerable kindnesses and unfailing courtesy shown them by the friends of the association throughout the city during the three-days' Colonial Fair-fete which proved such a success.

Those interested in the success of "Merry"—Land wish to thank all who assisted, particularly Mr. Warren Arnold, decorations; Mr. Henry Emerson, placards; and Mr. Bonney, soloist.

A UNION OF FLEETS

Nebogatoff's Division Joins That of Rojestvensky

NEXT FIGHT OFF FORMOSA

Togo Will Probably Adopt Harassing Methods at First--Japan's Future In the Far East at Stake--French Neutrality

London, May 9.—There are indications that French hospitality will not be taxed much longer by the Russian warships which have been hovering about the coast of Indo-China for nearly a month. Official advices have reached St. Petersburg which are believed to indicate that the division under Vice Admiral Nebogatoff has effected a junction with the more powerful squadron commanded by Vice Admiral Rojestvensky, and at the Russian capital it is expected that the combined squadrons will lose no time in steaming northward to encounter the Japanese.

Confirmation of St. Petersburg's expectation is afforded by an official dispatch to the French naval office announcing that the Russian squadron has left Kong Hai bay, its destination being unknown. The bay named is probably what is shown on some maps as Kanh Hoa, or Nha Trang, which is a few miles south of Hon Kohe bay, where the Russian ships were recently reported to be. Simultaneously Japanese warships are reported to be concentrating in the Straits of Formosa, the scouting line being much extended.

There is little use of speculating further on the outcome of the impending struggle for command of the sea, or the place at which it will be fought out. When Togo did not attempt to bar the entrance of the Russian fleet into the China sea, the next strategic points of opposition were the Formosa straits and the different channels between the Philippine islands and the island of Formosa.

It has been generally assumed that Togo would not attempt to fight a decisive battle in the open China sea. The moment is approaching when Togo must develop his strategy. To many it is not conceivable that he will neglect to attack Rojestvensky either when he goes through the Straits of Formosa into the eastern sea, or through the Bashee or Ballintang channels into the Pacific. Should Togo decide to fight still nearer home there are the Korean straits, between Japan and Korea, or the Tsurgaru straits, north of Nippon island.

Togo will probably take advantage of the strategic positions presented in the different narrow avenues through which the Russian fleet must steam to inflict all the damage possible to the enemy. Night torpedo boat attacks and every method to harass and confuse Rojestvensky probably will be used. Should conditions favor a general attack. Togo will make it.

But Rojestvensky has showed himself a capable officer, and, notwithstanding the lack of precedent for any belief that the Russian navy could match the Japanese in efficiency even were the battle units exactly equal, Togo is likely to estimate the fleet at its full value and take no risks. For the moment Japan's future hangs on sea power. So long as she controls the waters of the far east and keeps open her transport routes to the ports leading to the front in Manchuria she can continue the war with a chance of final victory. Should she lose this control completely, her dream of paramountcy in Asia would be rudely broken.

There had been increasing feeling in Japanese official quarters regarding the way in which France has construed neutrality and Great Britain's sympathy for her ally has been evidenced in communications that have passed between the British foreign secretary and the French ambassador in London, as well as between the British ambassador in Paris and Foreign Minister Delcasse.

PAINT MEN STRIKE

Chicago's Striking Teamsters Consider It a Gain

MANY WAGONS KEPT BUSY

Strongly Guarded by Police and Deputy Sheriffs, Many of the Latter Being Sworn In to Protect Their Employers

Chicago, May 9.—Both employers and strikers claim gains in the teamsters' strike. The employers declare that they have gained a decided advantage in the number of wagons sent out and the amount of business transacted. The strikers' claim is based on the fact that 250 drivers for the various furniture dealers in the city will strike and that 150 paint workers employed by the Heath & Milligan company struck yesterday. The furniture dealers have ordered their men to carry goods to the boycotted houses and the strike will be the result.

The paint workers of Heath & Milligan are the first members of any union not a member of the teamsters' organization to go on strike in support of the teamsters. They have walked out because of the delivery of goods by non-union teamsters.

The State street department stores and large drygoods houses sent out nearly their full complement of delivery wagons yesterday. The wagons were guarded by police officers or deputy sheriffs, the latter in all cases armed with rifles. The deputies sat in the rear of the wagons and held their guns in position to use at the first sign of disturbance.

The big department store of Rothschild & Co., for the first time since the strike began, loaded their wagons in State street, using police and deputy sheriffs for protection. When it was found that they could not be supplied with the necessary number of deputies, numbers of their employes were sworn in as deputy sheriffs. This procedure was adopted by many of the houses, and the sheriff by night had 1500 deputies at work.

Fifteen hundred wagons, manned by non-union men, were operated from State street yesterday and the number was materially increased today. No more negroes are to be hired by the Employers' Teaming company. Individual contracts are made with all men hired and they will be given permanent employment.

The rioting yesterday was of a sharper character than that of Saturday. Three men were fatally injured and a number of others were hurt. Most of the affrays occurred during the early part of the afternoon. William O'Day, a negro teamster, was attacked last night by Albert Enders, who struck him with a stone. O'Day drew a revolver and fired twice. Both bullets took effect in Ender's body. O'Day was arrested. The Hansell Clock company, O'Day's employers, are not involved in the teamsters' strike, and there was no occasion for Ender's attack.

The civic commission appointed by Mayor Dunne to investigate the strike has commenced operations. It has done little but organize for future work, however, and the promise for the successful performance of its mission does not seem to be bright. It has no power to summon witnesses and must therefore rely on volunteered testimony.

The Employers' association last night issued a statement to the public, declaring that the charges against President Shea of the Teamsters' union made by the association last Friday are true in every particular. In these charges it was declared that President Shea had offered to settle the strike on the following basis:

The strike to be declared off, the union teamsters to return to work for 24 hours, during which time Shea would leave town. The employers would then have the right to discharge all union men.

President Shea has denied the assertions of the employers ever since they were made, and he still asserts that there is no truth in them.

St. Petersburg, May 9.—Some idea of the extent of the panic prevailing in Poland before May 1 is contained in a letter to the press in which it is stated that the number of passports issued at Warsaw to persons desiring to go abroad the preceding two months was 27,500. The streets are filled with a practically continuous patrol of cavalry.

Place For Italian Immigrants

Naples, May 9.—Senator Henry C. Lodge, who is here, received a visit from the head of the Italian emigrant department. Lodge expressed the opinion that Italian emigration will not be opposed by the United States if it is directed towards agricultural states.

Many Silent on Rollcall

Boston, May 9.—The railroad merger bill to permit steam railroads to buy trolley lines was passed to be enacted in the house by a vote of 75 to 74. On a yea and nay vote 201 members voted, but on the rollcall only 149 answered to their names.

Peasants Burn Prince's Property

Insurance and Bankruptcy

Washington, May 9.—The supreme court of the United States has decided the case of Holden vs. Stratton in favor of the former. The case involved the question as to whether insurance policies are exempt from the operations of the bankruptcy law, and the court held that they are so in states where the state laws make them exempt. The Holden case arose in the state of Washington.

NAN CAN RAISE BAIL

But Future of Young's Alleged Slayer Is Uncertain

New York, May 9.—Nan Patterson's future is still uncertain. Bail has been provided for the girl, thrice vainly tried for the alleged murder of Caesar Young, but District Attorney Jerome has not yet decided what action he will take in her case.

After a long conference with Jerome and his assistant, Mr. Rand, Miss Patterson's counsel was compelled to bear to the girl in the Tombs the disappointing news that she may have to remain in prison for at least a week longer. The prisoner bore the announcement with fortitude, although she had been led to believe that she might be granted her freedom today.

At least two bondsmen are said to be ready to give bail in any reasonable amount, and counsel for Miss Patterson say the surety will be provided without delay, as soon as the district attorney expresses a willingness to accept it.

Disaster Narrowly Averted

New York, May 9.—By the narrowest possible margin the ferryboat New York escaped being cut down last night by the big railroad transport Maryland. By quick action on the part of both pilots, the vessels sheered off so that the crash which seemed impending developed into a side bump. When the huge transport bore down on the ferryboat men and women, most of them in the bow, crowded in a panic to the port side. The boat careened with the bump and climbed up on the port guard of the Maryland, from which she slid off and righted. No one was injured.

Did Not Talk of Home Rule

Rome, May 9.—Surprise has been caused at the Vatican by what is there regarded as the exaggerated impression produced in certain quarters by Pope Pius' words to John E. Redmond at the audience which Redmond had with the pope on April 27. The subject of home rule for Ireland was not discussed at the audience in question, and the conversation was confined to allusions to what may be considered the legitimate aspirations of Irish Catholics.

Richmond Jail Threatened

Richmond, May [illegible] detachment of police was hurried to the jail last night as the result of reports that crowds were gathering outside the city to attempt to lynch Austin Johnson, a negro confined for an alleged felonious assault upon Ruth Pinchbeck, a 10-year-old white girl. The jail now is so strongly guarded that no mobs are likely to effect an entrance. The jail is within the city limits of Richmond.

Five Alleged Conspirators

Paris, May 9.—Five prisoners, including Captains Tamburina and Volpert, are charged with plotting a conspiracy against the state and having in their possession military equipment and ammunition. Several officers testified that Tamburina had proposed the seizure of President Loubet and the ministers, the palace of the Elysee and other public buildings. The accused deny the statement.

Millionaire Weds Hello Girl

New York, May 9.—December and May were united in St. Cecilia's church, Brooklyn, when E. R. The groom's engagement present to his fiancee was $100,000, and he also gave her $15,000 for her trosseau.

Mystery In Child's Death

Norfolk, May 9.—Detective Dongan of the New York police left here for New York last night with Susie Edwards, the negro woman who was arrested upon her arrival from New York on the charge of having abandoned a 9-year-old negro girl on a wharf in New York, the girl dying afterward, presumably as the result of drugs.

Auto Race Across the Country

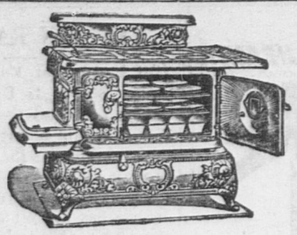

New York, May 9.—Two runabout automobiles, manned respectively by Dwight B. Huss and Milton Wigil, and by Percy Megargie and Bertin Stanchfield, have started from New York to race to Portland, Ore., for a cash prize of $1000, offered by the National Good Roads association.

MILLINERY NOTES.

Small Hats Require Piquant Faces and Smartly Coiffured Heads.

On a small, piquant face and with a beautifully neat coiffure the small hats of the season are very fetching, but the majority of women have to be careful how they adopt millinery of this kind. Modifications both in the tilt and in the height of the bandeau will have to be employed and the width of the brim graduated in accordance with the shape of the head and the manner in which the hair is arranged for these shapes to be successfully worn.

These small hats should not be overtrimmed. Indeed, a few bunches of flowers where the brim curves or a rosette or so of ribbon is sufficient.

A delightful little morning hat is a close fitting turban in two shades of brown straw, with a little piping of brown velvet. A knot of velvet appears in the front of the model, which is tilted with a rather exaggerated incline over the eyes. Two shaded brown feathers at the back come low on the hair.

As the season advances there will be an attempt to revive the mushroom shape in a small size, trimmed with a folded scarf of embroidered gauze or fine lawn and a high bandeau of dark colored ribbon or velvet.

The hat illustrated is of leaf green straw. The brim is a double affair, between the edges of which are placed tiny button pink roses and their foliage. About the low crown is a twist of shaded green and rose ribbon, which ties in two smart bows at the side of the hat where it is slightly indented.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Ancient Platinum.

The discovery of platinum was long thought to be quite modern. In the first half of the sixteenth century it was noticed that gold ore from the Spanish mines in Darien sometimes included grains of a white metal which possessed the qualities of what are called the noble metals, but there were no existing records to throw light upon the matter. As the Spaniards prohibited its export, it was another hundred years before the metal began to find its way into Europe, and it was not till about 1750 that its properties were really investigated. In 1901 M. Berthelot, the famous French savant, made an astonishing discovery in Egypt. He was examining a metal box, once the property of an Egyptian queen of the seventh century B. C., and in it he found a plate which at first sight he took to be silver, but afterward turned out to be made of an alloy of gold and platinum. Doubtless the platinum came from the alluvial deposits of the upper Nile.

One Way to Catch Frogs.

In looking over a book of travels in France, written more than 100 years ago, I came across an interesting bit about the way of catching frogs for market. The author mentions the fact that frogs were sold by the hundred in the markets, that they were classed as fish and that only the hind quarters were eaten. But to come to the main point he says: "To catch the frogs the fisherman puts one of them in a glass vessel, which he dips into a brook, on which the creature, finding itself in so strange a situation confined in the midst of water in a transparent machine, or, I may say, invisible prison, begins to croak most melodiously, and by his croaking makes multitudes of other frogs come to him on every side, as if to rescue their companion, when the frog fisher valiantly seizes his prey."—London Chronicle.

THE HUMAN BRAIN.

It Is Our Most Highly Specialized and Vitalized Organ.

The story of the brain as scientists have gradually unfolded its peculiar construction is of marvelous interest. This pulpy and apparently homogeneous mass is revealed to us as the most highly specialized and vitalized organ in the human body. It consists of hundreds of millions of separate and independent organisms, once known as nerve cells, but now called "neurones." These units of the brain are independent bodies and consist of a cell body, its axis and its branches. The cell body contains within its covering membrane elements which generate the nerve force or energy. The axis is the nerve or medium which conveys that force, and the branches are the means of communication of the neurones with each other and with the organs and tissues to which the nerve is distributed. The life history of these microscopical bodies is the same as the cells of other organs and tissues. They are implanted before birth and may remain dormant for a lifetime. If stimulated to activity they enlarge through more abundant nutrition, but waste and atrophy when the stimulant is removed. They are undergoing constant changes through the process of nutrition and from the innumerable impressions made upon them by objects within and without the body.—Stephen Smith, M. D., LL. D., in Leslie's Magazine.

OLD TIME COSMETICS.

A most repulsive cosmetic, but one which some Roman dames of antiquity esteemed as most precious, was the blood of the young hare.

During the sixteenth century the water in which beans had been boiled was used as a complexion wash, and this farinaceous water is entitled to all the fame it possesses. The ancient Gauls, whose beautiful color was a subject of so much envy to the patrician Romans, washed their faces in the foam of beer; also in a liquid made from dissolving chalk in vinegar.

An old Italian recipe for obliterating the injurious effects of salt air and sunshine is to bathe the face with the white of an egg well beaten. Let it dry on the skin and rinse it off after fifteen minutes. This treatment must be repeated three or four times and always at night before retiring.

Rome under the empire and Greece during the time of Pericles were seized with a mania for golden hair. Many a dame dampened her raven tresses in the strongest of muriatic acid and sat in the sun to bleach her hair to the coveted yellow. Others used lye and afterward anointed their heads with oil made from goat fat, ashes of the beech tree and certain yellow flowers.

SHAKING HANDS.

A Few General Rules That Govern This Phase of Etiquette.

When to shake hands is a subject which depends somewhat on circumstances, yet a few general rules may be given. When a man is introduced to a woman she does not shake hands with him unless he is decidedly elderly or distinguished. If he is the husband or brother of the woman presenting him it is natural to receive him cordially by shaking hands, but it is not form to do so if he is a mere acquaintance.

A hostess should shake hands with every guest who comes to her house, both on their arrival and departure. Women do not shake hands when introduced to each other, but merely bow. When, however, a young girl is presented by a friend to a married woman the latter shakes hands with her, but the girl must not make the first advance.

Men shake hands when introduced to each other as an expression of good will. When leaving an entertainment a man shakes hands with the hostess, and he may do so with friends who are near, but he must not go about shaking hands generally.—New York Journal.

To Strengthen the Eyes.

The eyes will be greatly strengthened by putting the face down into a glass or eye cup of water the first thing in the morning and opening them under water. This is somewhat difficult to do at first, but if the water for two or three days be tepid and gradually be made colder by imperceptible degrees until it is no shock to put the face into quite cold water it will soon become easy and is very invigorating and refreshing. The eyes should be wiped after this by passing a soft towel very gently from the outer angle inward toward the nose.

A Dissembler.

"Leonidas," said Mr. Meekton's wife, "look me in the eye and answer me one question. Have you ever deceived me about anything?"

"Well, Henrietta," he answered after much hesitation, "I must confess that I have not been altogether frank. On numerous occasions I have dissembled to the extent of trying to appear far more amiable than I really felt."—Washington Star.

Like a Whale.

"You cannot keep me down," shouted the great orator at a public meeting; "though I may be pressed below the waves I rise again. You will find that I come to the surface, gentlemen."

"Yes," said an old whaler in the audience, "you come to the surface to blow."

Thin people should bathe as often as possible in warm water. Warm water is absorbed by the skin more readily than cold.

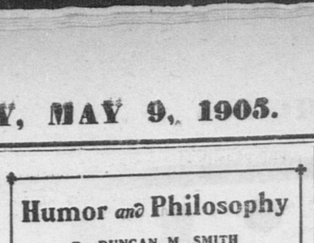

Humor and Philosophy

GENTLE SPRING.

By jing!
Funny about spring.
You never know
Whether to expect snow
Or 110 in the shade.
None of your hand me down, ready made
Predictions will fit
It.
It is just like picking out the little pea.
It's a case of now you see
It and now you don't. You guess bravely and ten
To one you have to guess again.
Thicker than honey it piles
On smiles,
And falling into the snare
You shed your winter underwear,
Pawn your overcoat
And vote
Winter a back number,
Lulled by false promises to slumber.
But, say,
Next day
The mercury is so low
That you wouldn't care to know
It or any of its friends.
It sends
Wireless messages up and down your spine
As though dropping a line
To recall to your mind
Which season it is you will find
On deck,
And just as it has made a wreck
Of every hope
It shifts the dope
And with a sly
Twist of the wrist brings back weather that is a full cousin to July.
That's it—spring,
Of whom poets sing.
And the next day come around with a red
Nose and a cold in the head.
That is the coy charmer
About whom city folks and farmer Rave.
Why doesn't it behave
And turn out, as it were, more pay dirt?
The outrageous little flirt!

Easy For the Auto.

"Are you afraid of the yellow peril?"

"Not me. If it should ever come fooling around this country we would just turn the red devil loose on it."

Good as an Invitation.

"Do you know, I feel tempted to kiss you."

"If you do I'll scream."

"Don't do that."

"Why not? There is nobody in the house to hear me."

Two of a Kind.

"How does it happen that so many of the chorus girls are such ancient ladies?"

"They have them that way to match the jokes in the show."

Not So Sweet.

Yes, parting is such sweet sorrow,
For the eyes begin to fill
And the breast to heave and the soul to grieve
When you part with your last dollar bill.

The Wrong Color.

"So they caught the thief red handed."

"Well, hardly. He was stealing charcoal."

Saw the Point.

"He has a keen sense of humor."

"Yes; he even finds something to laugh at in his own jokes."

A Feminine Reason.

"Why does a hen cross the road?"

"Probably there is a rooster on the other side."

No matter how green a young man may be, he can always find a girl who is color blind.

What It Costs

... AND ...

What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchan has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in cheaper paper?

FIVE-YEAR LEASE.

President of Women's Club Authorized to Sign.

Brackett House to be Equipped.

Paid-up Membership 283, and $800 in Bank.

The first business meeting of the Quincy Women's club was held Tuesday afternoon in Bethany chapel and brought together some two hundred members. Owing to a sprained ankle, Mrs. E. C. Bumpus, president of the club, was unable to be present, much to her regret, and Mrs. Chandler W. Smith of Wollaston, first vice president, was in the chair.

Dr. Jeffrey R. Brackett has placed his property on Goffe street, Presidents hill, in the hands of a trust, known as the Brackett Charitable Trust, who in turn have executed a five years' lease to the Quincy Women's club. The club voted to authorize its president to sign the lease and to extend the thanks of club to Dr. and Mrs. Brackett

It was voted to make Mrs. Brackett an honorary member of the club.

Brief reports were read by the recording secretary, corresponding secretary and treasurer. The treasurer's report showed eight hundred dollars in the bank and about fifty on hand, with a paid up membership of 283; seventeen failing to qualify for membership.

The temporary house committee showed a plan of the proposed improvements at the Brackett house, cost, etc. Also exhibited three styles of camp chairs from the store of H. L. Kincaide & Co. The club voted that each member contribute toward the house furnishing one dollar each, with which to buy camp chairs, cups, saucers, spoons, etc.

District Nursing was considered, the chairman of philanthropy telling what had been done so far, and what it was hoped to do. A meeting of those interested has been called for Wednesday afternoon, May 17, at First church chapel, when able speakers will tell of the benefits of taking up the work and establishing a nurse in Quincy.

The meeting came to a close at about five o'clock and the ladies all felt that considerable business had been transacted and are looking forward to the fall when the Brackett house will be ready for occupancy and the club will enter upon a larger, broader club life.

Scholars Quarantined.

As a result of a May basket party, two teachers of the Foster Hooper school in Fall River and 14 or 15 pupils are away from the school under quarantine. The teachers are Miss Lillian Butler and Miss Sarah A. Burgoyne. Last Friday evening the pupils who are under quarantine called at Miss Butler's home on Forest street to hang a May basket. Miss Burgoyne accompanied them. According to time honored custom, they were caught, invited in, and entertained. A small nephew of Miss Butler lives in the house with her and during their call her pupils played with him, Saturday he developed scarlet fever, and the teachers and pupils who were in his company have been excluded from school by order of the board of health.

Granite Shipments.

Returns from the railroad shipping terminals for the month of April show the total amount of granite shipped that month to have been 12,097,078 pounds. This is an increase of about 2,000,000 pounds over the previous month. The amount shipped from each terminal was as follows: West Quincy, including the Quarry railroad, 6,260,300 pounds; South Quincy, 5,836,778 pounds.

More Autoists Fined.

Another batch of automobile speeders were arraigned in court this morning for exceeding the limit on the Blue Hills reservation, and fines of $15 each were imposed as follows: Granville E. Foss of Cambridge, George W. Hyde of Newton Highlands, Harley King and Hans Johnson of Boston, Fred Chessman of Somerville, Wilmot J. Lee of Boston, Edward Barber of Boston and Arthur Bowditch of Boston.

CITY FINANCES.

Large Loans Made to Pay Maturing Loans of 1904.

The April 30 statement of City Treasurer Fay just issued shows expenditures by the city during the first four months of 1905 to have amounted to $475,549.72, against $256,758.89 for the same period last year. Of this sum $318,707.43 was on account of 1904 (including $300,000 for payment of temporary loans) and $156,842.29 on account of 1905. The current expenses for the first four months last year were $201,948.92.

The large expenditures of 1905 have been: $34,862.58 for salaries of school teachers; $5,876.14 for city officers; $6,659.19 for interest on city debt; $7,232.92 for interest on temporary loans; $10,635.00 for interest on water debt; $10,265.00 on account city debt; $7,500.00 on account water debt; $6,429.50 to firemen; $6,123.15 for streets and $5,502.63 for street lighting.

The receipts of 1905 amount to $534,286.57, including $113,097.48 cash Jan. 1, $260,000.00 by temporary loans, $69,868.31 in taxes of 1904, $14,139.76 in back taxes, $41,775.81 from water rates. The cash on hand April 30 was $58,736.85.

The temporary loans of 1904, to April 30, amounted to but $114,000.00. The receipts from taxes to the same date were $119,764.24.

According to the statement of City Auditor Sidelinger for April 30, the appropriations for 1905 amounted to $573,790.32; of which $156,462.29 has been expended, leaving a balance of $417,328.03 unexpended. The expenditures on account of 1904 amounted to $18,707.43, of which $4,279.07 was for sewer construction and $1,098.23 for streets.

While temporary loans are authorized in anticipation of taxes of the current year, it appears that they are used largely to pay maturing temporary loans of last year. The current expenses of 1905 were only $156,842.29 to April 40, and with cash on hand amounted to $215,579.14 but $300,000.00 have been raised on temporary loans.

—The report of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children has investigated 5208 cases during the past year, which would indicate that there was a field for it here, in spite of the boasted progress of civilization in Massachusetts. There have been over 100,000 cases under the eye of the society since its organization.

MERCHANTS' WEEK.

Waltham Sets an Example for Quincy and Other Cities.

Quincy might with profit follow the example of the city of Waltham, which is this week observing "Merchant's week." Quincy is about the same distance from Boston and has a large number of surrounding towns whose people like to trade here. Waltham is in holiday attire and is providing entertainment every day and evening and Boston papers are giving the city about a column of space per day.

The Herald says: "Merchant's Week in Waltham has already proved a greater success than was anticipated, although the affair was extensively advertised in many of the surrounding cities and towns. The beautiful weather during the past two days has enabled hundreds to visit the Watch city and all the business men are elated.

"The city is attractively decorated, and never before was so much bunting placed on the buildings along the principal thoroughfares. There is hardly a store on Moody and Main streets on which bunting is not displayed.

"One of the drawing cards for the week is the window displays. Waltham stands high in the character of its manufactures, and the total production amounts to about $10,000,000. In many of the windows the various things made in the factories and shops are on exhibition. There is also an interesting display of fruit and vegetables, and an exhibit of posters."

A committee of the Quincy Board of Trade should visit Waltham this week and see "Merchants' week" in full blast. If it is all that is claimed for it, why not have a Quincy Merchants' week in June?

PAST GRANDS

Show the Boys How to Initiate Candidates.

Over 200 Odd Fellows assembled Tuesday evening at I. O. O. F. hall when Mount Wollaston lodge observed the anniversary of the order in an unique manner. Among the guests were—Grand Master George H. Fuller of Boston, Grand Instructor William M. Webber of Boston, Grand Herald William C. Collett of Boston, District-Deputy Silas F. Westcott, and other grand officers; also delegations from John Hancock lodge of Wollaston, Neponset lodge of Neponset, Crescent lodge of Weymouth, Puritan lodge of Braintree, and several other lodges.

The program included an exemplification of the initiatory upon two candidates by a staff composed entirely of Past Grands of the lodge, some of whom passed the chairs nearly twenty years ago, viz:

N. G.,—Frank L. Carlton.
V. G.,—William Patterson.
R. S.,—Walter H. Cobb.

R. S. S.,—Charles H. Wood.
L. S. S.,—Arthur W. Stetson.
Sup.,—Sam Wood, Jr., Archibald F. Macleod, Charles S. Hobart, Frank F. Prescott, Tobias H. Burke, Nathan Ames and others.

Electrical effects and music added to the impressiveness of the work. The Grand Officers complimented the Past Grands for the interest they manifested in the lodge, and complimented the work very highly. It was very seldom equalled they said. Refreshments and a social time followed.

The music during the evening was by George Ripley pianist, and a trio composed of Richard Bishop, Robert Kennedy and Charles Barron.

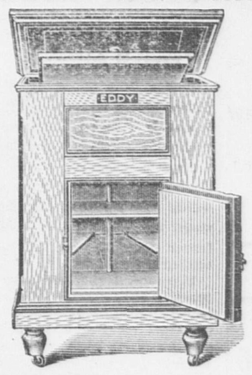

Enrolled in Middle Temple

London, May 10.—Ambassador Choate formally was called to the bench of the Middle Temple last night. The ceremony was strictly private. The function took the form of an ordinary dinner in the old dining hall which Queen Elizabeth opened in 1570 and in which, before Queen Elizabeth, Shakespeare acted "As You Like It." Several rules were suspended last night in honor of Choate.

Had Lost on Races

New York, May 10.—A man and woman, as yet unidentified, both apparently Japanese, were found last night shot to death in a room of a hotel on the Bowery, where they had registered as Myron Lewis and wife. The man had apparently shot the woman and had then shot himself. The police learned that the man had said he had lost $1700 at the races at Belmont park on Monday.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The washing of the dirty linen of the Equitable society in full view of the curious public may not be a very edifying spectacle, but it is necessary in the interest of sanitation.—Philadelphia Record.

☞ The treasury department of the United States, after serious deliberation, has decided that dead rabbits are venison. It does not follow that live rabbits are deer, and until the department is asked on that point we shall never know precisely what they are.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ The advertisements of the breakfast foods continue with a pertinacity that shows how much value the public attaches to its morning dish; and it also shows how much can be done by good advertising. How much would anybody in particular know about any of these articles if they were not dinned into their very ears every day in the big advertising sheets?—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ Treasurer Chapin's innovation of a monthly statement of the financial condition of the state is a good one. There is a doubt whether many people will read it or will stop to figure out just what it means as to the administration of the state affairs, but it is a good thing to have it published where it can be read and studied, and of course it is to be hoped that sometime there will be enough interest in the affairs of the government so that it will be utilized to its full value.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ The fault of most American college students, male and female, is that they are too aggressively collegiate in their outward appearance and speech. They are always wearing pins and badges; always talking about the machinery of college, and raising the yell; things that anyone can put on and get up, independent of ability or character. The truest alumni and alumnæ are those who exhibit their studentship as little as possible, but carry about with them a charm, a refinement, a cultivation, and an elevation of purpose in all they say and do, which only a college life can give.—Dr. William Everett.

☞ It has been said many times by various people with regret, that Quincy is a series of villages and not a real city, that general improvements are made only with great difficulty, and that united action is not possible. If the whole High school could be brought into one session and one building a great gain in unity would be made, since united action by the pupils of today would mean common action on the part of the city's coming citizens, and this in turn would mean preparation for future concerted action for the general welfare of the whole city. As it is now, with the school in three sections, it is not possible to secure hearty support from the whole school of anything undertaken, in athletics, a school paper or a social. ON WOMAN'S CLAIM

Receiver Is Appointed For a Brokerage Concern

ACTION WAS UNEXPECTED

Defendants Did Not Know of Pendency of Proceedings--Sweeping Injunction Against Haight & Freese

Boston, May 10.—Judge Colt, in the United States supreme court, appointed James D. Colt as receiver for the brokerage concern of Haight & Freese, a New York house, whose principal Boston office is at 85 State street, but which has a branch office on Summer street and other offices in many different cities in New England and the central states.

The receivership and a sweeping injunction were granted after an ex parte hearing on a bill of complaint brought by Anna L. H. Weiss of Needham, administratrix of the estate of Charles Weiss. The complainant alleges that her husband lost $5220 as a result of his dealings with the firm.

The property of the concern is tied up by a rigid injunction, all persons connected with it who are named in the bill being restrained from transferring or disposing in any way of the money, etc., belonging to the corporation, though standing in any of their names.

Mrs. Weiss alleged in her complaint that although authorized by its charter to buy and sell stocks, it executed no orders except when it became necessary to do so for the purpose of covering up and concealing the real nature of its business. All transactions, she alleges, weer entirely fictitious and fraudulent.

Mrs. Weiss further alleges that her husband paid into the concern between Sept. 2, 1902, and Jan. 31, 1905, various sums to the amount of $5380 which were fraudulently induced. Charles Weiss died on Feb. 17, 1905. An employe of the company, says Mrs. Weiss in her complaint, told her there was due but $160.

The petitioner alleges that there is due her the sum of $5220 with interest. She adds in her complaint: "Many others were induced to believe that the defendant is engaged in legitimate business, whereas in fact the said business is a mere swindling device known as a 'bucketshop.'"

Mrs. Weiss also alleges that the concern has had large profits, that it keeps no regular books of account and had a large number of creditors. There are not enough assets, she declares, to pay the claim. They carry on business, she says, from day to day by means of the money from customers dealing with it.

The defendant company did not know anything of the pendency of the proceedings until the receiver took possession, and the company and its officers were purposely kept in ignorance of the bill and its prayers.

Rarely does the court appoint a receiver and restrain defendants from doing acts on an ex parte hearing where no notice of any kind has been given to the defendants, but this extraordinary course is pursued when the court is led to believe that the ends of justice or the purpose of the bill might be defeated, were an inkling of its purpose gleaned by the parties against whom it is brought.

In this case the company and its officers were kept entirely in the dark. The court was told that it would be hazardous to allow the company to receive notice of the matter, lest when the receiver went to take possession of the property he would find little or no money on deposit. With a view to preclude the persons interested in the company from removing any of the property of the company, if they were so inclined, the court appointed the receiver and made the decree embodying the restraint order on a strictly ex parte hearing.

Receiver In Main Office

New York, May 10.—On complaint of Wridgway Bowker of Camden, N. J., Judge Lacombe has appointed W. D. Edmunds of New York and J. D. Colt of Boston receivers in this state of the Haight & Freese company.

Roger Foster, counsel for the receivers, charges that the Haight & Freese company is insolvent; that it has for a long period been engaged in fictitious brokerage transactions. It is further charged that members of the company have been guilty of misuse of its assets. Receiver Edmunds is in charge of the company's main office, but is unable to give any estimate of its assets or liabilities.

Bowker's affidavit states that he deposited $5500 with the firm's Philadelphia office and alleges he was induced to permit a man named Daniels to manipulate his account. He further alleges that his account without warning was closed out. Bowker swears that the firm bought and sold no stocks whatsoever and made up fictitious accounts of alleged stock transactions which were given to its customers.

AN APPARENT GAIN

Sixteen Hundred Teams Working at Chicago

STREET FIGHTS CONTINUE

They Laek, However, the Open Violence of Last Week--Guards and Police Use Guns, but Nobody Is Shot

Chicago, May 10.—The large department stores and the express companies yesterday resumed business on almost a normal basis. Sixteen hundred teams were at work and the number was increased today.

Notwithstanding this apparent gain, however, there are strong indications that the strike will spread within the next few days, not only among the teamsters, but will involve other unions as well. The drivers of the Wenig Teaming company, a large concern chiefly engaged in delivering flour, went out when one of their number was discharged for refusing to deliver flour to a boycotted house. The Wenig company is a strong factor in the Team Owners' association, which has heretofore sided rather with the Teamsters' union than with the Employers' association. Its stand with the latter organization was something of a surprise.

In some quarters it is feared that the strike of the Wenig company drivers will produce a shortage in the supply of flour, but the officers of the company say that they have a supply sufficient to last the city for a week and that at the expiration of that time they will be able to make deliveries as before.

There were numerous clashes in the streets yesterday between non-union men and the police and union teamsters. There were also a number of attacks made on non-union men by workmen in buildings, who pelted them with all sorts of missiles from a safe distance. These fights, however, bore no resemblance to the open violence of last week. The most serious fight of the day was at Lake and Clark streets, where union teamsters formed a blockade and brought about a congestion of traffic and a series of fights that blocked the streets for nearly an hour. Nobody was seriously hurt, but numerous arrests were made by the police.

Coal teamsters in the business section of the city were the especial objects of attack by workmen in buildings. Missiles of all sorts were showered upon them and in several instances it was necessary for the wagon guards and the police to send a volley of bullets flying toward the windows. Nobody, however, was shot during the day.

The taking of evidence relative to the granting of the injunctions issued temporarily by the United States circuit court in favor of the Employers' association and the seven express companies has begun before Master in Chancery Sherman.

E. B. Eddy, general agent of the United States Express, said: "After the commencement of the strike against the express companies, I held a meeting with President Shea and J. B. Barry and Hugh McGee of the Teamsters' union. Mr. Barry suggested that inasmuch as only 37 men had voted for a strike out of the 700 involved, it would be well to call another meeting and have a referendum vote on the proposition to strike. Shea said that notices were sent to all members and, inasmuch as they had failed, with the exception of 37, to attend the meeting, the vote of those present was sufficient to call a strike and the leaders must be guided by that vote.

"When the strike began some of our drivers assured me," said Eddy, "that they were willing to work, but would have their heads knocked off if they did so. At present the only union men who are still working for us are two who drive wagons containing the government money. They are working by permission of the union." The hearing is unfinished.

SOFTNESS OF SEALSKIN.

Is Rivaled by Human Hair Where Dandruff Is Eradicated.

Sealskin is admired the world over for its softness and glossiness; and yet the human hair is equally as soft and glossy when healthy; and the radical cause of all hair trouble is dandruff, which is caused by a pestiferous parasite that saps the vitality of the hair at its root. Newbro's Herpicide is the only preparation that is fatal to the dandruff germ. Without dandruff there is no falling hair, but a luxuriant growth of glossy, soft hair is certain. Scouring the scalp won't cure dandruff. Kill the dandruff germ. Thousands of women owe their beautiful suits of hair to Newbro's Herpicide. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

RATE LEGISLATION

Secretary Taft Gives Plain Talk to Railroad Men

SHOULD HAVE THEIR AID

Declares In Favor of Tribunal With Authority to Name Maximum Rate--Opposed to Government Railroad Ownership

Washington, May 10.—Secretary Taft fairly took the breath of the 300 railway men, members of the International Railway congress, dining last night as the guests of the American Railway association, when, after being introduced as "The apostle from the Philippines," he emphatically declared that early rate legislation must come so that, if the railway men of the country were wise, they would aid and not hinder it; that the sentiment of the country is such that failure of proper regulation meant a campaign on the subject that would do no good to the railroads.

Absolute silence reigned as Taft spoke his mind on the subject of rates. He was positively against government ownership, he said, believing that nothing so deleterious could come to the country as this solution of the question.

"But," he continued, "you cannot run railroads as you run a private business. You must respond to the public demand. If there is danger of discrimination then you must allow the establishment of some tribunal that will remedy that discrimination." The secretary saw no reason why a tribunal properly constituted should not be competent in every sense of the word to fix a maximum rate.

President Fish of the American Railway association had introduced Taft. In his capacity as toastmaster, Fish was on his feet the instant the secretary concluded. He answered the secretary at length, taking the view that the law to prevent discrimination, double-dealing and secret rebates was ample and he vigorously called for the enforcement of that law. Mr. Fish talked of the vested rights of the money tied up in railways. He apologized for allowing himself to be diverted, and, as he sat down, Taft, who sat next him, queried in a low tone, "May I have 15 minutes to reply?"

This time was given and the secretary utilized it in making himself even more positive as to his position in favor of legislation which would create a tribunal with authority to name a maximum rate. "The law now is," continued the secretary, "as decided by the supreme court of the United States, that first a commission and then the courts may decide whether a particular rate is reasonable or unreasonable. Now in fixing that, in the very mental process in determining whether a rate is reasonable or unreasonable, one has got to fix what is a maximum rate.

"As I understand it, what is proposed is only that in litigated cases a commission shall be constituted that shall fix a maximum rate; in other words, to go through the same process it now goes through to determine what is a reasonable rate. What I am strongly in favor of, though, is that we shall have a body that shall decide things and that shall fix things and that these things shall be decided within a reasonable time finally by the courts."

Mr. Fish again took up the argument, contending it was the question of fixing the price for the seller of goods.

OVER A WIDE AREA

Forest Fires Start Afresh In Southeastern Massachusetts

Plymouth, Mass., May 10.—While the long wished-for rain fell heavily yesterday, and was thought to have permanently checked the great forest fire which had devastated 75 square miles of timberland in the eastern-central part of Plymouth county, some neglected sparks were fanned to life late in the afternoon by variable winds and started small fires in so many places that the weary fire-fighters were called out again last night.

The fires, which are for the most part under the leaves, are scattered over a wide area in the towns of Kingston, Plympton and Carver, necessitating a large number of patrols. Hundreds of tired men, who had rested yesterday morning, believing their work over, were called out again last night, and nearly 100 men were sent from Boston by the officials of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company.

Hartford, May 10.—At the annual meeting of the Connecticut Eclectic Medical association, Dr. S. B. Water Supplies Are Impure

Rutland, Vt., May 10.—President Caverly of the state board of health announces that warnings are to be sent to the cities of Burlington and Vergenes and the towns of St. Johnsbury, Enosburg Falls and Swanton, to the effect that the water supplies must be purified, or else the board will shut off the water on June 1, 1906. By the statutes, the board of health is given the right to govern town and city water supplies.

Jar of Goldfish Started Fire

Haverhill, Mass., May 10.—Fire which damaged a double tenement house here to the extent of $1000 originated on the exterior of the building and burned upwards between the partitions. The small son of one of the tenants, a short time previous to the blaze, had placed a jar of goldfish on the piazza, and it is believed that the jar acted as a burning glass, focussing the sun's rays on the side of the house.

Preparing Rogers Arguments

Montpelier, Vt., May 10.—Attorneys Thomas W. Moloney and John H. Senter are in consultation here regarding the arguments in support of the petition for a new trial of Mrs. Mary M. NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

The ladies of the Swedish Lutheran church give a supper tonight at Faxon hall.

The Quincy base ball club will hold a dance at Coliseum hall, Friday night, dancing from 8 until 2.

People are beginning to ask what is the matter with the new whistle on the power house at Quincy Point.

A needless alarm from box 35 East Braintree this morning was rung in for a brush fire on Bowditch street.

Mrs. George K. Carter left this morning for Providence, R. I., where she will visit her aunt for a few days.

Miss Ruth Whiton entertained a number of her little friends on Monday, the occasion being her seventh birthday.

The joint Committee on Finance and Public Bnildings will meet Thursday night.

The telephone pole at the junction of Hancock and Granite streets becoming rotted at the base began to topple over this morning, and there was danger of its falling into the street and carrying with it a number of electric light wires. Rope guys were put onto the pole to hold it in position until a new pole could be put in.

The Morning Fire.

The alarm from Box 35 at 10.48 this morning was for a fire on the roof of a building on Hancock street occupied on the street floor by William Westland and John P. O'Brien as hardware and periodical stores, and on the upper floor as tenements by Mrs. McGrath and Timothy Downey.

The fire evidently caught from sparks from the chimney of Chase's bakery alighting on the old and dry shingles. The fire worked down through the roof and filled the upper part of the house with smoke. The damage however was slight.

Again this morning the need of permanent firemen was illustrated. The city has but 16 permanent men, mostly drivers of apparatus, and when the apparatus gets to a fire there is no one to handle the hose or ladders.

Chief Williams is very much exercised over this condition of affairs, and has tried to obtain more permanent men, but the City Council is not disposed to provide the means.

When the Chief arrived at the fire this morning three outsiders were the only ones at work. The Chief himself handled the nozzle all alone. Yet the fire was less than 1,500 feet from the Central fire station and in the business part of the city.

The surprising part of it is, that the city is so lucky in escaping conflagrations. Prompt work counts in getting to work at fires, and no one knows it better than Chief Williams.

Look Out For These Swindlers

Chicago, May 10.—Two or more men using the names Anderson, Craft and Todd, have been engaged fraudulently for two months in soliciting subscriptions for magazines and other periodicals in the name of the American Press Association as subscription agents. They have operated here, in Omaha, South Omaha, Council Bluffs, Sioux City and other places. At an earlier date they had worked the eastern states. The American Press Association is not a subscription agency; any one soliciting subscriptions in its name is necessarily a swindler.

GAVE THEM A RUB.

Quincy High Were a Surprise to Somerville.

To be defeated by the champion baseball team from Somerville High school is by no means a disgrace. Moreover the Quincy High school boys, defeated by this star aggregation at Somerville Tuesday afternoon by a score of two to one, consider that it was good as a victory. And so it was. Up to the ninth inning, Somerville got but one run. In the beginning of this inning, Quincy scored one and then it looked like a ten-inning contest, but Somerville rallied a trifle and succeded in getting a man across the plate after two men had been retired.

Pitching honors were about even. Capt. Gram was found for six hits with a total of seven bases. These hits were well scattered and none of the winning runs were made by successive safe hits. The Quincy pitcher received magnificent support, Comins making an error which gave Somerville the first run, and Reilly and Elcock each contributed a misplay, although neither of these were responsible for runs. "Carl" retired five men on strike-outs, and allowed but two bases on balls.

Elcock, Reilly and Doyle were the bright lights of the infield. Doyle made a wonderful juggling catch which would have outdone a real star act at Keith's. Reilly accepted seven chances out of eight, two of these being very difficult. Elcock had nine chances, but made one wild throw to first. "Link" also led in batting, and it was his hit in the ninth that scored Quincy's tally. Nichols did finely behind the bat.

For the first seven innings the Quincy boys went out in one-two-three order. In the eighth, Quincy had three men on bases, but the best Fallon could do was to send an easy one to pitcher and this chance of scoring was over.

In the ninth, Campbell was presented with the first bag and on singles of Doyle and Elcock, he scored.

Somerville got one run in the third inning on an error of Comins and a single by Higgins. In the fourth, fifth and sixth innings the men went out in order. In the seventh, two fine assists by Elcock, prevented Somerville from scoring.

The winning run was made in the ninth. Sherry was out. Burns went to first in Reilly's error and stole second. Rice got a base on balls and stole second. Burns going to third on a hit by Lakin. Burns scored on the return of a long hit to Campbell in left field.

A party from Quincy High showed their loyalty to the team by attending the game, even though it was almost sure of defeat. Among the party were Mr. Harper, Mr. and Mrs. Parsons, Mr. Gammons, Mr. Thompson, Miss Guild, Miss Dow '05, Miss Cummings '05, Miss Bates '06, Miss Sayward '07, Gilson '04, Lakin '08, Sullivan '08 and Elwell '08.

If a Cow gave Butter

mankind would have to invent milk. Milk is Nature's emulsion—butter put in shape for digestion. Cod liver oil is extremely nourishing, but it has to be emulsified before we can digest it.

Scott's Emulsion

combines the best oil with the valuable hypophosphites so that it is easy to digest and does far more good than the oil alone could. That makes Scott's Emulsion the most strengthening, nourishing food-medicine in the world.

MODES IN EVENING DRESSES

White Spotted Tulle the Rage For Young Girls' Dancing Frocks.

White spotted tulle is the rage for young girls' evening frocks, and nothing is more suitable to the freshness of youth than this material. But it must be made over a vaporous skirt to give it a snowy effect. The most successful of these spotted tulle dresses have first an underskirt of taffeta covered with a second skirt of mousseline and then the tulle. On the bottom of the skirt is a wide Louis XVI. plaiting with a narrow ruching on each side and here and there a chou of white satin ribbon. The bodice is cut lower in front than in the back. The sleeves have a circle of pink roses above flouncings of tulle, leaving the arm bare beneath the roses. On one side of the decollete waist is a circlet of roses and on the other a ribbon bow.

Invisible checked taffeta is very much used both for the elaborate afternoon toilet and tailor made gowns.

An attractive checked taffeta in framboise color is made with a skirt stitched down in panels marked by bands of white soutache braid and fits closely to the figure in the upper portion. Toward the base the soft silk is slightly draped in Louis fashion and caught up at intervals by tabs of embroidered linen over a full plaiting of the silk, creating a unique effect. The corsage is a semibolero cut up in broad straps, each bordered with a white braid passing beneath a girdle, forming a tabbed bask.

FRANCE DOING HER BEST

Intends to Preserve Neutrality In Waters of Indo-China

Paris, May 10.—The arrival in Paris of Paul Cambon, the French ambassador in London, following his conference with Foreign Secretary Lansdowne, probably will permit the authorities here to learn the sentiments in British official circles concerning French observance of neutrality. Thus far only informal representations have been made from Great Britain, but it is gathered that informal talks between officials in London and Paris have permitted the British authorities to use friendly councils with both sides towards preventing the controversy from assuming an acute form.

Premier Rouvier, Foreign Minister Delcasse and Colonial Secretary Clemental are acting together in the adoption of various measures to secure the observance of neutrality. Admiral Touchard, chief of the naval staff, also holds frequent conferences with Rouvier and Delcasse relative to orders to the French squadron in the far east. The officials here, having done their utmost, are holding Admiral De Jonquieres and other officers in Indo-China personally responsible for the execution of their orders. The newspapers do not show a menacing attitude.

French naval critics maintain that Japan's real intention is to induce France to drive Admiral Rojestvensky northward, thus assisting in the execution of Admiral Togo's naval strategy.

Satisfaction For Germany

Berlin, May 10.—The German newspapers condole with Great Britain on the uncomfortable position she has been placed in connection with both Japan and France by the action of Rojestvensky. It is rather difficult to restrain the satisfaction felt in Germany over this check to the understanding between Great Britain and France, which has been the subject of much thought on the part of the government here.

John L Miller Replies to Dr Record

Says Gould Plans are Extravagant.

Claims Great Saving by Some Other Plans.

Editor of the Daily Ledger:

I note in your issue of the 8th, a letter signed W. Record. While I have no desire to trespass on your space or enter into a newspaper controversy with a fellow member of the School Committee, yet I think that his letter calls for an answer.

I suppose that the Doctor thinks that he has given us a dose that will kill or cure, but not so, for it is only a little sugar and water.

Now he accuses us of "assuming," but I would respectfully ask him what else he has on the much vaunted Gould plans? He has said himself that he does not believe those plans can be carried out for less than $150,000, yet Mr. Gould, the architect, states that they can be built for $125,000, while the five architects that submitted plans this year, state that theirs can be built for from $73,000 to $76,000, exclusive of their fees. This includes connection with the sewer, and entire new heating plant for the old building.

As they are all reputable architects, shall their word not be taken as well as Mr. Gould's?

Then note the Doctor's comparisons of the old building, its area and cost. Well, Mr. Editor what business man has not seen one or two bidders on a specified contract get very much more than it was worth, simply by knowing how to pull the strings.

All I can say is if the present building cost $62,000 it was a great waste of money, for I have seen a building superior to it in architecture, in material and capacity, built within four years, having eight rooms and a chapel, that only cost $43,500.

Again the Doctor says that either of the plans recommended by the minority proposes an addition of not less than 10,500 to 11,000 square feet. Surely he can't mean that, or I must infer that he was sleeping when the McFarland, Colby & McFarland plan was under discussion, for it only calls for 7,500 square feet, and that at one end of the present building, thereby saving the excavation of two cellars, the building of two cellar walls, and only tearing out one end of the present building. Will any builder or any business man call that a slight saving? I think not.

One of the reputable builders of Boston states that he will build this building in every respect as good as the present building so that the total cost of the completed structure will not exceed $75,000. I wonder if that is assumption?

But Mr. Editor, for argument's sake I will take the Doctor's estimate that these plans will cost $100,000. He has also stated that he did not believe that the Gould plans could be built for less than $150,000. Now will not the taxpayers of our city ask where is the $50,000 difference to go? Is it not worth saving?

But he says that we will only build one wing of the Gould plan now, and that can be built for $65,000. Mr. Gould says so. "But we will take the gymnasium from the south wing and put it in the north wing" and in doing so we will have to move an entrance to make room for it. Will not this add to the cost? So that, with a half completed structure, and we have a cost of a completed building after the McFarland, Colby & McFarland plan.

Then in four years at the most we must tear up the school again to build the south wing. What contractor would not make a big reduction in his price to do the whole at once, rather than make two jobs of it?

Now, Mr. Editor, I have no personal object in antagonizing the Gould plans, only in the interest of the taxpayers. I want to give the High School scholars of our city the best we can afford, but I do not think it is true economy to borrow money for extravagant school buildings. The building does not make the scholar, for many of the most brilliant scholars our country has produced did not get the foundation for their learning in $200,000 school buildings or even $50,000 buildings.

Now Mr. Editor, if I was discussing medicine or higher education in the college, then I would bow to my learned friend, but in the erection of buildings, I cannot show him that deference. I have no hesitancy in saying that the Gould plans call for an extravagant expenditure of money, of much waste room, of class rooms in the rear of the assembly hall, where the only entrance is through the hall or down a flight of stairs, where the master could have no oversight. It is so isolated from the main corridor that it reminds me of a contagious ward in a hospital.

Then with all the defects and changes necessary in the much lauded plans, should it be changed and the other architects not have an equal chance.

Dr. Record made the statement that the Board should have only considered the five sets of plans for five minutes, and then sent them back to the Public Buildings Committee. I ask, is that a right spirit to consider this great question with? I think not. I am for the minority.

J. L. Miller.

Kerr and Edward Ford two of the young fellows who it is alleged stole a quantity of dynamite, electric battery and wire last June from various quarries at West Quincy and Milton, were given a hearing at the district court this morning. Ford was arraigned upon four complaints, for breaking and entering, three at Quincy and one at Milton. Both were held for the grand jury.

TODAY'S COURT.

John G. Whitman, Robert H. Fraser, Edgar F. Hathaway, Robert S. Bradley were fined $10 each for speeding automobiles at Weymouth.

IN FAVOR.

The Extension of Maple Place.

Public Hearing to be Given.

A City Square Artery Very Much Needed.

A public hearing will be held before the City Council next Monday evening on the acceptance and laying out, as a public way, of Maple place from Washington to Chestnut and Hancock streets. This is an improvement which has long been needed, and the chances are brighter for favorable consideration.

Maple place at the present time extends from Washington street to the estate of the late Charles S. French. There has been a path, however, from the end of the street to Hancock street, which is much used and is found very convenient. It will become more so when the new Federal building is erected on the corner of Washington street and Maple place.

The plan of the street, as contemplated, lays it out to a width of 35 feet, which is a trifle wider than at present.

On the south side a narrow strip containing 430 square feet is taken from the property of H. H. Faxon, 225 square feet from the property of Mrs. Kingman, and 36 square feet from Robert T. Johnson.

On the north side 113 square feet is taken from the government lot, 189 square feet from Henry H. Faxon, and 325 square feet from Mrs. L. A. Gill.

From the present end of Maple place the street runs at a slight angle toward the north taking 4,830 square feet from the C. S. French estate.

The proposed street when it passes through the Dr. French estate cuts off the larger part of the L recently occupied by Frank F. Crane, and now owned by Fred B. Rice. It also takes off a corner of the old house now owned by Robert T. Johnson.

This street can be laid out and accepted now, cheaper than at any future time, as it is understood that in the event of its not being accepted, Mr. Rice will build a business block fronting on Chestnut street, upon the site where the proposed new street enters.

The land taken from the estates on Maple place are narrow strips and will improve rather than damage the property. The greatest expense therefore will be the land taken from the Dr. French estate. The fact that the rear part of this land will be enhanced in value should reduce the price to be paid for the land taken.

The street will be a short cut to the Public Library, the Y. M. C. A. building and the post office when built, and will also divert travel from Chestnut street which is very narrow. City Square needs all the wide arteries it can have.

—This is the age of big ships. Two American steamers have been built for the Pacific trade, each of which can carry freight enough to load ten miles of railway cars, to say nothing of the thousands of passengers they can accommodate.

RECEPTION TO

MISS JULIA E. UNDERWOOD.

A general invitation is extended to the public at large to attend the testimonial reception on FRIDAY EVENING, May 19, 1905, at High School hall, to Miss Julia E. There will be a reception and informal entertainment. The aim is a social time rather than a society event.

EIGHT TO SEVEN.

Another Victory for Adams Academy at Base Ball.

Adams Academy defeated Roxbury Athletic Association on Wednesday 8 to 7, making her record 5 games won out of 7 played. The Roxbury High team could not come because several of the players have been put off the team temporarily for low scholarship, so a game was arranged at the last minute with the above mentioned club which is composed chiefly of old Roxbury High players.

A C.O.D. BUNDLE.

Blankets as Well as Shoes Ordered by Gray.

Robert Sweeney of East Milton was somewhat surprised to receive a C. O. D. bundle from Jordan, Marsh & Co. this week calling for $18. The bundle contained twelve bed sheets and were a special order. Mr. Sweeney says he uses bed sheets but something a little less expensive answers his purpose. Investigations developed the fact that one Freeman Gray had telephoned Jordan Marsh & Co and ordered a dozen sheets of special pattern made up with instructions that they be sent C. O. D. to Mr. Sweeney.

One of Gray's hobbies when out of jail is to call up some Boston firm and have goods sent C. O. D. to Mr. Sweeney, or to represent himself as a messenger from Mr. Sweeney and call for the goods himself. Some time ago Gray got a dozen pair of shoes from a Boston wholesale firm upon Mr. Sweeney's name, and after pawning the shoes called up the firm by telephone telling them what he had done and where they could find the shoes.

After ordering the sheets for Mr. Sweeney, Gray came to Quincy and ordered a half dozen pair of shoes from the Atlas shoe company. The shoes were sent to Quincy in the name of Smith to be charged to the Granite Shoe store. A fake bundle was sent out and when Gray went to Quincy depot for the shoes he was placed under arrest, and the court sent him to jail for six months, a place from which he had been released less than a month ago. Mr. Sweeney says he is glad to know that no more goods will be obtained in his name by Gray for six months at least.

One of the features of American railroading which has caused the most comment among the foreigners attending the International Railway Congress in Washington has been the number of prominent railway men who have risen to positions of trust and responsibility after having started at the very foot of the ladder. Such a thing is, they claim, almost unknown in European countries as a man starting life as a freight brakeman rising to the position of general manager or president of a great railroad, and yet there are numerous instances of this kind among the American delegates to this Congress.

Drift of Opinion.

When Nature wakens from her long, long rest,
What time it seemed so vain to hope for change,
Our hearts are touched with feelings new and strange,
As if with sudden revelation blest,
The beauty of it all by us confest,
The glory on the hill and in the grange;
And we from point to point in gladness range,
Like bird that flies all in and out its nest!
As through a magic glass we surely see
The wonder of the world makes living clear;
There comes to us as to the bush and tree,
This visitation of the rising year,
And we with love and truth once more are free,
And find that life possesses all that's dear.
—William Brunton.

☞ It is interesting, to the people who have followed the career of agricultural fairs in this part of the country, to note that the Taunton fair when it resumes business will start out largely on the lines that have made Brockton famous, and that have aroused the ire of some of those excellent people who have the belief that oldtime agricultural fairs are the only fairs that should be allowed in the list. Taunton has found that the closer she follows the modern idea of fairs the closer she is likely to get to paying expenses and perhaps to making some money. If Taunton will adopt another modern idea, and keep the sight and results of too much liquor and too much gambling away from the people who patronize her shows, she will find another helpful move has been made. As for the excellent people who have striven through the years to run old-time fairs with the apple and the pumpkin and the grape and the quilt and the prize hog as attractions, they have died for all time and the trolley has helped to kill them by taking the agriculturists around and showing them what there is in the world that is really attractive. They can never revive. They are as dead as the lyceum lecture courses.—Brockton Enterprise.

MUST OBEY THE LAW

Roosevelt Has a Talk With Strikers at Chicago

WILL SUPPORT MAYOR

No Action Has Been Called For by Him, but If It Does Come He Will Try to Do Justice to Both Sides of the Controversy

Chicago, May 11.—A committee of laber men appointed to call on President Roosevelt and lodge with him a protest against the employment of federal troops during the present teamsters' strike was granted an audience late yesterday afternoon. The committee consisted of President Shea of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, President Dold of the Chicago Federation of Labor, Vice President O'Neil of the Chicago Federation of Labor, T. P. Quinn, a member of the Canvassers' union, and T. Rickert, president of the Garment Workers' International union. The members of the committee, President Roosevelt and Secretary Loeb were the only persons at the conference. An account of what passed in the room was given out by Secretary Loeb.

After presenting the protest to the president, Shea, acting as spokesman, said that they had understood that the employers had asked the president's aid for bringing troops to Chicago. The president then read the protest and said:

"I have read the petition you have presented to me, the conclusion of which is a request for a hearing before any action be taken by the federal president relating to the Chicago strike situation. As yet, no suggestion of any kind has come to me from any source that I should take action. Of the merits of the case I am wholly ignorant. I have no knowledge of what the situation is or of what steps should properly be taken to end it.

"I feel, however, that, in view of one statement, or series of statements in your letter, I ought to say this: I regret that you should in the letter have spoken at all of the use of the federal army as you have there spoken. No request has been made to me for action by the federal government but, at the same time, as you have in this communication to me brought up that fact, I want to say one thing with all the emphasis in my power. In upholding law and order, in doing what he is able to do to suppress mob violence in any shape or way, the mayor of Chicago has my hearty support.

"Now let me repeat that I know nothing of the facts of the situation. I know nothing of the right or wrong or the points at issue. What I have to say is based purely upon what I regard as the unfortunate phrasing of a letter presented to the President of the United States. I have not been called upon to interfere in any way, but you must not misunderstand my attitude. In every effort of Mayor Dunne to prevent violence by mobs or individuals to see that the laws are obeyed, and that order is preserved, he has the hearty support of the President of the United States.

"I am a believer in unions. But the union must obey the law, just as the corporation must obey the law; just as every man, rich or poor, must obey the law. As yet, no action has been called for by me, and most certainly if action is called for I shall try to do justice under the law to every man so far as I have power. But the first essential is the preservation of law and order, the suppression of violence by mobs or individuals."

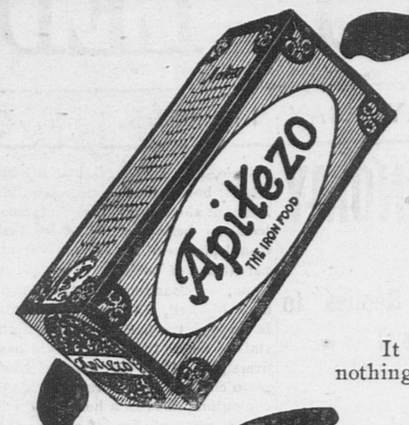

This closed the interview and the committee withdrew.

It was generally understood by both sides to the strike that there would be no disturbances while President Roosevelt was in the city. Notwithstanding this tacit agreement, there were a number of outbreaks, one of them taking place in Michigan avenue, a short time after President Roosevelt had passed the spot. In this riot a number of men were cut and shot.

The fight began when union teamsters recognized Joseph Stewart, a negro, as a non-union driver. They rushed at him and he ran for non-union headquarters. He tripped and fell just as he entered the door and called for help. A score of his comrades entered and a fight followed. One of the five union men drew a revolver and fired, striking Stewart in the leg. Two other negroes were hurt during the scrimmage. The union teamsters were compelled to run. There were numerous other instances of stone-throwing.

The employers sent out more wagons yesterday with fewer guards than at any previous time since the strike began. The Employers' association is steadily increasing the force of non-union men, and it is said fully 2000 men are ready to take charge of the wagons.

George S. Pierce, a union teamster, was shot and killed last night by George T. Waldorn, a deputy sheriff who was guarding a Wells-Fargo express wagon. Pierce was passing when the express wagon, under guard of several deputies, among whom was Waldorn, came down Clark street. Waldorn was formerly a member of the Teamsters' union and Pierce taunted him with his change in employment. Angered by the language of Pierce, Waldorn drew a revolver and fired one shot, the bullet striking Pierce just above the heart. Waldorn was arrested.

A VERMONT MYSTERY

Stranger Perhaps Murdered and Body Thrown Into Water

Manchester, Vt., May 11.—The body of an unknown man was found under the grist mill dam at Manchester Centre and the authorities have instituted an investigation to determine, if possible, how the man came to his death, there being indications of foul play.

The condition of the lungs of the dead man showed that death was not due to drowning. There was a deep cut on the left temple and severe bruises on the right side of the face. The cut, which was more than an inch wide, appeared to have been made by a blunt iron bar or the head of an axe. The coroner held an inquest and reported that death was due to a blow on the head from some unknown instrument.

There was nothing in the pockets or on the body to furnish a means of identification. The man was apparently about 45 years old, tall and of heavy build. He wore cheap clothing.

A stranger answering the description called at Smith's store on Saturday, while another man, also resembling the dead man, aroused a family here at 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning and said that he was being pursued by persons who wished to kill him. The family thought that he was suffering from delirium tremens.

Industrial Education Needed

Boston, May 11.—A strong plea for industrial education was made by Rev. A. A. Berle of Salem at the annual meeting of the Boston Boot and Shoe club, held here last night. Mr. Berle pointed to the example set by Germany in the work of industrial education and said that this country must follow that example if the competition of the world is to be met. He said that no amount of tariff protection will stand against scientific productiveness.

Basis of Bank Failures

Boston, May 11.—Private speculation by officers and directors is responsible for the great majority of bank failures, according to Comptroller of the Currency Ridgely, who addressed the National Bank Cashiers' association of Massachusetts at a dinner here last night. The tendency toward speculation resulting frequently in defalcations had, he said, become much more common during the past eight or 10 years.

To Have Six New Buildings

Lawrence, Mass., May 11.—Work is to be begun at once on the extensive addition to the plant of the Arlington mills, which will include six buildings to be built on Manchester street. A notable feature of the enlargement will be the use of turbine steam engines, making the Arlington mills the first in the country to be so equipped. It is estimated that the improvements will cost fully $2,000,000.

Claims of Manager Dunn's Wife

Boston, May 11.—Frank V. Dunn, known in Boston as a proprietor of the Palace theatre and recent purchaser of the Boston National league baseball club, has been called to show cause in the supreme court in New York why he should not pay his wife, Ida M. Dunn, $75 a week and a counsel fee of $5000 to defend the suit for divorce he has brought against her. She says he is a millionaire.

Suspiciously Large Crew

Providence, May 11.—The schooner Hattie and Lottie from Brava, Cape Verde islands, with passengers, is being held for further inspection by the immigration officers. The Hattie and Lottie, besides a crew of 20 men, carried 20 passengers, but was provided with no manifest or list of passengers. It is also alleged that the number of her crew is more than is necessary to sail the vessel.

Mills Running In Full

Fall River, Mass., May 11.—The Davol mills, where a strike against a warp stop motion and long bobbins was declared seven weeks ago, are now running in full. The strike is still on, however, so far as the union weavers are concerned. The Granite mills, at which a strike occurred about the same time, are also running substantially in full.

Complaint of Bay State Militia

Boston, May 11.—A petition has been circulated by enlisted men of the militia protesting against the date assigned for the mobilization at Westfield, July 5-12, as it breaks in two weeks, and some employers object in many cases to being deprived of their services for that length of time. A petition has been sent to every company in the state.

Exceeded Contract Requirements

Newport, R. I., May 11.—In an unofficial speed trial over a measured-mile course in Narragansett bay, the new gunboat Dubuque maintained a speed of over 13 knots an hour, exceeding the requirements of her contract, which called for a speed of 12 knots. The trial was for the purpose of standardizing the vessel's screws.

[illegible] Militia Needs Overhauling

Concord, N. H., May 11.—Adverse criticism of the state militia is made in the reports of Brigadier General Waldron, inspector general of the New Hampshire National Guard, and his assistant, Major Mason. Lack of accord between company officers and the need for non-commissioned officers' schools are especially emphasized.

Eight Firms Yielded

Natick, Mass., May 11.—The teamsters employed by the local coal and lumber dealers struck for higher wages and shorter hours. Eight of the 13 firms agreed to the terms proposed by the Teamsters' union, but the other five firms refused, and the drivers in the employ of the latter are on strike.

All these offices are directed from the Boston office and the men in charge of them said they were not sufficiently informed about the situation to make a statement as to the prospect of resuming business.

Blue and the Gray United

Manassas, Va., May 11.—A camp fire last night, in which the veterans of the Society of the Army of the Potomac fraternized with their war-time foes, terminated the first day's session of the 36th annual reunion of the society. General Sickles, General Black and Corporal Tanner made addresses expressing gratitude for a united country.

Holy Ghosters Raise Anchor

St. John, May 11.—The yacht Coronet of the Holy Ghost and Us society has sailed for an unannounced destination. A dispatch from Chatham, N. B., says Rev. F. W. Sandford is in the woods of the southwest Miramichi and that he gave out that he is in quest of bears, hawks and owls for his museum.

Is the Only Possible Way of Having An Effective Cure.

If you see a woman or a man with luxuriant glossy hair, you may be sure neither has dandruff to amount to anything. In nearly every case where women and men have thin brittle hair, they owe it to dandruff. There are hundreds of preparations that "claim" to cure dandruff, but not one but Newbro's Herpicide tells you that dandruff is the result of a germ burrowing into the scalp, and that permanent cure of dandruff and its consequent falling and baldness, can only be had by killing the germ; and there is no other preparation that will destroy that germ but Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause, and you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit. Mich.

FIXING UP PAPERS

Haight & Freese Company to Fight Receivership

SEVERAL OFFICES CLOSED

Receiver Appointed For Philadelphia Branch--Three Creditors File Intervening Petitions In Court at Boston

Boston, May 11.—Contrary to expectations, no petition for the removal of the receivership from Haight & Freese company was filed in the United States circuit court at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. At that hour it had been expected that counsel for the company would appear before Judge Lowell, who granted the petition for a receiver made by Mrs. Anna H. L. Weiss, but instead it was announced by one of the clerks in the circuit court office that he had been authorized by counsel in the case to state that papers were in preparation.

Counsel for Haight & Freese is I. R. Clark. He was not in his office, but, it was said, was in consultation with other attorneys. It is not anticipated that the brokerage concern will submit to having its affairs remain in the hands of a receiver without a hard struggle, and the delay in filing a petition is probably due to the desire of counsel to be well prepared.

Three intervening petitions were filed in the clerk's office of the United States circuit court. They were by John P. Moore of Lynn, who states that he is a creditor of the firm to the amount of $1032.50; Hugh R. Blethen, who says he is a creditor to the amount of $2010, and Albert Bonney of Canaan, N. H., who says he is a creditor to the amount of $800.

At the State street office of Haight & Freese company, which is in charge of Receiver Colt, it was stated that Colt was not ready to make any statement for publication. He is busy with the affairs of the concern and thinks that he has a long, hard task before him.

A number of the employes of the concern were on hand and were informed that their services would not be required today, although they might be needed later in settling up the affairs of the concern. The Haight & Freese company employed about 50 persons at the State street office, many of them being telegraph operators working on the private wires that connected the Boston house with the branches throughout New England. Receiver Colt is not ready to make any statement concerning the company and its affairs.

The New York office of Haight & Freese, which was closed when receivers were appointed, remains closed. Yesterday forenoon the Philadelphia office was doing business, but it was closed by orders from New York, and a little later a receiver was appointed for that state. The offices in Portland, Me., Worcester and New Haven, Bridgeport, Hartford and New London did not do business yesterday.

Now that the magnitude of the feat accomplished by Mrs. Anna Weiss of Needham in throwing the business of the Haight & Freese company, the greatest brokerage firm of its kind in the country, into the hands of a receiver, has become generally known, the financial world is wondering what the outcome will be.

Stock brokers and those interested in certain kinds of brokerage dealings are fearful there may be a general onslaught upon the market and that the speculating public who have lost on margins may make a united effort to recover.

It was given out at the office of the company yesterday afternoon that every inch of the ground would be fought against the appointment of a permanent receiver and to preserve the independence of the company from the action of any such receiver.

The members of the firm state that they have no intention of going out of business until it becomes evident that further efforts will be without avail.

Harrisburg, May 11.—Eastern express 88, Pennsylvania railroad, going east, ran into a freight train at 1:10 o'clock this morning in South Harrisburg. Two cars of the freight were loaded with dynamite and three terrific explosions followed.

Both trains were piled in a mass of wreckage, which immediately took fire, and many smaller explosions followed.

Game of Eighteen Innings

Princeton, N. J., May 11.—The most remarkable baseball game in Princeton annals was played with Amherst and finally won by Princeton with a single run after 18 innings of exciting fielding. Doyle held the box for Princeton during the entire contest, equivalent to two games, and twirled in splendid form. McRae of Amherst shared the pitching honors and allowed only one base on balls. The contest was really a fielders' battle and only three men reached third base, including Reid, who scored the winning tally.

Tornado Said to Have Killed Five Hundred Persons

WHOLE TOWN WRECKED

Wires Are All Down and Details Are Lacking--Snyder, In Indian Territory, the Scene of Terrible Disaster

Fort Worth, Tex., May 11.—Reports over railroad wires to Fort Worth say dispatches from Snyder, O. T., to the train dispatcher of the 'Frisco at Sapulpe, I. T., say that a tornado struck Snyder last night, wrecking the town and killing 500 people. Relief is asked for.

A message to the train dispatcher, sent by the Fort Worth Record asking for information, is answered as follows:

"We have same report and are sending a relief in the supposition that it is true. Wires all down."

The telegraph operator at Chickasa, I. T., states that he talked over the telephone with Hobart, O. T., near Snyder, and that all wires in the vicinity of Snyder are down, but relief trains are being sent from several directions to Snyder.

Snyder is a town of 1000 people in Kiowa county, O. T., located on the 'Frisco railroad, 45 miles north of Vernon.

Oklahoma City, O. T., May 11.—The telephone operator at Hobart, 32 miles north of Snyder, states that it is believed in Hobart that 500 people have been killed and injured. Everyone who can render assistance in the capacity of physician, nurse or other necessary work has gone on the special train which left here this morning. Nurses and physicians have been called for at all the towns possible to reach in that section.

Sapulpa, I. T., May 11.—At 11:45 o'clock last night the dispatcher for the 'Frisco in this city received a report from Enid, O. T., advising that a tornado had struck Snyder, O. T., wrecking the town and killing 500 people. The wires between Snyder and Sapulpa went down about 10 p. m.

New Russian Diplomat Coming

St. Petersburg, May 11.—The transfer of Count Cassini to the embassy at Madrid and the nomination of Baron Rosen to succeed him as ambassador to the United States is officially confirmed here. Rosen has twice represented his government as minister at Tokio. He has also served as minister to Servia and Greece.

THE CAMEL IN ARABIA.

It Is Necessary to the Prosperity of the Country.

It would be hard for a person living in any other city in the world to conceive just what an indispensable animal the camel is to the prosperity and welfare of Aden and the adjacent part of Arabia. Even in the ordinary work done by a horse in any other place or country the camel is always used here—in fact, except for drawing a carriage, it completely takes the place of the horse. The camel is used for hauling produce in carts, for carrying freight and other articles and for drawing the sprinkling and water carts. It makes a comfortable riding animal, and at a feast its flesh, of all meats, is considered the best. But it is as a means of transportation and as a beast of burden in passing to and from the interior of Arabia to Aden that it becomes indispensable, and it is altogether probable that without it Aden would have never become the great distributing point it now is. Articles shipped from here to points across the gulf of Aden are also transported by camels into the interior of the African continent.

The amount of the burden varies according to the distance to be carried and to the size of the animal. In carrying goods to and from the wharfs to the different warehouses a few miles a camel will carry a load of from 600 to 900 pounds, but for a long journey from one-third to one-half of this amount is considered a camel load.—United States Consular Report.

MAGIC IN TIBET.

India and neighboring countries are the home of mystery and the black arts. Even in the centers of civilization there are fortune tellers and wonder workers to whom supernatural powers are attributed by those who scorn superstitious belief. Says a writer: "Tibetan peddlers have affirmed over and over again that, living in the mountains near the city of Lassa, there are men possessing extraordinary powers, distinct from and far higher than the ordinary lamas.

"These men cure the sick by giving them rice to eat which they crush out of the paddy with their hands. They perform many other remarkable feats. We are told that a young Bengali in 1882 testified before a number of respectable witnesses that while traveling in Tibet, in the neighborhood of the lake of Manasarawara, he met one of these men accompanied by a number of chelas, or pupils. The master saluted him and, finding that he had nothing to eat, gave him some ground grain and tea.

"As the Bengali had no means of obtaining fire the master called for some fuel and kindled it by simply blowing on it with his mouth. He also cured a shepherd who was brought to him suffering from rheumatic fever, then and there, by giving him a few grains of rice crushed out of the paddy which he had in his hand."

How Sponges Are Prepared.

Sponges are prepared for export in the following manner: After being bought in the local market they are carted to the shipping yard of the purchaser, where they are cut and trimmed into proper shapes and sizes. They are then washed and thoroughly dried, being generally spread in the sun for that purpose upon canvas or old sails. Next they are assorted according to varieties and then packed by means of hand presses into bales weighing from 20 to 150 pounds. Sometimes the sponges are bleached by being passed through a solution of white lime and water so weak as not to injure the fiber of the sponge.

Better Luck Than He Thought.

A young man who had received the privilege of shooting over the land of a farmer got rather close once or twice to the home and the ground adjacent to it. Later in the day, the Country Gentleman says, he met the farmer.

"You've had pretty good luck," said the farmer.

"Well, no," said the young man hesitatingly. "I haven't had any luck at all."

"Yes, you have," repeated the farmer. "This morning you just missed my best Shorthorn."

Carefully Guarded Tea.

The tea used in the Chinese royal household is treated with the utmost care. It is raised in a garden surrounded by a wall, so that neither man nor beast can get anywhere near the plants. At the time of the harvest those collecting these leaves must abstain from eating fish that their breath may not spoil the aroma of the tea, they must bathe three times a day and in addition must wear gloves while picking the tea for the Chinese court.

A Safe Guess.

"A very healthy place, is it?" said the woman who was house hunting. "Have you any idea what the death rate is here?"

After careful reflection, says Punch, the caretaker replied, "Well, mum, I can't 'zactly say, but it's about one apiece all around."

Dodging the Digging.

"Plenty of gold in the land," says a philosopher, "but when it comes to digging for it many of us are content to jog along with poverty."—Atlanta Constitution.

Prayers For Two.

"If your husband were to die would you pray for him?"

"Of course, but at the same time I'd pray for another."—Town and Country.

Aye, people are generally calm at the misfortunes of others.—Goldsmith.

The choir of Christ church of this city will take part this evening at St. John's church, East Boston, in the annual choir festival. Choirs of six churches will be represented—All Saints' of Ashmont, Church of Epiphany of Winchester, St. Mary's of East Boston, Christ Church of Quincy, St. John's of Jamaica Plain and St. John's of East Boston. A Rubber Game.

The Merrymount base ball team promises one of the best games of the season Saturday afternoon at Merrymount Park. They will be matched against the strong Y. M. C. A. team of Boston. The Merrymounts played the Y. M. C. A. twice last year and twice the year before, winning two games and losing two. The game Saturday will decide the contest and all are expecting a very close game. There are still some open dates on the Merrymount schedule and any teams that desire games, should address the manager, Roy C. Baker, Safford street, Wollaston.

Annual Dance.

The Quincy Base Ball club will hold its second annual dance to-morrow evening at Coliseum hall. The officers of the club have worked unceasingly to make the event a success. A feature of the dance will be a prize offered for the best society dance. The following committee will look out for the out-of-town friends: Charles Pitts, Edward J. Costello, John C. McGuane, J. J. Kelly, Alfred T. Bullock, Frank Pitts, George Muse. A special car at the close of the dance for all parts of Quincy. Delegations from Cambridge, South Boston Dorchester, Neponset, Jamaica Plain, Roxbury and Brockton are expected.

Going to Newport.

Miss Blanche M. Thayer, who up to a year ago has been matron of the City Hospital of Quincy since it was founded by Hon. William B. Rice in 1890, has been elected superintendent of the Newport, R. I., hospital. She resigned several times as the duties at the Quincy hospital were arduous, but each time her resignation was not accepted, as the trustees felt she could not be spared and she was granted leave of absence for several months. Last year Miss Thayer again resigned thinking to give up hospital work entirely, but having a love for the work she was not content to be away from the hospital, hence her acceptance of the superintendency of the Newport hospital, which is a large well equipped institution.

Pastor Installed.

Rev. John O. Paisley was installed on Wednesday evening as pastor of the Winthrop Congregational church at Holbrook. The charge to the people was by Rev. W. W. Dornan of Plymouth, recently pastor at Holbrook, and formerly of Quincy. Other clergymen who took part were: Rev. Dr. A. H. Plumb of Roxbury, Rev. T. W. Burrows and Rev. F. C. H. Crathern of Braintree, Rev. John L. Sewall of Randolph, Rev. Harry W. Kimball, Rev. Pearley B. Davis of Roxbury, and Rev. E. D. Goodyear of Abington. The new pastor was born in Zanesville, Ohio, in 1863.

Swedish Fair.

The four days' fair of the ladies association of the Swedish Lutheran church was successfully inaugurated at Faxon hall on Wednesday evening. The attraction on the opening night was an appetizing supper, which was served during the early evening to a large number. The supper was well cooked, well served, and was pronounced excellent.

After supper there was an opening address by the pastor, Rev. John A. Bernhard, singing by the male choir, and music by the orchestra.

Tables for the sale of useful and fancy articles were arranged about the hall. A large assortment of goods were shown, and some good sales were made.

Presentation to H. B. Blackwell.

At Faneuil hall, on Wednesday evening, his 80th birthday, Henry B. Blackwell was presented a solid silver pitcher and salver in recognition of fifty years of active service in the cause of woman's emancipation. Among those participating were Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead, Rev. Edward Cummings, Ex-Gov. Garvin of Rhode Island, Miss Carrie Chapman Cutt, William Lloyd Garrison, Mrs. Henry Villard, Frank Garrison, John Hutchinson and others.

Dolphins for Channel.

Through the influence of Commodore Bryant of the Squantum Yacht club the channel at Wollaston beach will be buoyed by two dolphins. Commodore Bryant made application for these buoys to the government officer at Boston, who promptly turned him down. This did not daunt the Commodore, however, who used his influence with the authorities at Washingtou, and the desired end was accomplished.

More Autoists Fined.

Weymouth officers went on the warpath on Sunday for automobile speeders. Officers were located on a measured track at North Weymouth. They succeeded in holding up four speeders who were arraigned in court this morming and fined $10 each.

May Magazines.

In the current number of Lippincott's Magazine the opening novelette, by Ella Middleton Tybout, is placed in the little State of Delaware. So completely charming is "The Turn of the Tide" that it seems likely to be the forerunner of considerable "Blue Hen State" fiction. The love-story is preeminent and absorbing, while the local color and provincial character show an intimate knowlege of the scenes through which the plot winds to a very satisfying (if unexpected) conclusion. Miss Tybout is remembered as the author of an earlier novelette in Lippincott's magazine, as well as of those popular darky sketches entitled "Poketown People."

Two little farms are started in the centre, consisting of generous vegetable gardens and a little hen farm. Quincy has varied attractions.

Miss Emma Fowler, who is ill with cerebro spinal miningitis, is improving slowly and will probably be removed from the hospital to her home in a few weeks.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

The trouble with some sweet dispositions is that they are so apt to sour on such short notice.

While a doctor may not be able to cure a man with money, he is always willing to try.

There is a tide in the affairs of men as well as an occasional untied in the divorce courts.

When the devil finds work for idle hands he pays them in the wages of sin.

It is a smart girl who can't sing and knows it.

To the young man who is strapped the ice cream sign is a danger signal.

It is enough to cause a man to lose faith in human nature to have some one sneak around and steal a good umbrella from him half an hour after he has stolen it himself.

Walking is good exercise, but the man who has to walk back home from the races already feels exercised enough.

Often a man makes bungling work of holding the baby lest he should get a steady job at it.

A well balanced man will save part of his good fellowship for home consumption.

To the Knocker.

Quit your kicking, quit your kicking,
Quit and get to steady work;
In your crop a grudge is ticking,
Microbes in your system lurk;
O'er you hovers melancholy
Making everything look blue;
Try to be a little jolly,
That's the thing, old boy, to do.

Take the grudge that you have pampered
Forty miles from anywhere,
See that with a can it's hampered,
Turn it loose and leave it there;
Free yourself from its enthralling,
To its ghost no longer cling;
What's the use of always falling
Right afoul of everything?

Quit your kicking, quit your kicking,
Get to work with main and might.
What's the use in always nicking
Scars in everything in sight?
Doesn't bring you any money,
But it trouble brings galore,
So just up and quit it, sonny;
Do not do it any more.

Quit your kicking, quit your kicking;
When did kicking ever pay?
You can hear the cans a-clicking
On the knockers every day.
Have a little love about you,
Laugh and joke a little, too;
Let the kickers kick without you,
That's the thing for you to do.

In the Business.

"Jones is something of a knocker."

"Something? Why, he buys his hammers in wholesale lots."

Did His Best.

"Aren't you ashamed to be caught stealing a horse?" asked the stern judge of the crestfallen prisoner.

"I am, your honor; but, believe me, I watched around for several days and couldn't find a single automobile that wasn't being watched."

Often They Don't.

"She refused two men, one of whom afterward became a governor and the other a senator."

"Did they know anything about it?"

Too Practical.

Proud Father—Which one of the baby's relations does it look like?

The Cynic—If I knew which one was worth the most money I could tell.

Not So Free.

You think you're getting something free,
But later on, it's safe to state,
If you will look around you'll see
That somehow you have paid the freight.

Not His Kind.

"Ever have a doctor treat you?"

"Treat me! I don't call that being treated when I have to pay myself for what he tells me to drink."

Some Evidence.

"Do you think the ancients were smarter than we are?"

"Well, Noah knew enough to come in out of the rain."

Important Matters First.

She settled the affairs of state
As leader of the club,
And when her husband drifted home
He had to eat cold grub.

SOCIAL AID.

First Year of School for Social Workers.

Dr. Jeffrey R. Brackett at Head.

The Benefactor of the Quincy Women's Club.

Quincy, the former home of Jeffrey R. Brackett, is interested in the School for Social Workers, of which he is the head. Especially are the members of the Quincy Women's Club interested because Dr. Brackett has presented them with a club house, and they want to know more of him. Harold Stanley Pollard writes interestingly of the school in the Boston Transcript, which is reproduced in part:

With commencement not far off, the worlds of education and professional training begin to strike their balances of prosperity and progress. This spring finds Simmons College and Harvard University looking back together upon the first year of their joint venture, "A School for Social Workers," around which, just before its actual inauguration last fall, grew more or less misconjecture. People never got much farther than the general purpose of their plan: to give young men and women interested in social service opportunities for more adequate training; and notions as to the origin and nature of the platonic partnership between the two colleges have been amusingly wild. In fact, before considering what the School has to show for its first year of life, one may well do it the courtesy of clearing up its antecedents.

The sponsors seem to have been three. In the first place the desire of Simmons for a course in the application of scientific method to problems of charity, correction, and allied activities, together with the readiness to find money therefor, made the whole thing possible. As a matter of fact, Simmons now provides two-thirds of the maintenance of the School: a proportion which, as a majority of the students (this year about eighty per cent.) are likely to be women, seems not unreasonable.

But the fulfilment of this hope on the part of Simmons came through the suggestion and co-operation of an expert student and teacher in the field, whose five years of experience as a leader in the Summer School of the New York Charity Organization Society has given him practical notions of a more developed and systematic scheme of instruction: to Dr. Jeffrey Richardson Brackett, present director of the School, the undertaking owes its practical form.

As still a third element, however, supporting Dr. Brackett, certain well-known Boston leaders of philanthropy interested President Eliot and so drew Harvard into the plan. And thus it has come about that in her announcement of courses for next year, just published, Harvard presents, under the new head of Social Ethics, a group headed by Dr. Peabody's famous course in ethical theory—the old "Philosophy 5"—and including, besides a new course in Penology, a general course by Dr. Brackett, and this School for Social Workers counting as two full courses in the work for a degree. On the Harvard side this emphasis of Ethical study, this new dignity of district grouping, comes as a fitting culmination to Professor Peabody's twenty years of teaching in Social Ethics. But in fairness as well as gallantry the School is the School of Simmons College and Harvard University. And again it is Dr. Brackett's School.

The School has been "at home" neither in Cambridge nor in the Fenway, but at its own downtown quarters in Hamilton place. As one of the class explained it: "Simmons students can't exactly go out to Harvard and Harvard students certainly can't come over to Simmons, so we find neutral ground here." And "here," in a pleasant place of level lights, carbon prints and comfortable writing-chairs, a class of twenty-eight has spent its academic mornings since last October.

Besides the lectures, discussions, prescribed reading and special reports that have formed this morning side of the course, members have been expected to do, with at least two agencies—always under skilled direction—practical work amounting to twelve hours a week. But as a girl remarked, speaking of this twelve-hour specification: "Anybody who ever found real interest in such work knows what that means." This practical work has aimed to be two-fold: dealing on the one hand with needy families and on the other with larger problems of prevention and neighborhood influence.

Through the cooperation of established agencies of the Associated Charities and leading local settlements, wide opportunities have been offered for experience in various forms of friendly aid, clubhouse management, entertainment and similar activities. Furthermore each student has had excellent chances to see and know much of phases of the work that lay outside his own special department. All this, together with the visiting of various significant institutions such as the Reform School at Lancaster, or the Horace Mann Schools in this city, will have filled, when the the school gives its first certificates in June, a fairly strenuous 8 months' course.

The students, of whom twenty-two are women and six are men—all young, have come from various directions, the majority, as might be expected the first year, from eastern Massachusetts. Some are holders of degrees, some are private workers, some are simply "interested students," several are already active workers in special fields with funds of practical experience that prove constantly valuable to the class as a whole. Such well-known local institutions as South End House, the Associated Charities, the Children's Hospital, the Roxbury League, and the Young Men's Christian Association are thus represented.

Admission to the school is by no means restricted to graduates or undergraduates of the two supporting colleges: it is open to those "who satisfy the director, by their proficiency in courses which prepare for the school, by their experience in some form of social work, or by some other indication of fitness, that they are likely to profit by its opportunities." The result seems to have been a happy variety of temperaments and interests that should make the intimate class-room discussions as profitable for the class as they are entertaining for the privileged outsider. Where one might expect uncomfortable waves of sentiment or overenthusiasm, one finds instead a group of clear-witted people, handling with cool, sympathetic common sense, problems that are often sticky with sentimental suggestion. The exchange is of ways and means, of carefully considered experience, rather than incoherent personal impulse. And this experience is sought from scientist as well as saint.

An important feature of the course has been the frequent chances for the class to come into close, informal contact, through morning talks and discussions, with leading specialists in social and institutional work.

The systematic instruction and the general direction of all work academic and practical have been in the hands of Dr. Brackett and his assistant, Miss Zilpha Drew Smith. In the charitable activites of America few names are better known than these. It would take some half column merely to enumerate the boards whereon Dr. Brackett has sat and the organizations over which he has presided. He was for many years associate editor of the Charities Review and of its successor, Charities, published by the New York Charity Organization Society; and last year he was honored with the presidency of the National Conference of Charities and Correction.

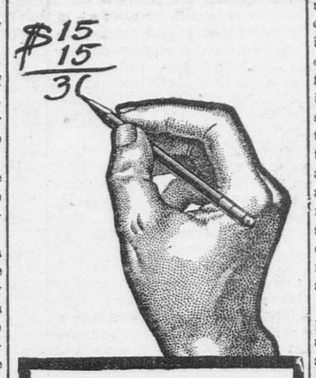

One should understand clearly that the school does not aim primarily to turn out fully trained specialists for high public offices. To quiet workers in private paths, as well as to more ambitious spirits, the course offers, first of all, "a solid foundation on which young men and women may readily build as they go out into the various fields of social work." Significant, however, of the way made in public esteem during this first year are the facts that of those of the present class who look to professional work, one has already accepted a position in a leading local settlement for women; another will join the staff of the Associated Charities; while yet another will become a "welfare man"—a kind of guardian-mediator between employers and employees—in a large mill settlement. These workers will still keep in constant touch with the school, bringing in their experience for the benefit of new classes. As the public demand for skilled effort in these fields increases in volume and distinctness, and as the standards of such training are raised by the influence of workers coming from this and similar schools, one can almost predict a new profession: a time when specially fitted young men and women may be reasonably sure of a well-paid and honored career in scientific social aid. Secretaries of philanthropic millionaires are even now shining marks.

That all this—in an age forever parceling out its work to new sciences and new specialists—is thoroughly abreast of the times anybody can see. Belated are the good folk who look back wistfully to the simple days when the Christian cast his penny to the beggar and went his way in approximate peace. The beggar is now the formidable scientific problem of how to relieve society of its burden of the unfit; and modern thought attacks the question with a growing confidence that "the poor we" need not "have always with us." Old-fashioned good-heartedness is still the best spirit of it all, but old-fashioned good will has to step a bit lively now and then to keep up with trained wits. Massachusetts generally gets into the front line of this kind of march; and if it be a function of universities and colleges to give leadership and the wisdom of wide outlook to the less coherent enthusiasms of a community, then Simmons and Harvard may well feel that a new venture whose first year has added to the brave effort of social service active influences for broad sympathy and trained capacity, stand far to the good in the annual account of progress.

P. O. TO MOVE

Ten Year Lease on Granite Street.

In New Block of Nine Stores.

Will Be Ready for Occupancy September 1.

Plans have been completed by McLean and Wright, and work will be commenced immediately on the erection of a new business block on the north side of Granite street by Henry H. Faxon. The block will have a street frontage of about 295 feet and will extend from the Dr. Welch block to the block now occupied in part by Joel F. Sheppard & Sons.

It will be a one story block but with a sufficient foundation for four stories.

It will contain altogether nine stores. The first will have a frontage of 36 feet and the next three of 24 feet each. These four stores will have a depth of 90 feet. The next five stores will have street frontage of 18 feet each and a depth of 75 feet.

The building will be of fire proof construction with brick partitions between the stores, each of which will be lighted by large plate glass windows on the front, by sky lights and windows in the rear.

The building as a whole will conform to the existing development on Granite street.

The second store in the block will be occupied as the Quincy postoffice. The office will have a frontage of 24 feet and a uniform width of 24 feet to a depth of 40 feet, the balance of the office to have a width of 20 feet.

The government has taken a ten years' lease of the rooms which the postoffice will occupy and it is expected that they will be ready for occupancy September 1.

The building will be constructed by day work under the supervision of Henry M. Faxon.

The rear entrance will be by a driveway 25 feet wide leading from Granite street just east of the railroad track.

In Memoriam.

Josiah Norcross French, whose death occurred last week, was the only son of the late Dr. Charles Smith and Mary Norcross French. He was born in Chesterville, Maine, and after graduating from Kent's Hill college in Readfield, entered into business in Boston. He married Miss Emma Paine of Brownfield, Maine, and had one son, Charles Paine French. He made a lovely home for himself in Medford, but when, in 1897, his devoted wife was taken from him, home became to him a blessed memory of the past. Grief and loss of all that was dearest impaired his health, and he gave up business and went among the New Hampshire hills, seeking health near to nature's heart. He had the artistic temperament, and found the keenest enjoyment in studying nature.

A hemorrhage upon the brain in November caused his death on May first, although all that science, humanity and love could suggest was done for him by skilful doctors, nurses and friends.

His funeral was held at the home of his sister, Mrs. Charles H. Porter, his brother-in-law, Rev. Elbert W. Whitney, conducting the services and the Harvard Male Quartette singing his favorite hymns. The funeral was private for those who knew and loved him. It seemed most fitting to the family for one whose daily life had been lived as in God's sight, tender, pure, unselfish, loving, reaching ever toward the highest ideals, yet so modest that only those who knew him best realized what depths of truth, what strength of character and what religious fervor lay beneath the quiet demeanor. Even at the hospital, where his courage and faith were put to the severest test, all recognized his true nobility of character and made him the object of their special care and solicitation.

Fidelity and constancy marked every act of his life, and his religious faith made him shun everything base and unworthy, and strive to attain the Christ-like spirit and character. To all who knew him, he has left the memory of a noble life.

The burial was at Mount Wollaston.

AN IMPROVEMENT.

Proposed Widening of Hancock Street Near Dr. Gordon's.

Another important public hearing that will be held before the City Council next Monday evening will be on the petition to widen Hancock street on the west side from Saville street to Dimmock street.

Hancock street at this point is now on a curve and the object of widening is to straighten the street, as well as to give more room on the west side between the street railway tracks and the sidewalk.

According to the plan of the proposed widening it starts from nothing at the corner of Saville street and takes a triangular strip from the land of Henry H. Faxon containing 1200 square feet, the width of the strip taken at the line with the Brackett property being 16 feet. It also removes the row of trees in front of the residence of Dr. Garey.

From the Brackett property, now owned by J. Franklin Faxon, a strip of land 16 feet wide, containing 5100 square feet is taken. The row of trees now fronting the Brackett property will, according to the plan, remain, but will be in a green sward between the sidewalk line and the street, so that the widening at this point will be practically the width of the present sidewalk.

From the estate leased by John W. Hall a strip of land 16 feet wide on the southerly end and 10 feet wide on the northerly end is taken, the number of square feet being 672.

A strip of land 10 feet wide, containing 1,700 square feet, is also taken from what is known as the Underwood estate, owned by the Adams Temple and School Fund.

It has been said that some might desire to cut down the large trees now on the Brackett lot, but the general public would doubtless be opposed to that being done. There are not any too many shade trees on our streets now, and any attempt to cut down these beautiful trees would rightly raise a howl of objection. If allowed to remain in the green sward on the edge of the sidewalk, as proposed by the plan, they would not only continue to furnish shade, but be very ornamental as well.

The total area of land to be taken is 8,672 square feet.

Plain Strawberry Shortcake.

Sift two cups of pastry flour with four level teaspoons of baking powder and a saltspoon of salt. Rub in two rounding tablespoons of butter and mix with about two-thirds cup of milk; not quite as much milk is needed when butter is added as for plain rolls. Have a square shallow pan buttered and roll the soft dough out to fit. Dip a knife into melted butter and cut through the dough into pieces of the right size to serve. When the shortcake is baked take from the pan and separate the squares. With two forks tear each square apart, fill with sweetened and crushed berries and serve with plain cream.

All Paid Fines.

The five automobile speeders held up by Officer Goodhue, appeared in court this morning for exceeding the limit in Quincy last Sunday. They were Charles L. Harvey of Dedham, Frank S. Harkins of Boston, Alonzo A. Hoyt of Whitman, Chester L. Howard of Quincy and Walter H. Talbot of Norton. All pleaded nolo contendere and paid fines of $10 each.

—A striking example of the proportions to which a note will grow at compound interest was furnished in the Circuit Court at Paris. In 1883 a local firm took the note of a customer for $210. Compound interest and a lapse of 22 years were sufficient to cause $1145 to be the amount awarded to the firm when the court granted a judgment on the note.

—A Japanese lecturing recently in the United States admitted that in Japan the social position of the woman was not equal to that of man. He attributed the social inferiority of Japanese women to the influence of Buddhism, which had been imported from China. "The Buddhists," he said, "were kind to animals, but not to women."

There will be a reception and informal entertainment. The aim is a social time rather than a society event.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Mr. Carnegie provides a retiring pension for every superannuated professor in the country. Some of our readers will know so much more about this subject than we do that we hesitate to express an opinion, but we will mildly inquire whether what is called academic freedom will in any be affected in the colleges that accept Mr. Carnegie's bounty. Will an invisible padlock be placed upon the lips of every professor who expects to take advantage of this windfall when his term of service is over? —Christian Register.

☞The fact of Chinese progress in Western methods cannot be denied. The further fact, that this progress will soon be greatly intensified, is also beyond question. It is, therefore, important to inquire what are the motives of the Chinese Government in encouraging this development. The motives determine the use, hostile or friendly, to be made of the new power. Are the Chinese enamored of Western learning? Do they humbly think that they are being improved by the adoption of Western manners? Quiet conversation with friendly Chinese who have confidence in your discretion and sympathy will soon dispel any such belief. The humiliating experiences of 1895 and 1900 showed the Chinese that in war they were no match for the Westerners. The loss of territory to France, to England, to Germany, to Russia, to Japan, within the last few years, and the aggressive threats of the representatives of most of these powers at different times, convinced them that China, as a territorial and governmental entity, would soon cease to exist if they did not make themselves able to resist foreign aggression; have convinced them, therefore, of the absolute necessity of adopting foreign learning so far as it is necessary to strengthen them for war.—Prof. J. W. Jenks in American Review of Reviews.

LIMBS BURNED OFF

Awful Suffering of Victims of Dynamite Wreck

WHOLE TRAIN IS BURNED

Would-Be Rescuers Hear Heartrending Cries of Dying Passengers, but Are Compelled to Look Helplessly On

Harrisburg, May 12.—Twenty persons are known to be dead and more than 100 others were injured in the railroad wreck and dynamite explosion which occurred early yesterday on the Pennsylvania railroad in the southern part of this city. That no more persons were killed is considered remarkable by the Pennsylvania railroad officials, as a full box of dynamite exploded directly at the middle of the heavy express train.

The wrecked train was the second section of the Cleveland and Cincinnati express, leaving Philadelphia at 11:05 o'clock Wednesday night. It consisted of a combination baggage and smoking car, one day coach and six sleepers.

There are various stories of how the wreck occurred, but the official version is as follows:

About 1:40 o'clock the engine on an east-bound freight train was flagged by the crew of a shifting engine ahead on the same track. The engineer quickly put on his airbrakes and the train, an unusually long one, came to a sudden halt. The strain on the air valves was a severe one, and a connecting air hose in the middle of the train blew out. This caused the middle of the train to "buckle" and the damaged cars fell over on the passenger tracks.

Just as this happened the Cleveland express came thundering up and "sidewiped" the wreck. The express was stopped within its own length and the third sleeper was opposite the wrecked cars. Before anyone could leave the passenger train, which was not very badly damaged, a few slight explosions occurred, and then there was one great flash and roar that shook the earth. The whole affair occurred within the period of a few seconds.

A scene of horror followed the explosion of the dynamite. The passenger cars and some of the freight cars instantly took fire. As the reverberation of the terrific explosion died away in the hills across the Susquehanna river, the agonizing cries of the injured could be heard. Men and women came tumbling and climbing from the car windows, or crawled from under the wreckage.

No one for the moment seemed to know what to do and many of the passengers, momentarily seized with terror, ran wildly about the fields on the north side of the railroad or waded into the shallow waters of the river, which parallels the railroad on the south. Realizing their safety and the danger still threatening others, the frightened passengers turned in and began the rescue of the living. As they approached the wreck another explosion occurred which sent them scurrying away. Fearing that the entire freight train might be loaded with dynamite, no one dared go near the wreck. Finally the railroad men who knew the contents of the burning freight train led the way and the uninjured passengers followed.

The work of rescue was at first slow and it seemed as though the flames would envelop the entire express train before those who were pinned beneath the heavy wreckage could be freed. Everywhere there came cries for help, and the frantic rescuers worked with willing hands. Scores of those who were trapped in their sleeping berths or pinioned under wreckage were taken out badly hurt.

The advancing fire drove the rescuers back as they were about to take others from the wreck and the unfortunates, men and women, were soon enveloped in the flames. The cries of the dying were heartrending in the extreme, but nothing could be done for them. An alarm of fire was sent in, but when the firemen reached the scene the flames had done their work so far as the victims of the wreck were concerned. The entire train was consumed by fire.

After the victims in the wreck were beyond human aid, more attention was paid to the injured, who presented a pitiable sight as they lay in the field or on the banks of the river. With the firemen came a corps of physicians from the city and the work of attending the injured began in earnest. As quickly as they were temporarily relieved of pain from burns or other injuries they were placed on special trains and trolley cars and rushed to the hospital here.

Several hundred railroad laborers were on the spot within an hour and by daybreak their number had been increased to a thousand. It was a gruesome task for the railroad men. Not one whole body was found in the wreck. Either an arm or a leg or all four limbs were burned off the trunk and in several cases only portions of the trunks were found. Ten charred bodies were found under one Pullman car. It is the belief of the railroad officials that if the explosion had not occurred, there probably would have been no loss of life.

The dead were taken to Boyd's undertaking rooms here, which were transformed into a temporary morgue.

Fire Followed Tornado at Snyder, Oklahoma

Debris Carried by Wind to Towns Many Miles Away--Twenty Percent of Wounded Will Die--Storm Was Short

Guthrie, O. T., May 12.—The death list of Wednesday night's tornado at Snyder probably will reach over 100 persons. Eighty-five bodies have been recovered, a dozen persons are missing and given up for dead, and of the 41 seriously wounded several are likely to die. More than 100 other persons suffered less severe injuries.

Relief is being sent from neighboring towns. Oklahoma City sent 100 men to dig graves and seek the dead still in the ruins and a dozen undertakers with 100 coffins. Offers of financial assistance have come from several cities.

Governor Ferguson of Oklahoma has issued a proclamation calling attention to the needs of the stricken town.

It is still difficult to obtain information from Snyder. A single telegraph wire furnishes an outlet, but it is blocked with private messages concerning the dead and injured.

To add to the general confusion and distress after the tornado had passed, fire broke out and burned up all that remained of the buildings in one of the business blocks. So far, it has not been possible to find out whether any bodies were cremated.

An unidentified woman was picked up dead, having been pinioned to the ground by a large sliver which entered her left eye and came out through the back of her head. Clarence Donovan, a railroad engineer, and Miss Nina Fessenden were to have been married Wednesday night, but had just postponed the nuptials until yesterday morning. Both were instantly killed by the storm. Fred Crump, a boy, had started to a cellar when a flying timber decapitated him.

Debris was carried northeast as far as Cooperton, 12 miles, and it is reported that there are more fragments at that town than in the tornado path at Snyder.

The mayor of Snyder is having much trouble arranging for the burial of the dead. The confusion is great, owing to the fact that there are a number of unidentified bodies at the morgues. There is much suffering owing to the lack of provisions and places to stay. What houses remain in the town are in bad condition and unsafe for habitation. Besides there is not room enough to care for the homeless. Bedding and wearing apparel are both lacking and, despite the effort to succor the unfortunates, they are still in a pitiable condition.

Many of the wounded could not be cared for or given medical aid until 9 o'clock yesterday morning and by that time their wounds were aggravated. Dr. York of Hobart, who was active in relieving the suffering, says that 20 percent of the wounded will die.

The havoc wrought by the tornado is astonishing. Out of a town that housed 1000 persons not more than a score of houses are intact. The storm formed south of Olustee, near the Texas line, and took a northeasterly course through a well settled region. At 8 o'clock it was observed by the people of Snyder, but the usual funnel-shaped formation was lacking, and though the roar was plainly heard for some time before the storm broke, many were of the opinion that it was a hailstorm.

Within a few minutes the sky suddenly became dark and a terrific downpour of rain began, lasting for several minutes. Then the rain stopped almost as suddenly as it had started. For a few moments an ominous calm followed, and then the tornado struck, tearing buildings to pieces as though they were made of paper.

Many people who had thought to take advantage of the calm to seek refuge in cellars were caught in the streets and between buildings, where some were lifted high in the air and dashed to the ground as though hurled from a catapult, while others were struck by flying debris and beaten almost beyond recognition. Those who remained in their houses fared no better, for the path of the tornado swept across all excepting a few blocks in the southeastern corner of the town. Frame structures collapsed like eggshells, burying occupants under the debris, killing crushing and maiming.

Six hotels and boarding houses were torn to pieces, burying many persons in the wreckage. North of the railroad track, where many cottages stood, none is left and even the wreckage was mostly carried away.

In a few moments the tornado was all over and the air was filled with shrieks of the injured, mingled with the cries of those who had escaped and were seeking lost ones. Within a short time messengers were dispatched to Mountain Park, three miles away, where the news was sent by telephone to Hobart.

Able-bodied survivors in Snyder worked heroically all through the night amid heartrending scenes. A building was utilized for a temporary hospital and another as a morgue. The latter, a drygoods building, presented a gruesome appearance when day dawned, with the corpses lying tier above tier on the shelves.

KEEP YOUR HEAD UNCOVERED.

The Constant Wearing of a Hat Propogates Dandruff Germs.

There are many men who wear their hats practically all the time when awake, and are blessed with a heavy shock of hair; yet if the scalps of these same men once became infested with dandruff germs, the parasites would multiply all the quicker for lack of air. Baldness would ensue as the final result. Newbro's Herpicide kills these germs and stimulates unhealthy hair to abundant growth. Herpicide is a pleasant hair dressing as well as a dandruff cure and contains not an atom of injurious substance. Sold by leading druggists. PUBLIC IS WARNED

Unusual Action Against an Immigrant Inspector

IN TROUBLE IN HUNGARY

Fined For Threatening Detective Who Is Said to Have Tampered With His Mail--Engaged in Special Work

Budapest, May 12.—American Immigration Inspector Marcus Braun has become involved in serious trouble with the Hungarian authorities. Mr. Braun alleges that the authorities tampered with, and opened his mail. He was fined $10 in the Budapest police court for threatening a police department detective, whom, he says, he discovered in the act of tampering with his mail.

Last night the Hungarian state police department made public a communication declaring that Braun cannot show credentials proving his relations with the American government and that the American authorities have not informed the Hungarian government in any manner of the nature of Braun's mission over here. The communication concludes with warning the public against Braun.

Mr. Braun has letters from the American authorities giving him latitude in pursuit of emigration investigation in Europe and also a speeal passport from the state department which is only issued to American officials. Braun is Hungarian by birth and emigrated to the United States about 15 years ago. It is understood that he has been investigating reports that the Hungarian authorities encouraged an undesirable element to emigrate to the United States.

Is a Special Inspector

Washington, May 12.—Marcus Braun is one of three special immigration inspectors now engaged on special work for the immigration bureau in Europe, the exact character of which the officials here decline to say anything about. Braun was in Hungary last year for the immigration bureau and brought home much valuable information relating to immigration, and it is presumed that this may have a bearing on the present attitude of the police officials towards him. He is the president of the Hungarian club of New York which, during the spring, entertained President Roosevelt in that city.

Braun's Report to Sargent

New York, May 12.—Commissioner of Immigration Sargent, who is in this city, says that he received a cablegram from Inspector Braun informing him that he had caught a Viennese official tampering with, and opening his mail. He said Braun had told him the Washington officials would be apprised in due time of the official's action. He said also in the cable that he had appealed to Beliamy Storer, the United States ambassador to Austria-Hungary.

Steamer Suddenly Disappeared

Sydney, N. S., May 12.—The captain of a coal boat which has just returned from the St. Lawrence reports that a small-sized steamer was seen by those on board and she appeared to be jammed in the ice and, although the unknown vessel seemed to be completely surrounded, she suddenly disappeared. The captain who brings the news thinks the steamer is lost.

Peace Coming Through Roosevelt

London, May 12.—The Daily Telegraph's Tokio correspondent says: "Nobody here doubts that peace is coming through President Roosevelt's offices, he having learned that Russia desires to end the war and having ascertained the terms which would be agreeable to neutral powers."

Collision of Freight Trains

Lawrence, Mass., May 12.—A rear-end collision between two freight trains at Andover last night resulted in injuries to James Girard, a fireman. He was badly bruised about the head, but his condition is not serious. A caboose, one box car, and two flat cars were piled up.

Will Keep Wolf From the Door

Stockholm, May 12.—The rigsdag has voted Prince Gustaf an appanage of $35,000 in view of his approaching marriage with Princess Margaret of Connaught. King Oscar has presented the couple with the beautiful Chateau Sofiero, near Helsingborg, as a summer residence.

Twenty-six Thousand to Strike

New York, May 12.—Officials of the Rockmen and Excavators' union say New York will have a strike of 26,000 men on its hands before the middle of next week. Recognition of the union and higher wages are the questions for adjustment.

Theft of Valuable Statue

Florence, Italy, May 12.—A highly prized statue of the Madonna, attributed to Della Robbia, has been stolen from a private chapel at Ponte Stolli, a suburb of this city. The statue was valued at $17,000 and weighs 500 pounds.

Cloth Fabric Not Patentable

Boston, May 12.—The fabric of cloth is not patentable, according to the opinion given by Judge Hale of the United States circuit court, because the fabric is not an original conception or invention, but an aggregation of old devices.

SHOT AT DOG, HIT OWNER

Accident Which May Cost a Brattleboro Man His Life

Brattleboro, Vt., May 12.—In attempting to kill a dog that was supposed to be affected with rabies, George Smith last night accidentally shot James Donahue, the owner of the animal, inflicting a wound that may prove fatal.

Donahue, who is a teamster, was driving on Canal street when his dog was suddenly seized with convulsions. Believing him to be mad, Donahue seized the animal and held him until a rope was brought with which he was tied to a telephone pole. Smith, who was passing, borrowed a revolver at a nearby house, and after firing one shot at the dog, fired again and the ball entered Donahue's side, lodging near the spine. Donahue was taken to a hospital, where his injuries are considered very serious.

Beautiful Girl Died Strangely

Boston, May 12.—Emelina Primachi, 20 years of age, regarded as the most beautiful girl in the Italian colony, died at the relief hospital from a mysterious cause. The doctors at the hospital refuse to attempt to diagnose her case and the medical examiner will hold an autopsy. She was taken to the hospital Sunday night suffering from hemorrhages. The doctors were unable to stop the attacks and the girl slowly bled to death. The police have begun an investigation of the case.

Objects to Big Commission

Boston, May 12.—Attorney General Parker appeared before the ways and means committee of the legislature to argue in behalf of a resolve which has for its object the prevention of payment of a 10 percent commission to John B. Cotton, who holds a warrant on the United States treasury for $160,000 back claims due this state which he will not deliver until a commission of 10 percent has been paid him. The matter will be discussed further.

Says Friend Fell Overboard

Boston, May 12.—Charles Darling, 45 years old, fell from a railroad bridge at South Boston last evening. The man's disappearance was reported to the police by Herbert A. Estes, who said he was walking across "dizzy bridge" with Darling when the latter suddenly stumbled and fell into the stream below. The police could find no trace of the body and they are trying to solve the mysterious disappearance of Darling.

More Fires In Plymouth County

Plymouth, Mass., May 12.—Three forest fires, one a renewal of the great fire which destroyed $75,000 worth of timber in Plymouth county, and two new ones, believed to have been started by sparks from a passing locomotive, called out the fire-fighters again yesterday. At sunset all three fires were practically out, but a large number of men were employed late last night in patrolling the burned area.

Delay In Rogers Hearing

Montpelier, Vt., May 12.—Counsel for Mrs. Mary M. Rogers, under sentence of death for the murder of her husband, appeared before the judges of the supreme court last night and asked for an extension of time in which to prepare their case. The hearing had been set for May 17, and the attorneys asked that it be delayed until May 23. The court consented to a delay of two days only.

What a Spark Did

Mansfield, Mass., May 12.—Fire started, it is thought, by sparks from a passing locomotive, last night destroyed a barn connected with a livery stable and caused damage to eight houses which were set fire by embers from the original blaze. The total loss is about $10,000. The occupants of the homes sustained considerable loss through water and the hasty removal of their effects.

Charged With Counterfeiting

Waterville, Me., May 12.—Fred Billideau of Oakland, who was arrested by the officers of that town on the charge of counterfeiting, was taken to Augusta last night and will be given a hearing there. Counterfeit nickels have been turning up in the vicinity of Oakland for some time. The officers found several alleged bad coins in Billideau's possession, but no tools for making them.

Tech Faculty Oppose Merger

Boston, May 12.—The Herald says that the faculty of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, by a vote of 57 to 5, has placed its stamp of disapproval on the proposed alliance of the institute with Harvard university. This vote is the first that has been made by any body of Technology men since the alliance was proposed.

The Delta Phi Delta Society of Wollaston and Quincy will hold a social this evening at the home of Miss Eva S. Sheldon of Winthrop avenue.

S. C. Wedmore, who died at Houghs Neck on Thursday, was for many years chief operator and night manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company at Springfield.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Miss Elizabeth Prescott of Federal avenue is visiting relatives in New Hampshire.

Frank Genero, driver of the Wollaston hook and ladder, is spending his vacation at Chicopee Falls.

Howard Eaton of Boston was in Atlantic sizing up the prospects of his beach property this week.

A Difference.

A funny thing happened on Sumner street, the day that the smallpox flag was placed on the house occupied by W. H. Flynn. Hardly had Inspector Lennon nailed the red flag to the house when a number of Hebrew junk dealers began to congregate, thinking that an auction was to take place.

It was not long before they learned that the flag was not for an auction but for smallpox. Then there was a scramble to get away. The Hebrews could not get away fast enough, and they tumbled all over each other in their efforts to escape. One fellow in a team tried to make a quick turn, with the result that his team was turned upside down, which only added to the confusion.

May Basket Party.

On Tuesday evening the stage of Brasee's hall, presented a fine appearance, decorated with a large number of costly and beautiful May baskets. In response to a poetical invitation sent to friends of the members of Wollaston Lodge 174 American Benefit society.

The basket bringing the highest price was the most beautiful one, and was brought by Lida H. Waterhouse, who received as a prize a pretty and costly silk lace collar, the handiwork of the donor, Mrs. Mabel E. Young, a member of the lodge. The basket was bid off by a Boston gentleman, who was presented with a box of fine handkerchiefs. Another large and handsome basket was bought by Dr. M. Morey Pearson of Boston.

Previous to the basket sale there was an entertainment. Ice cream and cake were served. Dancing closed the festivities.

The Money Question.

Said one young man in Atlantic, after thinking over the suggestion of buying an auto and using it for public conveyance to and from the station, "It's all right to talk about, but where is the money coming from to buy the auto?" What a question for a man to ask! Unlike blessings, money does not fall upon the just and the unjust, unless one turns on the full speed of his energy to meet it. With youth and health and friends to speak a good word for a young man, there is no question of his failing in any praiseworthy enterprise. He should say, as Abraham Lincoln did in his log hut when he aspired to be a leader of men:—"With right on my side, I'll make men have need of me." And he succeeded too.

CHICAGO'S QUIET DAY

Wind and Rain Allowed Teamsters to Work In Peace

Chicago, May 12.—The teamsters' strike was quiet yesterday, as driving storms of wind and rain drove the pickets from their posts. There was little disturbance in the business quarter. On the outskirts, however, there were a few attacks made on the drivers of delivery wagons, but with the exception of one negro, who was knocked senseless by a stone, nobody was injured.

The most important part of the strike was the examination of witnesses before Master in Chancery Sherman, who is taking testimony relative to the alleged violation of the federal injunction granted in favor of the Employers' association and of the seven express companies.

Adolph Pfell, for 11 years an employe of the United States Express company, but now a striker, refused to answer questions on the ground that he might incriminate himself.

Edward Buckley, a striking union driver, told of being ordered by officials of his union to put his wagon in the barn. When asked why he did not continue at work, he replied: "Because I did not want to be killed. There were riots on the streets and I would not sacrifice my life for a job."

Roosevelt at Washington

Washington, May 12.—President Roosevelt reached home at midnight last night from his western trip, which he regards as one of the most enjoyable journeys he has taken since he has been president. He travelled 6006 miles. Every state and territory in the United States except Florida and Arkansas have been visited by Mr. Roosevelt since he became president and it is his intention to accept the hospitality of these states before his term is finished.

Policeman Used His Pistol

Newport News, May 12.—Phoebus is practically under martial law, two companies of soldiers being in charge of the town as the result of the killing of Artilleryman Dowrie, a member of the heavy coast artillery, by Police Officer Phillips. The policeman reprimanded some artillerymen for an infraction of a town ordinance, and in a melee that followed seven artillerymen participated, beating Phillips with his own club. Phillips claims he shot in self-defense.

Some Hope For Russians

New York, May 12.—Baron Serge Korff of Russia, professor of Russian law at Helsingfors university, Finland, has arrived in this city en route to Washington, where he will wed Miss Van Reypen, daughter of Admiral Van Reypen, retired surgeon general of the United States army. In an interview, he declared that reforms are in progress in Russia and when they are put in operation the people will find they have been granted more than they asked.

POPE ON GREED FOR MONEY

Pius X.'s Condemnation of All Evil Speculation.

Pope Pius X.'s recent encyclical letter to all the prelates and others in the Roman Catholic communion is considered one of the most important and far reaching documents he has written since his elevation, says a Washington special dispatch to the New York Herald.

According to the prelates, the encyclical is especially important since it speaks authoritatively on subjects which now are harassing the American secular as well as religious world. The pope speaks in positive terms on the vital importance of moral teachings for young and old and of the influence of religious instruction on the nation as well as the individual. He makes a general review of the deplorable condition of the world at the present time and suggests that the remedy lies in knowing more clearly and following more docilely the teachings of Christianity.

"There are today," says the pope, "vast numbers, continually being recruited by fresh accessions, who are utterly ignorant of the truths of religion or who at most possess only such knowledge of God and of the Christian faith as to lead the lives of idolaters. In consequence of this ignorance they regard it as no crime to cherish hatred against their neighbor, to enter into the most unjust contracts, to promote the most unjust speculation, to endeavor to possess themselves of the property of others by enormous usury and to commit other iniquities not less reprehensible.

"Furthermore, they seem unaware that the law of Christ not only forbids immoral actions, but condemns immoral thoughts and immoral desires. Even when they are restrained from abandoning themselves to sensual pleasures, they, without any scruple feed themselves on evil thoughts, multiplying sins beyond the hairs of the head. We deem it necessary to repeat that such persons are found not only among the poorer classes, but in the highest walk of life, and even among those puffed up with knowledge, who, relying upon a vain erudition, think they are at liberty to turn religion into ridicule."

The pope makes an eloquent plea for moral teaching in the schools. He ends by bestowing the apostolic benediction on all who follow his words.

MISSING LINK IN BLOOD.

German Doctor's Experiments With Apes and Men.

Professor Dr. Uhlenhuth, an eminent army doctor in Germany, definitely claims to have discovered the missing link by a long series of investigations, having established the similarity in every respect of the blood of the higher apes and human beings, says a Berlin special cable dispatch to the New York World. If the blood serum of one animal be mixed with that of any other the mixture remains clear; if, however, blood be taken from an ape and injected into the veins of a rabbit the blood subsequently taken from this rabbit becomes troubled when mixed with more ape's blood. A similar result is obtained if human blood be injected into the veins of a rabbit, and this simple experiment is often relied upon to prove if a spot of blood found on the clothes of a suspected murderer is human.

This phenomenon is observed only when the blood of apes or human beings is injected into the blood of some living animal, and the higher the ape in the scale of development the more pronounced is the reaction.

Outlawed Bank Notes.

The financial world will be greatly startled by a decision recently rendered in Minnesota by a justice of the peace to the effect that a national bank bill is outlawed and cannot be of any value to any one and therefore cannot constitute a good tender for a debt after six years from its date, says Case and Comment. The opinion of the learned justice states that the law is to the effect that a demand must be made within six years in order to preserve a cause of action on a demand note; that the bank note is a demand note, and in the absence of proof that payment thereof had ever been demanded of the bank the note is outlawed. Strange that no one thought of it before.

Grand Army of the Republic.

Day by day their ranks are thinning, one by one they disappear,
And at each succeeding roll call fewer voices answer, "Here!"

Still their regiments are marching—many march with noiseless tread,
And no bugles sound "assembly" in the bivouac of the dead.

Glorious tales of gallant service echo still on every hand;
Charge and siege and bitter hardship—comrades lost on sea and land.

Now a reunited nation joins to bless the honored dead,
Though forgetful of the living who have likewise fought and bled.

Hats are reverently lifted to the heroes lying here;
Lift them to the living heroes—hail them all with cheer on cheer.

Not for long will they be with us; soon each regiment will be Tented here beneath the blossoms of the land it helped to free.

But today the drums are muffled, and the flag at half mast waves,
Keeping green dead heroes' memories as the grass above their graves.

Still another weary winter shrouded in the snow they lay;
Now we bring them crowns and garlands of the loveliest blooms of May.

Let them rest in honored slumber, while their praise from shore to shore
Eighty million throats are swelling—we are free forevermore!

—Elsie Florence Fay in Success Magazine For May.

Trackless Trolley.

The Milton Record says the Board of Selectmen of Milton has under consideration a proposition for another trolly line in Milton. This is not, however, for a line of the usual character with a street location and rails, but for a trackless trolley, to be operated from Blue Hill avenue through Hillside and Blue Hill streets to Houghton's pond, a distance of from a mile to a mile and a quarter. The interested party is the American Trackless Trolley company, which last summer operated a line at Nantasket. Its officers are Artemus D. Upham, president: George F. Stiles, vice-president; and Frederick G. Tilden, secretary and treasurer. These officers appeared before the selectmen at the regular meeting last week and an informal conference on the subject of the trackless trolley was held.

The informal opening and inspection by contributors and other friends takes place at the Y. M. C. A. to-night. Mr. F. L. Willis, for some years secretary of the Omaha, Nebraska association, now in Worcester, will be present and will say a few words informally upon the general lines of association work.

Mr. Frank P. Speare, the well known educational director of the Boston association will speak for ten minutes upon the possibilities of educational work in a community such as Quincy.

No long addresses will be given as the object is to show the building to the contributors and pass the evening in a social way.

A Hero's Experience.

Camp Boyd, L. S. W. V., has been fortunate in securing for its smoke talk on Tuesday evening next Commander Hermann W. Kurchmeister of Ensign Worth Bagley camp of Charlestown. It was Capt. Kurchmeister who, at the risk of his life, volunteered to cut the cable at Cienfuegos during the Spanish war, and was seriously wounded. He wears today a gold plate in his jaw which the United States government had made for him. The government also awarded him a medal of honor. He will relate his experiences at the smoke talk, to which members of Paul Revere Post and a few guests have been invited.

The Score Was Four to Three.

Visitors Led at the Bat, Reilly's Hit Was Timely.

Another close game was played by Quincy High on Friday, when Hingham High was defeated at Merrymount park by a score of 4 to 3 in a ten innings contest.

Fielding honors were about equal, each team being credited with 7 errors. Gram struck out 13 and Studley 12. But Gram gave no passes to first base where Studley gave 5. A timely hit by Reilly scored the winning run.

—Some New York landlords raise the rent fifty cents per month in their flats for each baby born; some others fire the tenants out if they have any children. Here's a good opening for the anti-race suicide organizations—if there are any—to provide a bounty on babies to offset the cussedness and avarice of landlordism—Spencer Leader.

WHAT IS WORN.

The Short Skirt Is Seen on the Street and In the Ballroom.

There is a perfect craze for the short skirt. This spring all materials are suitable to be made up into the short skirt styles, and the most elaborate lines—cloth, veiling, silk, muslin, linen, lace embroidery—are all treated alike. For evening wear silks, satins, gauzes, nets, tulles and chiffons share the same fate.

In pongee, linen and taffeta costumes with plaited skirts and either short or three-quarter jackets the short skirts are by far the smartest.

The short skirt for dancing has come into favor, and there is much to recommend it. But for dinner gowns, which are just as elaborate and expensive, the long train is required.

DOTTED TAFFETA SILK GOWN.

Fancy buttons will play a prominent part on severe tailored gowns. Gold, silver, enamel, rhinestones and sometimes real jewels are being used.

The smart gown illustrated is of dotted taffeta silk. The skirt is box plaited, and just above the knees the plaits flare out and a knife plaited fan is inserted. Holding the box plaits in place are embroidered designs worked in silk and a rounded pattern done in braid.

OPIUM POISONING

Supposed Cause of Death of Son of Richard Croker

PLACED ABOARD A TRAIN

Found to Have Expired When Conductor Came to Collect Fare--Was on His Way to an Oklahoma Ranch

Kansas City, May 13.—Herbert V. Croker, a son of Richard Croker, formerly Tammany leader of New York, was found dead in a south-bound Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe train near Newton, Kas., and the police believe that he died of opium poisoning.

The body was taken from the train at Newton, where an inquest is under way. An autopsy may be performed to determine the cause of death. From papers found on Croker, it appears that he was on the way from New York to spend a vacation at the "101" ranch at Bliss, O. T.

Croker stopped in Kansas City on his way west, but did not register at a hotel, or, so far as known, make his identity known to anyone. He visited the Elm Ridge races. The coroner at Newton began an inquest last night, at which trainmen testified that Croker did not smell of liquor. The inquest was adjourned until today.

The first clue to Croker's identity was a letter found in the dead man's pocket. This letter was addressed to Zach Mulhall, formerly of Oklahoma, who is now holding a wild west show in New York city, to Joseph Shiller, manager of the famous "101" ranch at Bliss, O. T.

Inquiry by telephone elicited the information that Croker was not known at the Bliss ranch. Evidently he was on the way to the ranch for an outing.

According to stories by passengers and the conductor on the train upon which Croker died, the young New Yorker was placed on the train at Kansas City by a negro shortly after 10 o'clock Thursday night. Croker appeared to be under the influence of some drug. The negro was seen to hand him a sum of money and a railroad ticket just before the train started, when he jumped off and disappeared.

When the conductor came around to collect Croker's fare the latter was asleep and the conductor did not disturb the passenger. Croker was left to himself all night until nearly 5 o'clock yesterday morning, when the conductor made another attempt to collect the fare. He was unable to arouse Croker and upon examination found that the young man was dead.

Passengers on the train noticed when Croker was assisted into a chair car by the young negro he seemed helpless. The negro gave him the purse containing $19, counting the money out to Croker. The passengers heard Croker say: "Now I want you to send me the rest of it."

The negro asked Croker to write his address, but Croker refused and finally the negro wrote as Croker dictated. Immediately after the train started Croker fell into a deep sleep, snoring loudly. Later he grew quieter.

Tod Sloan, a jockey, who formerly rode for Richard Croker, and was well acquainted with Herbert's brother, was at the track all the afternoon, mingling freely with the horsemen and bettors, and he did not even hear that Croker was in town.

The police found the negro who put Croker on the train. He was a porter at the Coates house. His name is Woodson. He said that Croker, whom he met at the hotel, asked to be taken to an opium resort; that he took Croker to such a place, kept by a Chinese; that Croker stayed there for an hour, and that then, at Croker's request, Woodson took Croker to the train and helped him on board. The police believe Woodson's story and he has not been arrested.

Had Been In Ill-Health

New York, May 13.—News of the sudden death of Herbert Croker was received from Newton, Kas., by his brother, Richard Croker, Jr., and his mother, at their home here. Herbert Croker left this city a few days ago to take a vacation on a friend's ranch in Oklahoma. It is said that he had been in ill-health and had gone to recuperate. Herbert Croker was nearing his 23d year. He was an expert golfer, a lover of dogs, and a thorough sportsman. He started in business after finishing his studies at Cornell university and secured a position in the shipbuilding plant of Lewis Nixon, at Elizabethport, N. J.

Limoges, France, May 13.—The entire municipal organization of Limoges has resigned as a result of the criticism regarding the condition of anarchy growing out of the strikes here.

Bondsmen Superseded

The personal bondsman is fast becoming obsolete; the risk to private fortune is too great.

The corporate bond is just as rapidly supplanting the old form; and, in time, men will marvel that they were ever called upon to incur the danger of personal suretyship.

In point of safety, convenience and propriety, there can be no comparison between the two; the one is just as weak and perilous as the other is strong and safe.

The time is near when it will be thought as reasonable to borrow the key of a friend's safe as to borrow his name for surety purposes.

END OF STRIKE NEAR

Friends of Chicago Teamsters Tell Them They Have Lost

Chicago, May 13.—Severe blows were dealt to the cause of the striking teamsters last night and as a result the governing body of the organization, the teamsters' joint council, will meet tonight to decide whether the strike shall be called off.

The decision to call this meeting of the council followed a two-hour session between officers of the Teamsters' union and of the Team Owners' association. The members of the latter body have all through the present strike been favorable to the teamsters rather than to the Employers' association. Last night, however, the team owners bluntly informed the teamsters that the strike was lost, and that the best thing they could do was to call off the strike at once.

Newark, N. J., May 13.—Timothy Carew, 35 years old, was found dead with his throat cut at a lodging house in this city. His wife, who died in the East Orange police station, is thought to have murdered him. The wrapper worn by Mrs. Carew when she died in her cell was stained with blood. The couple had frequently quarreled. Three children of the couple are in an orphan asylum. Mrs. Carew's death was due to natural causes, of which the principal was acute alcoholism.

The suspicion that a yellow fever plague was about to sweep over the country grew into positive belief when Auditor West died.

International Laws Violated

Budapest, May 13.—Astonishment is expressed here at the proceedings of the Hungarian authorities against Marcus Braun, which are declared to be a violation of international rules for which satisfaction must be forthcoming. Braun is now awaiting a communication from his government and Ambassador Storer also is awaiting a communication from the state department at Washington.

Result of Bigelow Stealings

Erroneously Thinks by Scouring Her Scalp That She Cures Dandruff.

Cleanly woman has an erroneous idea that by scouring the scalp, which removes the dandruff scales, she is curing the dandruff. NOTES OF THE RAILWAY.

Illinois Central's Scheme to Beautify Its Stations.

MOTOR CARS FOR THE AL[illegible]

Features of Passenger Coaches Be Tried on Branch Lines In Missouri and Illinois—The Fries Burn Oil on Its Engines, Supply Come From Wells on Its Line.

Every station along the many lines and branches of the Illinois Central railroad is to be remodeled and beautified by architecture and landscape gardening, and Miss A. E. McCrea, a Chicago woman artist, is to direct the whole thing, says the Chicago Examiner.

Miss McCrea is not to be hampered by leading strings, technical restrictions or official red tape, but is to put into the field with full authority use her woman's judgment, woman's ingenuity and woman's artistic taste for beautifying the countless miles of stations strung along the great commercial highway.

The field consists of nine states in the heart of the Mississippi valley. In a private car fitted with every convenience will convey Miss McCrea over the territory, visiting every station on every line, where she will inspect, suggest, order and revise until the task is finished. Along the lines from Chicago to St. Paul, St. Louis, Sioux City, Omaha and New Orleans are decrepit railroad stations, which will be the especial care of Miss McCrea for many months to come. Each will be visited, where advisable new buildings will be built and in every case green turf, artistically arranged flower beds and clambering vines will change the face of scenery which travelers have learned to abhor.

This is the first time any corporation has attempted so great a work in this direction, and its successful accomplishment will be heralded all over the country. Railroad officials pride themselves on the excellence of their rolling stock, but leave the station to care for themselves, except for the kindly touches of an agent or two whose artistic inspirations are held in check by the necessity of keeping the switch lights burning.

The Chicago and Alton railroad has completed plans for operating gasoline electric motor cars between Mexico and Jefferson City, Mo., and between various points in Illinois, says the Kansas City Star. The service will be installed upon branch lines where it will be an economy to operate motor cars instead of the more expensive steam trains. The cars that have been built for the new service are designed on the latest pattern. They will seat eighty-six passengers, exclusive of a smoking room that will accommodate fifteen, and will be operated by a gasoline motor, supplemented by electricity for the purpose of insuring quick stops. The electricity will be supplied by a storage battery. It has been estimated that the motor car service can be operated at 18 per cent of the cost of steam operation.

Two cars will be put on for the fifty-mile run between Mexico and Jefferson City, and connection will be made with all main line trains on the Alton. The cars are designed for a maximum speed of eighty miles an hour. The cars are now being built, and the service will be installed July 1. The motor car service to be put on by the Alton will be the first service of the kind to be put in operation in Missouri.

A feature of the electric motor attachment is that the car can get under way on the start at the rate of fifty miles an hour for a short distance of two or three miles. In addition to the passenger coaches there will also be operated gasoline-electric baggage freight cars.

The Frisco is making preparations to utilize oil instead of coal in its engines and a number of them running in the vicinity of the Texas and Kansas oil fields are being equipped to burn it, says a Springfield (Mo.) special dispatch to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Some tests of the fuel oil taken from these wells prove it to have wonderful heating qualities, and better results will not only be obtained by its use, but it will be a great factor in an economical way. Nearly all of the roads now securing oil on their own lands are using it to a great extent instead of coal and find that it is productive of much more satisfactory results. It is not nearly so hard on the firebox or the flues of an engine on account of there being no necessity for allowing so much cold air to get to either. With a coal burning engine more or less cold air will get to the flues on account of opening the door. Considerable expense will be entailed in making this change, but it is considered an economical one by the management. The best oil, however, yet discovered on the Frisco right of way is that found at Tulsa, I. T., at which point the influence to give oil a trial as a fuel was first brought to bear on the Frisco management.

B. F. Gifford of Vincennes, Ind., who is now building the northern extension of his Chicago and Wabash Valley railroad from Grape Island, on the Kankakee river, to Indiana Harbor, has invented a combination railroad construction machine that cuts down hills, fills ravines, digs ditches, that makes fills and grades railroad track beds, picks up a complete section of iron rails and ties and deposits same ahead of the machine, drives piling, builds bridges, digs out trees and rocks in its mechanical operations, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. The machine, it is said, will revolutionize the present system of railroad construction.

Illinois Central's Scheme to Beautify Its Stations.

MOTOR CARS FOR THE ALTON

Features of Passenger Coaches to Be Tried on Branch Lines In Missouri and Illinois—The Frisco to Burn Oil on Its Engines, Supply to Come From Wells on Its Line.

Every station along the many lines and branches of the Illinois Central railroad is to be remodeled and beautified by architecture and landscape gardening, and Miss A. E. McCrea, a Chicago woman artist, is to direct the whole thing, says the Chicago Examiner.

Miss McCrea is not to be hampered by leading strings, technical restrictions or official red tape, but is to be put into the field with full authority to use her woman's judgment, woman's ingenuity and woman's artistic talent for beautifying the countless unsightly stations strung along the great commercial highway.

The field consists of nine states in the heart of the Mississippi valley, and a private car fitted with every convenience will convey Miss McCrea over the territory, visiting every station on every line, where she will inspect, suggest, order and revise until the task is finished. Along the lines from Chicago to St. Paul, St. Louis, Sioux City, Omaha and New Orleans are decrepit little stations, which will be the especial care of Miss McCrea for many months to come. Each will be visited, where advisable new buildings will be built, and in every case green turf, artistically arranged flower beds and clambering vines will change the face of scenes which travelers have learned to abhor. This is the first time any corporation has attempted so great a work of this direction, and its successful accomplishment will be heralded all over the country. Railroad officials pride themselves on the excellence of their rolling stock, but leave the stations are for themselves, except for the kindly touches of an agent or two whose artistic inspirations are held in check by the necessity of keeping the switch lights burning.

The Chicago and Alton railroad has completed plans for operating gasoline electric motor cars between Mexico and Jefferson City, Mo., and between various points in Illinois, says the Kansas City Star. The service will be installed upon branch lines where it will be economy to operate motor cars instead of the more expensive steam trains. The cars that have been built for the new service are designed on the latest pattern. They will seat eighty-six passengers, exclusive of a smoking room that will accommodate fifteen, and will be operated by a gasoline motor, supplemented by electricity for the purpose of insuring quick stops. The electricity will be supplied by a storage battery. It has been estimated that the motor car service can be operated at 25 per cent of the cost of steam operation.

Two cars will be put on for the first mile run between Mexico and Jefferson City, and connection will be made with all main line trains on the Alton. The cars are designed for a maximum speed of eighty miles an hour. The cars are now being built, and the service will be installed July 1. The motor car service to be put on by the Alton will be the first service of the kind to be put in operation in Missouri.

A feature of the electric motor attachment is that the car can get under way on the start at the rate of fifty miles an hour for a short distance of two or three miles. In addition to the passenger coaches there will also be operated gasoline-electric baggage freight cars.

The Frisco is making preparations to utilize oil instead of coal in its engines, and a number of them running in the vicinity of the Texas and Kansas oil fields are being equipped to burn it, says a Springfield (Mo.) special dispatch to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Some tests of the fuel oil taken from these wells prove it to have wonderful heating qualities, and better results will not only be obtained by its use, but it will be a great factor in an economical way. Nearly all of the roads now securing oil on their own lands are using it to a great extent instead of coal and find that it is productive of much more satisfactory results. It is not nearly so hard on the firebox or the flues of an engine on account of there being no necessity for allowing the cold air to get to either. With a coal burning engine more or less cold air will get to the flues on account of opening the door. Considerable expense will be entailed in making this change, but it is considered an economical one by the management. The best oil, however, yet discovered on the Frisco right of way is that found at Tulsa, I. T., at which point the influence to give oil a trial as a fuel was first brought to bear on the Frisco management.

R. F. Gifford of Vincennes, Ind., who is now building the northern extension of his Chicago and Wabash Valley railroad from Grape Island, on the Kankakee river, to Indiana Harbor, has invented a combination railroad constructing machine that cuts down hills, fills ravines, digs ditches, that makes, picks up a complete section of iron rails and ties and deposits same ahead of the machine, drives piling, builds bridges, digs out trees and rocks in its mechanical operations, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. The machine, it is said, will revolutionize the present system of railroad construction.

AN APPEAL FOR AID

Cyclone Sufferers Greatly In Need of Necessities

SNYDER IS NOW FLOODED

Rain and Wind Since Disaster of Wednesday Rendered Improvised Hospital Uninhabitable--Water Fills Graves

Snyder, O. T., May 13.—Snyder is still paralyzed as a result of the tornado that killed more than 100 persons and razed most of the buildings. Snyder is situated in a basin formed by the foothills of the Wichita mountains. The drainage is exceedingly poor, and water is standing in large pools all over the town. Excessive rains have made the country roads almost impassable and as a consequence the relief parties sent to the country have not yet fully reported the results of their investigations.

The relief committee is thoroughly organized and working. The hospital arrangements are fearful, but they are the best that can be secured. During a heavy wind yesterday some of the injured were conveyed on stretchers from the improvised hospital to various places. Rain began falling furiously and the wounded people were drenched. The wind subsided and the injured were returned to the building from which they were taken.

All the graves dug for victims of the tornado are filled with water, which must be bailed out before the bodies can be buried. The burial of bodies is one of the most pressing needs.

J. R. Albernathy, a wolf hunter of Frederick, who accompanied President Roosevelt on his wolf hunt, is assisting in the relief work. A relief committee, headed by E. Dowden, chairman, has been formed, and the following appeal for aid has been issued.

"To the people of the United States: This place was almost totally obliterated by a cyclone on the evening of May 10. The people here are dividing their all, but have not enough to relieve the pressing necessity. Neighboring towns are generously supplying us with hospital supplies and food. Fully 300 families have been ruined by the storm; 1500 people are more or less dependent on the good will of the generously inclined to tide them over the present distress.

"Money is urgently needed. Property loss, including crops, stock, homes and other property, will reach over [illegible] with a portion of the stricken [illegible] to be heard from. Almost continuous rains since the cyclone have rendered many of the roads almost impassable. The stricken people have helped the less fortunate to the extent of $500 in cash, besides dividing food, provisions and clothing with those who lost their all. In view of these circumstances, we ask assistance from the American people."

Military Action

Lawton, O. T., May [illegible]. Colonel Kingsbury, commandant of the cavalry at Fort Sill, has made a requisition on the war department for orders to send troops to Snyder with rations for the tornado sufferers. Three engineering corps of the Oklahoma National Guard left for Snyder with 75 tents, to be used as temporary homes for the destitute.

A Citizens' Police Commission

New York, May 13.—An innovation which Police Commissioner McAdoo declares may work a new era in police administration was made in this city when McAdoo asked several well known citizens to serve with him on a commission to select four police inspectors, 17 captains, and 47 sergeants. McAdoo said he would expect the committee to act in an advisory capacity and that the law required that he should make the appointments.

President Will Be Very Busy

Washington, May 13.—President Roosevelt will go to Oyster Bay on his return from Harvard commencement in the latter part of June, which will this year be the 25th anniversary of his own graduation. He plans to make no other trip from Washington, except to go to Brooklyn for the dedication of the Slocum monument on Memorial day. The intervening period in Washington will be exceptionally busy.

Confidence In the Future

New York, May 13.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that unsettled weather still retards retail trade, and uneven distribution of moisture prevents crop prospects from attaining an ideal position, but the general result is much better than normal and far more satisfactory than at this time in 1904. Confidence in the future is the ruling sentiment.

Explosion Kills Seven Miners

Butte, Mont., May 13.—Seven men were killed and one was injured, probably fatally, in an explosion in the Cora mine. Nels Wampa was carrying 40 sticks of dynamite up a ladder when the dynamite exploded with terrific force. It is believed that Wampa accidentally touched his candle to the explosive.

Training Ship Struck Rock

Paris, May 13.—A dispatch from Bayonne reports that the French naval training ship Duguay Trouin has struck a rock in Saint Jean-de-Luz bay, 12 miles from Bayonne. Relief parties are making to reflect her.

RECEIVER ASKED FOR

Queer Methods Alleged by Stockholders of Coal Company

Boston, May 13.—A number of stockholders of the Bliss Coal company have filed a bill in the United States circuit court asking that the company be placed in the hands of a receiver. The concern is a Maine corporation with an office in this city and wharves in Chelsea and Lynn.

The plaintiffs claim that the company has not been carried on in the interests of the stockholders, and has been promoted for the purpose of doing as little business as possible in the way of selling coal, but, on the other hand, of selling as much stock of the company as possible and appropriating a large part of the proceeds to the use of its promoters and organizers.

Of $30,000 alleged to have been received from the sales of the capital stock of the company, the plaintiffs claim that $6000 has been paid out on commissions and $17,000 for salaries and otherwise.

Judge Lowell granted an order of notice on their bill to the defendant returnable on Monday.

She says that the firm demands $14.721, which they say she owes them. Instead, she declares, they owe her money.

FARM AND GARDEN

TESTING SEED CORN.

A Practical Step Toward Eliminating Chance From Agriculture.

By ALBERT N. HUME, Illinois Experiment Station.

When corn planting time arrives the most serious question for corn growers is that of securing seed for their fields which will be certain to grow. It may seem like a heavy task to germinate three or four kernels of corn from every ear in a bushel, and yet one man in ten hours' total time can test every ear of seed corn required to plant sixty-seven acres. Some such method is said to have been used by John R. Clisby, secretary of the Illinois Corn Breeders' association, in testing large quantities of seed corn. One kernel should be taken from the butt of the ear, at least one from the middle and one from the tip. Four kernels is enough to take from one ear for practical work if properly taken.

The four kernels from each ear must be placed in a separate group, and it is best that the group be marked or numbered to correspond with the number of the ear from which the kernels were taken. For this plan it is necessary that the ears be placed in regular order as the kernels are removed from them. A good device for arranging the ears in regular order is shown in the first cut.

One of the quickest and most convenient devices for making germination tests is that first used by Professor Goff at the Geneva station in New York. This apparatus consists of a water tight box across which are extended folds of canton flannel. These folds are suspended from wires and can be removed to dry when not in use. The box must be filled to the depth of about an inch with water, so that the folds of canton flannel will hang down enough to touch the water and thus be moistened by capillarity. The box should be about 12 by 24 inches and 4 or 5 inches deep. It may be made of wood, galvanized iron, tin or copper, and the wires can be cut from ordinary smooth galvanized fence wire.

When kernels of corn are to be tested in this germinating apparatus they are removed from the ears, placed between the folds in regular order and the folds closed together. The groups of kernels from the separate ears may be numbered with slips of paper. This numbering will not be absolutely necessary if proper care is used to have the groups of kernels correspond to the ears of corn from which they came.

PORTION OF A GENEVA TESTER

After the kernels are put in place the folds are drawn together at the top, the lid closed upon the box and the apparatus left until the kernels germinate. When put into this box the kernels will not usually suffer for moisture during the length of time of one test. This is one of the advantages of the Geneva tester over the plate of sand where the moisture may need renewing each day or even oftener. The folds are easily opened when it is necessary to inspect the kernels to count the number which have germinated.

The Newest Notion With Sweet Peas.

The crop was a complete success, while other growers in this location did not succeed at all. While I have no record of the quantity of the crop, I will say that I had a larger crop, better blooms of lasting quality, than any other grower with the same amount of ground planted. I had two awards at the New Jersey Horticultural society for these same blooms in June and July at Orange, N. J., and I know that had it not been for the inoculating of the seed I would not have been so successful.—W. J. Hesse, Newark, N. J.

Hen Manures.

Such strong manures (hen manures) are best adapted when applied to any leaf crops, such as spinach, cabbage, kale and Swiss chard. Being highly nitrogenous, they induce growth of leaf. They should be applied sparingly to fruit crops, such as tomatoes, peppers and strawberries, says an exchange.

Through the kindness of friends the State Executive Committee of the Young Men's Christian Associations of Massachusetts and Rhode Island own two well equipped summer camps for boys. They are beautifully located, one on Moody Island, near Friendship, Maine, and the other at Becket, Mass., in the Berkshire Hills. The cost of board at these camps is very moderate, making it possible for a large number of boys to avail themselves of the privileges. Camp Durrell on Moody Island will begin its twelfth season on July 1, continuing until September 1. Camp Becket in the Berkshires will open June 30 and close August 12. Booklets giving full information about the camps are out.

If George H. Wilson of Quincy proposes to secure the nomination for Captain C. C. Doten's place on the harbor and land commission, he must bring all his effort to bear, for there are plenty of candidates. It was said at the State House yesterday that Captain Humphrey of the Boston Towboat Company had the support of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. Representative Schofield of Ipswich has formally entered his name for the appointment. Ira C. Hersey of Foxboro is named as another candidate, and some interesting gossip is current about him. It is said that when he was named to Private Secretary Buchanan, he asked what he knew about salt water business anyway, for Foxboro was an inland town and perhaps he wouldn't know a ship if he saw one. Another tale is that after it was found that Humphrey had the backing of the Chamber of Commerce that Buchanan told Hersey to get what he could in way of prominent endorsement. Thereupon he got a letter from Richard Onley, the late candidate for the presidency, commending him for his general character and ability, though he did not pretend to know what were his special merits for the harbor and land commissionership. Hersey is said to have secured much strong endorsement. Schofield, as democratic leader of the house, of course has peculiar considerations as a candidate. So Mr. Wilson's path is by no means clear, but few of the candidates have a stronger endorsement from prominent officials than ex-Councilman Wilson, and it is not confined to Norfolk County.

Fifty Years a Teacher.

A public reception will be given on Friday evening next to Miss Julia E. Underwood, who has just completed fifty years as a teacher in the Quincy schools, all this time in one grade at the Coddington building. Over 3000 boys and girls have during these years been graduated from her room and have usually been successful in the walks of life.

The committee for the reception, which will be held at High School hall, are: F. E. Parlin, the Superintendent of Schools; Miss Mary E. Dearborn, Principal of the Coddington School; and T. B. Pollard, President of the Quincy Teachers' Association.

Among the invited guests are George I. Aldrich and H. W. Lull, former superintendents of Quincy schools, and former members of the School Committee and former teachers at the Coddington. It will be an informal gathering, with music by the High School orchestra, and all friends of Miss Underwood are cordially invited.

MANSFIELD--CUFF.

A Brilliant Wedding at St. Francis Church, Braintree

St. Francis church presented a brilliant scene on Wednesday morning, at the marriage ceremony of Miss Helen A. Cuff, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cuff of Braintree to J. Henry Mansfield of New York city. The beautiful bride is one of Braintree's most popular young ladies and one of its most successful public school teachers. Mr. Mansfield, the oldest son of John T. Mansfield of Rockland, is engaged in a successful brokerage business in New York. Both are former pupils of Thayer academy.

The bridal procession, led by Miss Margaret O'Hearn, the fair girl cousin of the bride, as maid of honor, followed by the Misses Josephine and Alice Mansfield, the beautiful twin sisters of the groom, who served as bridesmaids entered the church to the sweet strains of a wedding march.

They were closely followed by the ushers, J. H. Hunter of New York, James Mansfield of Rockland and John and Edward Cuff brothers of the bride. Next followed dainty little Master Ellis Condon, who bore the wedding ring on a silver salver.

The bride beautifully gowned in white satin with veil and bearing an exquisite shower bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley escorted by her father proceeded to the foot of the altar, where they were met by Mr. Mansfield and Aaron Higgins, who acted as groomsman. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Matthew F. McDonnell, pastor of St. Francis church.

A nuptial high mass was then celebrated with Rev. M. F. McDonnell as celebrant, Rev. James H. O'Neil of Rockland as deacon and Rev. J. P. Cuff of Atlantic as subdeacon. The church was artisfically decorated with plants and cut flowers by Mr. Waldecker our local florist.

The Wyelljaycee club, of which the bride was an active and zealous member attended in a body. The church was filled with the friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The musical program was under the direction of Miss May F. Shay, organist of the church.

A reception was held at the bride's home from ten to twelve. The bridal couple standing under a large floral bell in the bay window which was festooned with ribbons and flowers were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Cuff, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Mansfield, Mr. Higgins and the Misses O'Hearn and Josephine and Alice Mansfield. A delectable and bountiful wedding breakfast was served. During the reception the guests were entertained by choice selections by Cuff's orchestra.

A luxuriously furnished home in New York city awaits the coming of its fair young mistress. Many valuable and elegant wedding presents were forwarded directly to the future home of the young couple. Notable among the gifts received at the bride's home here were:

A mother of pearl prayerbook and silver rosary, Rev. J. F. O'Neil

A silver fruit dish, Rev. J. E. Johnston.

Silver bread tray, Rev. J. P. Cuffe.

BORN AT QUINCY

Now Ninety Eight Years of Age

Mrs. Harriet Farril in Good Health.

Bemis, a Pioneer [illegible] man.

A recent issue of the [illegible] publishes a sketch of Mrs. Harriet [illegible]rie of Somerville, now 98 years old, who was born in Quincy, being the daughter of Mr. Josiah and Mrs Johanna Fish Bemis, and the youngest of twelve children.

Mrs. Harriet Farrie, who is a "real daughter" of the revolution, was made happy by the gift of a beautiful gold spoon with appropriate inscriptions from the National society, D. A. R. The gift was presented a few days ago by the Boston Tea Party chapter, of which Mrs. Farrie is a member, and was the occasion of a pleasant gathering at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Anthony Waterman, at 162 Broadway, with whom she lives.

Mrs. Farrie enjoys good health and relates many interesting reminiscences. Owing to impaired eyesight Mrs. Farrie says she cannot read or sew, but she is of a bright, happy disposition, fond of company and has that blessed gift of radiating happiness everywhere.

Mr. Bemis is mentioned in Pattee's History of Quincy. On page 501 one may read: "Not much thought was given to the stone quarries until the early part of the nineteeth century, when Jackson Field, Josiah Bemis, William Wood and William Packard began to open quarries in Quincy for the purpose of carrying on the stone business. The may be considered the first persons who established the stone business in a legimated manner in the town, but it was in a very small way, as there was no great demand for large building stone; and if there had been, they would not have been able to supply the material for the want of proper apparatus and machinery of lifting and hoisting large blocks of granite. The stone quarried at first was principally for underpinings, door steps, etc."

Again on page 515: "One Sunday in 1803, the first experiment in splitting stone with wedges was made by Josiah Bemis, George Stearns and Michael Wild. It proved successful, and so elated were these gentlemen on this memorable Sunday that they adjourned to Newcomb's Hotel where they partook of a sumptuous repast. The wedges used in this experiment were flat, differing from those in use at the present time."

Mr. Bemis worked on Nixs Mate in Boston harbor, the Charles street prison and the old Suffolk courthouse.

—During the coming summer Paris is to have a visit from the shah of Persia. The distinguished traveler will not journey in full state, for not only does he wish to consult the doctors, but he also wishes to see something of Paris in a semi-official way. For this reason only two state dinners will be given, one by President Loubet and one by M. Delcasse.

Seth Sears, a graduate of the Adams academy, and later Master of the Washington school at Quincy Point, has been elected president of the Cambridge Y. M. C. A. Mr. Sears is well known in Quincy where he has a host of friends.

Mrs. Jane Walker, formerly of Quincy, died at her residence, 227 Langton street, San Francisco, Cal., April 30. She was the beloved wife of Joseph Walker, and mother of James W. Smilley and Mrs. Francis B. Houghton, and the late Mrs. Henry O. Niel and Alexander Walker.

Throughout the month of May, there will be preaching at the morning service only at St. Chrysostom's church. The evening service will consist of choral even song without sermon. During the months of June, July, August and September there will be the morning service only, at the usual hour, 10.45.

The Hull Beacon speaking of a former resident of Quincy says: Having served successfully as census enumerator five years ago, Herbert Rogers of Marshfield Hills was last week reappointed and is now busily engaged questioning the residents of his end of the town. It is a pleasure to give facts to such a genial enumerator as Mr. Rogers. In his work in this capacity he has made many new friends, even though he has long been well acquainted with a large number."

Is Your Boy Out Late?

There is a crowd of young boys who congregate in the vicinity of the Adams academy who should be looked after by their parents, before the appetite for liquor becomes too strongly fastened upon them to shake off.

These boys are sons of respectable parents, and their particular pastime is what is known in bar room parlance as "rushing the growler."

They gather early in the evening and the first thing done is to pass the hat. A collection of fifty or seventy-five cents is secured. One of the party then takes a ten quart milk can and starts for Harrison Square to get it filled with beer. The messenger usually returns about 10.30, and is met between the Adams academy and Woodward Institute by the rest of the party. The adjournment is made to a secluded spot, and the next half hour is passed in drinking beer.

This transaction takes place almost nightly. There is such a thing however, as carrying it too far, and some night the police will swoop down upon the crowd, seize their beer, and lock them up. Then there will be weeping and wailing among some families, and a rush to the newspaper office to have their sons' name kept out of print.

AMONG THE WOMEN'S CLUBS.

The good work of the Chelsea Woman's club and Chester H. Wilbar, recently principal of the Willard school in Quincy, is shown in the following paragraph from the Transcript: School children working to keep clean city streets is an experiment which is about to be given a thorough test in Chelsea. Already plans have been prepared for school teachers, working in conjunction with the Chelsea Woman's Club, which is to furnish receptacles for the waste collected, to carry out this idea, which was originally advanced by Chester H. Wilbar, until recently principal of the Williams Grammar school, Chelsea, but at present teaching in South Boston. Superintendent of Schools Gregory plans to have the boys and girls of the Williams district, comprising the Williams Grammar, Cary, Broadway and Frank B. Fay schools, keep a strict watch of the streets within the district and remove all papers and unsightly waste that may collect. The receptacles will be neatly painted and will be placed at convenient points. There are about 2500 children in the four schools and it is hoped that they, together with many of the parents whom it is expected will become indirectly interested in the work, will keep the streets in excellent order. Mr. Gregory believes that the interest aroused by this work is sure to result in a general desire to preserve property of all kinds from being defaced and will inspire the children to higher civic ideals. Should the experiment prove a success it is intended to extend it to other districts.

The interest shown in the work accomplished by the Philergians as a small club, and the importance of becoming a large one, has encouraged them to hold this public meeting, to place before the women of Braintree the advantage of belonging to a club, the work and influence of women's clubs and the amount of good it is in their power to accomplish for the country, the town and for themselves as women. It is hoped the women of Braintree will respond to this invitation, and that Cochato hall may be filled with an interested, enthusiastic audience.

The annual meeting of the Philergians will be held at the home of Mrs. C. A. Bill, 91 Hollis avenue, Tuesday, May 16th, at two o'clock. Special attention is called to the hour and the club members are requested to meet promptly on account of business to come before the regular meeting.

District Nursing.

How may the blessing of skilled nursing be brought within the reach of the great middle class?

This problem is stated in the current number of "Charities," and is answered with an account of the work being done by the District Nursing Association of Concord, N. H., organized and incorporated in 1899.

This association not only cares for the destitute sick, but by charging a fee for its services is able to reach the class under discussion, where it is desperately needed. One of its problems has been to exclude those who are fully able to pay for a regular nurse. This has been accomplished by keeping the staff of nurses so small that they cannot answer all calls and taking patrons in order of financial necessity.

The work of the nurses has been found to be of greatest value in chronic and obstetric cases.

"A remarkable chronic case treated," says "Charities" "was that of an industrious self-respecting mechanic afflicted with a cancer of the throat and tongue. The family consisted of the man, wife and 2 children, and another baby was soon expected.

When the nurse was first called the man had been for sometime unable to work and was in a terrible condition, his suffering both of mind and body being pitiful to see. The fact that he was unable to support his family fretted him more than his physical sufferings.

The nurse visited him twice daily for months to treat his throat and tongue and take him nourishing broths from the diet kitchen. Meanwhile the baby came, and his wife was also nursed through her illness. No one ever expected the man could recover, and it even seemed at times that it would be a mercy if he could be taken away instead of lingering on to suffer.

"But greatly to the amazement of every one he began after awhile to improve, and finally, after 7 months, the daily visits were discontinued, he resumed his work, and is now once more supporting his family."

One of the most important branches of the work is the instructions given to the family, and in chronic cases this instruction is of great value.

The association is supported voluntarily and cheerfully by public subscription and has never had to resort to the usual devices for raising money. Every one who contributes even 10 cents becomes a voting member and, therefore, the whole town feels an interest in the work and more or less responsibility for its support.

The association has a regular staff of 3 nurses—a head nurse and 2 pupil assistants from the State Hospital Training school. There is also an irregular volunteer staff of nurses, who give their services when not otherwise engaged. The cost of maintaining the work last year was $1,575.61.—Boston Record.

How the Nutmeg Grows.

"A nutmeg tree," said the gardener, "looks like a laurel. The nutmeg tree begins to bear at the age of ten years. It keeps on bearing until it is ninety. The fruit resembles an apricot, and when ripe it bursts open, showing at its heart the black nutmeg inclosed in a network of scarlet. The nutmeg after plucking must be dried. It is dried over a slow fire, and the process is tedious. It often occupies two months. Before shipping the nutmegs are always steeped in sea water and lime. This is to protect them from insects. They have nothing but insects to fear. In an insect proof condition they keep—well, they keep practically forever."—Minneapolis Journal.

ALL GOT BASES ON BALLS.

Annual Dance of the Quincy Baseball Club at the Quincy Coliseum Well Attended.

There was a large attendance last evening at the second grand dance of the Quincy Base Ball club. Roche's orchestra furnished music and dancing was enjoyed until an early hour in the morning.

CAPT. FLYNN.

It was a general source of regret that the club's manager, William H. Flynn, who had worked so hard for the success of the dance, was unable to be present on account of illness. Although absent he was not forgotten.

The Quincy Base Ball club was organized at Quincy Point in 1903 and was composed of local players, who under the management of Mr. Flynn made an enviable reputation by winning 22 out of the 24 games played.

The team starts its third season with an aggregation of players far stronger than heretofore, and with the good financial backing that has been assured, the team will probably make as good if not a better showing than in 1903.

Those in charge of the floor were Alfred T. Bullock and Charles Pitts, who were assisted by an efficient corps of aids, consisting D. Dorley, E. J. Costello, J. C. McGuane, S. Patterson, J. Dunn, J. J. Kelly, C. Mullane, F. Pitts, J. A. Duffy, J. L. Eldridge, H. Mullane, J. Rooney, A. Dunn, C. Jensen, G. Muse and J. Powers.

One of the features of the evening was a prize dance. Several couples entered the contest. The prize was awarded to Stanley Barnicoat and Miss May Travers.

Social Realm.

The third annual dancing party of the Wyelljaycee club was held at Town hall, Braintree on Wednesday evening with the usual success socially and financially that has marked all their undertakings.

The groom is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer H. Vinton and has hosts of friends in this vicinity.

Just Streets.

"The highest street in the world," said a globe trotter, "is Main street in Denver, the richest is Fifth avenue in New York, the widest is Market street in Philadelphia and the shortest is the Rue Ble in Paris. This street is only twenty feet long. The dirtiest street is Tchangtsi in Nankin, the cleanest is the Via Castile in Seville, the most aristocratic is Grosvenor place, London; the most beautiful is the Avenue des Champs Elysees, Paris. The narrowest street is Via Sol, Havana, which has a width of forty-two inches. The ugliest street is considered by many foreign artists and architects to be Broadway, New York, with its skyscrapers."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Warsaw's "Social Glass."

The town of Warsaw, Russia, may be called the milk producers' Eden. There is probably nowhere such a "milk town." Restaurants are but little frequented. On the other hand, the public frequents the various dairies in great numbers in order to chat with friends or read the newspapers to the accompaniment of black or white coffee or a glass of cold or warm milk. To close a bargain or to talk business the milk saloon is resorted to. Chess and billiards are allowed to be played in these recognized places of public resort.—London Times.

When Saddles Were First Used.

It is supposed that the saddle was invented about the middle of the fourth century, but the fact, in the opinion of some, has not been positively proved. Zonaras, the historian, tells us that Constantine the younger was killed in the year 340, when he fell from his saddle. The word translated into saddle also means, however, the back of the horse or the place where the rider sat. It is true, nevertheless, that Sidonius Apollinaris used the word that unmistakably refers to the saddletree.

Found Guilty.

Mazaronni Daptanfilo whose place at 49 Canal street was raided by the police April 23, was given a hearing in the district court this morning upon a warrant charging him with maintaining a liquor nuisance. A quantity was found when the officers raided the place which the defendent claimed were not for sale, but was being used in celebrating Easter.

There was evidence of a sale and the court found Daptanfilo guilty and imposed a fine of $50. Appealed. George E. Adams, Esq., represented the government, and Thomas F. McAnarney, Esq., the defendant. The case occupied most of the day.

MANILA'S TROLLEY ROAD.

The System Recently Opened Forty Miles Long.

The recent opening of the Manila electric railway, says the Kansas City Journal, gives that city a system of electric railways that probably cannot be surpassed by any town of the same size in the United States. Work has been carried on for the past two years by a New York and London company, and in that time forty miles of urban and suburban track has been laid, a new and up to date power house and car barn constructed and the whole placed in successful operation.

Three years ago the city of Manila had a horse car line about eight miles long. Today instead of eight small mule cars there are a hundred double truck electric cars in service, and more will be added as necessity demands.

The power is generated in a steel and concrete structure, 11,170 feet, located on an island in the Passig river. This power house contains three 1,000 horsepower turbines, each directly connected to turbo generators.

Just south of the island is a steel and concrete car barn, built, as is the custom in Manila, in the form of a hollow square, and equipped with offices and repair shops. A small but modern printing office is also operated by the company, in which time tables, circulars, advertising matter and tickets are printed. It is necessary on account of the distance from a suitable supply house.

The track construction is equal to the best found in the United States, the rails weighing seventy and ninety pounds to the yard. A large portion of the track is laid on solid concrete foundation. On account of the naturally damp climate it was necessary thoroughly to coat all of the steel rails with asphaltum paint.

It was necessary to use teakwood in all of the car construction on account of the attacks of the white ant. The majority of the cars are of the standard cross bench, open type, used extensively in the United States, and to provide for the rainy season a number of convertible and semiconvertible cars have been provided.

Portable screen partitions are used for separating first and second class passengers. The Canadian system of fare collection by means of fare boxes has been adopted.

JAR FOR COACHING PARTY.

Policeman Halted Fashionable Pittsburgers as a Wild West Outfit.

"Darkest Pittsburg" became a very real phrase to members of the ultra fashionable Country club the other day as they regretted an outing and a dinner lost through the inability of a Pittsburg park policeman to understand the latest fashionable innovation—a road coach, says a Pittsburg special dispatch to the New York Press.

In plain terms, a party of the richest folk in Pittsburg on a coaching run to the Country club was held up by a policeman who believed coach and party to be nothing more than an advertising adjunct of a wild west show. Not only was he unable to tell the difference between the cream of Pittsburg's smart set and a crowd of wild west performers, but he arrested the driver and broke up the excursion.

The Country club includes most of Pittsburg's millionaires. Impressed by the success of the New York coach trips to Ardsley and the races, the club bought a fine new coach, christened it the Hiawatha and set a recent night for the first run.

This was to have been from the clubhouse through Schenley park, along a boulevard and back to the clubhouse in time for dinner at 10 o'clock. Former Senator William Flynn supplied four magnificent horses from his private stables, and the invited guests included the cream of the club membership.

In Schenley park the Hiawatha attracted the attention of Park Policeman Patrick Farley. He shivered with horror. The antiadvertising ordinance was being violated.

There was the name of Hiawatha. It was part of the parade of the Wild West showing at Pittsburg. He stopped the coach.

"Look here, now," he said, "you can't drive like that, and you can't go through this park a-drivin' your old circus wagon to advertise them breakfast foods of yourn. D'ye hear me?" The law abiding driver said he did. "Well, then," ordered the irate bluecoat, "you just come with me down to the station house, that's what you'll do." The members of the party were allowed to escape, but the driver was taken to the station house.

Firing Krupp Guns.

The great firm of Krupp has lately had to acquire a firing range and testing ground for naval armor plates on the Dutch frontier, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. The danger zone includes the hamlet of Schlagbrucken, and, as the inhabitants absolutely refuse to be bought out, protection has had to be provided for them. On firing days—there may be 150 in a year—they are all gathered into special casemates, all cattle are kept up, under guarantee against loss, every inhabitant receives an allowance for each firing day, and in case of fatal accident heirs are entitled to a pension of $100 a year.

Test In Memory of Byron's Swim.

Lord Byron, when at Venice, challenged his friends to a swimming match from Lido to Santa Chiara, a distance of eight miles. The challenge was accepted, and the poet won a splendid victory. In remembrance of this feat an international swimming competition was recently instituted, says a Venice dispatch to the New York Herald, the first meeting to occur this year. The winner will receive an artistic cup offered by an English lady.

Wollaston W. C. T. U.

The Wollaston W. C. T. Union met on Tuesday last, at the home of Mrs. J. A. Jewell, 52 Lincoln avenue. Quite a number of members were present, but if the women only knew how interesting the meetings are there would be many more present.

The Union has a program, and every meeting a new subject is introduced which is an entertainment in itself—we were more than impressed with the excellent work of the Flower Mission, as Mrs. Simpson, State Superintendent of that work presented it at our last meeting. If some of you dear women only heard her tell her experience in her labor among the poor of Boston, and with what delight, those dear souls welcome a little bouquet, it would bring tears to your eyes. On one occasion a little girl came into the Flower Mission rooms, 14 Beacon street, and asked to only smell the flowers—and when shown the quantity there said: "I wonder where God gets the room to have so many flowers." Another occasion an unfortunate prisoner, after being presented with flowers, was heard to exclaim: "Oh what must I do to be saved."

Kind women of our lovely city and suburbs, does this not appeal to your kind hearts? Let us all be a little more considerate, remembering what Jesus said: "The poor are ever with you."

Day Nursery.

The Quincy Day Nursery Association met in the Council chamber, City Hall, May 2d, with fourteen members present. The secretary's, treasurer's and matron's reports were read and accepted. Mrs. Dasha and Mrs. Pattee reported for the visiting committee for the month. Mrs. Addison reported that through the kindness of T. C. Higgins, superintendent of the Boston & Maine baggage department a trunk which had been held for several months had been procured free of charges for one of the nursery mothers.

Voted to send a card of thanks to Mr. Higgins. Voted, to send a vote of thanks to Mr. Patch for ice, which has been delivered at the nursery free of charge. Voted that each member consider herself a committee to get the men interested in the work and to get as many to join the association as possible. The fee to be one dollar a year. Voted to send vote of thanks to Dr. Bulger for work done for one of the nursery children and to accept and thank him for his generous offer to do further work for any of the children.

Voted to send a vote in favor of Amendments to Constitution of Day Nursery Conference in New York. Mrs. Addison reported the gift of wire and work, for enclosing the nursery yard, also the gift of an awning.

Voted to hold the Rummage sale Saturday and Monday, May 20, and 22d. Articles to be received at the rooms Friday morning, May 19th. Voted to hold sale in vacant store in the building under the Advertiser office. Adjourned at 4.10.

Fanny T. Sears, secretary.

—Commander R. E. Peary in an outline of his plan of campaign aboard his new Arctic steamer Roosevelt says that he purposes to leave New York sometime between the first and the middle of July on his northward way, stopping at Sydney for coal. By the first of September he had planned to go into winter quarters at Grand Land, after a dash through the ice barriers at Melville Bay and Cape Sabine. In February with the dawning of the first new light his intention is to start with dog sledges on the four hundred and ninety mile dash from winter quarters to the pole. He thinks the sledge journey will prove less difficult than the task of forcing a way through the ice barriers of Smith Sound. The explorer expresses himself as entirely confident of the success of this plan, and believes it to be by far the best which has been mapped out by any venturer in northern climes up to date.

—Robert Friesen, a German traveler, who recently reached Berlin from Iceland, says the Icelanders are the most highly educated people in the world, and their average attainments there are far superior to those of the people of Germany.

FAILURE OF JUSTICE

Opinion of Jerome In the C of Nan Patterson

THE WOMAN IS SET FREE

Sister and Brother-In-Law, Held on Charge of Conspiracy, Are Also Discharged -- Recorder Goff's Good Advice

New York, May 13.—After more than 11 months in prison and three mistrials, on the charge of murdering "Caesar" Young, Nan Patterson walked from the Tombs a free woman. As she left the great building which has been her home since a few days after Young was found dying in a cab in lower New York, 2000 people greeted her with cheers, for the news that District Attorney Jerome would move for her dismissal from custody had spread throughout the vicinity of the prison and court house.

The move to discharge Nan Patterson came rather unexpectedly to the public. It was an hour or more before noon when District Attorney Jerome appeared before Recorder Goff, in special sessions, and announced that he desired to move the discharge of the former chorus girl, on her own recognizance.

Not the least interesting of the day's events was the reunion in freedom of the former actress with her sister, Mrs. J. M. Smith, and her brother-in-law, J. M. Smith, both of whom were discharged by Justice Cowing in the court of general sessions. They had been held on charges of conspiracy in connection with the Patterson case. Smith had been held also for contempt of court, in failing to obey a subpoena as a witness before the grand jury. He was fined $250 on this charge. Then came a surprise, for Nan Patterson herself paid the fine out of a $300 check which had been given her by a friendly newspaper.

District Attorney Jerome announced his decision to free Nan Patterson in a speech in the course of which he declared that, during two of the trials of the girl, all the evidence in the possession of the district attorney's office had been presented to the court, and that on both occasions there had been a disagreement. He said he did not believe that at this time, in this county, another trial would result in anything else than a disagreement. He declared that he had information that the members of the last jury had agreed that Smith had bought the revolver; that Nan Patterson carried in the cab, and that Young did not commit suicide. He took occasion to refute published reports as to the cost of the proceedings. Following this line, he declared that the newspapers had made "gross misrepresentations," and then said:

"This case has caused one more step in this county toward trial by newspaper rather than trial by jury. I do not refer to those papers which have merely reported the proceedings but to those that in their editorial rooms have labored to arouse sympathy for the prisoner with the result of a serious miscarriage of justice. Everything that the prosecution has done has my cordial and hearty approbation. I fear nothing for myself or my assistants. My assistant rightly, bravely, honestly went forward with my entire approbation."

The district attorney concluded with the motion that Nan Patterson be discharged on her own recognizance. It was then that Miss Patterson was sent for and as a court officer met her in her cell, he said:

"Come on, Nan. It is all right; you are going to be free."

Recorder Goff, the venerable judge who has tried so many famous criminal cases, met the eyes of the girl as she walked slowly into the courtroom and took the same seat which she occupied during the trying days of her last trial.

"Nan Patterson," he said slowly, "the district attorney has seen fit to recommend your discharge. I feel bound to say I fully coincide in the decision. There is nothing I can say in this case that has not already been said, but let me entreat you in your future life to remember the terrible ordeal through which you have passed and to permit every action of your life to be guided by that remembrance. Good-bye," and the recorder bowed his head as he uttered the final word and closed the case.

A moment later the girl was shaking hands with her counsel. Then she walked steadily from the court to find herself in the arms of her father just outside the door. The crowds in the corridor cheered and the police let them have their way.

As she reached the street door the demonstration was taken up by a throng outside. Hurrying through the crowd, she took her place in a cab, smiling and nodding to the greetings hurled at her. As the cab started down town to the offices of her counsel mounted police surrounded it and kept back the increasing crowd which was threatening one of the most remarkable demonstrations ever seen at the Tombs.

In Mr. Levy's office Miss Patterson briefly expressed her thanks to her counsel, announced to the newspaper men she was going to her mother in Washington, and was driven to the St. Paul hotel. Then she met her sister and they took an automobile ride. J. M. Smith joined the two later and the trio dined together. Miss Patterson took a late train for Washington last night.

Ye Stirring Adventures of Captain Elisha Hopewell

By CHARLES B. LEWIS

Copyright, 1904, by Charles B. Lewis

[Ye captain was ye sole owner of ye brig Mary Ann, and between ye years 1779 and 1786 he sailed out of ye ports of Salem and Boston, generally accompanied by his wife Nancy.]

IT was in July of the year 1781. British warships were thick on the American coast, and, though Yankee craft were constantly dodging in and out, each skipper realized that he ran a terrible risk. One day early in the month Captain Elisha Hopewell of the brig Mary Ann of Salem, who had not made a voyage for two months, entered his house to say to his wife:

"Waal, Nancy, I've got a cargo for the brig at last."

"I should think it was about time," replied the wife as she mixed her dough for the usual two loaves of bread without looking up.

"What d'ye think 'tis?" asked the captain as he sat down and pulled off his right boot, which had been chafing his heel.

"Dunno. But I shall be ready when the brig is."

"Nancy, I don't think you'll care about goin' on this voyage. It's a rayther peculiar cargo, and I guess you'll sort of decide to stay home and mind the cat and the hollyhocks."

"Now, Elisha Hopewell, don't be silly. What's the cargo and where's the Mary Ann goin'?"

"The cargo is—is p-o-w-d-e-r!" whispered the captain.

"Well, what of it?"

"A hundred bar'ls of powder, a thousand pounds of lead, five bar'ls of flints and 200 muskets."

"And where ye bound fur, Elisha?"

"Goin' to try to git into Wilmington, North Caroleeny. The lead and the flints and the muskets is all right, Nancy, but think of a hundred bar'ls of powder! By Josh, but it gives me cold feet!"

"I'm thinkin' it will give the British cold feet if them North Caroleeny patriots git hold of it," she grimly replied, but without the shadow of a smile. "When will you be ready?"

"Day after tomorrer."

"So'll I."

"But, Nancy, think of the powder—a hundred bar'ls of it! Just let a spark touch it, and we'll be blowed into a million pieces!"

"I'm a-goin' along to keep the sparks away. Now, Elisha, don't waste any more breath nor make that hole in your stockin' any bigger. I'm goin' along, powder or no powder. The cat can scratch around fur a livin', and it wouldn't be no great harm if the hollyhocks died fur want of water. That's all, and it won't do no good to say another word."

The captain pulled on his boot and went out and split some wood to bake the bread, and the subject wasn't mentioned again for twenty-four hours. Then the wife sent a few things down to the brig, shut up the stove, poured all the water out of the teakettle and appeared on board. Next morning the Mary Ann put to sea. The brig had been built for a trader. She was fast, but she mounted no guns. As for firearms, there was only one musket aboard, and just who that belonged to nobody seemed to know. While nearly every other merchantman out of New England ports could make more or less of a stout defense if attacked, the Mary Ann depended on her wings alone. In this matter both Elisha and Nancy were agreed.

"THE CARGO IS P-O-W-D-E-R!" WHISPERED THE CAPTAIN.

"Guns and powder and ball cost money," was the way the captain put it, "while wind don't cost nothin'."

"Even if we could fight and lick one of them British men-of-war we could never bring her into port with our seven men," was the argument used by the wife.

After heading straight out to sea until he believed he was clear of any of the blockaders Captain Elisha laid his southern course. Now and then a distant sail was sighted, but nothing happened to cause alarm until the brig was well down toward Cape Hatteras. Then one evening as fair progress was being made and all was going well Nancy looked up from her sewing at Elisha as he came sauntering down into the cabin and said:

"Elisha, you know how my feet allus burn at sea when we're goin' to have a calm? We'll lose the wind before 10 o'clock."

"By Josh, but I don't like it!" he exclaimed, with considerable vigor. "We're slippin' right along to git around the cape by sunup, and we can't have no calms."

"Got to have, Elisha, and it won't do no good to talk about it."

In less than two hours the breeze had fined down and died out, and the Mary Ann lay tossing on the ground swell. The cargo was one to be got into the hands of the southern patriots without delay, and at least a portion of it was something no skipper cared to have aboard any longer than he could make a port. As the calm came Captain Elisha Hopewell fretted and fumed and wondered if it would be his undoing. The British still held Charleston, and from that port they patrolled the southern coast. Nothing had been in sight when night closed in, but morning and a breeze might find a frigate in his wake or coming up the coast. At the end of an hour and as he was still pacing the deck Nancy joined him and quietly said:

"Elisha, you may git ready fur a thunderstorm."

"N-o-a!" he fairly shouted as he flung up his arms.

"It's comin', Elisha. I can smell a thunderstorm ten miles off, as you very well know."

"But the powder, Nancy—the hundred bar'ls of powder! We shall be struck by lightnin' and blowed to mince meat!"

"Mebbe we shall, but we can't help ourselves. That's all jest now, Elisha. Better change your clothes and git ready fur the rain."

Five minutes later there came a flash of lightning, followed by the rumble of thunder, and within a quarter of an hour there was a terrific downpour of rain which lasted for a full hour. At every flash of lightning the crew of the brig shivered and trembled, and they were a frightened and humbled lot when the storm finally passed over. The breeze did not come up as the heavens cleared, and then every sailor knew that the calm would hold until sunrise. Midnight came and the captain was just leaving the deck in charge of his mate when Nancy, who had declared her intention of going to bed half an hour before, suddenly appeared on deck and began sniffing and snuffing at the air.

"Is the wind a-comin'?" asked the captain, with considerable interest.

"No wind, Elisha," she answered, "but I'll tell you what's what. I don't know what's become of all your noses that you can't smell a whale close by!"

"A whale!" shouted the captain. "But, by Josh, then, your nose must have got a twist in it! If there was a whale within five miles of us'—"

"Whale almost alongside of us, sir!" interrupted a voice from the bows of the brig. And there was a hurrying forward to confirm the announcement.

A whale fully sixty feet long had risen to the surface so quietly that no wash of the sea betrayed his presence. He was lying head and tail with the brig and almost rubbing her starboard side, and every man wondered that the odor of the leviathan had not betrayed his presence long before.

"I said a whale, Elisha," observed Nancy as she looked over the rail upon the great bulk, "and I calkerlate you'll acknowledge I'm right."

"But what we goin' to do with him?" asked the captain in a bewildered way.

"Nothin' 't all. Jest let him be. He's old enough and big enough to take care of himself."

"But if he staves in the brig he'll stave in the powder!"

"Can't be helped. You can't argue with a whale. We'd better all keep still and see if he won't go away."

The suggestion was followed, but the leviathan did not take his departure. He seemed to have come to the surface to take a long nap. Now and then a long drawn sigh escaped from his spout hole, but so far as could be observed by the men, who moved about in their bare feet and peered over the bulwarks at intervals, he never moved a fin. His queer hanging on made everybody nervous, and the result was that nobody slept. Captain Elisha paced up and down on tiptoe, and Nancy got out needle and thread and found a jacket of his which needed mending. An hour after midnight the captain descended to the cabin to whisper to her:

"Nancy, I'm jiggered if I know what's to be done!"

"Now, Elisha, what's the use of all this stewin'?" she asked as she held her needle suspended to look at him. "A calm is a calm and is goin' to continer to be a calm till the wind gits up. 'Pears to me that even Deacon Taylor's oxen could figger that out."

"But it's the whale. Nancy—the whale!" he hoarsely whispered.

"What about the whale? He hain't hurt nobody yet, and I don't think he intends to. I'm worryin' more about our cat at home than I am about the whale alongside."

"Jest one flap of his tail would bust in the brig and the bar'ls of powder, and away we'd go!"

"Waal, I ain't goin' to worry 'bout no flaps, and it won't do you no good to prowl around. Better lie down on the locker and git forty winks of sleep."

The hours dragged on, and the calm continued; so did the whale. When dawn came stealing over the sea at last he was rubbing the barnacles off his side against the Mary Ann and taking lots of comfort. The first thing they all looked for was the whale. The next thing was for sight of sail, and Nancy pointed her finger to the east and nudged the captain with her elbow and quietly said:

"Elisha, don't you kind of think that's an English frigate comin' in on the breeze which we hain't got yet?"

"By Josh, and I do!" he shouted after a brief look. "Yes, sir-e-e! That's a British frigate, and the Mary Ann is as good as captured this very minit! Nancy, you might as well begin to pack up your pins and needle."

"I shan't pack nothin', Elisha. She's got a small breeze out there, but it won't hold. It'll die out and then whip around and come off the cape."

"That'll be it, captain," added the mate as he leaped up on the rail to squint at the sky and observe the set of the sea.

"But if it falls calm she'll lower her boats to tackle us," persisted the captain. "I'm tellin' you that the brig is as good as captured right now, and we might jest as well git ready to see the inside of an English prison. By Josh, Nancy, but didn't I tell you to stay home?"

"You did, Elisha, but I'm here all the same. What a man you are to fret! That Britisher is seven miles off yet, and can't you see how the wind's dyin' out? Now, you stop your frettin' and let Providence sort of take hold. Nobody is ever captured till you've got hold of their coat tails, and even then the coat may wriggle off."

The eyes of the crew were on the captain, however, and the wife's stout hearted words did not prevent despondency. The entire crew agreed that the Mary Ann would never enter the port of Salem again, and those who had extra garments began to put them on so as to save being despoiled. Captain and mate sat down on the cabin skylight and sighed and groaned, while Nancy walked the deck and occasionally glanced from the whale to the frigate. When the latter had come up within five miles she lost the last of the breeze. She knew the brig to be a Yankee trader, and her captain would take no chances. Down dropped a boat, and fifteen men followed it, and in a minute more it was headed for the brig.

THE WHALE HAD BREACHED BETWEEN THE BOAT AND BRIG.

"Waal, mebbe you can git some comfort out of that!" growled Captain Elisha as he rose up and pointed toward the boat.

"That boat hain't boarded us yet," replied Nancy.

"But what's to hinder her?"

"Can't tell, but I somehow feel as if Providence would pull us out of this. Elisha Hopewell, you hain't got half the grit I thought you had, and you've chewed tobacco and eat codfish till you seem to have lost all your faith!"

Even though the frigate was five miles away, a sort of quiver went through the whale as her boat struck the water. It could not be doubted that he heard the sound. When the boat had covered a mile he parted from the brig and slewed himself around almost by inches. Ten minutes more, and there was a cry that he had disappeared. He went as he came, silently and without showing a patch of foam. The boat was pulling steadily on, with the young sun glistening on the bayonets of the armed crew, and Captain Elisha had just fetched another groan of despair when there were shouts of astonishment from forward and aft.

The whale had breached between the boat and the brig. He came up from the sea as if he had 200 pounds of steam on and had forced a good third of his length out of water before he fell on the surface with a mighty crash. He did not rush at the boat, but he lay fair in her course and beat the water into acres of foam and rolled this way and that until the seas he kicked up made the Mary Ann dance. The boat came to a sudden stop. It looked as if the whale had a chip on his shoulder and was aching for a row. After ten minutes of delay the boat put about for the frigate.

"By Josh and by Josh!" whispered the captain.

"Have I gone squint eyed, or has the boat put back?" demanded the mate.

"Elisha Hopewell, d'ye see the wind comin'?" asked Nancy as she pointed to the northwest. "Better make good use of it to git out of this."

The sails of the Mary Ann were spread, and she made a good two miles' headway before the frigate felt the first puff. A chase followed, but what was a good sailing breeze for a small brig was a slow pace for a heavy frigate, and by and by the pursuer hauled off and went his way. A few hours later the cargo was landed, and the brave General Greene had the munitions to fight the gallant action of Eutaw Springs. When the last barrel of powder and the last pound of lead were out of the brig Captain Elisha descended to the cabin and kissed his wife with a resounding smack.

"La, now, but what's come over you, Elisha?" she asked in surprise.

"You saved the Mary Ann, and, by Josh, I'll kiss you again!"

"Git out and don't act like a boy! I never saved the brig 't all. All I did was to tell you to hang on and trust in that whale and Providence, and I hope it'll be a lesson to you fur the rest of your days not to holler before you're hurt."

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

There was another heavy shower early this morning.

Commencing today, and continuing until further notice, City Hall will close at noon.

The Crescents are scoring daily victories defeating the Tigers 4 to 2 and the Defenders 13 to 12.

Work has been commenced on the foundation of a house to be erected by Frank W. Crane on Avon way.

Hon. Russell A. Sears has purchased a lot of land containing three and one-half acres on Glendale road, upon which he will erect a house.

Mrs. John F. Hunt of Bigelow street was organist last Sunday morning at All Souls church, Braintree, receiving much praise for her skillful handling of the beautiful new organ.

The new presiding elder, Rev. Dr. John Galbraith, will preach at the West Quincy M. E. church Sunday morning conducting the first quarterly conference. The Epworth League anniversary will be observed at 7 P. M.

Members of the Quincy Day Nursery association will be at the store under the Advertiser office on Friday morning to receive goods for the Rummage sale to be held on Saturday and Monday, the 20th and 22d. Articles which sell readily are: boots, shoes, clothing of all kinds, particularly children's books, magazines, household goods, furniture, dishes, carpets, pictures. Any article will be gratefully received by the committee, large or small.

So many were unable to enter the Y. M C. A. hall on the evening of May 5, when the entertainment "Through Colonial Doorways" was given, it has been decided by the friends in charge to repeat it in the vestry of the Wollaston Congregational church Tuesday evening May 16, at 8 o'clock. The proceeds will go to the Y. M. C. A. The Association need is great, and if the repetition will add a small sum to their treasury the ladies will be glad.

The two new houses being built on Presidents hill are progressing rapidly and although H. F. McIntire had some weeks the start of Frank W. Crane, the latter is close after him. Mr. McIntire has somewhat the advantage of Mr. Crane in the slope of his lot, but Mr. Crane will command a wider view of the country. Some of the choicest lots on the hill lie toward the west, looking toward Boston, but for some reason do not sell as fast as those looking east toward Quincy Bay.

The dramatic club connected with the J. P. S. A. gave the rustic drama "Willowdale" before a crowded audience at the W. R. C. fair, East Weymouth, Thursday evening.

Last Sunday Miss E. A. Bates of South Braintree was received into the membership of the North Easton Baptist church. The pastor is Rev. L. B. Hatch, formerly of this town, who has been there but a few months. He is a vigorous, earnest preacher and a great organizer, having built up several churches and left them in a very prosperous condition.

Many people were grieved to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. Eliza Long, formerly of this town, which occurred at Ashland, last Saturday, at the home of her son, John E. Long. Mrs. Long had been ill only a few days, and her death was a shock to the entire community. She was a native of Ireland, although she had lived in this country for over fifty years.

It is expected that Odd Fellows Memorial Day will be observed by Puritan lodge.

At present writing however, she is reported as improving. The young child escaped without injury.

Supt. W. E. Maybury of the water department proposes to have 500 water meters in service by July 1st. About 1500 meters will be required for the total number of services. The predictions are in favor of a dry summer and Mr. Maybury is wise in rushing on the meters which will cause a great saving of water.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Remick of Shaw street, who have been ill for several weeks were presented with a huge May basket of useful things, and also a neat sum of money from their friends Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Barrie of Allen street mourn the loss of their baby daughter, who passed away suddenly early Wednesday morning. The funeral services were held Thursday afternoon from their late home, Rev. Robert Cochrane officiating.

PARK THEATRE.

Robert Edeson will on Monday night, May 15, begin the last two weeks of his engagement in "Strongheart" at the Park Theatre. There is little doubt that the run of William C. De Mille's great foot-ball play might have continued profitably throughout the summer, but Mr. Edeson's season in New York begins on August 25 at the Savoy Theatre, and having planned to sail for Europe on June 3, it is necessary to curtail the engagement in Boston, notwithstanding that the popularity of star and play has not waned in any degree. A noteworthy feature of the farewell week of May 22 will be "Tufts Night," which has been set for the evening of Tuesday, May 23. As a feature of this occasion the orchestra, between the first and second acts, will play the college songs of Tufts, to be accompanied by the singing of the students. An event of great importance to all lovers of the drama will be Mrs. Sarah Cowell Le Moyne's appearance under the direction of Henry B. Harris at the Park Theatre for four special matinees on Monday, May 15, Tuesday, May 16, Thursday, May 18, and Friday, May 19, when she will present a magnificent revival of Robert Browning's poetic tragedy, "A Blot in the 'Scutcheon," with a practically all star cast. All lovers of great acting and great drama cannot afford to miss so valuable a representation of one of the masterpieces of the poet who ranks with Shakespeare.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

Original comedy and sensational novelties will figure prominently in next week's vaudeville programme at the Empire Theatre, formerly Boston Music Hall. In the first class will appear Mr. George Richards, the unctuous comedian who made famous and memorable so many roles in the late Charles H. Hoyt's satires. Mr. Richards will make his first vaudeville appearance at the Empire, in the grotesque comedy success, "The System of Dr. Tarr," dramatized from Edgar Allen Poe's strange story, "The System of Dr. Tarr and Professor Fether," by Henry Tyrell and Arthur Hornblow. This comedy was presented seventy-five times in New York with pronounced success and has the name of being one of the funniest, oddest comedy conceits ever presented anywhere. Another important attraction will be Helen Bertram, the well-known light opera prima donna, whose career with "The Bostonians" for several seasons and subsequently in such prominent productions as "The Prince of Pilsen" entitles her to exceptional consideration as a vocalist.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Camille D'Arville, the famous comic opera prima donna, is to be the headliner of an exceptionally strong vaudeville bill at Keith's the week of May 15. Miss D'Arville is a handsome woman, wears beautiful costumes, and is blessed with one of the best voices ever heard in light opera. Included in the surrounding show is the Obersteirer troupe, from the St. Louis Fair; O. Hana San, presenting the most beautiful and lifelike series of Japanese living pictures ever seen in this country; Howard and North, conversational comedians, in the mirth-provoking skit, "Happy Days"; Arthur Whitelaw, a clever Irish-American humorist; the Majestic trio, an organization of "real coon" entertainers, and George Austin, a skilful comedy wire performer. The biograph will show an entire new list of comedy and interesting motion pictures.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The attraction at the Castle Square Theatre next week will be a revival, after six years, of Belasco and De Mille's comedy drama, "The Charity Ball." The original production of this play by the Union Square stock company of New York made one of the notable hits of that remarkable organization, and the old Boston Museum stock company of the same period won a notable triumph in its first performances here. The play is prominent in the clever dramatic creations of its authors, and affords splendid opportunities for good work by the Castle Square players. The ladies of the Castle Square compady will display some very elegant toilettes in this production, and the stage settings will be given especial attention by the management. "The Charity Ball" is announced for only a single week, with the usual free distribution of souvenir boxes of choice chocolate bonbons at the Monday matinee.

Y.M.C.A. PLANT.

Quincy Association Now Well Equipped.

A Reception to the Contributors.

Workers in Y. M. C. A. Tell of Possibilities.

The new Y. M. C. A. building on Washington street was opened for public inspection on Saturday evening to those who in any way aided toward the erection of the structure. Invitations to contributors and their ladies were sent out early in the week and were generally accepted, upwards of two hundred ladies and gentlemen being present.

Outer garments were checked in the cloak room, off the main game room.

All expressed their delight at the interior arrangement of the rooms, and an hour or two was pleasantly passed in a tour of the interior. The oak finish of the main office pleased the eye of all, but the cosy corner with its cheerful open grate fire was their especial delight.

There was an informal meeting at which President Richard D. Chase presided and welcomed those present. He paid a tribute to Dr. Johnson, chairman of the building committee, and to all who had in any way assisted in carrying out the thought of the building.

Dr. Johnson was then introduced and spoke of the progress of the building from the time of breaking ground last July to its completion.

He hoped those present had observed the completeness of the various departments. The physical department was equal to any outside of Boston. He also spoke briefly of the educational and other branches of the work of the association. The association owes a debt of gratitude to the architect Mr. Sprague; to Mr. Thomas, the builder, and to Secretary Gay for the earnest and hard work he had done in bringing the building to its present completeness.

F. P. Speare, educational director of the Boston Y. M. C. A., said that the association was a factor in building men. He spoke particularly of the educational work of the association, and said that any association which did not have evening schools would ultimately go out of business. Only one man in one hundred graduate from college; two out of one hundred graduate from the High school, and but ten out of a hundred from the grammar schools. When we think of this we get some idea of the needs of education for the large per cent. who have not had the advantage.

Many boys go to school under protest. The American boy is ambitious to get into the industrial world, but they soon find their heads against a brick wall, the only way of getting through which is by education. The wise man, therefore, realizes that there is nothing but hard work and poor pay for the ignorant man. Then he will go through fire and water to get an education.

Mr. Speare spoke of the Boston Y. M. C. A. evening schools with their 1500 students and of the work which they were doing.

F. L. Willis, general secretary of the Worcester association, believed in the association for what it had done for him. He knew what it meant to think as a boy he knew everything, and then come to himself and work from 7 to 6 and study from 8 to 12, or even later to make up for what he had not got in his early days.

If you want to reach the men, the fathers and mothers, get hold of the boys. He did not mean the kids but boys around 15 years. The work here in Quincy was but just started, and will not be ended until every man in the city has been elevated in some way. The man who has the physique and mind is the one who gets there today. He then spoke of the physical and spiritual life of the association.

The work of the association will be a failure unless it reaches men's hearts, and leads them to live better lives.

Secretary Gay, the last speaker, spoke briefly of the field for work in Quincy where there were 8,000 between the ages of 16 and 35 years, and 4,000 between 12 and 18 years. He also spoke of the work already accomplished, and what it was hoped to accomplish in the future.

THE NEW PLANT.

The new Y. M. C. A. building is situated on Washington street, opposite the Thomas Crane Public Library, and is of the old English style of architecture, four stories high with basement. The main building has a frontage of 45 feet, and a depth of 60 feet, and in the rear is a gymnasium extending 65 feet further back.

The administration rooms are on the first floor and are admirably adapted for the work.

At the right of the entrance is the reading room and main office, with a private office on the north side and boys' game room. The main office has a circular counter extending into the lobby, from which a view can be had of all the main rooms.

On the left of the entrance is the reception room, alcove room with its open fireplace, and main game room. All of these rooms are off from the central lobby.

From this lobby a corridor extends to the rear with a door leading to the running track which is a balcony above the gymnasium, also to a stairway leading to the basement.

A flight of broad stairs leads from the main lobby to the second floor. Here there is a large assembly room seating 250, a kitchen, large pantry and cloak rooms.

The assembly hall is so arranged that it can be divided into class rooms for the educational work.

The third and fourth floors are given up to 16 dormitories, fourteen of which are already occupied.

In the basement is the gymnasium and bowling alleys, and in the rear of the gymnasium, toward Washington street are the locker rooms with 300 lockers and shower baths.

There is also a space 18 by 36 feet which will be used as a swimming pool, a running track above the gymnasium the latter being fitted with all the latest appliances and has already been described at length.

The administration rooms are finished in weathered oak, and the rooms are furnished with mission style furniture of fumed oak. The finish of the rooms on the upper floors is cypress wood.

The building is heated by steam and is lighted by gas and electricity, and is equipped with the interior telephone system.

The building was designed by Arthur S. Sprague, and the contractor was George E. Thomas. The cost was $38,000, more than two-thirds of which has already been paid.

—Tom Tibbles, of Nebraska, late candidate for Vice-President on the populist ticket, proposes to start a bank in New York. It is only a few years since they used to blindfold Tibbles to lead him past a bank building.—Stoughton Sentinel.

Religious Union.

The Y. P. R. U. of the Wollaston Unitarian church met in the vestry Sunday evening at seven o'clock. After the usual opening services a short business meeting was held and a committee consisting of Miss Helen M. Sprague, Ray B. Jordan and George E. Brown was appointed to nominate the officers for next year.

Mr. Walter M. Hatch then gave an excellent talk on "Enthusiasm" citing examples of people who have shown themselves to be truly enthusiastic. The members of the Quincy Union had been invited to attend the meeting and several were present.

A WALKOVER.

Fore River Team Shut Out Picked League Team.

Before a crowd of about 500 people, on the Ward Two playground, on Saturday, the winners of the Merrimac Valley League association football cup, gave an exhibition of the style of play which enabled them to bring the cup to Quincy, and make it possible for them to win by a score of 8 goals to 0, against an eleven which was supposed to represent the pick of the other teams in the league. Let it be stated however that owing to several players hailing from a distance, who failed to make connections, the league team was badly crippled, and while the substitutes, procured to fill the vacancies thus caused, performed their part with credit, it was generally conceded on the ground that the opposition offered to the home team was of the mildest, and in view of the talent at their command, scarcely a credit to the selecting committee.

The teams as played on Saturday were as follows:

FORE RIVER		LEAGUE.
Neill	Goal	Heffarney (Lynn)
MacGregor (Capt.)	r. b.	Smith (Quincy)
Artis	l. b.	Wilkinson (Boston Rovers)
Conner	r. h. b.	Robertson (Lynn)
Lyons	c. h. b.	Robertson (Quincy)
McDevitt	l. h. b.	Sheridan (Lynn Capt.)
Hendry	o. r. f.	McDermott (B. R.)
MacDonald	i. r. f.	Devline (Lynn)
Connolly	c. f.	MacDonald (Quincy)
MacAllister	i. l. f.	Houston (B. R.)
Forsyth	o. l. f.	McCafferty (B. R.)

The game was called at 4.15 p. m. and "losing the toss," Peter Hines, the genial president and father of the club, kicked off for Fore River. For the first fifteen minutes of the game, the play was of a lively and very even order, first the one goal and then the other being bombarded with hot shot, and to the credit of the visiting forwards, be it said, they were called on to use every effort to stop some stinging shots, which a less capable goal keeper would have failed to reach. However after the above brief period, the lack of combination in the ranks of the visitors became very apparent, a feature not unexpected in an eleven which had no previous practice together, and as they fell away, the play of the home team seemed to improve, and when MacDonald (Fore River) opened the scoring, as the result of a fine run down the field by the forwards, there appeared to be no difficulty thereafter of scoring points at will.

It must be stated, however, that the largeness of the score was due in great measure to the utter incapacity of the visitors' goal keeper.

The first half ended with the home team leading by 5 goals to 0, the points having been scored by MacDonald (two), Connolly (two), and Hendry (one).

After a two minutes' respite play was resumed, but simply proved to be a continuation of the latter part of the first half. At no time was the home goal in danger, while the defense of the visitors was ever kept on the qui vive. Towards the close of the game the home team toyed rather than played with the ball, and it was a relief to them, not less than to the visitors, when time was called. Connolly, MacDonald and MacGregor each "netted" the ball during this half, the final score standing Fore River, 8; League, 10. The officials were: Referee, Crabbe of Lynn; linesmen, Campbell for Fore River, Smith for Boston Rovers. Time of halves, 40 minttes.

On Saturday the Boston Rovers will be here to play the Fore River team, and a rousing game is anticipated.

Hearings Tonight.

Tonight's meeting of the City Council will be largely devoted to public hearings, seven being advertised. The first two hearings come at 8 and 8.15, and are on petitions for the locations of poles on Presidents and Federal avenues.

At 8.20 there will be a hearing on the petition of Mrs. L. B. Titus to grow oysters at Squantum.

At 8.30, on the widening of Hancock street on the west side, from Saville to Dimmock street.

At 8.45 on accepting Glendale road.

At 8.55 on accepting a part of Upland road.

At 9 o'clock on accepting and laying out of Maple place.

The only committee reports will be from the License Committee granting minor licenses.

Birthday.

Probation officer Francis A. Spear is passing another milestone in his eventful career today. It is the 51st. Frank has his own particular way of celebrating and today visitors to his office after court found tumblers of cigars and boxes of oranges and bananas. Everybody was invited to help themselves, to which no second invitation was needed. Between the mouthfuls of fruit and the wreaths of blue tobacco smoke, there went a constant stream of wireless telegraph messages of congratulations which found lodgment in Frank's ears.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The Boston Transcript paragrapher guesses that Mr. and Mrs. Hancock, out in Colorado, have named their little daughter "Chelsea" so that there will be no danger of her joining the fast set. More likely they have so named her in the hope that she will prove true to her name and be sleepy and save mater and pater walking the floor o'nights.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ The new law allowing people to go free from the station without fines for first and second offences of drunkenness will cut deeply into the city's revenue from the Police court. Also, it may be mentioned that it will save some revenue for needy families of the people who get drunk. Perhaps the latter is the more important consideration, after all.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ An official of the tobacco trust goes into court and delines to answer a question on the ground that to do so might tend to "degrade and incriminate him." The court would tell the jury in such a case that it was not to be influenced in the determination of its verdict by such an answer; but the jury of the American people cannot help drawing inferences from it in this instance.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ Sympathy is the peculiar asset and activity of Chritianity in the world. Anarchy has no promise in it. Pessimism has no word of comfort, no songs of rest. Infidelity never seeks out the sorrowing, to apply to wounded hearts the balm of Gilead. Skepticism builds no hospitals, raises no famine funds, endows no philanthropic institutions. It is still Christianity that speaks the dependable word of sympathy, and sounds the bugle call of social advance in the very fore of civilization's enlarging frontiers. It is poor business being a skeptic. When will the skeptics themselves, deluded mortals, understand this?—Zion's Herald.

HAIR TELLS CHARACTER.

Color of Hair Said to Indicate a Person's Temperament.

Many people believe that blonde, or light hair denotes affection and dark hair constancy. A person without hair is not devoid of character; far from it. The disposition of the average bald-headed man is to show such solicitude for the welfare of others, that he neglects himself. A germ causes baldness. Prof. Sabouraud, of Paris, France, innoculated a rabbit with Dandruff germs, causing it to become totally bald in five weeks' time. To rid the scalp of these dangerous germs it is necessary to apply Newbro's Herpicide.

FIGHT WITH MOROS

Half of Well Armed Force of Six Hundred Killed

WOOD LEADS THE BATTLE

Pala, a Slave Trader, Warrior and Outlaw, Finally Cornered In a Swamp--Seven Americans Killed and Nineteen Wounded

Manila, May 15.—Fierce fighting has been going on the last two weeks on the island of Jolo between the outlaw Moro chief, Pala, with 600 well armed followers, and troops under the personal command of Major General Wood.

Pala's losses thus far are 300 killed, while those of Wood are seven killed and 19 wounded. Pala and his remaining followers, in accordance with Moro tradition, prefer death to capture.

General Wood, with detachments from the Fourteenth cavalry, the Seventeenth, the Twenty-Second and the Twenty-Third infantry, and constabulary scouts, has driven Pala and his followers into a swamp, which has been surrounded.

Pala was a noted slave trader and warrior when the Americans occupied the islands. Later he escaped with his followers to the island of Pula Sekar, near Borneo. One of Pala's leaders deserted and took refuge in the British settlement at Lahad.

Pala, discovering his whereabouts, landed with a following and demanded of the British magistrate that he turn the deserter over to him. The demand was not complied with and Pala ordered a messacre. Twenty-five persons, including several Britons, were killed. Pala escaped to the island of Jolo, and organized the present uprising.

It is reported that the Borneo authorities requested General Wood to apprehend Pala, dead or alive, and turn him over to them.

The Sulu archipelago, a link of islands stretching southwest from the Philippine islands of Mindanao, about 200 miles to the northern coast of Borneo, came into the possession of the United States immediately following Dewey's victory at Manila in 1898.

All the Philippines, which were Spanish property, then being surrendered to the United States, the Sulu archipelago, also as Spanish land, came under the suzerainty of this country.

The Moros who inhabit the island of Jolo are a savage race. They have from the outset resisted the efforts of the Americans to bring them under subjugation.

The Zulu islands lie between Borneo and Mindanao. The population of the group is 75,000 and the area is 950 square miles. The ruler is called the Sultan of Zulu, or as the main island is at times spelled, Jolo.

Poolroom Strongly Guarded

New York, May 15.—One of the most strongly fortified and most elaborately fitted up poolrooms ever seen in this city was raided in West Third street. The alleged poolroom was defended by elaborate and strong series of doors. Some of them were seven inches thick, of oak planking, reinforced by plates of steel. Everything in the place was worked by electricity. The furnishings were comfortable and artistic, though everything used in the business of playing the races could be changed in a moment, by turning a switch, to look like an innocent object fitted for concealing the real nature of the establishment.

Valuable Relics Unearthed

Rome, May 15.—Excavations near Pompeii have resulted in the finding of a human skeleton and nearby four solid gold bracelets of beautiful design, set with emeralds; a pair of large Oriental pearl earrings, two golden necklaces set with pearls and emeralds, and two emerald rings. The articles of jewelry being of the Roman Pompeiian epoch are of great artistic value.

Making World's Trip of Ii

New York, May 15.—When K. Kapia, a native of Honolulu, who arrived here on the steamer Cedric, in custody of Sheriff Vidd, reaches Honolulu, he will have completed a trip around the world, more than half of which was made as a fugitive from justice and the remainder as a prisoner. Kapia is charged with larceny of $15,000 in bonds in Honolulu.

Not Afraid of Tainted Money

New York, May 15.—The 80th anniversary of the American Tract society was observed here last night. Addresses were delivered by General Howard, president of the society, and others. General Howard said that the society was in need of financial assistance. He added that the officers would not refuse "any kind of a contribution."

A Concession to Poles

St. Petersburg, May 15.—The czar has sanctioned a law permitting Poles to purchase land in Poland. They were deprived of this right after the insurrection of 1863, the land tenure of Poles being limited to land acquired by direct inheritance.

Death List of Twenty-Two

GOT A BAD SCARE

Trolley Passengers Expected to Receive a Ducking

Fall River, Mass., May 15.—A crowded carload of passengers on the electric car line between Taunton and this city were given a scare late last night when a car jumped the track, on the west side of the Taunton river, and ran across the state highway for some distance toward the river before it was finally brought to a standstill. All the passengers were badly frightened, and one man sustained a cut over an eye from broken glass. Every window in the car was broken.

The car was on its way to this city, and was so crowded that many of the passengers were standing. When opposite this city, on the west side of the river, the car, from some unknown cause, suddenly left the inward rails, shot across the outward rails and headed across the highway, directly toward the river bank. Fortunately the car's momentum was not sufficient to carry it to the river.

Sudden Death In a Cab

Boston, May 15.—William Treworgy, a lumber merchant, died in a cab late Saturday night. His companion, who gave the name of John J. Ruddick, was held by the police on a charge of drunkenness. The men had directed the cabman to drive them to the Hotel Clarendon, but the cabman said that they were so disorderly that he decided to take them to a police station. When the carriage reached the station Treworgy was dead. A physician decided that death was due to apoplexy, and Medical Examiner Draper accepted this opinion.

Vessel Clipped Off a Mast

Chatham, Mass., May 15.—Considerable wreckage, supposed to be from the steamer Aransas, which sank in Pollock Rip slue a week ago, has been washed ashore. In the flotsam were cabin lamps and doors, tables, deckhouses and cargo derricks. Only one mast of the Aransas can be seen above water, the other probably having been broken off by some vessel passing during the night.

Two Young Men Drowned

Machiasport, Me., May 15.—The bodies of Merritt Stuart and David Maitland, the two young men of this town who were drowned through the overturning of their boat in a squall off Birch point, were recovered last evening by parties who had been dragging the river since the accident on Saturday. Stuart was single, but Maitland was married only two weeks ago.

Perhaps Mentally Irresponsible

Brandon, Vt., May 15.—Frank Blanchard, aged 17, of Sandford, Me., has given himself up to the police here, admitting, the latter say, that he placed ties upon the track of the Rutland railroad near here several days ago. A combination passenger and freight train struck the obstruction but was not derailed. The prisoner will be examined as to his sanity.

Tunneled to Liberty

New London, Conn., May 15.—Four prisoners, confined at the military prison, Fort Terry, Plum island, have escaped. They cut a hole through the floor in the room in which they were confined and tunneled under the foundation of the building. They then stole a rowboat from Plum island lighthouse and are supposed to have gone to the Long Island shore.

Italian Stabbed Two Men

Lynn, Mass., May 15.—Nathan Cohen, 19, and John Macotte, 21, were painfully stabbed last night while attempting to capture Tanesto Detietro, an Italian, who, they allege, had assaulted Mrs. Hannah E. Lomasney, proprietress of the Puritan house, and with whom they were talking on Washington street. Detietro was later captured and locked up.

Sneeze Burst Blood Vessel

Gloucester, Mass., May 15.—Former License Commissioner James Crawley, who was taken to the Danvers insane asylum, is reported sinking rapidly. Crawley had been ill for some weeks, and one day during his illness had a sneezing spell which it is believed burst a blood vessel in his head, and a clot, forming on the brain, impaired his mental faculties.

An Unhappy Young Woman

Mechanic Falls, Me., May 15.—Mrs. Eva R. Mitchell, aged 24, is supposed to have drowned herself in the Androscoggin river. A note from her, saying that she did not want to live, was found on a tree. Insanity was probably the cause of the deed. Mrs. Mitchell, although only 24 years of age, had been married twice and had a daughter, aged 9.

May Have Fatal Resu t

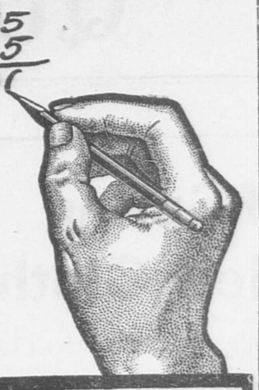

Lynn, Mass., May 14.—Alex MacKinnon, 63 years old, has a fractured skull and his condition is critical, while William Frayher is under arrest, charged with an assault upon MacKinnon. Frayher has a broken nose. He stated to the police that he and MacKinnon had a dispute which ended in blows.

Live Wire Brought Death

Westerly, R. I., May 15.—While at work at the top of an electric light pole here, Oliver H. Johnson, aged 35, an employe of an electric light company, touched a live wire and fell to the ground, fracturing his skull, causing almost instant death.

Vessel May Go to Pieces

Rockland, Me., May 15.—During rough weather schooner J. Nickerson, Philadelphia for Bar Harbor, with coal, missed stays and ran ashore on John's Island ledges. It is believed that the vessel will be wholly broken to pieces.

CITY BREVITIES.

City Council tonight.

Not a very pleasant Sunday.

J. W. Pratt is the contractor for the three-flat house on Pleasant street.

Mrs. James B. Fletcher of Garfield street is entertaining Mrs. Joy of Bennington street for a few days.

C. A. Leavitt, the young cycle racer of this city, has entered the races for May 30 at Charles River cycle track.

The last whist party in the series for this season will be given by Mrs. J. E. Poland, at Norfolk Downs hall, on Friday evening.

Mrs. Samuel Hughes is confined to her home on Granite street, a sufferer from poison, caused it is thought by the brown-tail moth.

About twenty-five members of the Makaria Fraternity attended the services at the Park Street church, Boston, on Sunday evening.

Jonathan Paine, who has been at the City Hospital the past three months with a broken hip, is slowly improving and was removed to his home on Baxter street on Saturday last.

Those having Herald coupons for Miss Underwood are requested to forward them to the Daily Ledger office. Our candidate has enough votes to put her among the winners, but more strenuous work will be needed the next few weeks.

The alarm from Box 71 at 11.10 Saturday night was pulled in from the duplicate box located at Johnson's lumber yard. The fire was in a pile of shavings on the wharf and was extinguished without damage. The fire was probably started by a drunk who had gone there to sober off.

There was an unusual number of drunks upon the street late Saturday night. Some escaped the officers, but quite a number found a night's lodging at the police station, which was filled up. Two of these were found wading in the canal at an early hour Sunday morning trying to cool off.

The members of Bethany church choir remembered very prettily Mrs. E. C. Page, their resigning soloist and director, who on account of failing health has been obliged to drop the work. A party called Sunday afternoon and presented a box of roses and pinks and a large bouquet from the C. E. society, beautiful expression of the regard and appreciation of her work with them. Mrs. Page will start the last of the week, if she is able, for a month's visit among the mountains of New Hampshire, and her many friends hope she will return fully recovered.

A Suggestion.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

It seems pertinent to the question in Saturday's Ledger headed, "Is your boy out late?" to suggest that since the writer of the article knows the boys to be the sons of respectable parents, he assuredly knows the parents, and before bringing public opprobrium and the hint of court discipline to the case cited, would it not have been better to have informed these parents of the wrong doing, have them learn from personal observation the facts as stated, and then if no corrective measures were taken, to see that the matter was reported to the proper authorities and the evil stopped.

We do not want such an institution as our Y. M. C. A., to be made the medium for reclaiming wrecked manhood, but if cases like the one noticed in the Ledger are left to be so broadly treated that a chance newspaper notice is all that the relatives most vitally interested in the case are to receive from those who actually know of such an alarming evil as that instanced, then human salvage work is going to take precedence over preventive work in our Quincy Y. M. C. A. C. F. P.

LABOR ON PARADE

Followed the Body of Striker Who Was Killed

"A MURDERED BROTHER"

Inscription on Button Worn by Two Thousand Men at Chicago Thus Speaks of Man Who Was Shot Down by Deputy Sheriff

Chicago, May 15.—Marching with draped banners and muffled drums, more than 2000 union men followed the body of George S. Pierce, a striking teamster, who was killed by a deputy sheriff, from his home to the Union station, whence the body was taken to Louisville for burial.

No funeral services were held in Chicago, but the escorting of the body to the station was made the occasion of a labor demonstration in which not only the Teamsters' union, but organized labor generally participated. The progress of the procession was without incident. The men, marching solemnly four abreast, each wore on his coat lapel a white button with this inscription in black: "We mourn the loss of a murdered brother."

Even the spectacle of three coal wagons manned by non-union negroes near the Union station elicited no more than mutterings as the column filed by. The only break in the serious mein of the men occurred when a patrol wagon, called in anticipation of trouble by two policemen in charge of the coal wagons, galloped to the scene. Then cheers and handclapping, mingled with shouts of derision, broke out along the line for a block. But there was no work for the police. At intervals along the line were the banners of the different locals and four American flags, each draped in black.

Eight hundred marchers fell in behind the carriages containing the union leaders at the start. All along the way other detachments joined their ranks until when the station was reached, the column extended 10 blocks. A brass band marched at the head. Eight strikers who had worked with Pierce were the active pall-bearers. Eight other striking teamsters were honorary pall-bearers.

Pierce was an employe of Rothschild & Co. as driver on a delivery wagon. He was shot by Special Detective Waldorf. He is the only union man who has lost his life during the strike and he is regarded by other union men as a martyr to the union cause. Pierce is said to have assaulted a non-union driver in the presence of Waldorf. Waldorf was exonerated by a coroner's jury.

Unless compromises are offered by all the opposing interests in the teamsters' strike now in progress in Chicago, the strike will spread greatly during the next 48 hours. The refusal of the teamsters' joint council, representing 35,000 union drivers, to accede to the demands of the Chicago Team Owners' association to handle merchandise for all business houses having contracts with the members of the owners' organization, without discriminating against the firms involved in the present strike, has brought the controversy to a point where a speedy settlement will have to be made to prevent an extension of the trouble.

There is a probability, however, that the whole trouble may be satisfactorily adjusted without bringing about such drastic measures.

An "Educational" Episode

Chicago, May 15.—Charles J. Casey, business agent of Carriage and Wagon Workers' union local No. 4, has confessed to the effect that C. J. Carlstrom was fatally beaten by men employed by the union. Carlstrom was an old man and one night was so fearfully pounded by three men that he died in a few days. Casey declared in his confession that the men were paid $15 for their work, the money coming from a fund known as "the educational fund." The police arrested Casey and five other men in connection with the case.

Will Aid Chicago Brethren

Boston, May 15.—Every teamsters' union which met in Boston yesterday endorsed the Chicago strike, voted immediate funds from their treasuries to assist in the battle and levied weekly assessments on their members to prosecute the conflict. The indications here are that the international teamsters' executive board has taken steps to carry on the strike indefinitely.

The Row Over Braun

Vienna, May 15.—With regard to the controversy between the Hungarian authorities and American immigration inspector, Marcus Braun, the American embassy here has received instructions from the state department at Washington to afford Braun all proper protection and report on the case fully.

Two Men Killed by Gas

Troy, N. Y., May 15.—John Burns and James McManus went to sleep in the generator room of the Troy Gas company. During the night one of the men closed the window. The room filled with gas and the men were asphyxiated.

Vesuvius In Full Action

Naples, May 15.—The eruption of Mount Vesuvius is more active. There have been heavy explosions and the quantity of lava emitted produces a magnificent spectacle at night.

Failure of Autoboat Races

Toulon, May 15.—The autoboat races from Algiers to Toulon have ended unfortunately, all of the boats participating in the second stage of the run from Port Mahon to this port being either sunk or disabled owing to a heavy storm when still many miles from the finish. The arrangements for escorting the craft were efficiently organized and the loss of life was avoided. There is no news concerning the Quand-Meme, about which there is considerable anxiety. Her crew consists of seven men. Two cruisers are searching for the vessel.

Trooper Disappeared

Burlington, Vt., May 15.—J. J. Moore, 21 years old, a private in the cavalry stationed at Fort Ethan Allen, was drowned in Lake Champlain. Corporal R. E. Alvord, who was Moore's companion, is held by the local police on a charge of intoxication. The two troopers hired a rowboat and some hours later Alvord was found clinging to the boat, which had been capsized. No trace of Moore could be found. Alvord says that the lake was so choppy that the boat was overturned and that Moore tried to swim ashore.

A pocketbook containing $32, which belonged to Mrs. James, who was killed, was carried 23 miles in the storm.

Springfield, Mass., May 15.—John M. Graves, 23 years old, of Pawtucket, R. I., committed suicide by shooting through the heart in his room in this city. No motive is known for the deed, which was carefully planned, except a note which read: "I am tired of living and have nothing to live for."

EYES OF COSSACKS

Kept Open During Russian May Day Celebration

WAS NO BLOOD SPILLED

Part of Crowd Which Refused to Disperse at St Petersburg Punished With Whips--Peace Guardians Expected Bombs

St. Petersburg, May 15.—The widely heralded May day demonstrations in St. Petersburg were a complete fiasco and reports from Moscow and the provinces indicate that order reigned on Sunday generally throughout Russia.

Minor disorders are reported at Reval, Kishineff and one or two other places, but no reports of serious tumults or loss of life have been received and the attempts to signalize May day by great anti-government demonstrations appeared to have been a failure.

In St. Petersburg the day was passed in almost perfect quiet and without a drop of blood being shed. The revolutionaries found it impossible to execute the program of demonstrations and bomb-throwing which they widely advertised, and the meetings were attended chiefly by spectators. Squads of Cossacks patrolled the streets, reserves being held out of sight in courtyards, and the guard regiments were retained under arms in their barracks, but there was no occasion to call out either.

More or less tension and agitation were apparent in the industrial quarters among workmen promenading under the eyes of Cossacks with whips in their hands, but otherwise the city wore almost a normal appearance. The weather, which was cold and raw, perhaps acted as a deterrent of trouble, as Russians dislike physical discomfort.

At the Preobrajensky cemetery, where the principal meeting in honor of "the January martyrs," as the victims of "Red Sunday" are popularly called, had been advertised, there was a scanty crowd assembled. Cossacks dispersed the crowd, the more aggressive of whom sang the "Marseillaise" as they were crossing the fields. This defiance was met by a charge of Cossacks, who used their whips freely, inflicting many injuries. There was a similar incident on Vassili island, where a dozen students, mainly girls, raised the "Marseillaise" and gathered a crowd. Cossacks cantered up and dispersed the crowd with whips, seeming to take special pleasure in slashing the girl students with their whips. The affair gave rise to rumors that a number of persons had been killed, but in the incident sabres were not even drawn and nobody was seriously hurt.

The day wound up with a tumult in one of the people's parks, where, while merry-makers were dancing Russian national dances, agitators scattered proclamations among the crowd and drove a scanty guard of police into a shallow artifical lake. Cossacks came up at a gallop, wielding their whips, rescued the police and made numerous arrests. It was noticeable that the Cossacks rode at wide intervals, evidently to minimize the effect of bombs, should they be thrown.

Governor General Trepoff is pleased with the results of his precautions. He attributes the success of his measures largely to wholesale arrests of incendiary leaders Saturday and Saturday night.

The prestige of the Social Democrats and revolutionists has suffered greatly by Sunday's failure, though they were trying last night to retrieve it by issuing a manifesto attributing their inability to carry out the program to the overwhelming force of military and proclaiming a general strike.

The leaders were so confident of success in advance of the event that they prepared a number of informal hospitals or bandaging stations in the neighborhood of the various advertised meeting places to render first aid to the victims of the expected rioting. Part of the onus of their failure rests upon Fr. Gopon, who sent a message from abroad to the leaders of his old organization, saying: "Do nothing until I return."

Emporia, Kas., May 15.—An Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe passenger train was ditched by train wreckers just east of Emporia. Six passengers were injured and two probably will die. This is the fourth attempt in the last four months to wreck passenger trains in the same place. There is no clue to the wreckers.

Ardmore, I. T., May 15.—In a storm which swept over several points in the Chickasaw nation, a number of houses were destroyed. John Dayton and George Bolen were killed by the storm.

HOME SCIENCE.

Quincy Association Merged Into the Women's Club.

Members of the Quincy Home Science association were called together for a special meeting last Saturday morning, in the parlors of Hotel Greenleaf, to take action upon the resignation of the president, Miss Elizabeth Johnson, and the recommendation of the executive committee, that the association be dissolved—its educational work to be passed over to the Education Committee of the Quincy Women's club.

Miss Johnson presided. A short report of the last meeting of the association, the annual meeting held on Friday, September 30, was presented by the recording secretary, Mrs. J. F. Merrill. Brief mention was made of the annual assembly in January and the recent children's festival—both enjoyable and successful occasions.

Mrs. Sanborn, corresponding secretary, read notes from the principals of the Adams and Coddington schools, acknowledging with thanks recent gifts of a large photograph of Watts "Sir Galahad," and a bust of Thomas Jefferson, given to these schools respectively by the Home Science Association as slight tokens of appreciation of their sustained and helpful interest in the Home Science Educational work.

Miss M. F. Underwood, presented the treasurer's report, closing with the statement that there is now on hand very nearly $300 in the Home Science Association treasury.

The president made an informal address, expressing deep regret that increasing calls upon her time and strength rendered necessary her resignation of the office held by her for eight years. She felt the Home Science work had been of value to the community in the past, and at the present time was in excellent condition, capable under energetic and intelligent management of continuing and extending its usefulness in the future.

Serious discussion of the situation followed the president's address. There was courteous and heartfelt expressions of regret for her resignation and appreciation for her past services and a resolution embodying them was offered by Mrs. Marsh and passed by a standing vote. It was then voted that the president's resignation be accepted and that the Quincy Home Science Association be dissolved.

It was further voted that a special committee should be appointed by Miss Johnson, of which she should be chairman, which committee should be empowered to carry on vacation school work during the coming summer on the line, heretofore followed by the Home Science Association, and to expend for the support of this work, the money remaining in the Home Science treasury.

After consideration of plans for ensuring, so far as possible, the continuance of the Home Science educational work in connection with the Quincy Women's club—of whose education committee Miss Johnson will hold the chairmanship for the coming year—the meeting adjourned sine die.

WHISKY AND OPIUM

Too Heavy Indulgence by Herbert Croker Caused Death

Kansas City, May 15.—The police have completed their investigation of the visit of Herbert V. Croker, son of Richard Croker, formerly New York Tammany leader, to an opium resort and to North End saloons preceding his death in a train near Newton, and, unless the relatives of young Croker request it, no further action on the case will be taken by the Kansas City police.

Charles Wilson, negro porter at the Coates hotel, who accompanied Croker to an opium den and later put him on a train, has been released from jail. Ah Lee and Gee Khee, proprietors of the opium resort, will be prosecuted for conducting an illegal business.

The coroner's verdict in the case is that Croker came to his death "from the effects of narcotic poison, taken into his system at Kansas City, before boarding said train, by means and manner unknown to this jury."

Chief of Police Hayes says that Croker's death was due to over-indulgence in whiskey and opium. Hayes says there is little to indicate that Croker was robbed and nothing to show that he was drugged unless he drugged himself.

Will Not Hold Autopsy

Newton, Kas., May 15.—Richard Croker, Jr., arrived here from New York and went to the undertaking rooms in which the body of his brother, Herbert, lay. He gave instructions to have the body prepared for shipment at once. Mr. Croker said that whether an autopsy would be performed would depend entirely upon the wishes of the mother, but he thought an autopsy unlikely.

Woman Killed a Thief

Chicago, May 15.—Eva Dakin, a concert hall singer, last night shot and killed one of two men who attacked her and tried to rob her. The man she killed was recognized later by detectives as Charles Bennett. The woman was locked up, pending an investigation. Miss Dakin said she had been singing at a South Side concert hall and was on her way home when Bennett and a companion attacked her, took her pocketbook and then started to run away. She fired several shots at the retreating assailants, one bullet striking Bennett in the head.

Defective Court Records

Newtown, Conn., May 15.—An investigating committee which has been at work for a month has reported that many irregularities have been found in the records of the probate court during the 14 years in which M. J. Bradley served as judge. The report declares that the records appear defective in all but 14 of the 433 estates which came before the court. Judge Bradley was succeeded in office a few months ago by W. J. Beecher.

Death of Actress Davis

Chicago, May 15.—Jessie B. Davis, an actress, died suddenly at her home in this city. The cause of her death was heart disease, produced by nephritis. Mrs. Davis' first engagement on the stage was in the role of Buttercup in "Pinafore," about 30 years ago. Her last regular engagement in opera was in "Erminie" last year. Mrs. Davis was the wife of Will J. Davis, a theatrical manager of this city. She was 46 years old.

Baron Rosen Favors Peace

London, May 15.—The Daily Telegraph's Tokio correspondent says: Baron Rosen (formerly Russian minister to Japan and who has been appointed to succeed Count Cassini as ambassador to the United States) openly belongs to the peace party and will assist President Roosevelt in his efforts for peace. He was aware of Japan's preparedness for war, but was unable to stay his government's hand.

A MATRIMONIAL SOCIETY

How Fair Rosebud Homesteaders Will Choose Husbands.

THEY WILL WED ON CONDITIONS

Women Settlers at Bonesteel, S. D., Will Require Suitors to Show Their Farming Ability—Men Must Work a Year on a Quarter Section—If They Do Well, May Win Fair Owner.

Because about 10,000 men of all ages from every state in the Union want to marry the 120 women eligible for matrimony who drew homesteads on the Rosebud Indian reservation, in South Dakota, these 120 females have formed a mutual protective society, and the man who marries one of the number must first show that he is able to work a farm and must put in a whole season at plowing, sowing and harvesting, says a Bonesteel (S. D.) dispatch to the Brooklyn Eagle.

After he does all this work, for which his fair inamorata receives the reward, the man may be rejected if he does not please the owner of the homestead. But if his work has been well done; if there has been no grumbling; if the furrows have been straight and even, then the man may possibly become the proud possessor of a wife and a quarter section of good Rosebud land.

Miss Ruth Pyrtle, formerly of Lincoln, Neb., where she taught in the public schools, is president of the new society, and Miss Estelle Salle, formerly of Mexico, Mo., is vice president. These are the only two officers necessary, as each member answers the letters which have been assigned to her by the president. No secretary is needed.

A few weeks ago the government published a list of the number of women who drew homesteads at the allotment. These names got into the newspapers, and as a result something like 10,000 men throughout the country have signified their willingness to exchange their superior knowledge of the ways of the world for a joint seat beside the firesides of the little cabins which the girls have built.

Most of the letters have been addressed to different land agents in Bonesteel, and thousands of the suitors have left the matter entirely in the hands of these agents, signifying their ability to be content with any bride the agent may pick for them. But the agents themselves could not on short notice determine on brides for many applicants, and the girls soon found out that they were in great demand.

Then they became haughty. With about 1,000 suitors for each woman, the girls decided that they would be in no hurry to avail themselves of any offer of marriage. They decided that any man who would marry the possessor of a Bonesteel farm must come there and show his good intentions by first planting and then harvesting a crop, all for the benefit of the woman he wanted to marry. He must show his worth and prove that he wanted a wife more than he did a farm.

And so the society was born. Its name is the Rosebud Ladies' Protective association, and almost every one of those 120 females belongs to it. Some of its members never had an offer of marriage before and were for taking the first applicant, but the younger and better looking element prevailed, and a set of rules was promulgated which the members say will be lived up to religiously.

The letters received are of all sorts, from the plain business proposition to the silly gush of the most approved schoolboy fashion. The president divides the letters evenly, giving each woman her share, unopened, so that no partiality may be shown. Every letter will be answered and the writer invited to come to Bonesteel to be initiated, after which he will receive his answer from the girl to whom he is allotted.

And the initiation? It consists of nothing but work. The applicant will be required to labor without pay as an ordinary farm hand, doing what is required of an ordinary farm laborer, following the orders of the female owner of the farm in those things of which she knows and teaching her those farming secrets of which she knows not. On Friday nights and Sunday afternoons he can sit up in the parlor and talk to the fair homesteader, if he isn't too tired to do anything but go to bed.

If the lovesick swain survives the season and the crops he makes are bountiful then he may press his suit and receive a definite answer from the girl.

Within the past few weeks all those "lady farmers" who did not winter on the reservation have come out and have taken up the ranches which were allotted them. All are building cabins, and most of them are making the houses large enough for two people.

New Sod Without Thick Soil.

"The attempt to manufacture a prepared sod which can be shipped or packed without an inch or two of dirt clinging to it has been successful," recently said A. K. Cary of Manitowoc, Wis., to a reporter of the Milwaukee Sentinel.

"Patents have been taken out on the process, and preparations are being made for the manufacture and shipment of the sod on a large scale. A particular brand of grass is sowed on large beds, which are stripped and resowed several times during the season. The sod when ready for shipment is about three-quarters of an inch thick and is pressed and heavily seeded, so that as soon as laid out over stripped ground there is a double growth. In this way a thicker and smoother turf is secured than could be had by the old way of laying down the bulky chunks of sod."

MANY HEARINGS.

Maple Place Extension in Favor.

Opposition to Hancock Street Widening.

Petitioners for Oyster Bed at Squantum Heard.

It was public hearing night at the City Council Monday evening. Councilmen Chamberlin, Geawar and Hynes were the absentees.

TAX TITLES.

The Mayor forward a communication from the Collector of Taxes relative to tax titles of Willard Walsh. Laid on the table until later when Councilman Gassett offered an order for $401.95 to refund said tax titles. To Finance Committee.

PETITIONS.

A. Pierson petitioned to be refunded one half the cost of granolithic sidewalk on Granite street. To Committee on Finance.

The N. E. Telephone Co., petitioned for a location for ten poles on Billings road. To Committee on Streets.

Councilman Bass offered a petition for the acceptance of Dixwell avenue. To Committee on Streets.

The Electric Light Co. petitioned for a location of poles on Woodward avenue and Whitney road. To Committee on Streets.

Several petitions for minor licenses were received and referred.

The Committee on Licenses reported upon a number of petitions for minor licenses. Adopted.

Upon motion of Councilman Hughes, the order granting William Cashman a location for a private railroad track across Furnace avenue was taken from the table. The order was amended by substituting the word consent for franchise and adding the words "without compensation a part of the city" to the clause relative to revocation. The order was then passed.

PUBLIC HEARINGS.

A public hearing was held on the petitions of the Electric Light Co. for location of poles on Federal and President's avenue. No one appeared for or against and the orders were recommitted.

A public hearing was held on widening Hancock street on the west side between Saville and Dimmock streets.

Charles W. Hall opposed the plan. He asked if proposed widening took away the trees in front of the J. W. Hall estate and was informed that it did. Continuing, he said, if the widening was reduced to eight feet instead of ten feet it would save his trees.

Herbert T. Whitman opposed as the plan was now laid out. It takes four trees from the Hall estate. The plan could be modified by taking but eight feet. It would improve to widen in front of the Brackett estate. He had also been informed that one of the trustees of the Adams Temple and School fund would object to the widening if trees were to be cut down.

Ex-Mayor Bryant opposed. Quincy can not afford to widen thoroughfares that are already wide enough for public travel. The street at this point is wide enough now for public travel. No one who owns land on this side of the street has signed the petition and very few petitioners live on Hancock street at all. We do not want to go to the expense of widening when it is wide enough. The expense would be thousands of dollars.

When a business block is proposed it will be time enough to widen. In reply to questions he said it would not be wise for the city to take land on the inside of the sidewalk to save the trees. The trees are to thick there now. The hearing was then closed and the order recommitted.

A public hearing was held on accepting Glendale road. No one appeared for or against and the order was recommitted.

A public hearing was held on accepting Upland road.

G. B. Bates opposed, as there was a suit now pending against the city caused by changing the grade of Dimmock street. As the plan was now drawn, if that part of Upland road was accepted, it would bring Mrs. Bates property two feet below grade.

Hearing closed and order recommitted.

MAPLE PLACE.

A hearing was given at 9 P. M. on the petition for the extension of Maple place to City Square, also widening of street.

Ex-Councilman C. H. Hardwick appeared in favor. He argued that the extension was a necessity. That now travel was congested because Chestnut street was narrow, and Temple street had a street railway and considerably traveled. It is bound to be worse because Quincy is growing rapidly. It will also be down Washington street. The extension would create a cut off to the Public Library, the Y. M. C. A. and the Coddington school. If Maple place was not extended now the Dr. French property will be all built up as there was a demand for stores. The expense now would be normal.

Secretary Gay of the Y. M. C. A. said he was authorized by the directors of the association to appear in favor. Maple place was now largely used by members. The extension was needed to give better access to the Y. M. C. A. building.

Ex-Mayor Bryant believed it would be wisdom for the city to extend the street. The increased value of the property on Maple place would pay the cost of the improvement. It will be too late if work is delayed as owners of Dr. French property propose to erect buildings on it. People should make up their mind that the Federal building will soon be located on Washington street. The Public Library and Y. M. C. A. are already there and are permanent. It would be a serious mistake to refuse the petition.

The hearing was closed and the petition recommitted.

Upon motion of Councilman Gassett the rules were suspended and it was voted that when the Council adjourn it be to Monday evening, May 29.

OYSTER PETITION.

A public hearing was held on the petition of L. B. Titus for permission to plant and grow oysters at Squantum.

Andrew J. Bailey, formerly corporator counsel of Boston, appeared as counsel for the petitioner. He said up to a year or two there had been large beds of clams here, and that Mrs. Titus had been told by experts that there was a most excellent opportunity to grow oysters.

In reply to questions he said that the tide did not entirely cover this place. The plan did not give precisely the low watermark. That the authority was given under the statutes and had only been in operation a few years. No sewage comes up there. The sewer empties on the opposite shore fully a mile away. There was not a trace of sewage there.

John J. Byron said this may be a new industry and might oppose the rights of the public. It might prevent people from going there to dig clams. He understood the petitioner asked for more than belonged to her. If it was a fact that the object was not to grow oysters but to keep people from going there to dig clams he would object. He hoped the Council would look into the matter carefully before granting the license.

Councilman Spargo said that he never saw shells planted where the tide goes back. They are always planted in deep water.

Mr. Bailey, again speaking, said that the remonstrant asks the Council not to give a license so to protect illegal acts of others. Persons have a right to dig three bushels of clams for bait or for their own family use, but every one they dig over that is against the law. If the sewage did not poison clams it would not poison oysters. No one has the right to go on the flats and dig clams except as he had already stated.

The hearing then closed, and the order was recommitted to the Committee on Licenses.

Adjourned at 9.40, to meet May 29.

EPWORTH CROSS.

Constructed and Explained at West Quincy Service.

To explain and emphasize the work of the Epworth League and to point to the ideal was the design of the service in the West Quincy M. E. church Sunday evening. After a hymn and scripture reading and prayer by the pastor, "The Epworth Cross" was constructed. Miss Belle Phillips made the introductory remarks. Miss Maggie Shirley, fourth vice president, put upon the easel one section of the maltese cross, "The Social Gospel," and described the work of her department; in this she she was assisted by Miss Dora Clark, Miss Georgie Thayer, Miss Olive Grant and Mr. Ernest Williams representing respectively good cheer, culture, good tidings and fellowship.

Hubert W. Fuller then added the second section of the cross, "Applied Christianity," and explained the work of the department of mercy and help; he was assisted by Miss May Williams, who told of Samaritan helpfulness; Ralph Keast, the war against drink; Miss Clara Furbish, Christian politics and Miss Nellie Hunter, into highways and hedges.

Miss Beryle Hannant placed in position the third section of the cross, "The Advancing Kingdom," Christian benevolence, Christian education, consecration of possessions and the missionary enterprise were described by Miss Maud Hodgkinson, John Ellis Williams, Edmund Thomas and Miss Lilliam M. Johnson, respectively.

Miss Nellie May Rodman added the fourth and highest section of the cross, "Personal Religion." The need of Christian communion, knowledge of the word, direct evangelism and the inner life, as factors of this, were insisted upon by Miss Hilda Francis, Miss Amy Miller, William Williams and Miss Cassie Thayer in the order named.

The four arms of the Cross were then bound into a consistent and harmonious whole by "The Unifying Cross." A circle inscribed "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ." This was done by the president. Miss Clara May Thorne, who showed that this and this only made possible the four departments and correctly interpreted them.

The service concluded with a prayer of consecration by the pastor. There were a number of suitable hymns sung during the exercises, Mr. Williams at the organ, Charles A. Goucher, leader. The program was excellently rendered, every part being well sustained. The work of making and lettering the mottoes and the cross was in charge of Miss Thayer and Mr. Thomas and was well done.

The State Prison.

Nashawena Island, the site approved by Governor Douglas for a new State prison, which as represented at the executive chamber could be purchased for $70,000, was, in 1904, assessed for $18,261.

The project of taking the island and removing to it the State prison is in the hands of the ways and means committee, where it has received a most favorable argument from Chairman Pettigrove of the Prison Commission and many others.

But the $18,261 valuation against the $70,000 price was thrown suddenly into the committee yesterday and its effect was chilling. It is expected to prove a hard blow to the Nashawena project. —Post.

ANTI-CIGARETTES.

Women's Auxiliary Listen to Timely Talk on Subject.

The May meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian Association was held Monday afternoon in Association hall in the new building, with a large attendance.

The opening exercises were led by Rev. Jason G. Miller of Atlantic and were helpful and suggestive.

Delcevare King was the speaker of the afternoon and his subject was "Boys." Mr. King is much interested in the Anti-Cigarette movement and explained what was being done along those lines; proving by actual facts and the statement of well known men the harmfulness and danger caused by the use of tobacco and cigarette smoking.

Mrs. J. D. Buckingham led the singing in the absence of Mrs. E. C. Page who was to have been the soloist.

Adjourned to meet in June.

An open meeting is to be held by the Hospital Aid Association and the Quincy Women's club tomorrow afternoon in First Church chapel to discuss establishing district nursing in Quincy. Dr. Alfred Worcester of Waltham, Mrs. W. T. Piper of Cambridge and Dr. J. A. Gordon will speak on the subject. Any ladies interested are welcome to attend the meeting.

Fishermen's Terrible Experience

North Sydney, C. B., May 16.—Exhausted and frost-bitten, after a terrible experience for 12 days in an open boat and on the ice field 60 miles off Scatterie, two fishermen were rescued by the French schooner Leon Emile. The men, James Bartlett and Willim Merritt, were members of the crew of the Newfoundland schooner Excelda. They left the vessel in a dory to look after the trawls and got lost in a fog.

Wrangle Over Church Union

Topeka, May 16.—The contest in the United Brethren conference for union with the Congregational and the Methodist and Protestant churches was begun last night. Much opposition came up. The friends of the proposal forced an adjournment and the question will be fought out in the general conference session. The conservative element of the church is opposing union with the other churches.

Accounts Were Short

Washington, May 16.—Lieutenant Otto B. Grimm, on duty as property and disbursing officer of the signal corps at Manila, has been found guilty of failing to properly keep and account for $1011, entrusted to his charge for disbursement. He has been sentenced to be suspended from promotion to the grade of captain for five years.

A new get-rich-quick game was unearthed in Wellesley recently. Several women had counterfeit half dollars sprung upon them in a new way. A pedler visited many houses, and in several cases where he was given silver half-dollars in payment for goods, he went back to his wagon to secure change, and in each case, upon returning, said the half-dollar he had received was counterfeit. Thereupon he would return a coin that was plainly a "home made" one, and would receive change for the purchases.

Policy to Be Adopted by Isthmian Canal Commission

THE BUYING OF VESSELS

Serves as Illustration That European Markets Offer Opportunity to Reduce Expenses--Same Conditions Govern Purchase of Canal Material

Washington, May 16.—The executive committee of the isthmian canal commission has decided to purchase in the markets of the world the material and ships necessary for the building of the Panama canal.

This important decision was reached with some reluctance because it was appreciated by Secretary Taft and the executive committee that there would surely be a great outcry from two great interests in this country—producers of material and the shipowners—if the purchases were not limited to the American products. But it was decided that the money consideration was so great that it could not be ignored, for it was held that in cases fully 50 percent more would be charged for material needed in canal construction than the same goods could be procured for in Europe.

Chief Engineer Wallace, for instance, showed that two ships, in addition to those running between New York and Colon and owned by the Panama Railroad company, were absolutely necessary to carry the food supplies and material needed for the work. No American ships could be bought at any reasonable price and when it came to building such ships it was found, according to Taft's statement, that, while he could buy 6000-ton ships in Europe for $750,000, it would cost $1,400,000 to build such ships here. And in addition, while the European ship could be had at once, it would take at least 18 months to secure American boats.

Therefore, it was decided to buy the ships where they could be had cheapest and obtained the quickest. As to material needed for canal construction, the committee decided that by reserving to itself the right to purchase in the world's markets, it would at least oblige American manufacturers to give them the benefit of their foreign prices if they wish to sell goods to the committee.

Secretary Taft explained that he felt obliged to endorse this decision because, having given congress every opportunity to give a contrary direction, he felt that the very terms of the canal act provided that it should be constructed at the lowest possible cost. And in this connection he called attention to the following recommendation contained in the first report of the isthmian canal commission:

"An important question of policy is yet to be determined. If the isthmian canal commission are not bound by any restriction of congress as to where they shall purchase machinery, materials and supplies, then it would seem to be their duty to construct the canal as cheaply as possible and so to buy what they need where they can get it cheapest. This, however, is certain to produce, every time that a large contract is awarded to a foreign manufacturer or dealer, an outcry on the part of the American unsuccessful competitors. If congress approves the policy of favoring American manufacturers and dealers, even if it increases the cost of the construction of the canal, then it seems to be only just that it should declare this policy by law and lay down a rule which the commission can easily follow."

The Care of Lepers

Washington, May 16.—Leprosy was the subject discussed at the first session of the conference of state and territorial health authorities with the officials of the United States public health and marine hospital service. All the state boards of health represented were found to be unanimously in favor of a national leper home. The idea of Dr. Wyman, head of the public health service, is to have a colony of cottages in a fine climate, where the afflicted persons can be made comfortable and their condition bettered.

Ran Into Open Switch

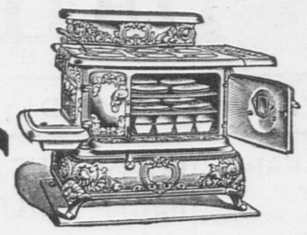

New York, May 16.—Nearly a score of persons were injured in the wreck of a special race train bound from Brooklyn to the Belmont Park race track. The locomotive ran into a half-open switch and was overturned and the three forward cars left the rails and crashed into each other. All the passengers injured were in these cars, those in the rest of the train escaping with a slight shaking up. All but one are expected to recover.

Enjoy Using Herpicide on Account of Its Distinctiveness.

The ladies who have used Newbro's Herpicide speak of it in the highest terms, for its quick effect in cleansing the scalp of dandruff and also for its excellence as a general hair-dressing. It makes the scalp feel fresh and it allays that itching which dandruff will cause. Newbro's Herpicide effectively cures dandruff, as it destroys the germ that causes it. The same germ causes hair to fall out, and later baldness; in killing it, Herpicide stops falling hair and prevents baldness. It is also an ideal hair dressing, for it lends an aristocratic charm to the hair that is quite distinctive. Sold by leading druggists. A HUNT FOR FIREBUG

Hub Police Get Description of the Much-Wanted Man

Boston, May 16.—Every policeman in Boston, upon starting out on his tour of duty last night, was handed what the authorities believe to be a perfect description of the incendiary responsible for the numerous fires during several months past. In addition to this the officers were ordered to arrest every person acting suspiciously near buildings.

The much-wanted firebug, it is believed, is not more than 25 years old. From several sources the police received a description of a man who stole a quantity of cotton waste from a Boston and Maine freight car, and the description of this young man answers in every particular that of the young man who has been seen in the vicinity of a number of the buildings burned by an incendiary.

"Look out for your place. We will burn it tomorrow night." That was the wording of a note left on the doorstep of a house at 15 Warwick street in the tenement district of Roxbury last night. A half an hour before the note was found the fire department was called out for an incendiary fire in a tenement house in the same district which, but for the prompt alarm turned in, would have resulted seriously. The building is occupied by six families. The stairway of the building, situated at 15 Hammond street, was soaked with kerosene oil, and the flames were burning fiercely when the firemen arrived, closing the main exits to the occupants of the second and third floors. The damage to the building was small.

Site For New Institute

Boston, May 16.—The petition of Mayor Collins requesting permission of the legislature to provide a site for the Franklin institute was favorably acted upon by the committee on cities and the bill was reported to the house. CHORUS GIRL LIED

Judge Davis' Impressions of the Patterson Trial

THINKS SHE HELD PISTOL

Her Probable Intention Was to Merely Scare Young--Would Have Been Freed at Second Trial Had She Told the Truth

New York, May 16.—Somewhat to the astonishment of those present at the monthly dinner last night of the Phi Delta Phi club, an organization of lawyers, Justice Davis of the supreme court of the state of New York, who was the guest of honor, gave his opinion as to the guilt of Nan Patterson while making an argument in defense of Assistant District Attorney Rand, who had prosecuted the young woman at her three trials for the murder of Caesar Young.

Justice Davis, who presided at the first two trials of the former chorus girl, said that she had lied from beginning to end, and it was his opinion that the majority of the community now believed that Miss Patterson held the pistol by which Young was shot; that J. Morgan Smith bought the weapon and gave it to her, charging her at the time with the duty of scaring Young.

In the middle of the justice's remarks the reporters were asked to leave the room, but before they had reached the door they were called back by the speaker, who said that he left it to their discretion as just what parts of his speech were to be used.

"We have heard a great deal in the public press of late of severe criticisms of Mr. Rand and his conduct of the trial," said the justice.

"You can't prosecute a criminal without telling what you believe to be the truth. In the second trial before me the defendant went on the stand, and it was quite obvious that she was telling falsehoods from beginning to end. The very air seemed charged with the fact that she was lying. Yet she was a woman. She was young. It was natural that the public should sympathize with her. People seemed to know that she was not telling the truth and the great public of New York said why should'nt she lie? Let her lie. Let her get the benefit of her lies.

"But today, in the light of the last disagreement, I feel sure that most people are convinced that a majority of the people believe that the pistol that killed Caesar Young was held by Nan Patterson; was discharged by her, was bought by J. Morgan Smith, in an attempt to get money from Caesar Young for the support of the combined family.

"I don't mean to say that she took the pistol from the reticule and shot him in the side, but I do believe that she had the pistol and showed it to Caesar Young. An argument followed and he took hold of the weapon. In the conversation and consequent struggle the pistol went off and the man was killed.

"I believe, moreover, that had she told the story on the witness stand as it really happened—in other words, had she told the truth, that the second jury would have acquitted her."

Nan Patterson's Father Sick

Washington, May 16.—J. R. Patterson, the father of Nan Patterson, both of whom returned from New York Saturday, has a severe attack of congestion of the lungs. Miss Patterson spent a part of yesterday shopping here with members of her family.

There would be no autopsy, he said.

Beef Secrets Revealed to Jury

Chicago, May 16.—Members of the federal grand jury investigating the business affairs of the beef packing industries have learned all the details of the manner in which officers of the Aetna Trading company kept their books. Knocks Out Tariff Reform

London, May 16.—The Chronicle claims that it has good authority to assert that the government has decided to postpone the dissolution of parliament until the fall of 1906 and that this decision means a death blow to tariff reform. BOWEN AND LOOMIS

Secretary Replies and Makes Counter Charges

ARE HANDED TO MINISTER

The Latter Has Assistance to Aid Him In Preparing His Case Quickly--Has Made No Direct "Charges" Against Minister

Washington, May 16.—Minister Bowen is preparing an answer to Mr. Loomis' reply to the Caracas charges, or his second round in the attack, and also a reply to the charges which Loomis makes against Bowen. The controversy assumes these two lines. Mr. Bowen alleges that he has not made charges against Loomis, but that he felt it his duty to forward statements concerning reports in circulation in Caracas which, for the honor of the nation, demanded investigation.

This explanation of Bowen's course seems to the friends of Loomis caustical, and they cite it as evidence that Bowen is desiring to relieve himself as much as possible from responsibility for the trouble which he has stirred up. They assert that he has indicated by private letters, at least, if not in official communications to the department, that he believed these charges in considerable part, and that his method of making them known to the department was such as to throw upon them the burden of proving them, which would not have been the case with matters concerning which he was merely a reporter.

It is understood that the $10,000 check charge has vanished into thin air; that Loomis has made it clear that this was merely a method of banking to which nearly all Americans in Venezuela have to resort, in getting exchange.

The status of the case is officially explained as follows:

Saturday night Acting Secretary Loomis notified Secretary Taft that he had completed the preparation of his answer to the various allegations concerning himself which had been transmitted to the secretary of state in the first place and then to the secretary of war by Minister Bowen. Minister Bowen had been careful to explain to Taft that these were not his charges; that he merely transmitted them for the information of the department.

Secretary Taft requested Loomis, in view of the lateness of the hour, to defer the submission of his answer until the following day. Accordingly, Sunday morning Loomis waited upon Taft and submitted his answer with accompanying documents bearing upon the subject. Secretary Taft went over these with care and then carried them to the White House, where he told the president of their contents and consulted with him as to the course to be pursued.

It was then agreed that Taft should undertake to arrange the matter for presentation to the president—in other words, that he should do all the preliminary work of sifting out the evidence and preparing a synopsis for the president's consideration, consulting with him only about such details as seemed to be absolutely necessary to bring to his attention.

So, when Bowen called upon Taft yesterday, the latter turned over to him both Loomis' answer to the charges transmitted by Bowen, with the accompanying documents, and Loomis' counter-charges against Bowen, to the effect that he had instigated the circulation of unfounded reports against his superior officer, involving malfeasance in office.

The secretary advised Bowen to prepare at once his answer and, in order to facilitate his task, tendered him the services of one of the war department stenographers. Mr. Bowen returned at once to his hotel and began his task. It is Taft's expectation that this matter can be cleared up within a week.

Cannot Tax Coal Outside State

Washington, May 16.—That the state of Pennsylvania cannot collect a tax upon Pennsylvania coal after it is shipped has been decided by the supreme court of the United States. The decision grew out of an attempt on the part of the state authorities to levy a tax of 5 mills on the value of coal mined by a railroad company in the state and held in various cities outside of Pennsylvania. The state supreme court upheld the tax, but that decision is reversed.

THE CHICAGO STRIKE

Executive Board of Federation of Labor Is Called Upon

Chicago, May 16.—As a result of developments in the teamsters' strike, the employers predict its speedy end, while the labor leaders assert that the strike will spread and will be aided financially by unions all over the country. An appeal for funds has been sent out by President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, and this call gives a color of truth to the strikers' assertion.

What the employers take as a sign of the end of the strike is a telegram sent by President Shea of the Teamsters' union to President Gompers. The message arranged for a meeting of the executive board of the American Federation of Labor to be held in Chicago near the end of this week. President Shea also telegraphed the members of the executive board of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters to come to Chicago forthwith.

These officers have the final word in calling or ending a strike of the teamsters. They are the same men who were called to Chicago last year to put an end to the strike of the teamsters at the stock yards and it is believed by the employers that they have now been summoned for a similar purpose.

The employers yesterday operated 2000 wagons with little interference, many of the deliveries in the residence portion of the city being made without police protection.

Unknown Steamer Wrecked

Jacksonville, Fla., May 16.—Details regarding a wrecked steamer in the vicinity of Maimi are lacking. There is some uncertainty as to the exact identity of the vessel. American steamer David is run between Tampa and Havana. Another American steamer David sailed from Boston eight days ago for Jacksonville. British Vice Consul Sudlow expresses the opinion that the wreck is the David Mainland, a Britisher, bound from Portugal to Charleston, with a cargo of pyrites.

Won't Break Into the Fourth

Washington, May 16.—Acting Secretary Loomis has suggested to Ambassador Porter that the remains of John Paul Jones be embarked on Admiral Sigsbee's squadron not on July 4, as originally proposed, but on some other day in the same week. This change was made because July 4 invariably is celebrated in the navy with all the bunting at the mastheads, with much gunfire and is generally a day of jollification.

State May Tax Vessels

Washington, May 16.—The supreme court of the United States has affirmed an opinion sustaining a state tax on the vessels of the Old Dominion Steamship company. Justice Brewer held that where vessels are engaged in interstate commerce wholly within the limits of a state, they are subject to taxation within that state, although they may have been registered or enrolled at a port outside its limits.

Important Yachting Event

New York, May 16.—With the incentive of a valuable cup and three other prizes offered by the German emperor, 11 large sailing yachts of various rigs and representing three nations are fully prepared for the start of a race across the ocean. Eight of the contestants are vessels owned in this country, two are from England, while Germany has one representative.

Engineer and Fireman Killed

Lafayette, Ind., May 16.—The engineer and fireman were killed and six passengers severely injured in the wreck of a Big Four fast passenger train which crashed into an open switch at Otterbein. The mail and baggage cars were wrecked and four passenger coaches were thrown from their trucks and dashed 100 feet ahead of the locomotive.

Uncle Russell Must Settle

Nyack, N. Y., May 16.—Ezekiel C. M. Rand, for 20 years confidential agent of Russell Sage, obtained a verdict against Sage in the Rockland county supreme court for $800, which he claimed Sage owed him. Sage denied the claim and retained ex-Senator Lexow to defend the case.

Hurt Kaiser's Feelings

Berlin, May 16.—According to the Magdeburg Zeitung, proceedings for lese majeste have been begun against the originators of erroneous reports of Emperor William's remarks on the occasion of the swearing in of naval recruits at Wilhelmshaven, on March 9.

Old Newspaper to Suspend

Berlin, May 16.—The Munich Allgemfine Zeitung will suspend publication on July 1. This is one of the oldest and most respected daily newspapers in Germany, was founded in 1798 by Johann F. Cotter and has long enjoyed a high literary reputation.

Cuban Warrior Dangerously Ill

Santiago, May 16.—General Maximo Gomez is dangerously ill with a complication of heart and kidney diseases. The general's extreme age and the results of many wounds he received in his campaign for the liberation of Cuba complicate his trouble.

Russians Sail Northward

London, May 16.—A dispatch from Saigon stating that the Russian fleet sailed northward from the vicinity of Hon Kohe early in the morning of May 14 is the latest news available in London regarding the movements of Vice Admiral Rojestvensky.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

George Thayer of Brockton is visiting relatives in this city.

A new house is being built on Bay View avenue, Quincy Point.

The street railway is making some needed repairs on its tracks throughout the city.

It seemed natural to see ex-mayor Bryant at a Council meeting on Monday night.

Another meeting of the City Council will be held May 29, making the fourth this month.

The City Council Committee on Streets, and Public Buildings will meet Friday evening.

It is about time that the Quincy Yacht club announced its fixtures for the coming season.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union met in the Council chamber, City Hall, this afternoon.

B. F. Nay has returned to his summer home on Howard avenue, after an absence of some months.

The executive committee of the W. R. C. met last evening with Mrs. Mary Crane of Washington street. Reports were read from the different committees of the late fair.

In order to give automobilists all the leeway possible the police will not summons any of them into court unless they are going at a rate of eighteen or more miles per hour.

The Guild meeting to have been held with Mrs. Frank Brewer tomorrow afternoon has been postponed until next week on account of the District Nursing meeting at First Church chapel in which so many ladies are interested.

Owners of power boats will be glad to know that the Quincy Yacht club is to keep a supply of gasolene on hand, for sale, near the club house. The gasolene will be stored in what is known as a Bowser cabinet just outside the club house on the shore.

His New Hobby.

B. J. Weeks formerly Superintendent of the Quincy street railway has a new hobby. He is now located at Spokane, Washington, and the Spokesman-Review says in a recent issue.

The upbuilding of the City Zoo at Manito park is a subject near to the heart of B. J. Weeks, manager of the Spokane Traction company, and he has already raised $65 in subscriptions as a preliminary step toward the purchase of a pair of buffalo from the Conrad herd at Kalispell, Mont. Their nominal price is $800, but Mr. Weeks believes that figure could be discounted. It is not planned to get them here until late in the summer.

"Mayor Boyd," the bull elk, is doing finely in the big park. The two cow elk donated by the park commissioners of Tacoma will be shipped in a few days. There are three deer—a blacktail, a whitetail and a fawn. The three wolverines presented by Tom Hopper are flourishing. I. Dornberg yesterday presented a young coyote, as a third member of the prairie wolf delegation at the park.

Councilman John Gray has his eye on a pair of black bears at Meteor, Wash., and a cinnamon at Deer Trail, Wash. He thinks all could be bought for $50, and said yesterday that he thought the city should get them.

Prairie dogs are likely to be added soon. Mr. Weeks wants a colony of the queer little fellows.

Roller Skating.

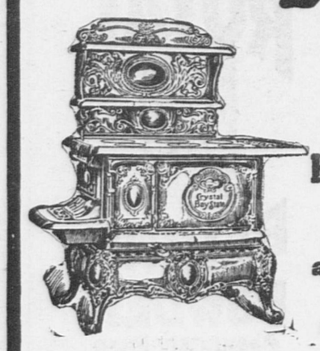

J. S. Baker of the Tubular River Works gave a very fine exhibit last evening of fancy skating at the Coliseum.

The management of the roller skating rink is looking carefully after the neatness and deportment of the place and our citizens can feel assured of a pleasant hour.

A new lot of skates arrived yesterday and more are expected so that all who may wish can be supplied. All good citizens are invited to call and enjoy an hour.

—The Municipal Court room in Boston was crowded yesterday morning. Fifteen woman and about 200 men were arraigned before the judge.

VAUDEVILLE.

Presented Last Evening by Men's Club in Aid of Y. M. C. A. Fund.

The Men's club of Christ church established a good reputation last evening for an entertaining program. The leading feature in their vaudeville entertainment was the Hobo Kayoko Band, an organization of sixteen members attired in costumes which reminded one more of the "downs" than of the "ups" of life, and gifted with an amusing ability that was not always musical, to play the popular band selections of the day. Mr. James Smith in the role of "Professor J. Smithsky" was the director.

The first honors were given to Masters George Reynolds and Albert Smith in their soprano and alto duets. They were programed as "Reynolds and Smith, Juvenile Vocal Prodigies" and the enthusiasm with which they were received and recalled testified to the truthfulness of the program.

Others on the bill were William Walker who sang good songs and told bright stories; Leslie Smith who convulsed the audience with his Dutch impersonations; the Hallowell, Cassidy, Christiansen Trio, mandolinists and Arthur Peverly, tenor soloists.

The evening concluded with "A mystifying exhibition of Black Magic" in which Leslie Smith appeared as "Prof. Hermann Fake and Alexander Rose as "Bill Uneeda Fake." The sketch was most interesting and received continuous applause, because the professor was continually thrown into despair by having his assistant reveal the secret methods of his wonderful tricks.

Quite a sum was netted for a room in the Young Men's Christian Association.

The Railway Bill.

The general street railway bill for the taking of land by eminent domain was defeated in the house yesterday afternoon by a vote of 150 to 57, the question coming upon reference to the next General Court.

Reconsideration will be asked for today, but is not expected to be granted. The special Boston & Providence trolley bill, which has been lying on the table in the Senate, will now be taken up on a question of advancement to be engrossed and sent on to the House.

Killed the Legacy Tax Bill.

The Senate, yesterday afternoon, without a word of rebate, rejected the inheritance tax bill, substituted by the House for the adverse report of the ways and means committee. Senator Harding of the Cape moved reconsideration, which motion went over to today.

The patrol wagon was called to Quincy Point Monday morning to carry a drunken man to the station.

Mortgagee's Sale.

BY Virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Emil Sutermeister to Elias A. Perkins, dated November 21st, 1887, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Libro 598, folio 576, for breach of the condition thereof and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at public auction on the premises, at two o'clock in the afternoon, on WEDNESDAY, the seventh day of June, A. D. 1905, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage and described therein as follows, viz:

"A certain lot of land, situated at Grove Hill, in the northerly part of said Quincy, containing ten thousand nine hundred and six square feet (10,906 square feet) more or less, and bounded and described as follows, viz: Southerly by Walnut street, seventy-eight feet (78 feet;) westerly by land now or late of Peter Martin, one hundred and forty-five and six-tenths feet (145 6-10 feet;) easterly by land now or late of William Perry, one hundred and twenty-nine feet (129 feet;) and northerly by marsh land now or formerly of Lemuel Billings, by an irregular line, seventy-eight feet (78 feet) more or less, or however otherwise butted, bounded, measured, or described with the dwelling house and other improvements standing thereon. Being the same premises this day conveyed to me by said Perkins by Warranty Deed bearing even date herewith, and said warranty and this mortgage are parts of the same transaction." Said premises will be sold subject to all unpaid or outstanding taxes, assessments or tax sales, if any such there be. Terms: One Hundred Dollars, to be paid at time and place of sale. Further terms at time of sale.

FRED A. PERKINS, Executor of the Will of Elias A. Perkins, Mortgagee.
Quincy, May 16. 3t—16-23-30

For Attorney General.

District Attorney Asa P. French of Randolph was indorsed for the office of attorney-general, by the executive committee of the Norfolk Club, at a meeting held at the Hotel Bellevue, Boston, last evening.

The nineteen men present represented nearly every large town in Norfolk county.

President Dr. W. O. Faxon of Stoughton acted as chairman, and George L. Barnes of Weymouth was elected as executive secretary.

The following resolution was adopted:

"Whereas, the executive committee of the Norfolk Club, feeling that some recognition on the State ticket belongs logically to Norfolk county, and

"Whereas, we are proud of the opportunity to present the name of Asa P. French of Randolph as a candidate for the office of attorney-general.

"Resolved, That we as a body, and singly, heartily indorse the candidacy of District Attorney Asa P. French for the above position; and, we further "Resolve, To pledge to him our earnest and unflagging support until the contest is over."

The Bounty Bill.

Attorney-General Parker says the Schofield "gratuity" bill is unconstitutional, and will today send to the Senate an opinion to that effect.

The friends of the Schofield bill say, however, that they will make a fight to pass the bill notwithstanding the objections of the attorney-general, and they are confident that if it reaches Governor Douglas it will not receive his veto.

Under the name of the bounty bill the measure was last year vetoed by Governor Bates, passed over the executive veto and declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court. This year Representative Schofield under skilled advice, drafted a new bill which the Representative declares meets every objection advanced by the Supreme Court.

The bill provides for the payment of $125 to every veteran of the Civil war who never received a bounty.

Stable Nuisance.

Editors Daily Ledger:

In a recent issue of the Ledger, it was suggested that the Board of Health look after the back yard of the Quincy High school which was unsightly with ashes. Now to me it seems as though the Board of Health should not occupy itself with anything so trivial as an ash heap, which although unpleasant to look at is not a menace to health.

What really is important in a city, the size of Quincy, about 30,000, is the stables, public and private which are everywhere without any pretence of being sanitary. How many of them have a manure vault in the cellar? Most of them have an unsightly ill smelling pile back of the stable, which gets so high more cannot be thrown out, then it is carted off. This I should consider a nuisance, pure and simple, and something that really needs the attention of the Board of Health.

It is safe to say that there are twenty-five barns within six minutes' walk of City hall in the thickly settled residential part of the city, which are as above described. Is there no relief for a long suffering people, who have for years put up with their neighbor's filthy stable yard? A Sufferer.

BIG WASTE AT MINES

Scheme to Teach Owners How to Save Riches.

AN OBJECT LESSON IN ECONOMY

What the Geological Survey Proposes to Do at the Lewis and Clark Exposition In Portland. Many Valuable Minerals Found by Analyzing Dumps, Says W. E. Curtis.

Riches are so abundant in the western states that those who seek them are very wasteful and reckless, says William E. Curtis, the Chicago Record-Herald's Washington correspondent. The amount of valuable material neglected or wasted in the mines, forests, fisheries and farming communities west of the Mississippi river would support a nation like Germany or France. The great majority of people who have been and are engaged in the development of the natural resources of the west utilize only the most profitable discoveries and results of their labors and throw away the rest.

Occasionally a Yankee who has not forgotten the lessons taught by the struggles of his ancestors and has not entirely discarded the habits of thrift which his mother taught him is able to devise methods by which a great deal of wastage is prevented, but the cow man still buys oleomargarine and other butter substitutes, the lumberman wastes one-third of his timber and the miner leaves on the ground valuable tailings which he has not time to work. This habit of wastefulness is peculiarly American. It cannot be found in any other nation or on any other continent save ours.

The geological survey has a scheme to teach gold miners lessons in economy by which it is hoped to increase the mineral value of the output of the western states by utilizing valuable ores and earths which are now wasted or neglected, and it is proposed to offer an object lesson in this respect at the Lewis and Clark exposition at Portland this summer.

There are about 15,000 placer mines now being worked in the mountain regions of the west, at which no care is taken to preserve the byproducts. It is proposed to begin the reform with them. In placer mining after the gold has been washed out of the clay or dirt there always remains a quantity of heavy metallic sand and other material of more or less value. The most prevalent mineral is magnetite—a magnetic oxide of iron, which is worth about $10 a ton—and almost always traces of platinum can be found, which is worth $20 an ounce, one of the most valuable of minerals. Chromite is another common mineral that is ignored by miners, although it is worth from $20 to $40 a ton, and various others offer a permanent and profitable industry to miners who now throw them on the dumps.

In order to bring about a reform Director Walcott of the geological survey has issued a circular to placer miners throughout the United States asking them to send in to the office at Washington packages of not less than four pounds of the black sand and heavy residue material from their washings. Each package will be analyzed and classified, and experts will be sent to make personal and thorough examinations of localities where preliminary tests give promise of finding platinum or other metals in profitable quantities. Dr. David T. Day will carry on concentration experiments with such materials in the mining building at Portland all this summer. He proposes to show by daily public experiments what there is of value in the sands which are now wasted and how to get it out.

Already several samples have been examined, and not only have valuable minerals been found, but also several diamonds of commercial value, a quantity of small rubies, which may be used as jewels by watchmakers, and occasionally a topaz or other jewel. One sample of black sand sent in from a mine was about 15 per cent bird shot, which indicates that there was a good deal of poor shooting in the neighborhood from which it came.

Weather Service Extension.

It has been arranged by the navy department that all merchant ships fitted with wireless telegraph apparatus shall make daily weather reports when they are in touch with the government coastwise stations, which will shortly be established in a chain extending from Portland, Me., to New Orleans and later to Galveston, says a Washington correspondent of the New York Post. It is planned that such ships shall make their reports at Greenwich noon, which reports will probably be forwarded to the weather bureau in Washington. It is also asked that there be special reports of any marked changes observed in the barometer at other times. On the other hand, these naval wireless stations will furnish the ships when desired with weather forecasts which come from the weather bureau. At certain posts at which they may be observed the naval wireless stations along the coast will also display the usual weather signals.

Big New Mexican Pine.

At Cloudcroft, N. M., the other day a pine tree was cut down which measured seven feet in diameter at the ground and was two feet in diameter at a point sixty feet above the ground, says the Santa Fe New Mexican. The trunk of the tree measured over a hundred feet in length. It was cut down to make room for a dwelling house, which is to be built directly over the stump.

The accordion plaited blouse is one of the season's assured styles. The sleeves are also plaited in the same fashion.

Jeweled lockets exquisitely carved, worn about the neck suspended from a long chain, are a fad.

A pretty new French slipper has a design of embroidery and beads running all around it.

Shaded leather belts and stocks fastened with hammered copper buckles are new.

The attractive hat seen in the cut is of gray chip simply trimmed with several shades of gray blue velvet about the crown. Where the hat folds and tilts at the side it is filled in with sprays of forgetmenots.

A Friendly Recommendation.

"I never yet have had a picture taken that suited me," she complained.

"That's too bad!" her dearest friend replied. "I know of a place where I'm sure you could get satisfaction. They have such a skillful retoucher! When he gets through with the plate, you really won't know yourself."

The Eyedea!

Mr. Growler—Are you aware, sir, that you deliberately placed your umbrella in my eye yesterday evening?

The Captain—Did I? How beastly careless of me, to be sure. I wondered where it had got to. Would it be troubling you too much to let me have it back—aw?—Half Holiday.

Our bargains are made by marking down our own stock to a low price, not by purchasing inferior goods to make an attractive price.

It is a mistake to infer that we carry only high-priced fabrics.

We have medium grades as well, and our prices are low because our expenses are proportioned over a volume of business exceeded by few in our specialty in the United States, and equaled by none in New England.

Bowen Looking Over State Department Papers

HE SUMMONS A FRIEND

Venezuelan Calls on Roosevelt and Taft Regarding Conditions In Caracas-- Cabinet Considers the Braun Case

Washington, May 17.—Some important subjects were considered by the cabinet at its semi-weekly meeting, the principal one being the Loomis-Bowen case. Minister Bowen presented to Secretary Taft his response to the statement of Secretary Loomis. Before Taft reached the White House to attend the cabinet meeting a request reached him from Bowen for certain papers bearing upon the controversy which were in the state department. These were furnished to him with the understanding that he would make an additional statement regarding the facts disclosed in the papers. That statement has not reached Taft yet, and no definite action will be taken in the case until Bowen's added statement shall have been received and submitted to Loomis and his answer laid before Taft.

Just prior to the cabinet meeting, Jose Paul, a representative of Venezuela in this country, called at the White House and had a talk with the president regarding the pending case.

During the cabinet meeting Bowen called at the White House and, through Secretary Loeb, sent a note to Taft. The note simply indicated the presence at the executive offices of Pastor y Mora, a friend of Bowen, whom the minister desired should talk with the president and Taft. Soon afterward Senor Mora had a conference with the president and Taft. Mora did not disclose the details of the interview, but it is known that, having at one time been connected with the asphalt company in Caracas, he was enabled to throw some light upon the present situation.

When Taft left the White House he said that no determination of the case had been reached and none would be until all the facts from both sides had been developed. He indicated this might require several days.

The case of Marcus Braun, the special immigration inspector who is having trouble with the Austro-Hungarian government about alleged tampering with his official mail, was discussed, but in the absence of a complete report of the matter from Ambassador Storer and from Braun no decision was reached.

Postmaster General Cortelyou remained with the president a considerable time after the meeting, taking up with him many postoffice appointment cases.

Vessel Owners Take Advantage

Washington, May 17.—Secretary Taft has indicated to the president that some difficulty may be experienced in purchasing ships for the Panama Railroad company. Already some vessels which the directors of the railroad had in mind have been found to be sold and the prices of some others were raised when the owners discovered for whom they were wanted.

Alleged Burglars In Custody

New York, May 17.—Detectives have arrested two men and a woman who, they allege, were the ringleaders of a gang which blew up and robbed a private bank at Gilbertsville of about $10,000 in cash. The detectives also captured what is said to be the most elaborate set of bank burglars' tools ever taken to police headquarters.

Disobayed Court's Order

Helena, Mont., May 17.—Charles Geyman, a member of the legislature, was adjudged guilty of violating an injunction restraining operations in the mining property of the Boston and Montana company in Butte and was sentenced to 40 days in jail. Geyman's company will have to pay the cost of the legal proceedings.

Out of Work and Despondent

Lawrence, Mass., May 17.—Dana Dodge, aged 60, ended his life last night by taking Paris green. Up to 12 weeks ago he was employed by the Boston and Maine railroad, but was laid off and had been idle since. Despondency, due to loss of employment, is thought to be the cause of his suicide.

Receiver For Electric Company

Milwaukee, May 17.—Judge Humphrey has appointed a receiver for the National Electric company, one of the largest concerns of its kind in the country. Frank G. Bigelow, late president of the First National bank, was, prior to his downfall, prominently connected with the company.

Charter Received.

Wollaston lodge, No. 174, American Benefit society, held its regular session in Brasee hall, Tuesday evening. This new lodge has been working under a dispensation, but they made a request that the charter list be closed. Supreme President William H. Carberry and Supreme Medical Director Dr. M. Morey Pearson were present, and each gave a stirring address. Dr. Pearson who organized the lodge presented the charter containing thirty-eight signatures. Deputy J. V. Carter of Brockton, and Dr. E. R. Johnson addressed the meeting. The lodge voted to invite the degree staff of Loyal lodge of Brockton to perform the initiatory work at the next regular meeting, June 20. Two candidates were initiated and four applications for membership were received. A vote of thanks was extended to all who assisted in any way to make the basket party a success.

Lower Electric Lighting.

An effort is being made by a large number of business men in City Square to secure lower rates for electric current furnished by the Quincy Electric Light and Power Co. Public opinion seems to be that the rates charged are excessive for service furnished. In order to have the matter properly adjusted, the State board of Gas and Electric Light Commission have been petitioned requesting them to investigate the affairs of the Electric Light Company of this city. The State Board have called a hearing for Thursday May 25, at 10 o'clock A. M.

This hearing is to be held in the Council Chamber, City Hall, and all citizens who are interested in the movement, particularly those using electricity in their business or homes, are urged to be present. If unable to be present at the hearing it is suggested that a letter be written to Mr. Barker chairman of State Board Gas and Electric Light Commission and send it either to the State House, Boston, or care of the City Clerk, Quincy.

Faircloth vs Williams.

The action for libel bought by George F. Faircloth against Peter J. Williams, chief of the Quincy Fire Department, is having another trial at the Superior Civil court at Dedham, this week, before Judge Hardy. The case was reached at 11 A. M., Tuesday. All Quincy men were excused from serving on the jury.

All the evidence for the plaintiff was submitted in three hours, the witnesses being Mr. Faircloth, W. H. Cobb, G. T. Magee, Rev. W. W. Dornan, and F. F. Prescott.

Among the witnesses summoned for the defence are P. J. Williams, Engineman Costa, ex-Firemen Hogan, and Rooney and others.

E. J. Parker for plaintiff; P. R. Blackmur for defence.

—A St. Louis man wants the government to arrest the owners of the wireless telegraph stations in this country. He says that the currents turned loose in the air affect him unpleasantly. He is a bit too modest even for a man from St. Louis.

—The Zuni Indians will not eat bread that has not been crushed and ground up by stone implements. They say that the grain by itself denotes goodness, and the stone means truth, so that it is by a meeting of the two that the fullest benefit comes.

Interesting Experiences During the Spanish War.

At the smoke talk of Camp Boyd, U. S. W. V., at Grand Army hall, Tuesday evening, the members and guests beard first hand, from those who participated, very interesting experiences during the Spanish war both in Cuba and the Philippines. Among the guests were members of Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R., and the speakers of the evening. T. D. pipes and tobacco were passed early in the evening, and later crackers and cheese and other refreshments.

Commander George A. Wardwell, to whom much of the success of the camp belongs, made an excellent presiding officer. He extended a hearty welcome, and happily introduced the speakers.

Hermann W. Kuchmeister, Commander of the Ensign Worth Bagley camp of Charlestown, a medal of honor man for bravery during the campaign in Cuba, told interestingly the story of the cutting of the cable at Cienfuegos, connecting Cuba with Spain.

The speaker was at the time in service on the Cruiser Marblehead and was one of the volunteers who successfully cut the cable. Twenty-two were selected for the job divided between a protecting crew of which he was one and a cutting crew. Meanwhile the Marblehead bombarded the shore. Several of the crew were killed and Kuchmeister was among those seriously wounded, being shot twice through the jaw. His experiences were modestly told.

Almost as interesting were the experiences of Comrade Thompson of Malden, a survivor of the ill-fated Maine in Havana harbor on Feb. 15, 1898. He was seriously wounded and was in the hospital for months, but recovered and later was in the campaign in the Philippines and at Pekin, China.

Comrade Magee of Hyde Park, a member of Camp 37, also told of experiences in Cuba and in the Philippines, and urged all eligible to membership in the Legion to join a camp.

Other speakers were Senior Vice Commander Ring, Past Commander Phillips and Past Commander Holt of Paul Revere Post, Chief of Police Burrell, Joseph W. Johnson, Geoge H. Wilson, Frank F. Prescott and others.

Twenty-five Days More.

The last coupon in the School contest will be printed by the Herald on Sunday, June 11. There are only twenty-five days more, therefore, in which to gather the votes. The chances are excellent for Miss Julia E. Underwood of this city being one of the guests of the Herald on the excursion to the Clark and Lewis Centennial at Portland, Oregan in July. Because Miss Underwood is not one of the first three in the list today should not cause discouragement because she has a very large reserve vote. However, active work will be necessary from this time out. A few additional workers would make success easier. Coupons should be sent at least once a week to Frank F. Prescott, care Quincy Daily Ledger. Those who have been holding votes, should forward them now.

Mild Case of Smallpox.

Another case of smallpox was reported to the Board of Health Tuesday night. The victim is Joseph J. Kelley, aged 22 years, of 79 Main street. He has it in a mild form. Kelley contracted the disease from William H. Flynn. During the early part of Flynn's illness Kelley was a constant visitor at his house, and it was his practice to to rub Flynn's back. When it was discovered that Flynn had the smallpox Kelley was vaccinated but it did not take.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Possibly the public is getting used to the odor of successful finance, but if so, they should not be expected to enjoy it. Every time a new lot of Equitable revelations comes out, clothespins are in order. It is current rumor that financial circles in New York are worried about the uncovering of things as yet only whispered of. Surely enough has come out already, but it adds a touch when formal and public announcement is made that an enterprise is about to be undertaken honestly. A new departure?—Hartford Courant.

Route to Lewis & Clark Centennial.

Aside from the many interesting features that will surround the Lewis and Clark Exposition to be held at Portland during the comming summer, it is well to remind the traveling public that the Columbia river country offers attractions that are not surpassed in any part of this continent.

Much has been said and written about the beautiful Hudson river, but it will be found that the great Columbia river of the Far West is even more beautiful, more novel, grander, and more charming than its noted eastern rival.

A trip down the Columbia is well worth a journey across the continent. Even Lewis and Clark thought as much a hundred years ago, when it took them eighteen months to go from the Mississippi to the Pacific ocean. What mighty changes have been wrought since their time. Railroads were not even dreamed of then. President Jefferson had never heard of such a thing, and more than a quarter of a century elapsed before a single mile of railroad was built in the United States. Now we have more than 200,000 miles, spreading out and covering the entire country.

A dweller on the banks of the Hudson river can now enter a palace car at his door and go to the mouth of the Columbia river by way of the great Union Pacific railroad in much less time than it would have taken President Jefferson to go from New York to Boston. And what a delightful journey that Columbia river route must suggest to all who love the grand and beautiful in nature.

It is well to remember also that this same Union Pacific railway, is one of the great achievements of the century, made possible by the success of the Lewis and Clark expedition in 1805.

By this route the traveler passes through the old Spanish territory which Jefferson purchased, over the Rocky Mountains, through forest and plain down to the shores of the Pacific ocean. There is not a dull spot on the way. Even the sandy desert comes to have its charm and the barest, ruggedest mountains grow in splendor as we climb over the backbone of the continent.

Truly, Thomas Jefferson was the Prince of expansionists, and the American people are not unmindful of his great services when they plan to hold this Centennial Exposition on the banks of the mighty Columbia in honor of his memory.—The Critique. Medical Publication, March 1, 1905, Denver, Colo.

—A monument in honor of the late M. Waldeck-Rousseau is to be erected in the Tuileries gardens in Paris. It is to take the form of a bust, the pedestal of which is surrounded with emblamatic figures, and is to be of a style which will harmonize with the general decorations of the famous gardens.

CHILD HEARD FROM.

Mrs Meehan Gets Letter From Kidnapped Son

IS BEING WELL TREATED

Was Taken From Pawtucket In April, 1904, Since Which Time He Made a Trip to Germany--Pleads to Come Home

Pawtucket, R. I., May 17.—Mrs. Catherine Meehan of this city has received a letter bearing the signature of her 10-year-old son, Joseph, who has been missing since April 23, 1904. The letter was dated May 16, and was stamped in the local office at noon yesterday, indicating that the boy, or the person or persons implicated in his disappearance, are in this city or vicinity. The letter was given to the police, and Detective Henry was assigned to the case in an endeavor to trace the person who posted the letter.

The police, private detectives, circulars and newspaper advertisements have been employed by Mrs. Meehan for over a year in an effort to get a trace of the missing child, but the letter she has just received in the first word, either direct or indirect, she has had of the boy since the day he disappeared.

The letter, which Mrs. Meehan says is the handwriting of her son, states that he was kidnapped by a man who said he did so because the boy was very pretty, and because he had seen him abused by a playmate. According to the statements in the letter, a trip to Germany was made immediately after the alleged kidnapping, because the man feared arrest. The writer said he was sure Mrs. Meehan knew the man who abducted him, but he could not give his name because in replies to inquiries the man has given several different names. His home, the letter says, is in Hebronville.

The letter continued: "The man won't let me go out alone at all because he is afraid I will run away. I asked him to let me write to you and he let me, but he didn't see the letter after I finished it."

If the letter is authentic, the boy is apparently receiving good care, as he speaks particularly of the fine clothes provided for him. He writes that he is lonesome and pleads with his mother to get him and take him home. If she does not do so, he writes that he will "try to run away some day this summer." In closing, the mother is requested to be careful of her little daughter, Alice, who, the letter says, is in danger of abduction.

Mrs. Meehan was almost overcome after she read the letter. She immediately communicated with the police.

American Yacht Damaged

New York, May 17.—Eight of the 11 yachts which had been entered for the 3000-mile race across the Atlantic ocean for the $5000 cup offered by the German emperor are at anchor within the shelter of Sandy Hook, the start of the race having been postponed. The smallest yacht in the fleet, the American schooner Fleur de Lys, was run down by a scow in tow and had a portion of her bulwarks ripped away. She was towed into Erie basin, where the damage was repaired.

Balfour Holds Best Cards

London, May 17.—The fiscal negotiations between Premier Balfour and Joseph Chamberlain have been resumed. The two men had a long interview, but apparently they failed to reach an agreement, as another conference was arranged for. Opinion of members of both parties inclines to the belief that Balfour is now in a strong enough position to dictate terms.

Passage Greatly Delayed

Queenstown, May 17.—The White Star line steamer Oceanic was in wireless telegraphic communication with the Baltic of the same line, Liverpool for New York, on Sunday. The Baltic reported that she had experienced terrific weather which, with some mishap, had retarded her passage 84 hours and was likely to further prolong her voyage.

Check From Rockefeller

New York, May 17.—The Evangelistic tent campaign which is to be waged in New York throughout the coming summer by an interdenominational committee was inaugurated last night at a big mass meeting in Carnegie hall, presided over by Bishop Coadjutor Greer. Announcement was made of a check for $1000 for the work from John D. Rockefeller.

HIGH LICENSE FEES

Circuses Must Pay $300 a Day to Exhibit In Boston

Boston, May 17.—If any more circuses exhibit in this city the management of the shows will have to pay into the city treasury $1800 a week, at the rate of $300 a day for each day they are here. This will include the rights of all the side shows and fakirs, as well as the main show.

That is the decision of Mayor Collins, and it is a jump from $500, the fee that has heretofore been exacted in this city. By an act of the legislature, passed this year, the mayor has full charge of the licensing of all public amusements, and it is an admitted fact that hereafter it will cost much more to get licenses for all sorts of amusements, including the theatres, than it has in the past.

As yet the mayor has not decided just what sum the proprietors of theatres or dance halls will have to pay, but it is sure to be a sum considerably in advance of the $5 now paid into the city treasury.

Eight Years For Counterfeiter

Boston, May 17.—Eight years in the state prison was the sentence given Dr. Robert J. Thompson by Judge Lowell in the United States circuit court. He was convicted of counterfeiting bank notes, and was believed to be the head of the Wilson-Wiggin gang, two of whose members are in the state prison, serving five-year sentences. Patrick J. Gallagher, who was found guilty of passing counterfeit money, was sentenced by Judge Lowell to five years in the state prison. He was associated with Thompson in putting out the money that the latter made. In both cases Judge Lowell allowed bills of exceptions. The men are out on $5000 bail pending the action of the United States court of appeals, which will pass on the exceptions.

Tech Faculty Oppose Merger

Boston, May 17.—The official report of the faculty of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, giving its views on the proposition of merging that institution with Harvard, is being mailed today to all of the members of the alumni of the institution throughout the country. The report shows that the faculty, by a vote of 53 to 7, oppose the idea. The alumni of the institute will now vote on the proposition, and then the question will go to the corporation for settlement.

Considering President's Welfare

Boston, May 17.—Governor Douglas has written to President Roosevelt, tendering such courtesies in behalf of the commonwealth to the president as may be acceptable to him during his visit to Massachusetts upon the occasion of Harvard commencement. The president will speak at Clark university, Worcester, June 21, and at Williams college, Williamstown, on the following day. Nearly a week intervenes between these dates and the Harvard commencement.

Juvenile Firebugs Sentenced

Boston, May 17.—Judge White, in the superior criminal court, sentenced John Burns and Michael Flaherty, two youths of 16 years, giving each of them six years in the reformatory, for setting a fire in Jamaica Plain. In passing sentence he said: "We must let the boys of the commonwealth know that when such cases come to court they are not looked at as if they were boys' freaks. I propose to fix a penalty that will meet the crime."

Murder Verdict Not Warranted

Jackman, Me., May 17.—The coroner's jury, which held an inquest on the death of Sidney B. Lorrison, returned a verdict last night that Lorrison's death was due to accidental causes. An autopsy showed that Lorrison was dead when his body entered the river. Decomposition had advanced too far to reveal bruises or scars. The evidence was not considered sufficient to warrant the finding of a verdict of murder.

Young Mother Kills Herself

Lowell, Mass., May 17.—Mrs. Mary Wilbur, 19 years old, who came here from Stowe, Vt., last Wednesday, committed suicide by poisoning at her boarding house here. Before leaving Stowe, where her husband resides, the young woman had placed her 18-months-old child in the care of her parents. In her room a letter was found in which it was stated that her husband intended to get a divorce.

The Palmer May Soon Be Floated

Hyannis, Mass., May 17.—The new five-masted schooner Harwood Palmer, owned in Boston, has been ashore on Yarmouth flats since the gale of Jan. 26. Owing to the distance which the Palmer was driven up on the flats, it was necessary to dig a canal in which to drag her out to sea. It is believed that on the high course of tides the last of this week the schooner will be floated without injury.

Would Not Drill With Recruits

Burlington, Vt., May 17.—Thomas L. McCabe and William Ford, troopers in the cavalry stationed at Fort Ethan Allen, were sentenced by a military court to three years at Governor's Island, N. Y., for disobedience of orders. The men had been in the service for some time, and, objecting to an order to drill with recruits, they refused to saddle their horses.

In Priesthood Sixty Years

Boston, May 17.—Archbishop Williams of the Catholic archdiocese of New England celebrated the 60th anniversary of his ordination into the priesthood quietly in the archepiscopal residence and was the recipient of many congratulatory messages. In many churches throughout the diocese special prayers were said in honor of the anniversary.

CITY BREVITIES.

The telephone company is running another underground cable on Hancock street.

The storm of this week will pass for the line storm and summer weather may soon be expected.

Miss Elizabeth Ruxton of Whitwell street, is spending a few weeks with relatives in Barre, Vermont.

The dull weather seems to be continuous. Expect clearing weather for the reception to Miss Julia E. Underwood on Friday evening.

The regular monthly meeting of the Junior Auxiliary will be held in the Y. M. C. A. building, Washington street, Friday next, at 2.30 P. M.

The old post office building on the junction of Granite and Hancock streets is being moved from the corner to make room for the new business block.

Have you noticed the new badges that the drivers of junk wagons are wearing on their hats. If a junk man does not wear one of these badges he has not been licensed.

Granite manufactures throughout the city are rushing business just at present trying to get their Memorial day orders off on time. As a result there are but few idle men in this line of trade.

The general sentiment Monday night was that now was the accepted time to extend Maple street through to Chestnut street. The sentiment for widening Hancock street on the west side between Saville and Dimmock streets was not as strong, and it is doubtful if this is done at present.

The new gutter being built in front of the Hancock house is being laid on a grade so as to carry the water off and do away with the puddle of water that has almost always stood in front of this block, the cracks between the pavings have been filled with pebbles and then concreted, making it still better.

☞ Eyeglasses fitted scientifically. No guess work.—Williams.

Supper and Entertainment.

The Ladies' Social Union of West Quincy is to be congratulated on the success of it salad supper, social and entertainment in the Methodist church vestry last evening. In spite of the storm very nearly 100 were present.

The entertainment consisted of vocal solo by Miss Doble, with Wendell Lane as accompanist; mandolin solos by Mrs. George Ames of Weymouth, with piano accompaniment by Miss Bertha M. Estes; piano solo by Miss Estes and character sketch, "The Two Misses Ibbetson," with the following cast:

Mrs. Aylward (a young widow) — Miss J. V. L. Doble
Miss Marth Ibbetson } sisters — Miss G. Turner
Miss Jane Ibbetson } sisters — Miss G. Doble
Jenkins, the butler — Mr. Merton Turner

UNHAPPINESS DISPELLED.

Men and Women Unanimous About It

Many women weep and wail and refuse to be comforted because their once magnificent tresses have become thin and faded. Many men incline to profanity because the flies bite through the thin thatch on their craniums. It will be good news to the miserable of both sexes to learn that Newbro's Herpicide has been placed upon the market. This is the new scalp germicide and antiseptic that acts by destroying the germ or microbe that is the underlying cause of all hair destruction. Herpicide is a new preparation, made after a new formula on an entirely new principle. Anyone who has tried it will testify as to its worth. Try it yourself and be convinced. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

TO BE CALLED OFF

Conservative Opinion Regarding Chicago Strike

GOMPERS ON THE GROUND

Mayor's Decision to Call For Troops If Strike Spreads Has Deterrent Effect--"Strike" of Schoolchildren Will Soon End

Chicago, May 17.—Although no facts as yet have transpired to fully warrant the prediction, it is asserted both by members of the Employers' association and by the conservative element in the ranks of the teamsters that the strike will be called off, probably within 48 hours, and certainly by the end of the week.

It is not likely that any definite action looking to an adjustment of the trouble will be taken prior to the meeting of the national officers of the Teamsters' union, which it is expected will be held here today.

Chief among the causes which lead to the prediction of a settlement are the firm stand taken by Mayor Dunne when, in conference with President Shea and officials of the local Teamsters' union, he assured them that any further spread of the strike would certainly make it necessary for him to call for troops, and the arrival of President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, who reached the city last evening.

Although not possessed of executive power in the settlement of the strike, Gompers declared that he had every hope that its end was not far distant. He said he would do all in his power to end the strike and has great hopes of success. Immediately after leaving his train Gompers went into conference with local officials of the Teamsters' union.

After leaving the meeting of the labor leaders, President Gompers met a number of team owners who have stood by the unions for the greater part of the strike, and they informed him that the time had come when they could no longer refuse to deliver and take goods from the boycotted houses without losing all of their business and facing financial ruin.

It is said on good authority that the teamsters will accept any plan of settlement that will enable them to call off the strike gracefully and they will accept any plan that Gompers may propose. It is now said that Gompers will suggest to the teamsters that they allow the team owners to do business with the boycotted houses. It is expected that the teamsters will accept this proposition and in this manner the strike will be called off.

The Employers' association and the express companies have increased their scope of delivery still further, and business is transacted without hindrance. There were a few cases of disorder yesterday, the crowds being dispersed by policemen, who used their clubs vigorously.

At the hearing before Master in Chancery Sherman, where evidence is being taken relative to the federal injunctions issued against the strikers, F. K. Buckminster, superintendent of the private detective agency, cited fully two dozen instances where assaults had been committed on non-union men and the federal injunction violated. He asserted the majority of the rioters were wearing the buttons of the Teamsters' union.

Warrants were sworn out before Judge Mack by Superintendent of Compulsory Education Bodine for the ringleaders of the "strikes" at the public schools and also for the parents of many of the pupils whose children have not returned to school. The school officials decided to put down the school "strikes" if it should be necessary to take several hundred pupils and their parents into the courts.

At a meeting of the board of education held last evening, warrants were sworn out for eight boys who have been leaders in the recent strikes at the schools in sympathy with the strike of the teamsters. The threat of arrest of parents whose children did not attend school had the effect of settling three of the strikes yesterday and a normal attendance of pupils is expected today.

Union Coal Handlers Discharged

Providence, May 17.—All the union coal handlers in the local yards have been notified that their services are no longer wanted. The reason assigned by the coal dealers for the discharge of the men is that, on account of the strike of the engineers, there is no work for the coal handlers to do and that, as the coal handlers had stated they would not work with non-union engineers, it is of no use to keep them in their employ.

Providence Carpenters' Demands

Providence, May 17.—May 21 has been set as the date for a strike of the carpenters in this city against the concerns which do not accede to the demands in a proposition presented by the unions. The demands are for 37½ cents an hour for an eight-hour day, with overtime to be paid at a rate of time and a half and Sundays and holidays at double time.

LIFE DESPAIRED OF

Governor of Russian Province Is Shot Down In Public Garden

Ufa, Russia, May 17.—Major General Sokolovsky, governor general of the province of Ufa, was fired at several times and seriously wounded in the public garden during an entertainment. The assassin disappeared. Sokolovsky's life is despaired of. Vice Governor Bogdanovitch has taken over the administration of the province.

St. Petersburg, May 17.—The shooting of Major General Sokolovsky is the second crime of this nature which has occurred at Ufa within two years, his predecessor, General Bogdanovitch, having been assassinated in the streets of Ufa on May 19, 1903. Sokolovsky, who, as vice governor of Orenburg and later as military governor of the same province, acquired a reputation as a stern and vigorous official, was appointed to restore order in the turbulent government of Ufa and adopted a repressive policy which long ago caused him to be marked for the same fate as Bogdanovitch. Numerous revolutionary societies were broken up by Sokolovsky and manifestations were not permitted under his administration. His last acts were the dispersal of an anti-governmental club and the suppression of the May day demonstrations, with the arrests of many demonstrators.

Wood Suffered "Mental Lapse"

Somerville, N. J., May 17.—The prosecution in the trial of George Wood for the murder of George Williams has rested. Counsel for the defense declared that Wood was insane and that he was possessed of a "familiar," or apparition, whom he knew as Henry Wolff and appeared to be his half-brother. This figment of his disordered mind constantly pursued Wood, rendering his life miserable. Wood, counsel declared, suffered a strange mental lapse from Jan. 30 to Feb. 5, two days after the murder, of which period he retained no recollection.

Dead Body Found In Woods

Warren, R. I., May 17.—The badly decomposed body of a man apparently about 40 years of age was found in the Nayatt woods. Nearly all the clothing had been burned off the body by a fire which raged in the immediate vicinity a short time ago and but for a gold ring which was found on a finger there was no mark of identification. The body was later identified as that of George E. Peck of East Providence, who had been missing since May 2.

Ten Tons of Powder Exploded

Harrisburg, May 17.—The taking of testimony by the coroner's jury in the cause of the disaster on the Pennsylvania railroad last Thursday, in which 22 lives were lost and more than 100 persons were injured, showed that one of the freight cars contained 20,000 pounds of low grade powder, which was exploded from a blaze starting from the wrecked engine and not from concussion.

Rare Work of Art Found

Heidelberg, May 17.—A life-size bust picture by Albrecht Duerer of the Savior crowned with thorns has been found in the house of an obscure resident of Offenburg. The canvas bears Duerer's monogram and the date 1524. Professor Thoma, director of the hall of art at Karlsruhe, is one of those who pronounce the picture to be a genuine Duerer.

Cable Supplants Land Line

Get SCOTT'S Emulsion

When you go to a drug store and ask for Scott's Emulsion you know what you want; the man knows you ought to have it. Don't be surprised, though, if you are offered something else. Wines, cordials, extracts, etc., of cod liver oil are plentiful but don't imagine you are getting cod liver oil when you take them. Every year for thirty years we've been increasing the sales of Scott's Emulsion. Why? Because it has always been better than any substitute for it.

Monopoly of Fruit Traffic

Washington, May 17.—Before the senate committee on interstate commerce, which is investigating railroad rates, President Robbins of the Armour Car Lines company admitted that the company had 20 or 30 exclusive contracts with railroads for fruit transportation business. Wherever these exclusive contracts applied, he admitted, the producers and shippers of fruit had to accept the rates laid down by the Armours. He claimed that his company was a private one and therefore not subject to the interstate commerce laws.

Y., May 17.—The annual council of the Episcopal diocese of western New York, which has convened here, will elect an ecclesiastical court to hear the charges of heresy about to be preferred against Dr. Algernon S. He has refused to withdraw his statements, but says he will not leave the church unless compelled to do so.

The funeral took place today and the interment was at Rockland, Mass.

FRED S. HALL.

Taunton Man Favorable Mention for Lieutenant Governor.

Delegations from all parts of the Commonwealth, from Provincetown to Berkshire county, have waited upon Hon. Frederick S. Hall of Taunton urging him to permit of the use of his name as a candidate for the nomination for Lieutenant Governor on the Republican ticket at the Republican State convention in the fall. It is probable that Councillor Hall will answer publicly the many requests in a few days.

The man whom many of the leading Republicans of the State are desirous of placing in nomination at the head of the ticket with Hon. Curtis Guild, Jr., was born in Norton, February 10, 1861. He attended school in Taunton and was graduated at Harvard in 1882 and at Boston University Law School in 1885.

FREDERICK S. HALL.

Since that time he has won his way to the front in the ranks of his chosen profession. He has had wide legislative experience. He represented his district in the House of Representatives in 1887 and 1888. He served on the Committee on Judiciary, was a member of the Committee on Rules and was Chairman, on the part of the House, on the Committee on Prisons. He was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at which President McKinley was nominated in 1896. In 1893 he was appointed a judge in the First District Court of Bristol and held that office until 1903, when he resigned.

He was elected a member of the Executive Council of the Commonwealth that year, was re-elected last fall and, therefore, is serving at the present time, his second term as Councillor. As a member of the Council, he represents that body on the Committee on Pardons, Harbors and Public Lands, Military and Naval Affairs, Railroads and State House.

While at Harvard he was one of the crack ball players and in the university crew pulled a powerful stroke.

Granite Plant Burned.

The granite cutting plant of Charles Bianchi & Son, the largest in East Barre, Vt., was burned Tuesday morning. The loss of $6,000 is covered by insurance, and it is reported that the plant will be rebuilt. Over $10,000 worth of property was also threatened by the fire, but this was saved. The firm employed about thirty men.

TRAP CROP FOR CORN WORM

California University Professor's Plan to Destroy a Pest.

By means of an ingenious trap crop device Warren T. Clarke, assistant superintendent of agricultural experiment stations of the University of California, expects to solve the corn worm problem, which has for years baffled the most patient work of the farmers of the country and the most skilled study of the entomologists, says a Berkeley (Cal.) dispatch to the San Francisco Chronicle. Clarke, through his wonderfully successful experimentation in connection with the potato worm, the peach worm and the codling moth, has earned a reputation as a brilliant and resourceful investigator, and it is believed he has gone a long way toward getting the correct line of campaign for the destructive corn worm.

The work which is being done this spring is being carried on in the Santa Clara valley, near Milpitas, under the auspices of the California Canneries' association. Clarke is studying different varieties of corn to discover two kinds—one that will attract the greedy worm (when it is in the moth stage) and the other which will be fairly resistant to the encroachments of the pest. Clarke hopes by experiments to find a variety of corn which will lend itself readily to the purpose of his trap crop. This corn he will plant early in the season and allow to grow to maturity, the succulent corn proving an irresistible bait for all the moths in the neighborhood. They will, according to their custom, lay their eggs on the silk, where the worm on hatching will pass into the head of the ear and feed on the grain at its leisure. When all the worms are thus safely corraled the trap crop will be cut down, worms and all, taken out of the field and made into cow feed.

In the meanwhile the real crop has been quietly planted in the rest of the field, the trap crop having been laid out in rows at wide intervals and occupying in all only 4 per cent of the ground intended for corn raising. In its early stages it is no bait for the worms, who will be seeking rather the more attractive but fatal trap crop. Thus when the period of maturity comes around the good crop will be able to flourish and grow untainted ears of corn because the worms are all in the worthless trap crop.

In a hundred acres it would be necessary to set out only four acres of trap crop, the loss for which would hardly be $20, while the gain would be many times that amount.

Search For Pocahontas' Remains.

The recovery of the remains of Princess Pocahontas, otherwise Mrs. John Rolfe, from the place of their original entombment at Gravesend-on-Thames, in England, with the object of bringing them back to America in connection with the tercennial celebration of the discovery and settlement of Virginia, is likely to offer even more difficulties than the search for the body of Paul Jones, successfully accomplished by General Horace Porter, for St. George's church, in which she was entombed when she died of smallpox, in 1617, either at or off Gravesend, was burned in 1727, and, judging by the number of charred and nameless coffins which the late rector, the Rev. Dr. Haslam, discovered when he rebuilt the chancel about forty years ago, the fire penetrated to the two vaults, says the New York Tribune. Moreover, the position of the vaults can now only be guessed at, and they are so much built over, first of all by the re-erected church and then by the new chancel, that it is doubtful whether they could ever be reached, besides which the consent of the church authorities, as well as of the English descendants of "la belle sauvage," including General Baden-Powell, inspector general of cavalry of the English army, would have to be obtained.

Rich Gift For Spiritualism.

The will of the late J. T. Crumbaugh, a rich banker at Leroy, Ill., provides for an endowment of $200,000 for a church for spiritualism in that village, says a special dispatch from Bloomington, Ill., to the Chicago Record-Herald. It also makes provision for a free library for the village, with an endowment of $50,000. The will was recently probated. Mr. Crumbaugh died at the age of eighty-seven, leaving no children. Five brothers and sisters are given $1,000 each, and his wife is left a nominal sum, but the great bulk of the estate, which may aggregate $300,000, will go to spiritualism and to carry on a school in the interest of this belief.

Thousands For a Cane.

Miss Lila Gates of Tyrone, Pa., recently sold to John W. Gates, the millionaire plunger, a cane that was presented to her father by the proprietor of the Bingham House, Philadelphia, sixty years ago, says an Altoona (Pa.) dispatch to the Philadelphia Press. She valued it at $1,000, but permitted the purchaser to fix his own price. He generously sent her a draft for $5,000, which is about the record price for walking sticks. The cane contains a sword of the finest steel, on which is engraved a man's head and face. It was bought as a present for a friend.

A Submarine Sahara.

The discovery of an ocean desert, a vast submarine Sahara, destitute of every vestige of plant or animal life and covering millions of square miles of the bed of the Pacific, is the astonishing news brought back by Professor Alexander Agassiz, recently returned from a six months' cruise in the government deep sea sounding boat Albatross.

Old gloves and stockings, not mended, but clean,
Toys and old veils, any color, blue, black or green,
Look in your garret and closet, fail
To find something there for the Rummage Sale.

Waiters and Tips.

A competent waiter is not a fool by a long shot, and no man is so liberal at any other moment of his life as when he is feeding well. A first class serving man at table can wheedle a quarter or half dollar out of even a stingy blatherskite by some delicate attention, by showing just the least bit of interest in his especial welfare. A German lieutenant in hard lines is waiting in a swell hotel here. His tips amount to $10 a day. He is incognito for the present. University graduates could do quite as well. The principal trouble is that waiting is regarded as too servile, too menial, smacking too much of slavery. But good waiters make valuable friends and earn several times as much money as bank clerks and shop salesmen. And the calling might be dignified.—New York Press.

Why He Was Called "Good Friday."

Alfred Bunn, the celebrated English impresario and operatic librettist of the last century, was not always in an amiable frame of mind, and one day he was seen at a rehearsal holding a wretched "super" by the collar and scolding him savagely. The poor fellow's fright and distress, says F. J. Crowest in his biographical anecdotes of famous musicians, attracted the attention of Malibran, the famous prima donna. The lady crossed over to the manager and said:

"Do you know, I shall call you 'Good Friday.'"

"Why?" he asked.

"Because," replied Malibran, "you are such a hot cross bun."

A Kindly Concession.

She—That's all very well, but what would you do if I should die?

He—Why, the least I could do would be to go to the funeral.—New York World.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

THE PLACE FOR SPORT.

We sing the joy of living,
Of peace and war and sport,
Of taking and of giving
In city, mart and court,
The rapture of the poet
By sages grandly felt,
But only those can know it
In the cyclone belt.

We think we are enjoying
A swell and giddy time,
With words and sweethearts toying
In song and prose and rhyme,
With life a joyous hummer,
But all these feelings melt
When we have spent a summer
In the cyclone belt.

Some men, excitement yearning,
Go chasing after war
In hopes before returning
A bunch of runs to score,
But disappointment hollow
Will certainly be felt
Unless a call they follow
To the cyclone belt.

Royalty Hunting.

Kings and potentates get a good deal of alleged sport out of hunting, but they can never quite experience the thrill of the small boy who is tracking rabbits through the snow with his first squirrel rifle.

To be sure, the king gets more game than the boy because a gang of lackeys are accommodating enough to drive the big game up to where he couldn't miss shooting it unless he were as accomplished a misser as the Russian naval gunners.

It may be more genuine sport than eating stewed prunes or fighting with burglars to shoot off a gun at a tame bear while a husky man stands behind to reload the gun, while another runs up with a club to dispatch the bear if the shot didn't do the work, but for the freeborn American citizen the operation is too much like playing golf to engender anything like genuine unalloyed joy.

Its Vacation.

No more the bivalve soft we chew
In scollop or in festive stew;
The oyster bird has had his day—
There R no R's in May.

Felt She Had To.

"She is one of these old fashioned girls. She believes that the whale swallowed Jonah."

"Of course she does. She has designs on the new minister."

Fatal Defect.

"His new book is doomed to failure."

"Lacking in plot?"

"No, but the hero is not named Jack."

As Early as That.

When George Wash crossed the Delaware
And gave the British quite a scare,
According to the best advice,
He cut a good sized chunk of ice.

Still a Bird.

"When he came to town he was feeling like a bird."

"Yes, and when they took all his money away he went home a blue jay."

Felt It Coming.

"Why does he predict a big corn crop with such assurance?"

"He has just bought a pair of shoes that are two sizes too small."

Provided For.

"Is he saving any money for a rainy day?"

"No; he is an adept at stealing umbrellas."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

A vacation without pay is a good deal like a dinner without salt, only more so.

It is a mighty lucky dog that is born into the world with a pedigree.

A club woman's boy generally gets revenge on his mother by smoking cigarettes.

The man who can look pleasant while paying his wife's millinery bill certainly has a crown and a harp coming to him.

Some men find it hard to shave themselves because they never learned to swear in youth.

Some of the most beautiful theories in the world wouldn't recognize themselves after they had been put into practice.

It is a pity the sunrise couldn't be pulled off a couple of hours later and then more men could see it.

It should cost less to raise a girl than a boy because she does not have to be raised so many inches.

The gold brick man thinks that people should save their money provided they are saving it for him.

GRAND REUNION.

Old Pupils of Coddington to Gather.

Reception to Miss Julia E. Underwood.

For Fifty Years a Teacher at This School.

Tomorrow evening is the date for the reunion of past and present pupils of the Coddington school, with Miss Julia E. Underwood, the beloved teacher for fifty years, as the guest of honor. The reception will be held at the High School hall, from 7.30 to 10, and a general invitation has been extended to all friends of Miss Underwood to attend. Especially all who have been her pupils, including those of today, as well as those of 1895, 1885, 1875, 1865 and 1855, and all intermediate years. Three generations of Quincy boys and girls have been her pupils.

MISS JULIA E. UNDERWOOD.

Among the specially invited guests are George I. Aldrich of Brookline and H. W. Lull of Newport, R. I., former superintendents at Quincy; Charles Francis Adams, formerly of the School Committee; Edwin W. Marsh, who was on the School Committee when Miss Underwood was first employed; Mayor Thompson; former teachers of Quincy, including one of Miss Underwood's teachers, and several who have been associated with her as Coddington teachers. There will also be music.

It was in April, 1855, that Miss Underwood became a teacher in the public schools of Quincy. At first in the Lyceum room on the street floor of the present City Hall, but a few months later, in the same year, was installed in the "new" Coddington building, which is in use today on Coddington street.

In her first class were Marshall P. Wright the present County Commissioner; Hon. Albert A. Brackett of East Milton, who was Senator in this district last year and has held many public offices; Mrs. Elizebeth Hardwick Alden, Mrs. Laura Furnald May of Lynn, and others.

The Coddington school building has been enlarged twice, once by raising one story, and the other time by the location in the school yard of an annex of three rooms, which formerly stood on the Adams Academy ground on Adams street. At present the Coddington building is not a credit to the city, but for many of the 3000 who have attended school there during the fifty years, it has pasant memories.

Miss Underwood was born in Quincy Jan. 9, 1837, being the daughter of the late Beverly and Louisa Underwood. She attended the "old" Coddington school on the site of the present Coddington, and also the Quincy High school the first year it was opened in the old building in 1852.

Miss Underwood is today in the foremost ranks as a public school teacher, because she has made it a life study and kept abreast of the times. Fortunate, indeed, are those who have been enrolled among her pupils.

PINE TREE CLUB.

Entertainment and Dance at Colonial Hall.

The regular meeting of the Quincy Pine Tree club on Wednesday evening was held at Colonial hall, and was attended by upwards of 150. A jolly good time it proved to be.

During the first part of the evening there was on impromptu entertainment. This consisted of delightful readings by Mrs. Isabelle Davis, pleasing songs by Mrs. Blanche Richardson and Mr. Varney and vocal duets of merit by Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Chase. The entertainment was greatly enjoyed.

Mrs. Rhines presided at the piano and after the entertainment there was a good old-fashioned dance, which continued until near the midnight hour.

Light refreshments were served during the entire evening.

Opticians on Outing.

Members of the New England Association of Opticians went to Southbridge on Wednesday to inspect the plant of the American Opticial Company. At a business meeting Eben Hardy of Boston, the retiring president, was elected representative to the annual convention of the American Association to be held at Minneapolis. Albert A. Carter of Boston was elected president and William L. Thomas of Quincy vice president.

The days begin to decrease next month.

VISITING NURSE

Fund Now Pledged for the Work.

Dr. Worcester Tells of Necessity.

Dr. Gordon and Others Also Address Meeting.

Quincy women on Wednesday afternoon at First Church chapel had the pleasure of hearing Dr. Alfred Worcester of Waltham speak of the work of district or visiting nursing. It was one of the most interesting talks given in our city for some time, and of great value to those who are to take up the work here.

Mrs. Joseph C. Morse, president of the Hospital Aid association, presided, and introduced the speakers.

Dr. Worcester said visiting nursing was new yet old, for fifty to a hundred years ago, yes back in Bible times, it was the custom to go to a sick neighbors house and care for them. There was always some motherly woman who could always be called upon in time of illness, or some one to watch through the long hours of the night.

Now in the strenuous life one hardly had time to even know one's neighbor, let alone doing for them. In olden times, when there was no fire department, the whole neighborhood turned out to help in case of fire. After fire departments were established this was unnecessary, but supposing the neighbors had stopped before its establishment.

This was just what had been done regarding the sick neighbor. Was not the neighbor as much account as his house or barn?

Only the wealthy could afford a trained nurse. There was no one to help the middle class and the very poor. Few could afford to pay three dollars per day for a nurse even if they had room to accommodate them in the house.

In many cases all that was needed was a little help each day. This is especially true of the very old and the babies.

If a mother with a family of small children with one of them ill, causing her to lose sleep and get behind in her household duties, could be relieved by a short visit from a trained nurse each day, what a Godsend it would be to her. The nurse could instruct the mother how to simplify things, and to better care for the sick one, or could teach one of the older children how to help. A hospital trained nurse cannot afford to become a visiting nurse, as she has to live and must have an income. It was one of the best works of the present day, hence the well-to-do should assist by providing the salary for the visiting nurse. When the patient could afford to pay, a fee should be asked, but in the case of the poor it would have to be with the nurse as with the doctor, a work of mercy.

When the Puritans went to Holland they had their visiting nurse. In Westphalia the highest example of this work was to be seen, but we need not go abroad to study the work, for already here in New England were good examples, especially at Cambridgeport. The work of nursing was needed in Quincy as much as anywhere else, and he hoped we would start at once.

Dr. Worcester had the closest attention of his audience from beginning to end, his apparent interest in his subject attracted all toward him, and the applause was appreciative and hearty.

Owing to illness Mrs. W. T. Piper of Cambridge was unable to be present and tell of the work in Cambridge.

Dr. Gordon spoke a few words of endorsement and of the help a nurse would be to Quincy doctors.

Informal discussion followed. Mrs. Horace M. Willard, chairman of the philanthropic committee of the Quincy Women's club, told what had been done so far toward establishing visiting nursing in Quincy. All that was needed was money. Most of the necessary six hundred dollars was pledged for the first year. Dr. Brackett contributed one hundred dollars; the Women's Club a hundred by rooms at Brackett house for the nurse; Unity Circle of King's Daughters fifty dollars; Wollaston ladies, fifty dollars; the Home Science association fifty dollars; Mrs. King by entertainment twenty-five dollars; also individual contributions, leaving about forty dollars needed.

Mrs. Bumpus president of the Women's club contributed five dollars and agreed to raise the rest by an entertainment. The meeting came to a very happy close, committees being appointed to see about carrying out the work of establishing a visiting nurse in Quincy.

Tea was served in the parlor to visitors and officers of the Hospital Aid association and Quincy Women's club.

GIRL MISSING

A Pupil of the Coddington School.

Attended School on Tuesday Morning.

Has Not Been Home Since---Probably Went to Boston.

The police were requested Wednesday night to assist Benson Myett and his mother, Mrs. Mary Myett of 38 Baxter street, in locating little 11 year-old Eva Marcotte, known as Eva Myett, who had not been seen since Tuesday noon.

Eva was brought to Quincy from Lawrence six months ago, and has had a good home with the Myetts, and had been adopted by them. On Tuesday when she left for school she was told to call at the cobbler's shop on the corner of Washington and Temple streets to see about getting her shoes fixed.

The little girl attended the Coddington school Tuesday morning, and has not been seen by the Myett family since then.

Inquiry at the cobbler's shop developed the fact that she had called there as directed. She learned the price for repairing the shoes and said that she would call in the afternoon.

Officer Murray, who is on duty at City Square, gives an important clew to the disappearance of the little girl. From his story it would appear that the girl was not taken away by anyone, but went of her own free will.

Officer Murray says that the little girl came up to him about 1 o'clock Tuesday and asked what time the next train left for Boston. To him she said she was going to Boston to meet Benson Myett. The officer gave her the information, and she started toward the depot.

The police department at Lawrence have been asked to see if any trace of her can be found there.

The girl is four feet tall, and weighs about 60 or 70 pounds. She has auburn hair and dark eyes. When last seen she wore a blue dress with white trimmings, a grayish blue coat and black hat.

LAST MEETING.

Monday Evening Club of Atlantic Closes the Season.

The tenth and last meeting of the season of the Atlantic Monday Evening club was held May 15. 152 members were present.

The Rev. C. Hill Crathern of Braintree addressed the club. His subject was: "Browning and his Message," treated in an ethical style and delivered with marked dramatic effect.

A fifteen minute paper was not prepared for this evening, but that time was given to extra music. Miss Waterhouse and Mr. Charles Hall had the musical program in charge.

The soloists of the evening were: Mrs. Rose Thayer Thomas, soprano; Mrs. Carter, contralto; Miss Adelaide Thomas, violin; Mr. Harry Parmelee, baritone. Miss Emilie Gassett accompanied.

The program was a follows:

Duet "Passage Birds Farewell" Hildach
Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Carter
Violin solo, Concerto De Beriot
Solo, "Serenade" Tosti
Mr. Harry Parmelee
Solo, "In the Chimney Corner" Cowen
Mrs. Thomas
Violin solo, "Cavatina" Raff
Miss Thomas
Group of Songs "My Lady Chloe" Clough
"Star Children" Leichter
Mr. Parmelee
Solo, "Good bye" Tosti
Mrs. Thomas

As in other seasons, Miss Adelaide Thomas was given an ovation, which, as an artist, she so richly deserves.

Mrs. Rose Thayer Thomas, who was very warmly received, responded generously to encores showered upon her.

The Monday Evening Club has had a membership this season of two hundred eighty one.

The annual business meeting of the club will be held in the annex of the Memorial Congregational church at eight o'clock, Monday evening, May 22, and members who are interested in the continued success of the club are urged to be present.

Houses are in great demand in Wollaston, and the real estate agents are rushing.

MARX IS EXECUTED

Aged Farmer Committed a Most Horrible Crime

Hartford, May 18.—Gershon Marx, the 73-year-old farmer of Colchester, was executed this morning at the state prison in Wethersfield. There was no remonstrance by the prisoner and no hitch in any of the arrangements by the prison officials. Marx would make no mention of the crime of which he was convicted. His body was taken in charge by Jewish undertakers and was buried this morning.

The murder for which Marx was condemned to death was one of the most horrible that has been committed in this state for years and the only reason for it was the fact that Marx did not want to pay Rodecki a small sum of money agreed upon when Rodecki went to work for him.

Rodecki, who was a Russian, took work on Marx's farm for six months and it was a few days before the expiration of that period that he disappeared. When Marx was asked concerning his farm hand his reply was that he had paid him $53 and that he had gone away.

One day in the latter part of April, last year, another farm hand discovered the body of Rodecki in an abandoned cellar on Marx's farm. The body was chopped in many pieces; the head, which was cut off, was crushed in, and the several portions of the body were thrown together in a cloth bag, which was half buried under a pile of dirt and stones. Marx had killed Rodecki as he lay asleep in the former's house.

Immediately after the finding of the body Marx was missing, but was located after a long search in New York, where it was said he was about to sail for Europe. He had shaved his beard, so that his appearance was greatly altered. After his capture and return to New London county the officers, in searching about the Marx farm, came upon another body similarly dismembered and buried in an out-of-the-way place. The skull of this body was also crushed in. There was a theory that this was the body of another man who had formerly worked for Marx, Paul Parker, and who disappeared as suddenly as Rodecki did. Marx said that Parker had been paid off and gone to Pennsylvania to work in the coal mines.

Governor Fixes Wage Margin

Boston, May 18.—Governor Douglas has decided that the Fall River textile workers are not entitled to a dividend of 5 percent on the wages earned by them from the time of the strike settlement in January to April 1. He finds that it will require a margin of 74.38 between the price of 75 yards of cloth and eight pounds of cotton to pay a 5 percent dividend on the wages earned during the time specified. This decision allows the mills 6 percent for annual depreciation. The actual margin between the cost of cotton and operation is said to be less than 60 percent. The manufacturers claimed that 75 percent was necessary to allow the 5 percent on wages.

Shortage of Over $300,000

Boston, May 18.—James D. Colt, who was appointed receiver of the effects of Charles F. Berry, the missing trustee, has filed in the supreme court a report of his findings. Colt, in brief, states that large shortages have been found in practically all of the 16 estates of which Berry was the trustee. Colt says that, owing to the meagre character of the information in his possession, it is impossible for him to state accurately the amount due from Berry to the various estates and persons by reason of his misappropriations, but he believes it will exceed $300,000.

GREAT OCEAN RACE

It Is Begun Under Unfavorable Weather Conditions

YANKEE LEADS THE WAY

Strung Out In Line Six Miles Long When Last Seen--Part of Fleet Got Away Promptly, but Others Were Delayed

New York, May 18.—A superb fleet of ocean-going sailing yachts swept across a starting line at Sandy Hook lightship yesterday afternoon and, with the queenly American schooner Atlantic leading the way, headed out into the broad Atlantic ocean on a race of 3000 miles to the English coast for a $5000 cup offered by Emperor William.

When last seen as they vanished into the mist they were strung out in a line six miles long, heading southeastward and pointing as nearly as possible to a wind that was dead ahead. A quarter of a mile astern of the Atlantic was the 90-foot American yawl Ailsa, which was having a hot brush with the German schooner Hamburg, while all three of the leaders were slowly dropping the Philadelphia schooner Hildegarde. Next was the Endymion, holder of the trans-Atlantic yachting record. Almost a mile astern of the swift Atlantic and more than a half-mile astern of the Endymion were the Thistle and Fleur de Lys. Strung out behind were the American barque Apache, the British topsail schooner Sunbeam, and five miles astern of the leader was the American three-masted schooner Utowania. Bringing up the rear was the British clipper ship Valhalla. The two latter had been delayed by a bad start.

In such weather as prevailed it was clear that the race lay between the Atlantic, Ailsa and Hamburg, with the odds largely in favor of the Atlantic.

Leaden skies, low hanging, mist laden clouds and a moderate east wind were the unfavorable conditions under which the great ocean race was started and handicapped the three big square-rigged vessels at the very start; for at beating to windward in a light air their spreading courses and bulging topsails were not to be compared with the hard fitting fore and aft canvas of the trim schooners.

Weather prophets declared it not unlikely that the racers were in for a day or two of moderate head winds. If the forecast be fulfilled nothing but half a gale of wind from astern will save the big Valhalla from defeat.

Despite the lowering weather conditions, the start of the great and heterogenous fleet was an inspiring spectacle. Near the line the small Ailsa was engaged in a jockeying match with the Hildegarde and to avoid being forced across the line prematurely performed some startling maneuvers. Behind them to the north and east the fleet was spread out in fan shape.

Almost at the flash of the starting gun the Ailsa and Hildegarde went across the line with the yawl slightly in the lead and in the windward position. Crowding close behind them came the Atlantic, Endymion, Hamburg, Thistle, Utowana and Valhalla in that order.

All the leaders got away within a minute of the starting gun at 12:15, but the Fleur de Lys crossed at 12:27, Sunbeam at 12:30, Apache at 12:35, Utowana at 12:57 and Valhalla at 1:25. The latter was in irons in tacking at the line and thus badly delayed.

Among the leaders the yawl Ailsa, as expected in light winds, clung to the windward position and quickly drew away from the Hildegarde. The long, lean three-master Atlantic, with Captain Barr at the helm, went after and slipped by them both and at her stern clung the German Hamburg, which in the first five miles had almost overhauled the Ailsa and had dropped the Endymion astern of her. It was evident that the German was hot after the flying leader more than a quarter of a mile ahead and that Captain Barr was wasting not a moment in claiming nor any effort to hold the position in which he has so often placed the American craft—in the lead. It was to be a royal battle between the Yankee by adoption, and the Teuton, with Captain Lemuel Miller of the Ailsa and the Gloucester fishing skipper, Captain Bohlin of the Fleur de Lys, each eager for the lead and wise in ways to get it.

Strung out behind was the long fleet in the order named above. They faded into the dim horizon and were gone.

Wireless Outfit Disarranged

Newport, R. I., May 18.—Repeated attempts made early today to establish wireless communication between the government station and the Nantucket lightship failed. It is believed, however, that the lightship will be able later in the day to report the passing of the yachts which started yesterday in the ocean race.

Automobile Party Ditched

Brookfield, Mass., May 18.—An automobile in which were five people ran into a ditch here and turned bottom up. The owner of the machine was Philip Corbin of New Britain, Conn. In the machine with Corbin were his wife, his grand-daughter, Miss Laura Timleck and a chauffeur. The granddaughter jumped and was not hurt, but the others were badly bruised and shaken up.

TWO PAPERS GONE

They Bear Upon Rumors Relative to Loomis

HAD BEEN GIVEN TO HAY

Bowen Failed to Find Them In Looking Over State Department Documents, But Has Copies of Them, Which Loomis Will Accept as Substitutes

Washington, May 18.—Developments in the Loomis-Bowen inquiry are few, but interesting. As stated officially to the press they are about as follows:

First, Minister Bowen called upon Secretary Taft yesterday and told him that upon looking over the papers submitted to him by the secretary, as embodying the state department's correspondence on the subject of the rumors current in Caracas relative to Loomis, he had found that at least two papers were lacking of which he was cognizant.

The first of these was a letter from President Castro to Loomis, then minister to Venezuela, introducing a negotiator in behalf of that country, concerning an arrangement with an American syndicate. The second was an assignment of a claim against Venezuela by Jaurett to Loomis.

Secretary Taft sent immediately to the state department and a thorough search failed to discover either of these papers. Mr. Loomis explained that four days before he left Washington for his California trip and before Secretary Hay's departure for Europe, the secretary called his attention to a mass of papers, among which were some transmitted to him (Hay) by Bowen at Caracas, which had been found by the minister in the legation at Caracas, in order that Loomis might select from them such papers as he might regard as his own. These papers had been on the secretary's desk for a long time. Among them was a certificate of stock, which Loomis said belonged to him and which Bowen does not regard as bearing upon this case.

Secretary Taft and Loomis, upon hearing through Bowen that he had copies of the missing papers, agreed to waive all technicalities and receive Bowen's copies as sufficient for the purposes of the investigation. So Bowen, later in the afternoon, submitted these copies to Taft, who in turn supplied copies of them to Loomis for consideration and comment.

Having supplied Taft with the papers found in the legation at Caracas concerning Loomis, Bowen's position is that he has discharged his duty as he sees it and will rest his case, taking the ground that it is now for the government at Washington to determine whether an inquiry is warranted.

Sealers Seized by Uruguayans

Halifax, May 18.—The Nova Scotia sealing schooner Agnes G. Donahoe, with her outfit and cargo of 400 sealskins, has been confiscated by the Uruguayan government and her commander and crew have been cast into prison to serve terms of from six months to three years for alleged violations of the laws of that country. This information reached the owners of the vessel in this city last evening. It is likely that the British government will institute an investigation.

Congressional Appropriations

Washington, May 18.—The volume of appropriations required to be compiled after each session of congress has been completed for the third session of the Fifty-Eighth congress and the summary of the appropriations show a grand total of $820,184,635. In addition to the specific appropriations made, contracts are authorized to be entered into for public works, requiring future appropriations by congress aggregating $26,770,058.

Big Liner Stuck Fast

New York, May 18.—The big Cunard liner Caronia is still fast on Flynn Knoll, off Sandy Hook, where she grounded while making her way out to sea in the thick weather on Tuesday afternoon. From where the vessel lies the glow of the city's lights can be seen, but the passengers are effectually cut off from shore. If the steamer does not float today a portion of the cargo in the forward holds will be lightered.

Rubber Companies to Combine

Montreal, May 18.—The plant of the defunct Boston Rubber company at St. Jerome, Que., has been purchased by the Commercial Rubber company of Canada. The directors of the new company include the presidents of the four leading Canadian rubber concerns and it is believed that an amalgamation of the four big companies will follow.

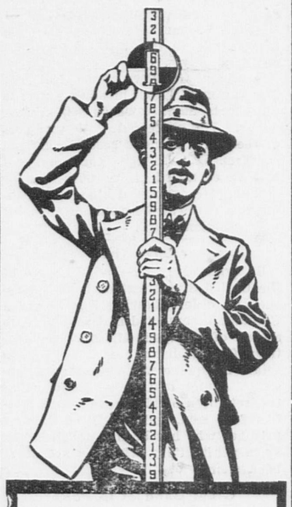

Knocked Out by Baseball

Hartford, May 18.—Stewart M. Dravo, a member of the class of 1907, Trinity college, and who is the catcher on the baseball team, is in the Hartford hospital suffering from a severe concussion of the brain received in a game with Syracuse university. Dravo was batting and a foul tip from his own bat struck him on the head.

Bullet Missed Intended Victim

GOT HIS HAIR BACK.
Was Perfectly Bald When He Started to Use Newbro's Herpicide.
Frederick Manuell, Maryland block, Butte, Montana, bought a bottle of Newbro's Herpicide, April 6, '99, and began to use it for entire baldness. The hair follicles in his scalp were not dead and in 20 days he had hair all over his head. On July 2 he writes, "and today my hair is as thick and luxuriant as any one could wish." Newbro's Herpicide works on an old principle and with a new discovery—destroy the cause and you remove the effect. Herpicide destroys the germ that causes dandruff, falling hair, and finally baldness, so that with the cause gone the effect cannot remain. Stops falling hair at once and a new growth starts. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

RUSSIANS ON THE MOVE

News of Skirmishes Between Scouts of Hostile Fleets About Due--Indications of Another Great Fight In Manchuria

St. Petersburg, May 18.—With a suspicious stoppage of dispatches from Manchuria and a strong possibility that Vice Admiral Rojestvensky has cut his last communications with home and set forth on the final stage of his journey to his goal, either Togo or Vladivostok, keen interest is manifested in naval and military circles here in the two-fold field of war.

Though the admiralty, which has been completely silent since the advent of Rojestvensky in the China sea, publishes no dispatches, the conviction is growing that the united squadrons departed from the Annam coast immediately after their juncture, and naval officials are anxiously expecting news of the first skirmishes between scouts of the hostile fleets.

Captain Clado confirms the press statement that the vessels of both squadrons are equipped with apparatus for cleaning their bottoms at sea. He says it was entirely possible for Vice Admiral Nebogatoff to put the last finishing touches to the vessels of his division during the mysterious interval when they were lost to sight before passing the Straits of Malacca.

Neither the admiralty nor individual officers have any information regarding the rumored request of Rojestvensky to be relieved because of broken health and all who were questioned regarding the report expressed doubts of its accuracy. It was pointed out that it would be entirely impracticable for the fleet to delay in the Chinese sea until the arrival of Vice Admiral Birileff, and it was declared that Rojestvensky will keep his flag flying as long as he is not utterly incapacitated for command, which then would naturally devolve on Vice Admiral Voelkersam, who is known as an officer with a Teutonic thoroughness and attention to the fine details of his profession. He is also a notable strategist and theoretician.

The press was informed late last night that Vice Admiral Birileff will be sent to Vladivostok, which possibly accounts for the origin of the rumor of Rojestvensky's request to be relieved of his command.

On the military side the indications are that events are rapidly shaping for the preliminary stage of another great battle. The Russian army has been refitted and is ready for action and it is asserted that General Linevitch is not the man to waste days in inaction.

A further mobilization of cavalry in one or two districts has been ordered, but no large draft is required, as reinforcements for the cavalry arm are at hand in the recently embodied Cossacks, whose departure for Manchuria was postponed in anticipation of May day troubles, the most of whom can now resume the trip eastward. A small but important detachment will leave St. Petersburg today to join General Linevitch's army.

To Observe Operations

Washington, May 18.—Orders have been issued from the war department for Brigadier General Barry, Colonel Hoff and Captain Cloman to proceed to St. Petersburg, preliminary to their joining the Russian army in Manchuria as military attaches to observe the operations of the troops. The Russian government has formally assented to this detail.

Plague Invades Harbin

London, May 18.—According to the correspondent at Tokio of The Daily Telegraph, a severe epidemic of the plague has broken out at Harbin and the deaths resulting therefrom average 300 daily.

Rooster Attacked a Child

Indianapolis, May 18.—A ferocious rooster attacked 2-year-old Olive Nimal at her home here and seriously injured her before it was driven away. The child instinctively placed its hands across its eyes and saved them. The rooster finally knocked her down and pecked her face until it was covered with blood. It was necessary to summon a physician to care for the wounds.

Young Blanchard Taken Home

Rutland, Vt., May 18.—A brother of Frank Blanchard, 18 years old, who confessed to placing ties across the tracks of the Rutland railroad at Brandon, came here and deposited with the court authorities the $500 required for the release of his brother on bail. Young Blanchard was taken to his home at Sanford, Me.

Smallpox Aboard Steamer

Montreal, May 18.—Steamer Kensington, Liverpool for Montreal, is detained at quarantine on account of smallpox among the passengers. The passengers booked on the Kensington for return trip have been transferred to the steamer Vancouver, sailing from Portland, Me.

But Three Negative Votes

Waterville, Me., May 18.—At a third meeting of citizens it was voted, 754 to 3, to rescind the action of the two former meetings whereby the taxes of the Lockwood company, cotton cloth manufacturers, were reduced from $25,000 to $15,000.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

The sunshine at noon was very welcome after the series of cloudy days.

A fine tennis court is being laid out on Willow street, to be used by a Neighborhood Club.

The residents, of Walker street, regret to learn that Charles Hall and wife will move to their new home on Atlantic street as soon as it is completed.

Mr. Rollins' class has invited the older members of the Wollaston Unitarian Sunday school to a Salamagundi party to be held in the vestry tomorrow evening.

Rev. W. B. Barr united in marriage on Wednesday evening at his house, Mr. Irwin E. Hunter of Independence avenue and Miss Edna Mabel Auld of Halifax, N. S. They will make their home in Quincy for the present.

Do not forget to send your contribution to the Day Nursery association rummage sale tomorrow morning. Collect up your old clothing, furniture, magazines, crockery, household goods, etc., for they will be useful to some one if not to you, and aid a most worthy cause.

The fancy dance, which was to be given Wednesday evening in Atlantic Music hall by the pupils of Miss Lena Crane of Ashmont, had to be postponed on account of the death of Mrs. Ireland, mother of the pianist, Miss Florence Ireland. The date of this exhibition is as yet undecided.

The wet weather has kept the boys from playing ball in Holbrook's field this week, and in the interim the trodden grass has sprung up like Jack's beanstalk, thick and green. But a day of sunshine will bring the restless feet back to their playground and it will be all day with the shoots bearing the color of the Emerald Isle.

Harvard Commencement.

Much interest attaches to the commencement exercises at Harvard College this year, on account of the presence of President Roosevelt. The programme of speakers has just been issued. It is headed by the name of Mr. Royal Archibald Moore, who will deliver the Salutatory oration in Latin, always considered an exceptional honor. Mr. Moore was formerly a resident of Quincy, graduating in 1901 from Adams Academy, where he received the Adams gold medal in 1900. He was invariably maintained a very high standard of scholarship throughout his school and college course.

COSTLY ERRORS.

Responsible for Defeat of Adams Academy by Hingham High.

Adams was defeated on Wednesday at Hingham by the score of 10 to 8. Studley was touched up for 14 hits while Finn gave his opponents only 8, but the latter gave six passes to first, and 4 very costly errors by Adams helped Hingham. In the fourth inning, Kay muffed an easy fly and let two men score, and latter both Egan and Colman let runs be scored by fumbling.

School League.

On Wednesday the Massachusetts Field school defeated the Cranch school 6 to 1. The score by innings:

M. F. S.,	0	0	3	2	0	1	—6

The game played between the Adams and the Willard schools was a good one. They played six innings. The score was 7 to 5 in favor of Adams. At the last of the sixth inning the Adams were at the bat, the score being 5 to 5, with only one man out. When the Adams got in the seventh run there was still only one man out.

The Gridley Bryant school led the Coddingtons 8 to 6 when playing was stopped on Wednesday at Bigelows field. The Coddingtons claim that only two of their men were retired in the last inning, so that really the game was unfinished.

The John Hancock school defeated the Wollastons in a fast game on Wednesday. Tab and Tresno played a good game for Wollastons, while the catcher was the star of the John Hancock team.

The postponed game of May 6 of the Cranch and Wollaston schools has been played, and Cranch won 13 to 10.

The score by innings:

AT A MAORI FEAST.

An Odd Welcome and a Slip on the Part of the Cook.

Telling of his experience at a Maori feast, the New Zealand correspondent of London Public Opinion says:

The Maori girls did a pretty welcoming dance, singing and dancing slowly backward all the way till we got to the inclosure around the meeting house (whare purie), where the speeches were to be made. Then the older people cut amazing capers, shouted themselves hoarse and made the most repulsive faces you ever saw by way of welcome to their chief. Chairs were put for us on the veranda of the whare, which was prettily decorated with beautiful palms.

After some time of this and the presentation of mats, etc., we were invited into the whare to lunch. It was laid most correctly on big tables with cloths, but the menu consisted of roast duck, chicken, beef and sucking pig and, so it is said, potatoes, peas and knemaros (sweet potatoes), cooked in a Maori oven. I chose cold duck, with peas and potatoes. The duck arrived quickly, but the Maori girl who brought it said, with broad smiles, "The potatoes aren't cooked yet!" So my lunch consisted of duck, bread and two oranges. Just as I finished the potatoes arrived in pretty plaited green flax baskets.

OUR IGNORANCE.

That It Is Very Real the Things We Don't Know Prove.

After all are we not still ignorant of much which we feel we ought to understand? Apart from the great laws of electricity, light and heat, about which we know something, but certainly not all, are we not almost hopelessly ignorant of some of the laws which govern the lives of animals? Do we know, for instance, what is the law which makes it possible for a bee carried five or six miles from her home, blind in a dark box, to find her way back to the hive? What is the sense exercised by the antennae of the virgin moth which, set out in a muslin box on a lawn, attracts suitors from woodlands scattered away in all the country round? What is the attraction felt or choice decided upon by the tendril of the climbing plant which turns aside from the smooth wall to catch at and wrap round the nail or the ledge or the projection which is to help it upward? All that is unknown, hardly even guessed at, and if there is so great an ignorance of what can be seen, is it logically to be argued that there is not a greater ignorance of what is unseen? One thing at least is certain—the reality of that ignorance.—London Spectator.

THE CENTO.

What the Word Strictly Means and What It Means In Poetry.

A cento is strictly a coat made of patches. In poetry it is a piece wholly composed of verses or passages taken from different authors and so placed together as to form a new poem with a fresh meaning of its own.

According to the rules laid down by Ausonius, author of the famous "Nuptial Cento," the pieces may be taken from one poet or from several. The Empress Eudoxia wrote a life of Christ in centos taken from Homer, and Alexander Ross used Virgil for the same purpose.

The following are modern instances:

I only knew she came and went (Lowell)
Like troutlets in a pool (Hood).
She was a phantom of delight (Wordsworth),
And I was like a fool (Eastman).

"One kiss, dear maid," I said and sighed (Coleridge),
"Out of those lips unshorn" (Longfellow).
She shook her ringlets round her head (Stoddard)
And laughed in merry scorn (Tennyson).

The torpedo boat destroyer Macdonough has been assigned this week to the coast squadron.

STRIKE NEAR AN END

Gompers Active In Efforts to Restore Peace at Chicago

Chicago, May 18.—It is highly probable that the next 24 hours will see the end of the teamsters' strike in Chicago. A meeting will be held today between the teamsters' joint council and a committee representing the Team Owners' association. It will then be agreed, it is said, by the team owners and the teamsters' joint council that the demand of the team owners to make deliveries to boycotted houses with union drivers be submitted to arbitration.

Pending the decision of this board of arbitration the strike is to be called off and such members of the Teamsters' union as are able to obtain their old positions will return to work. This will end the strike with the exception of the strike against Montgomery Ward & Co. and it is expected that the trouble in this direction will die out gradually.

(President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor has been active in all efforts made towards settling the strike. He conferred with members of the Team Owners' association, held conferences with the teamsters, and had an extended talk with Mayor Dunne. He expressed himself as confident that the strike would be adjusted within a short time.

Prisoner Saves His Pigtail

St. Louis, May 18.—Judge Rogers of the United States district court has issued an order allowing Ng Jung, a Chinaman, convicted and sentenced to a term of 90 days in Missouri penitentiary for passing a raised $10 bill, to retain his queue while serving his sentence. Jung told Judge Rogers that the retention of his queue was a matter of religion, and he will be the first prisoner who has been confined in the state penitentiary who has not first been shorn.

Great Banquet to Porter

Paris, May 18.—General Porter, the retiring American ambassador, was given a notable farewell banquet last night, which for sumptuousness of appointments and the distinguished character of the guests present has not been exceeded by anything of the kind held in recent years in Paris. Practically the entire diplomatic corps was represented, besides others representing the official, social and artistic life of the French capital.

A Search For Smugglers

Boston, May 18.—The custom officials in this city express the opinion that an organized gang of smugglers, with headquarters in Liverpool, are operating at this port and an effort is being made to apprehend the members of the gang who are in this country. An investigation has shown that the gold leaf recently smuggled was originally shipped from Holland, from which place it was shipped to Liverpool.

Bulldogs Contrary to Ideals

Syracuse, N. Y., May 18.—Chancellor Day of Syracuse university has ordered the fraternities to get rid of all bulldogs at their houses at once, and threatens to expel any student seen on the street with a bulldog. The killing of a dog by a bulldog was the cause of the order. The chancellor declares that the bulldog is not typical of the ideals of students.

Nan Patterson Displeases Counsel

New York, May 18.—Abraham Levy, who defended Nan Patterson during her three trials for the murder of Caesar Young, announces that he has withdrawn from the case, finally and absolutely. Mr. Levy said that he understood Miss Patterson intended to accept an offer from a theatrical manager and added that he strongly disapproved of such an action.

Mikado's Present to President

Allentown, Pa., May 18.—President Roosevelt will be invited to come to Allentown during the present session of the Reformed church general synod, to receive the sword that Rev. Dr. D. B. Schneder, president of the North college of Japan, will present to him on behalf of the Emperor of Japan.

Pelican Far From Home

Sandwich, Mass., May 18.—A strange sight was witnessed when a large pelican was found on the beach here. It measures 8 feet from tip to tip of its strong wings, its bill was over 18 inches long, and the pouch underneath would hold two or three gallons. Whether it followed some other birds away from its far-away home, or whether it was blown toward these shores in a hurricane, none can tell. It will be mounted and placed on exhibition.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Taffeta Jackets Are Worn With Checked Woolen Skirts.

The days are here when the spring suit is to be donned, and the new models are certainly smart and becoming. Very stunning are checked voile skirts worn with short, jaunty little jackets of taffeta tucked in the prettiest kind of fashion.

Pongee in natural color and the blue that comes in such a good shade in this material will be used for shirt waist suits and stunning loose coats to wear over fluffy summer dresses.

Burlingham is another material which lends itself beautifully to the needs of the tailor walking costume. It looks like silk hopsacking and is very serviceable and attractive.

Mohair is the most satisfactory fabric for hard wear and in its present supple weave adapts itself perfectly to the demands of fashion.

Panama cloth, the plain being considered smarter, makes an ideal coat and skirt gown, the skirt plaited and the coat a trim little bloused affair tucked into a high girdle of silk or velvet.

The spring costume illustrated is of mustard cloth. The skirt is trimmed with two rows of brown silk fiber braid two inches wide. Above the bands is a design done in narrow braid in geometrical figures and filled in with rows of bronze buttons. The blouse is draped in plaits about the figure and trimmed with braid. The smart little inner vest is of Irish lace fastened with two lines of tiny buttons. Braid also trims the shoulders and full sleeves.

CHURCH USHERS.

Those In Fashionable New York Must Be Tall Men.

"In the selection of church ushers luck all runs with the tall men," said a young man who was politely turned down by the board of trustees of a fashionable church. "New York is a city of tall men when it comes to showoff jobs. There are many distinct advantages to an ambitious man in serving as usher in a popular church. I have been 'sub' in my congregation for two years in hope of getting a permanent appointment. I have remained in town during the fine spring and autumn Sundays while other fellows went 'outing.' I have been content to take a back seat on important church occasions. Now I am through.

"One of our ushers resigned last month, and it seemed as though my chance had come at last. My name went in. A fellow who has been in the church less than four months got the job. He does not dress any more carefully than I do, and I have more friends in the congregation than he has. But it devolves upon four ushers to march down the aisle after the collection and place the plates at the foot of the pulpit. This is quite an imposing part of the service. The ushers step as steadily as West Point cadets. Nowhere can a well fitting coat be shown off to better advantage. The ushers in our church are six footers. I measure less than five feet. It was suggested that I would look incongruous jogging down the aisle with the others. That's all."—New York Press.

THE HUMAN NOSE.

Facts and Comments About This Most Characteristic Feature.

A nose which in any way suggests our ape-like ancestors, whether snub, flattened or abnormally small, is deemed ugly. Generally speaking, the long nose belongs to the people of Europe, whereas the negroes and Mongolians have short noses. With the Eskimo the nose is said to be in many cases so flat that a ruler might be placed so as to rest upon both cheeks without touching it. In the man the muscles of the nose have little flexibility except about the nostrils, which visibly dilate and contract under the influence of passion.

Mantegazza has remarked that among civilized people the nose is nearly always deflected toward the right, which he attributes to the custom of wiping the nose with the right hand. Leonardo da Vinci discovered that there were over ten different varieties of nose seen in profile and eleven when looked at in front. Charles Blanc considered the nose the most characteristic feature of the face and recommended ladies to regulate the style of their dress with reference to its shape, and Lavater went so far as to assert that a beautiful nose was worth more than a kingdom; that it is never associated with an ugly face.—International Quarterly.

A Thoughtful Act.

The fiction of the friend who is coming to occupy the seat in the railway train that one has really secured as an extra seat for oneself sometimes works and sometimes doesn't. A passenger, hurrying along the platform just before the train started, flung himself upon a seat that was already occupied with a Gladstone bag. "That seat is taken," said a morose old gentleman. "My friend has kept it with his bag." "All right," said the wily passenger affably. "I'll occupy it till he comes." Of course the friend never came, and just as the train was moving out of the station the wily passenger seized the bag and threw it out of the window. "What are doing, sir?" shouted the old gentleman furiously. "Anything the matter?" inquired the other. "You don't want your poor friend to lose his bag, do you?"—London Chronicle.

What Is an Ide?

"What is an ide?" It is a natural pitfall for modern generations. Even Bulwer Lytton allowed one of his Roman characters to say, "It stands fixed for the ninth ide of August," although he must have known that "ides" is a plural without a singular. Why the Romans called the 15th of March, May, July, October and the 13th of every other month the ides they do not seem to have known for certain themselves. Some thought it meant the halfway day of the month, from an Etruscan word meaning "to divide," but modern philology, digging into Sanskrit, has suggested that it means the bright time of the month, full moon.—London Notes and Queries.

Accuracy of Marksmanship.

Ability to shoot straight is to some extent a natural gift, and it is useless trying to make a captain of a gun of a man who does not possess this faculty. He may be a good enough man in other ways, but unless he has "a straight eye" he will never become much of a marksman. The admiralty recognizes this and has ceased trying to make crack shots of men whose talents do not lie in that direction.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Good Cook.

"Have you a good cook?" asked Mrs. Bond Hill.

"Yes, she's good enough," replied Mrs. Chester Park. "She attends church three times a week and all that, but her cooking is something fierce."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

A Fortune Hunter.

CITY NEEDS MONEY

Philadelphia Officials Vote To Lease Gas Works

GOES FOR 75-YEAR TERM

Gaeat Uproar Follows Decision to Part With Gas Works For Sum of $25,000,000--Mayor Expected to Veto the Bill

Philadelphia, May 19.—Amid scenes of disorder unprecedented in the annals of Philadelphia's legislative body, the city councils last night voted to lease the city's gas works to the United Gas Improvement company for a term of 75 years for the total sum of $25,000,000, the money to be paid in various amounts before the end of 1907. Council chambers and committee rooms were crowded with excited citizens protesting against the lease from 1 p. m. until after 8 p. m., when the select council passed the bill and sent it to the mayor.

The climax was reached when the vote in the common council was announced after three hours of debate. The moment President McCurdy of the common council announced the vote a great uproar was started in the gallery, which was crowded to the doors. From all over the gallery came hisses and cries of "thieves."

The outburst was somewhat startling to the presiding officer, who made a vain effort to quell it. Finally he sent for a squad of police to clear the gallery, which started the disorder anew. The crowd continued to hiss and call the councilmen thieves and other names until the police arrived and started to clear the gallery. As the people moved out they sang uncomplimentary songs. In clearing the gallery there were several clashes between the police and some of the spectators, but no one was hurt.

All through the session of the common council there was disorder. In the select council there were so many policemen on duty that no one dared to interrupt the proceedings. There was neither a cheer nor a hiss when the bill passed that body.

Mayor Weaver has announced himself as unalterably opposed to the lease and in favor of a postponement of the whole question until 1907, when the first 10 years of the present 30-year lease to the United Gas Improvement company will expire. At that time the city has the right to take back the works on payment to the gas company of the amount of money expended in improvements. Mayor Weaver is expected to veto the bill, and in that event both chambers will probably pass it over his veto.

The vote in the common council was 74 to 9 and in the select council 37 to 4. There is only one Democrat in each body and each voted against the lease. There is some talk among citizens who fought the lease to take the matter into the courts.

Consideration of the gas lease yesterday began when the finance committee met and received a report which stated that the city was in immediate need of $49,000,000 and that the present borrowing capacity of the municipality was only $15,000,000. In view of these facts., the report stated, the best the city could do would be to lease the gas works for a long term of years, the money to be paid in advance, and that the offer of the United Gas Improvement company was the best proposition in hand.

Samuel Crothers, who fought the bill in the select chamber, shook his fist in the faces of the leaders and said it was "the blackest crime ever perpetrated by councils of the city of Philadelphia." Those who favored the bill said the city was in urgent need of money and that public sentiment was not against the lease.

The committee of nine appointed recently at a town meeting issued a statement last night to "the citizens of Philadelphia," declaring the action of the councils to be "the most insolent affront ever given to the people of any great American city." The committee calls upon the people to rally to defeat the measure when it comes up for consideration "over the mayor's veto."

An examination into the affair is being made.

Efforts to Raise $2,500,000

Cambridge, Mass., May 19.—In connection with the movement of the alumni of Harvard university to present an endowment gift of $2,500,000 to the college, a circular has been issued by the committee in charge, announcing that $1,800,000 has been raised. The circular urges Harvard graduates to assist in increasing the sum to the desired amount.

A WELCOME

For President Roosevelt Should He Come.

Invitation Should Be Extended.

So Says Druggest Hearn—So Say We All.

Editor of Quincy Daily Ledger:

President Roosevelt comes to Boston on the 28th of June, to attend the exercises at Harvard College. What a grand opportunity for the citizens of Quincy to honor themselves by extending an invitation to him to include our city, full of historical associations, in his itinerary.

The birthplaces, as well as the last resting place of two of his predecessors in the Presidential chair, it seems as though, if a possible thing he might extend his trip so as to include a visit to our city.

And if he should so honor us, I feel satisfied that the Citizens of Quincy would give him a welcome he would not soon forget.

Though his visit were but a short one it might be made the occasion of a visit to the Church, to the Presidents' houses, and also a welcome on the part of the school children, with an address by the President. But details could easily be arranged if we can but obtain his consent to honor us with his presence. Chas. C. Hearn.

To Poison the Moths.

Under the auspices of the Trustees the Massachusetts Society for Promoting Agriculture an attempt will be made on Monday, May 22, to demonstrate the possibility of destroying the caterpillars of the gypsy and brown-tail moths by the use of arsenical poisons. It is hoped that in this way these caterpillars can be killed more effectively and cheaply than by gathering the eggs and nests, and that a solution of the problem of the destruction of these insects, or at least their spread over a larger area, can be reached. The experiment will be under the direction of J. A. Pettigrew, superintendent of the Boston Park System, who will make use of the powerful spraying machine which he has pefected for use in the Boston parks.

Beginning at ten o'clock on Monday, May 22, the spraying operations will be continued through the day and through Tuesday if necessary.

The ground selected for the experiment on the gypsy moths is on Wyoming avenue, about five minutes' walk from Wyoming station on the Boston & Maine Railroad and just outside the boundaries of the Middlesex Fells.

The experiment on the brown-tail moths will be made about a quarter of a mile distant from Wyoming avenue in a piece of oak woods also outside the Fells.

All persons interested in the destruction of these insects are invited to be present on Monday. If it rains on Monday, the experiment will be made on the first fair day.

The second of these most remarkable detective stories ever written deals with the relapse of Raffles into crime after he has made a herculean effort to reform. GOOD AFTERNOON.

Certainly President Roosevelt, during his week's stay in Massachusetts the latter part of June, should visit Quincy, the "City of Presidents." We believe he would consider it an honor, as Quincy is the only city in the United States where two Presidents were born. The birthplaces, preserved respectively by the Daughters of the Revolution and the Historical Society, are objects of great national interest, also the shrine beneath the old First church where both Presidents with their wives repose.

We believe the people will heartily second the suggestions of Mr. Hearn contained in a letter in this issue. Adams chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, have already forestalled the movement, having sent an invitation to Washington several days ago, but an official invitation from the City of Quincy might receive more consideration. Should the City Council at its next meeting request the Mayor to extend an invitation we believe President Roosevelt would be pleased to accept. And Quincy should give him a royal welcome.

The event to be celebrated in Quincy this evening is of greater moment than many realize. When a person has followed one business with one house for thirty or forty years it is an unusual record. Golden wedding anniversaries marking fifty years of married life are not common, and usually are celebrated amid great rejoicing and with congratulations and best wishes.

The event celebrated tonight is not in mercantile life nor in the home life, but Miss Julia E. Underwood has completed fifty years of service as a Quincy teacher, and in one building,—the Coddington. It is a very long service, and we personally know it to have been a very honorable one. She has given all her life since childhood to Quincy; not alone to teaching the boys and girls to read and write and figure, and sing and draw and model, but to be become upright gentlemen and ladies, and many have profited in these directions from her teaching, and have prospered in life because thereof.

It will therefore be an enjoyable occasion for old pupils to meet their former teacher and congratulate her; and for the teacher to see that her efforts of fifty years have been appreciated.

The action of the School Committee of Cambridge last night in pensioning teachers is worthy of consideration in Quincy.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Doubtless God might have governed the world in some other way; but, as he now works, it is impossible for him to give good government to any city in which men and women do not desire and are not prepared to work for it.—Christian Register.

☞Of two things we are confident. There is crying need for a toning up on the part of administrators of "corporations," and for the creation of a sense of honor which will put an end to much of present fraudulent capitalization and to betrayal of fiduciary obligations. Moreover, we are confident that boards of trade, chambers of commerce and formal organizations of all kinds which enroll business have duties at present which they have not been wont to assume of late—namely, outspoken denunciation of certain practices and stern discipline of offenders. Rectification of the tariff, alteration of differentials in rating freight, dredging of harbors, reciprocity of trade with foreign countries—all these are important in their way and time, but the graver issue just now is that of showing to the world that it is possible to play the competitive game under rules of mutual profit and fair play; that responsibility as a corporation director or official does not exempt a man from the same code of honor which would govern him as a private man, and that the public may as formerly invest its savings safely with trustees who will think more of their trust than of personal enrichment. —The Congregationalist.

A BLOW TO BOSTON

An Adverse Decision on Export Differentials

MARGIN ON RAIL FLOUR

It Is Somewhat Reduced At Southern Ports, But Is Offset by Lake to Buffalo and Rail to Boston Shipments

Boston, May 19.—Boston merchants declare that a hard blow to the port has been struck by the interstate commission's decision in Washington yesterday, that the export freight differentials in favor of Baltimore and Philadelphia, against New York and Boston, shall be retained, although slightly diminished.

Boston and New York chambers of commerce asked for the abolition of these differentials, as their foreign trade has suffered great loss.

The commissioners decided that the differential per 100 pounds on flour all rail and lake and rail, should be reduced to 2 cents at Baltimore and 1 cent at Philadelphia below Boston and New York rates. Previously, the differential had been 3 and 2 cents respectively, and only applied to all rail.

While the reduction benefits slightly on all rail, this is offset now, as the new rates apply to flour coming lake to Buffalo and rail to Boston. Hitherto there was a flat rate on this class, but the differential is now applied, and Boston's commerce is felt bound to take another drop.

In general the New York and Boston contention was for the abolition of the differentials system as a matter of principle; and, failing that, for a scientific revision of a system which was determined by conditions as they were 20 years ago, and has been rigid in its application for that period notwithstanding shifting rates and changing traffic conditions.

These differentials apply only to eastbound export business. West-bound imports are subject to no differential, nor are domestic freights.

A paper rate-war having arisen over the attempt of the Pennsylvania railroad to apply the differential to ex-lake grain from Buffalo, the whole subject was referred to the interstate commerce commission for arbitration. Meantime the status quo on ex-lake grain was preserved. The case has been exhaustively tried out, hearings having been given in New York, Philadelphia and Washington, and leading railroad men and eminent attorneys having lent their aid in clearing up a most intricate problem.

Chinamen Want Their Rights

Cleveland, May 19.—That there is a strong combination of practically all the Chinamen in the United States formed to fight for what they consider their legal right of entering and acquiring a residence in the United States is stated by Ben Lee, a well known local Chinaman, who is at the head of the local branch of the organization. He states that the Chinese have received advices from the Chinese minister at Washington that he has received orders from the Chinese government to see that the Chinese in this country protect their rights by organizing.

The Next Seat of War

Washington, May 19.—Richard S. Greener, American commercial agent at Vladivostok, cables that all the foreign commercial agents there have been asked to leave Vladivostok fortress and are given permission to reside in the cities of the maritime provinces. It is assumed here that Vladivostok is expected to become a center of the seat of war very soon.

Strike Settlement Hangs Fire

Chicago, May 19.—Peace in the teamsters' strike is still hanging in the balance, and, although it is generally expected that a settlement will soon be reached, it seems further away than it did 24 hours ago. For the first time in several days riots broke out yesterday and there were numerous fights between non-union men and teamsters.

Caronia Off For Europe

New York, May 19.—Freed from the mud of Flynn's Knoll, off Sandy Hook, where she grounded Tuesday afternoon, the Cunard liner Caronia proceeded to sea last evening, none the worse for the mishap. Not a passenger left the ship and all were well on board when she started on her delayed voyage.

Fatal Fooling of Brothers

Yonkers, N. Y., May 19.—Rowland Jones, aged 11, was shot and instantly killed by his brother William, aged 12. Rowland had playfully discharged the contents of a squirtgun at his brother, when the latter, in a spirit of play, took a loaded revolver from a sideboard and fired it. Rowland fell dead.

LAST STOPPING PLACE

Russian Fleet Will Be Provisioned at Kwangchau Bay

London, May 19.—Now that it seems definitely established that Vice Admiral Rojestvensky has started on his northward journey there is a great revival of interest here in the far eastern campaign.

Kwangchau bay, where provision junks are said to be waiting for the Russian fleet, is the most northward of French possessions on the Chinese sea, and the last port which Rojestvensky can select for his final departure to meet the Japanese. It has a fine anchorage and a sheltered channel where a large fleet may ride in safety.

Reports still circulate in London to the effect that the Russian Pacific fleet's coaling arrangements are extremely inadequate and have been the main cause of its prolonged stay in Indo-Chinese waters, and that the admiral is finding ever-increased difficulty on this score.

Wood Is Unruffled

Somerville, N. J., May 19.—Apparently unmoved by testimony introduced to show that "the little black man" is only a myth invented to save him from the gallows, George H. Wood, charged with the murder of George Williams, sat through two long sessions of his trial yesterday. Even when his wife wept on his shoulder he showed little interest in the proceedings and was not at all affected by the collapse of the wife of the murdered man.

Restrictive Railroad Measure

Madison, Wis., May 19.—The senate last night passed the administrative railroad measure by a unanimous vote. The bill has passed the assembly. It provides for an appointive railway commission of three members with a salary of $5000 a year each, with power to govern and regulate freight and passenger rates, and switching and other charges, to correct abuses and prevent unjust discrimination in railroad rates.

Army Officer In Disgrace

Washington, May 19.—The president has approved the sentence of dismissal of First Lieutenant Osborn, Twenty-Sixth infantry, who has been convicted by court martial of charges of disobedience of orders, absence without leave, conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, embezzlement and conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman.

Bible Leaguers' Opinions

New York, May 19.—Higher criticism of the Bible was condemned as an "insidious disease," the book of Jonah was declared to be historical, rather than a parable, and the claim was made that archaelogy has proved beyond question the historical worth of the book, at the closing session of the American Bible League convention.

A Retaliatory Measure

Ottawa, May 19.—M. Demers, member for St. Johns and Iberville, in the house suggested that the government restore the tolls on the Chambly canal against Americans because the state of New York had excluded Canadian-caught fish. He said the action of New York state was retaliatory and Canada should repay in kind.

Hyde Will Fight to a Finish

New York, May 19.—At a meeting last night at his home, James H. Hyde and his attorneys are reported to have decided to carry on to a finish the fight for the control of the Equitable Life Assurance society. The examination into the company's affairs by the state department of insurance is still in progress.

Specimen of Korean "Justice"

Victoria, B. C., May 19.—Steamer Tremont, from Manila and Oriental ports, reports that the Korean minister of justice executed 37 political offenders on April 25 and sentenced 37 more to death. It is stated that the Japanese authorities will interfere to prevent the wholesale executions.

Bank Bids In Chadwick House

Cleveland, May 19.—At a sale by the trustee in bankruptcy, Nathan Loeser, of the Chadwick homestead here, the highest bid was $35,000, made on behalf of the Savings Deposit Bank and Trust company of Elyria, the holder of a mortgage which, with interest, amounts to about $43,000.

Jefferson Cottage Robbed

Providence, May 19.—Thomas Jefferson has identified several articles recently recovered by local detectives, as having been stolen from the Buzzards Bay (Mass.) cottage of his father, the late Joseph Jefferson, while the family was in Florida this spring.

Favors Tariff Revision

New Orleans, May 19.—Before concluding its annual session here the Interstate Cotton Seed Crushers' association, in which 700 mills are represented, unanimously passed a resolution urging a revision of the present tariff.

Turks and Greeks In Conflict

Salonica, May 19.—Fighting has been going on since Wednesday between Turkish troops and a large Greek band near Pasilika, three hours distant from Salonica. Reinforcements of 300 men and two guns have proceeded thither.

Louisville, May 19.—Eight trainmen were killed and four persons were injured in a head-on collision between freight trains near Echols, Ky.

CITY BREVITIES.

The full moon brought pleasant weather.

How beautiful nature looked this morning!

Charles Weeks has accepted a position with his brother at Spokane, Washington.

Administration was granted at probate court this week on the estate of Mary Ann Crowley, late of Quincy.

Mrs. May Hastings Slade has been engaged as soloist at the Wollaston Congregational church.

The hydrants throughout the city are being numbered. The numbers are painted on the aluminum tops.

Merrymount Games.

The next team which the Merrymounts will meet in baseball will be the Boston Unions, a strong semi-professional team. Manager Flannigan of the Unions has an excellent squad of players and hopes to defeat the Merrymounts by a big score, but the rooters of the latter team expect a close game. The game will be played at the Park on Saturday afternoon at 3.30.

As the Y. M. C. A. have secured the Park field for May 27, Manager Baker will take the team out of town on that day.

Two of the best games of the season will be played May 30, with the Atlantics. Manager Cuniff has a strong team, and it is a great question as to how the games will come out. The morning contest will be at 10 o'clock at Merrymount Park, and the afternoon game at 3 o'clock at the Atlantic field.

RECEIVER BRINGS SUIT

Wants an Accounting in the Haight & Freese Case

Boston, May 19.—More than 200,000 belonging to Haight & Freese company is alleged to be concealed from the receiver, James D. Colt, who has invoked the aid of the federal court to acquire control of the same. Mr. Colt brought a bill in the United States circuit court against William H. Lillis, vice president of the company; the American Loan and Trust company, the Old Colony Trust company, the National Shawmut bank, the State Street exchange, W. Y. Fuller and F. D. Beardsley, asking for an injunction to restrain the defendants, other than Lillis, from paying over or delivering any of the property of Lillis, or standing in the name of Beardsley, the cashier, to any person except the receiver; from permitting any person except the receiver to remove the same, and from allowing the contents of any safe deposit box standing in the name of Lillis individually or in his name in conjunction with that of any other person, from being withdrawn by anyone except the receiver until the further order of the court.

The court issued a summons to show cause why the prayer should not be granted, returnable May 23.

Pension For Worn-Out Teachers

Cambridge, Mass., May 19.—A method of fixing compensation for school teachers who may be considered incapable, on account of age, of performing their duties, was adopted last night by the Cambridge school board. While in effect the plan is a pension, the committee has solved the question by providing for the appointment of such teachers as substitutes or assistants. The compensation will range from $350 to $50 yearly. The direct pensioning of school teachers would have to be authorized by the legislature.

Two $50,000 Attachments

Cambridge, Mass., May 19.—Judge Forbes of the Worcester county probate court has filed two attachments, each for $50,000, against James F. and Charles E. Pollard, executors of the estate of their uncle, Alden Pollard, on the ground that the defendants failed to give an accounting to the court. The amount in both cases are the amounts of the bonds given by both men at the time of their appointment as executors.

Former Partners Must Settle

Boston, May 19.—A verdict for $75,000 in favor of Henry P. Smith against Caleb Chase, Charles D. Sias and Charles E. Sanborn, his former partners in the firm of Chase & Sanborn, was found by a jury before Judge Bishop in his suit to recover $800,000 damages for breach of a partnership contract. He claimed that they forced him out of the firm against his consent. When the separation took place Smith was paid by them $289,219.

IT IS FOR LADIES, TOO.

They Can Stop Their Hair Falling Out With Herpicide.

Ladies who have thin hair and whose hair is falling out, can prevent the hair falling out, and thicken the growth, with Newbro's "Herpicide." Besides, Herpicide is one of the most agreeable hair dressings there is. Herpicide kills the dandruff germ that eats the hair off at the root. After the germ is destroyed, the root will shoot up, and the hair grow long as ever. Even a sample will convince any lady that Newbro's Herpicide is an indispensable toilet requisite. It contains no oil or grease, it will not stain or dye. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

FALL RIVER WAGES

No Prospect of Increase Under Present Conditions

DECISION OF GOVERNOR

Accepted as Fixing Margin For Today, But Manufacturers May Question His Figure, Which Is Below What Was Demanded

Fall River, Mass., May 19.—The secretaries of the five textile unions of this city, comprising the United Textile council, held a meeting upon receiving from Boston an official copy of the decision of Governor Douglas as arbiter of the question of an advance in wages for Fall River cotton mill operatives. At the conclusion of the meeting the following statement was given out:

"There was the utmost confidence in the honesty and fairness of the governor. As arbitrator he has rendered his decision, and we accept that decision with the same confidence as that which we placed in him when he was appointed arbitrator. It should be understood, however, that the findings of his excellency only cover that period of time from Jan. 20 to April 1, 1905, and will in no way affect future wage schedules. The whole subject matter will be referred to a meeting of the textile council, which will be held at an early date."

The governor's findings are accepted as fixing a wage margin for today, and while it was agreed among the parties that it should not be the basis of future discussion, both parties see the force of fixing a margin of 74.38 cents as a profitable average, when the average for the whole period from Jan. 18 to April 1 was but 58.697 cents and today's margin is but 53.1 cents.

A manufacturer who was not on the committee says that Governor Douglas' decision has really had the effect of settling for this year, at least, all agitation for an increase in cotton mill wages, not only here but throughout New England.

With nearly half the year over and the average for the time being decided by an impartial judge to be 21 percent below what should be a profitable margin for manufacturers, and it being in excess of 21 percent today, it would not seem fair to stockholders to exact from them any more of the earnings of mills until they have been made secure in the prospect of at least a fair dividend.

Until present conditions change, and the margin is broadened, agitation here can only injure the chances of the manufacturers and operatives, and help cannot be looked for from anything which occurs in other parts of New England.

Manufacturers are by no means satisfied that the governor did not stretch things to secure a margin below the 75 cents they contended for. They do not believe that any Massachusetts mill can afford to pay today's wages on a margin of 74.83 cents, not to speak of the 5 percent increase which was talked of. In pressing the figure of 75 cents as the lowest to which they would consent, they did so solely, they say, to end the disastrous strike, and not because they believed it was a fair business basis for them to work on. They really demanded that the margin should be from 78 to 80 cents before they would consent to the 5 percent increase, and were it not that one of the labor leaders said at the time that there was not the slightest hope of an increase by April 1, they would not have given way.

It has become known that in the discussion with the governor one of the labor leaders said that it was nonsense to haggle about whether the figure should be 70 or 75 cents, because there was absolutely no possibility that the average margin in the time to be taken would reach either figure. It turned out that he was an accurate prophet, for it never even reached the figures talked of, for a single day.

Decision of United Brethren

THE GIRL IS SAFE.

Now With Her Nother at Lawrence ---Mother's Story.

Eva Myett, the 11-year old girl who was reported as missing from Quincy since Tuesday, was found Thursday with her mother, Mrs. Lizzie Castongani in Lawrence, who it is said, claims the child was taken by the Myett's without her consent.

Mrs. Castongani, who was Mrs. Marcotte, says she allowed her daughter to spend some time with a Mrs. Baudwin on Common street, Boston, last Thanksgiving, and was surprised to learn later that the child had been taken to Quincy by Benson Myett.

She says she has twice received letters from Myett saying that he was going to adopt Eva.

Eva, however, was apparently not contented, and with some money which she had earned by singing at a christening on Tuesday started for the home of her mother.

Mrs. Castongani says that she is glad to get her daughter back.

BOSTON FRIENDS.

Attend House Warming at Wollaston Home of A. P. Russell.

There was a notable gathering on Thursday afternoon and evening at the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Russell on Winthrop avenue, Wollaston. The guests were largely from Boston who came to Atlantic in a special parlor car, but because of the new bridge, found it necessary to make a transfer.

The party contained about 40, the one bond of union being affection and admiration for their host as a model citizen and sterling personal friend. Mr. Russell has charge of the real estate and law department of the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad. Before his marriage last autumn to Miss May Kimball, on Magnolia street, he lived in Ward 16, which he represented as a Republican in the lower branch of the legislature.

Although a staunch party man as regards party measures, his eminent fairness and especially his liberality and breadth in matters of general legislation, gained for him friends of all political complexions. And so the house party was of a decidedly composite character, but it proved one thing emphatically, the host's enviable popularity.

The new Russell home is delightfully situated on high ground and commands a wide and beautifully varied prospect. The grounds are laid out in excellent taste and the flower beds, lawns and borders testify to the owner's floricultural and horticultural skill. Amid his new environment, the opportunity is always at hand for indulging his taste in raising fancy breeds of poultry and particularly pigeons. Such were the outdoor attractions that received the admiring attention of the guests till nightfall.

The evening hours were given to indoor enjoyments, among which was a musical program rendered by Miss Elise Godber contralto, Edward J. Machugh tenor and Thomas E. Clifford baritone. Jest and witticism accompanied and "sauced" the savory supper feast, in which part of the festivities the efforts of Congressman McNary and David I. Walsh of Clinton were particularly successful.

A memento of the occasion was left by the guests in the form of a handsomely engrossed souvenir, containing the names of all who attended, and inscribed, "To our friend, Arthur P. Russell, May 18, 1905."

The list of names follows: William S. McNary, Daniel V. McIsaac, David I. Walsh, Thomas S. Pendergast, Daniel L. Pendergast, Fred C. Gilpatric, Richard H. Tobey, Frank A. Corcoran, Simon C. Weil, Peter J. McCarthy, William J. Doogue, Alfred Newmarch, James T. Prendergast, Harry J. Meghran, Frank J. Hasson, Joseph Linehan, Thomas J. Corliss, Charles H. Wells, Edward Curley, John F. McGurn, John W. McAnarney, John C. Webb, Fred W. Farwell, Frank E. Wells, John J. Hagerty, William S. Rowe, Michael O'Riordan, Edward J. Boyle, John Healy, Frank H. White, Joseph J. Preston, John T. Burnett, Dr. P. H. Devine, Robert O'Doherty.

A Wollaston Golf club team of ten men played a match with a team of the Oakley Country club on Wednesday and lost 9 to 1. C. A. Price, who played against E. W. Clark, 3d, was the one to score.

PENSION PLAN.

For Cambridge Teachers Who Have Taught 25 Years.

An important departure in the rules of the Cambridge school board, which practically provides a pension for old teachers, was made Thursday night says the Globe.

The rule as adopted provides that the superintendent shall designate teachers who have taught in Cambridge schools for 25 years or more and have reached the age of 60, whose election he recommends, to serve in an assistant, temporary or substitute capacity at a salary of $350 a year in the primary or grammar schools and of $450 in the high schools.

Last November an order containing similar provisions was introduced by Mr. Thurston of ward 8, and was referred to the committee on rules, which reported the above new rule.

Prior to the introduction of this report the resignation of Miss Eliza M. Hussey, who for 32 years has taught in the Putnam grammar school at East Cambridge, was received and accepted. Her case was made the basis of an amendment to the new rule adopted by Rev. Mr. Walker of ward 1, which provides for the insertion of the words "or has taught for 30 years consecutively" after the word "sixty."

Mr. Walker spoke of the excellent work of Miss Hussey, who would be barred from receiving the benefits of the new rule because she has not reached the age limit, notwithstanding her long term of service.

The board reconsidered Miss Hussey's resignation after Supt. Cogswell had stated that he considered Miss Hussey one of the most faithful teachers in the city and one who had done splendid work, and the resignation now lies on the table until next month, when Mr. Walker's amendment will be acted upon.

Golf Tournament.

Percival Gilbert led the field of 122 at the golf tournament at Clyde park Brookline, on Thursday, with 78, while E. C. Tarbell and J. A. Campbell of the Wollaston club were among the 19 who made scores of 89 or better, and will enter the match plays. N. Heath of the Wollaston club was fourth in best net score.

CHIC STYLES.

Sleeves Govern the New Styles—Mohair Very Fashionable.

It is the sleeves and shoulders that govern the new styles. Miracles can be accomplished with the new sleeve trimmings and the right shoulder arrangements. Epaulets that form the top of the sleeve are a favorite adornment of the up to date sleeve.

With these plaited skirts will be worn short jackets with rather long fronts.

Mohair of the new silky weave is to be very much worn. It is particularly good style when in a checked design. Pale green and white, rose and white, and coral and white are new blendings.

Dozens of new girdles have come out. The linen craze has brought out interesting developments in this line. They are embroidered in cotton matching the girdle linen in color.

BURLINGHAM SILK WAIST.

In the trimming line very stunning is an edging of tiny balls which is used in conjunction with net or lace.

Petticoats are made with adjustable flounces both in silk and muslin.

The waist pictured is of a tan and brown mixture carried out in burlingham silk. The fronts are cut in four pieces, with a seam running from shoulder to waist line. The seam nearest the side is slightly gathered at the bust. Over a vest of tucked taffeta is a shawl collar of the silk edged with a braided design which crosses surplice fashion at one side. The chemisette is of tucked white mull, and the sleeves are leg of mutton trimmed with rounded turnover cuffs.

Pawnbrokers In China.

Pawnbrokers in China are the bankers of the people and could not be dispensed with. The poor Chinaman, unlike the poor European, does not wear his winter clothes until they are fit only to be discarded. When the Chinese officials order that summer clothing shall be donned, the poor Chinaman pawns his winter's suit, and with the proceeds, supplemented by a little cash, he redeems his previous summer garb or buys new attire. Pawnbroking, writes Mr. Cunningham in the Chinese Soldier, is to the respectable Chinaman of limited means a weekly round.

The Public Drinking Cup.

When it is necessary to relieve one's thirst abroad, if the cup be filled quite full and placed to the mouth in such a way that the rim will be about half an inch below the under lip, one can drink from the surface of the water. In this way no part of the vessel, to which some particles of poisonous matter may still be clinging, will touch the delicate skin of the lip. It is hardly necessary to add that the water which adheres to the mouth and below the lips should be removed by a handkerchief and not by the tongue.

"She Had Him Spellbound."

—Harvard Lampoon.

Proof Positive.

Simkins—My wife is a woman of remarkable strength of mind.

Timkins—Indeed!

Simkins—Yes. She never buys anything at a bargain sale that she doesn't want.

The Music Master's Ruse.

A very rich lady offered Garcia any price if he would only teach her daughter. He refused, knowing well he could never obtain serious work from her; but, as the mother persisted, he hit upon a compromise. He asked the ladies to be present during a lesson, and he undertook, if the girl still wished to learn singing after hearing it taught, to teach her. The lesson began. The pupil, who seemed to the listeners an already finished singer, had to repeat passage after passage of the most difficult exercises before the master was satisfied. He insisted upon the minutest attention to every detail of execution. Mother and daughter exchanged horrified glances and looked on pityingly. The lesson finished, the master bowed the ladies out, and in passing the pupil the young girl whispered to her, "It would kill me!" Senor Garcia, returning from the door, said contentedly: "They will not come again. Thank you, mon enfant, you sang well."—London Mail.

Do Birds Sing?

A naturalist has written to prove that birds are not singers, but whistlers; that is to say, that the notes are produced through a tube—to be technical, through the slit known as the glottis—not by the help of vocal cords. But the whole distinction is beside the point. Any one who has seen a bird singing will have seen both the vibrations in his throat and the variations in the extent to which he opens and closes his beak or mandibles; and, given these accompaniments, together with the production of an inarticulate language, whistling and singing become identical terms suggesting a distinction. People are accustomed to the idea that only a few species of birds, such as the parrot and the jackdaw, can be taught, but in wild life almost all birds are mimics to some extent, and probably more of them than people realize could be taught to imitate human sounds.—Pearson's Weekly.

Beginnings of Clubs.

The first club of modern England seems to have been the circle at the Mermaid that Sir Walter Raleigh founded and Shakespeare joined. But in the seventeenth century clubs began to spring up like mushrooms. There was the Calves' Head club, whose members met and dined off calves' heads to show their contempt for the decapitated Charles I. Then came the Kit-Kat club, which, according to Addison, took its name from a mutton pie. One Christopher Kat, a pastry cook of Shire lane, was a distinguished constructor of mutton pies, and his productions were called Kit-Kats. The club meeting in his house and eating his pies acquired the pies' name for its own.—London Telegraph.

Travels of the Cuckoo.

A feature in bird travels is the departure south of the old and young cuckoos at a different time. The old cuckoos set out first, leaving the young birds of the year to follow. The adult cuckoos—one might put it by a stretch of imagination—so much dislike the fuss and anxiety of traveling en famille that they take care to go on first and by themselves. Whether the old cuckoos ever know their progeny by sight cannot be said for certain—probably not, although an old cuckoo is constantly to be heard and seen in the coppice or hedgerow or about the garden where a young one is being reared by a hedge sparrow, pipit or wagtail.—London Opinion.

A One Minute Cure.

Leaning painfully on a heavy stick and groaning in intolerable anguish, the blinding tears forcing themselves from his eyes, a Whitechapel defendant, according to the London Globe, limped up to the county court judge and explained that, owing to being hopelessly crippled by rheumatism, he could not pay a debt. "But I saw you enter the court with that stick under your arm!" exclaimed the judge. "Two shillings a month until the debt is paid." Then the pain racked invalid threw the stick lightly over his shoulder, thanked the bench and tripped gayly into the street again. It was a one minute cure.

A Remarkable Sundial.

At the Eutaw entrance to Druid Hill park, Baltimore, stands one of the most remarkable sundials in the world. The time in many parts of the world is shown whenever the sun in shining. It is easily possible almost at first glance to read the time within two or three minutes, while closer acquaintance with the dial enables the correct time to be read to the minute. The base is of carved bronze. The instrument was presented to the park by Peter Hamilton, who designed and made it entirely of stone.

Dark Secrets.

Nordy—All these big manufacturers seem to dread publicity. Butts—That's right. I know one of 'em who has to let his family do just as they please to keep 'em from divulging business secrets. Nordy—What business is he in? Butts—He's a sausage maker.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Ready Made.

Miss Glade—Why did you choose a baldheaded man for your second husband? Mrs. Blade—Because my first husband always insisted that I worried him baldheaded, and this time I wanted to escape being blamed.—Detroit Free Press.

Announcing It.

Pauline (sarcastically)—Jack struts along as if he owned the earth. Elvira (sweetly)—No wonder. Last evening I promised to let him become my husband.

Temptation rarely comes in working hours. It is in their leisure time that men are made or marred.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

A superior woman—Col. Charles H. Porter.

Work, temperance and fun—are the secret of the success of Miss Underwood—Herbert W. Lull.

A kind word and a sweet smile for all—Mayor Thompson.

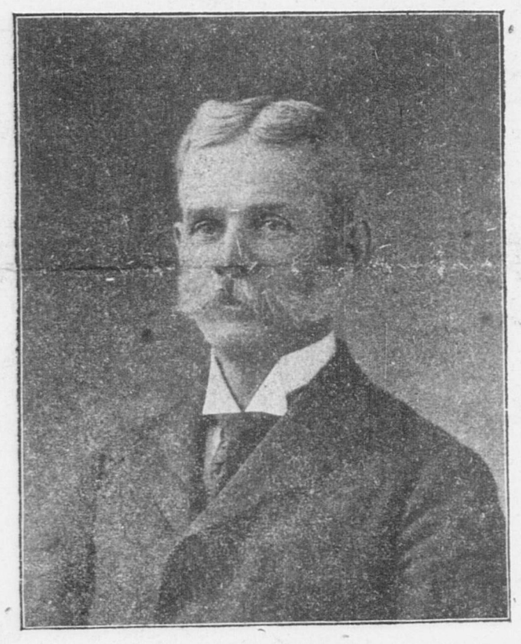

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS.

An unusually pleasant occasion was the gathering at High School hall last evening to celebrate the remarkable and highly satisfactory record of Miss Julia E. Underwood, who has completed fifty years service as a public school teacher of Quincy, and all these years in one building—the Coddington.

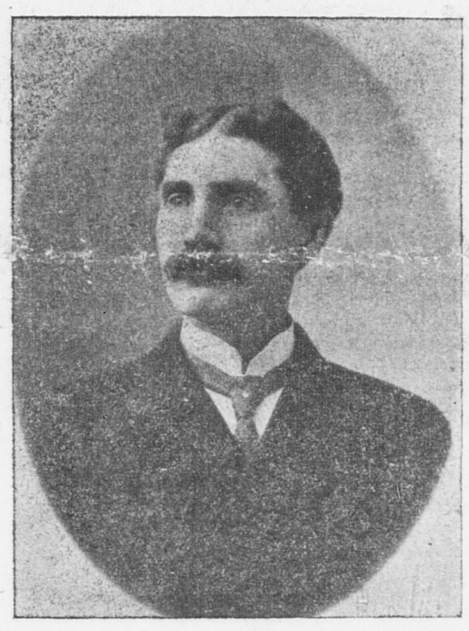

There were present classmates of sixty years ago as well as former pupils for most of the years, since 1855 during which she has been teaching. It was a very happy occasion for teacher and pupils, it being for many the first reunion for several years. The regret of many was that they could not have Miss Underwood to themselves for an hour that they might talk over old times; there was so much to say.

The hall was very prettily decorated. Apple boughs in blossom were extensively used in decorating, and were supplemented by plants and palms from Patterson's greenhouse at Wollaston.

The receiving party was located in the southerly front corner, with a veay pretty background of plants and flowers. Miss Underwood was assisted in receiving by Frank E. Parlin, Superintendent of Schools, and his predecessors George I. Aldrich, now superintendent at Brookline, Mass., and Herbert W. Lull, now superintendent at Newport, R. I.

GEORGE I. ALDRICH.

FRANK E. PARLIN.

George I. Aldrich of the State Board of Education, who was Superintendent of Schools in Quincy, from 1883 to 1892, said his acquaintance with Miss Underwood dated back to 1875. He queried if the Quincy people appreciated the full meaning of the revival in the Quincy schools under Col. Parker in 1875-1880. The employment of a Superintendent then was something new. All the United States was influenced by the action of Quincy. Everything was modified. People came to the realization that there was an art in teaching. American schools are different, because of what occurred in Quincy. A history of those years ought to be written, tha the incidents may not be lost. He cou not recall a quarrel that he ever h with Miss Underwood, and closed wi "God bless her."

Herbert W. Lull of Newport, R. I., Superintendent of Quincy schools in 1892 to 1900, said he did not notice any solemnity. Perhaps Dr. Osler had never met Miss Underwood. Instead of chloroform on her bottle, could be found the words—"work, temperance and fun." They were the secret of her success. She loved children, and her record was an honor to the profession. She has had from 2500 to 3000 pupils and I figure it she has received but $1 per pupil. Evidently she is not teaching for money but for love. Mr. Lull extended his congratulations and also his thanks for the help she had given him. She is now reaping that which she has sown.

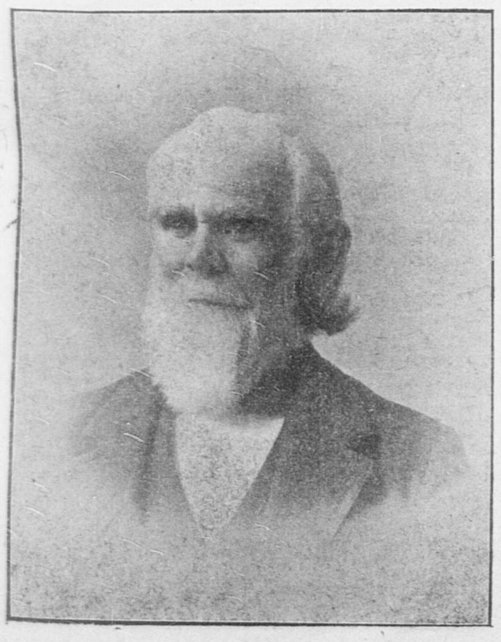

Upon Frank F. Prescott, a former pupil, devolved the pleasant duty of presenting a purse of gold raised among her former pupils and friends, consider-

The ushers were the masters of the Quincy schools and the teachers of the Coddington school, viz.—Charles F. Harper, James M. Nowland, Austin W. Green, Winthrop N. Crocker, Charles E. Finch, Charles Sampson, Thomas B. Pollard, Charles H. Taylor, Miss Jennie W. Whitcher, Miss Ruth A. Taylor, Miss Jennie H. Holt, Miss Alice T. Sampson, Miss Bertha D. Harves, Miss Grace E. Patterson, Miss Mary E. Costello, Miss Christina McPherson, and Miss Annie P. Hall.

During the reception there was delightful music by members of the High school orchestra, and punch was served by the Quincy teachers' Association in one of the side rooms. The punch was made by M. R. Sparrow and was pronounced excellent.

There were so many present that until 9 o'clock there was nearly a continuous line of people to be presented to the receiving party. How radiant and happy Miss Underwood was and how becoming she appeared in a black chiffon taffeta with tucks, and coral ornaments. She carried a bunch of fifty daybreak pinks, the gift of the Coddington teachers, and a large bunch of lilies of the valley from Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Ditson.

EDWIN W. MARSH.

THE SPEAKING.

Frank E. Parlin, the Superintendent of Schools, was chairman of the evening, and was pleased to welcome so many friends of Miss Underwood, the honored guest of the evening. He read a letter of regrets from Edwin W. Marsh, Esq., who was a member of the School Committee of 1855 when Miss Underwood was first elected a teacher.

The letter contained some reminiscences of the earlier years of Miss Underwood as a teacher, and quoted a remark of Charles Francis Adams.

Hon. Charles Francis Adams of Lincoln, a member of the Quincy School Committee which elected Col. F. W. Parker as superintendent in 1875, was the first speaker. There were very few gatherings which would tempt him from his home on the other side of Boston in an evening, but this was one. His first knowledge of Miss Underwood was in 1868, when he became a member of the School Committee; she was then a senior teacher. Mr. E. W. Marsh never seems to forget anything and if he says I said so and so, I undoubtedly did. Col. Parker came to Quincy with revolutionary ideas. As a member of the School Committee I intended he should have full rein. I confess I was greatly concerned about Miss Underwood, and had grave doubts whether she could adapt herself to the new ideas. It was a happy relief when Col. Parker said later. Miss Underwood is one of my best teachers.

She accepted the so-called Quincy system and applied herself to it. Miss Underwood's record stands alone in the history of Quincy which covers 265 years. The people assembled tonight did well to celebrate it. Her modesty, self sacrifice and devotion to duty deserved it all. Mr. Adams closed with a quotation from Dr. Johnson.

Col. Charles H. Porter, the oldest member of the present School Committee, said he had known Miss Underwood 51 years. He was glad to pay compliments. She was careful and well meaning and a superior woman. We were classmates together at the old Coddington. I remember well the old building. I also recall the criticism concerning the basement room in the present building when built. Col. Porter congratulated Miss Underwood (addressing her as Julia) and hoped she would continue to teach our children's children for many years to come.

Dr. Henry C. Hallowell, the Chairman of the School committee, said an occasion like this called for appropriate remarks from the representative of the School board, but he had searched all his books for a celebration like this and could find none. It was unique. He extended congratulations on behalf of the School Committee to Miss Underwood, and wished for a continuance of the pleasant relations, and many happy returns.

Edward Southworth, the oldest living principal of the Coddington school (now a Boston master), said it seemed but a short time ago, but he supposed he was a superanuated teacher. He told of old times, saying then we had a school committee who visited school, and told how they conducted examinations. However, some strong men grew up. Then pupils knew how to work and to study, and it seemed as if they could apply themselves better to their studies. I would not underrate Col. Parker, because I believe he did more for the cause of education than any other man. The speaker told of old and new methods, and said Miss Underwood has passed through experiences which no other teacher had encountered—changing from old methods to new ones.

VANITY'S VISIONS.

The Saucer Hat One of the New Shapes—Blue and Mauve.

Fine crinoline straws in the most extraordinary colors are the first of the spring novelties to be launched. The shape is neither large nor small, and the crown is low, a mere apology for a crown, and the hat proper rises like a saucer around it.

The colors in the new hats are puce, amethyst and a kind of bluey mauve difficult to describe and all the tones of green, rose, pink, red and white.

The trimming on this saucer-like hat is of the simplest description—a fold of velvet around the crown tied in a knot with two pointed ends in front and a feather as a trimming over the back.

The art of the new millinery consists in the selection of shades, for straw, velvet and feather are not alike, but harmonize perfectly.

On lingerie blouses medallions of embroidery are trimmed around with narrow valenciennes lace. The material is cut from under the embroidery, and the effect is very lacy and pretty.

MODEL LINEN TURNOVERS.

One charming organdie waist has a finely tucked yoke outlined with medallions of swiss embroidery trimmed around with narrow lace. The medallions are put so close together that the narrow lace ruffles fluff up against each other in a froufrouy fashion.

The collar and cuff sets pictured are some of the season's novelties. Very smart is the Dutch collar of eyelet embroidery. The linen turnover collar and cuffs are of the same work. Filet net appliqued with a fleur-de-lis forms the corners of the deep linen turnover, and herringbone is the dainty finish of the pointed collar. JUDIC CHOLLET.

A Setback.

"Pardon me, but haven't we met before?"

"If we had, you would know me better than to ask me such a foolish question."—Chicago Tribune.

SCIENCE PREVENTS BALDNESS.

The Fatal Germ and Its Remedy Now Facts of Science.

It is the rarest thing in the world for a man to be necessarily bald. No man whose hair is not dead at the roots, need be bald if he will use Newbro's Herpicide, the new scalp antiseptic. Herpicide destroys the germ that cuts the hair off at the root; and cleans the scalp of dandruff and leaves it in a perfectly healthy condition. Mr. Mannett, in the Maryland Block, Butte, Mont., was entirely bald. In less than a month Herpicide had removed the enemies of hair growth, and nature did its work by covering his head with thick hair an inch long, and in six weeks he had a normal suit of hair. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Epidemics of History.

In the twelfth century not less than fifteen epidemics of disease and many famines carried off the people of England. The thirteenth century saw twenty plagues and nineteen famines, while the fourteenth had a black record of disease. In 1348 the "black plague" or "black death," which was brought into the country from the east, caused the death of 100,000 persons in London alone, while in Europe altogether 25,000,000 people fell victims to its ravages. In 1485 the "sweating sickness" appeared in England, causing great destruction of human life. It reappeared at various intervals for a century thereafter. The last terrible visitation of the plague in England was in 1664-66, by which 100,000 lives were lost in London alone. This epidemic was followed by the great fire of 1666, which destroyed 16,000 houses, including all the most densely populated portions of the city. The rebuilding of London with some regard to sanitary laws appears to have put the first check on the epidemic diseases that had previously devastated its population.

Played What He Pleased.

Henry Smart, the English composer, played a fine organ in a London church, and his recital after service attracted much attention. But one morning after a selection from one of Mozart's masses a church warden came into the organ loft and "begged to inform Mr. Smart that they had decided that they could not have such jiggy stuff played in their church."

"Very well, sir," was the answer; "it shall be altered."

Next Sunday dirge-like sounds proceeded from the organ, and the warden congratulated the player on the solemn and elevating effect of the music. "I am glad you like it," answered Mr. Smart. "Doubtless if I play it a little quicker you will see the reason why it affected you." And, suiting the action to the word, the popular strains of "Jump Jim Crow" resounded from the organ. After this Henry Smart played what he liked.—London Telegraph.

Value of Walking and Riding.

A brisk daily walk or a ride on horseback beats any more elaborate forms of physical exercise for simplicity combined with efficiency. In walking, especially if the ground is somewhat undulating, a very large number of muscles are brought into natural and easy play, sufficient, at any rate, to stimulate the circulation, which in its turn compels full expansion of the lungs and due aeration of the blood. The professional or business man requires no more than this to keep him fit for his duties, provided he follows the ordinary rules of health in respect of bathing, eating, drinking and clothing. If he is afflicted with a sluggish liver, indigestion or inactivity of the alimentary canal as a whole, a man may derive more benefit to health on horseback. But that is really a curative form of exercise.—London Chronicle.

IN COURT'S HANDS

Rogers Hearing Before Vermont Supreme Justices

NEW TRIAL IS ASKED FOR

Woman's Counsel Says That Wound In Rogers' Head May Have Caused Death--Rebuttal by the State Attorney

Montpelier, Vt., May 20.—A hearing by the supreme court of Vermont on the petition for a new trial of Mrs. Mary M. Rogers, sentenced to be hanged for the murder of her husband, Marcus M. Rogers, has been completed.

Thomas W. Moloney, counsel for Mrs. Rogers, made an extended argument in favor of a new trial, contending that the government had endeavored to prove that Rogers came to his death from suffocation, whereas it was possible the wound on the skull might have caused death. He also spoke of what he termed the low order of intelligence of Mrs. Rogers.

Attorney General Fitts spoke for two hours and a half. The contention of the state was, in brief:

That the fracture of the skull of Marcus Rogers was made by the physicians who performed the autopsy, in removing the brain, which they found to be normal, thereby disposing of the theory that Rogers had received a wound on the head severe enough to cause death; that the evidence does not prove insanity; that Mrs. Rogers was in Bennington all day two days before her husband's death, thus contradicting the evidence of the Hoosick Falls physician, who deposed that he examined her for symptoms of insanity two days before the murder; and, lastly, that the statements of Leon Perham to the effect that he had testified falsely in the county court could not be relied upon, the state contending that Perham was mentally weak and would give any kind of a desired answer under duress.

Attorney General Fitts claimed that D. A. Guiltenan, one of Mrs. Rogers' counsel at the time of the trial in the county court, had six months in which to prepare his case and that if there had been any evidence of insanity he would have discovered it. The Hoosick Falls physician, who claims to have examined Mrs. Rogers, and Mrs. Josie Callahan, the woman's mother, were neither summoned, although both were within a short distance of Bennington, the scene of the crime and the trial. No evidence had been introduced, he said, to show that Mrs. Rogers acted any differently before or after the murder than she did at other times; nothing, in fact, that would lead to an acceptance of the insanity theory.

In concluding his argument, Mr. Fitts referred to the crime as "a cold-blooded and deliberate murder of a man by a woman who wished to kill him for his insurance money in order that she might marry another man." He said that it would be a travesty on justice to send the case back to Bennington for another trial.

The attorney general was followed by John H. Senter, one of the attorneys for Mrs. Rogers. Mr. Senter said that he did not claim that the affidavits of any one person was sufficient to grant a new trial, but, taken collectively, these affidavits furnished, in his opinion, cause for a new trial. He claimed that the new evidence would raise a reasonable doubt in the minds of the jurymen as to the degree of murder. He did not believe that it would be a travesty on justice to grant a new trial to a woman, who, he said, had been convicted on "imperfect evidence."

The court took the matter under consideration and will report its decision some time next week.

Governor Bell, who granted the woman a reprieve from Feb. 3, the date set for her execution, until June 2, and Henry H. Peck, high sheriff of Windsor county, upon whom falls the duty of executing the woman in the event that the new trial is not granted, were among the interested spectators at the proceedings.

Would Aid American Shipping

Cleveland, May 20.—The executive officers of the Merchant Marine league of the United States have sent to the members in different parts of the country a statement giving the position of the league upon the advisability of extending the coast laws to Panama with a view of providing that the machinery, tools, equipment and supplies of every sort required in the construction of the Panama canal should be carried in American vessels.

Charges Against Noted Lawyer

New York, May 20.—A notice served by counsel for Abraham H. Hummel of their intention to move for the dismissal of the indictment for conspiracy and subornation of perjury against him, found as the result of the Dodge-Morse divorce case, brought to light the fact that charges against Hummel had been filed with the Bar association with a view to his disbarment.

"Laying" For Americans

St. Johns, May 20.—The colonial government has chartered the whaler Neptune and commissioned her as a temporary cruiser to enforce the provisions of the foreign fishing vessels act against American fishermen. It is expected that the inability of the Americans to distinguish the Neptune from other whalers will render them more liable to be captured.

MAY HAVE MET TOGO

Russian Pacific Squadron Has Completely Disappeared

London, May 20.—There are rumors in naval circles that the Russian fleet may have already fallen in with Admiral Togo. In any case, the battle is not expected to be far off.

Paris, May 20.—The apparently complete disappearance of the Russian far eastern fleet leads to the belief that either a battle is imminent or that Admiral Rojestvensky has succeeded in establishing a naval base. On the other hand, it is pointed out here that the position of the fleet May 16, in latitude 13:30 and longitude 11:30, indicated that it might have been decided to follow a course north of Luzon into the Pacific, instead of going through the Straits of Formosa, where Admiral Togo is believed to be awaiting Rojestvensky.

Naval circles here are disposed to criticise the Japanese tactics in failing to harass Rojestvensky's transports during the long period of taking on supplies. The results of Rojestvensky's movements are being awaited with intense interest in official quarters.

Admiral Birileff's Commission

St. Petersburg, May 20.—Vice Admiral Birileff, who has been named for the supreme naval command in the Pacific, will leave for Vladivostok next week to assume charge there. He will have all the rights and powers of commander of the army, and the commander of the Vladivostok garrison will be subject to his orders, thereby avoiding the possibility of any conflict of authority in case of a siege, as at Port Arthur.

Another Bomb at Warsaw

Warsaw, May 20.—A workman who was trying to avoid the observation of two detectives on Miodowa street stumbled upon the curb of the sidewalk and a bomb which he was carrying in his pocket exploded, killing the workman, both the detectives and some persons who were passing by. It is believed the bomb was intended for Governor General Maximovitch, who was expected to pass the spot. This outrage is the sixth of similar character in Warsaw since the January disturbances.

Necessary Measure Sidetracked

Boston, May 20.—A general bill which had been favored by the state railroad commissioners as a necessary measure, and which related to the construction and operation of street railways upon private lands, was defeated in the state senate. The measure was reported unanimously by the committee on street railways and was enacted both by the house and senate. The senate reconsidered the action of enactment. This had the effect of defeating the measure.

The Business World

New York, May 20.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that unseasonable weather is the chief cause of complaint, both as to distribution of merchandise and agricultural development. At many leading cities retail trade in spring and summer wearing apparel is falling behind expectations and there is less than the customary re-order business in wholesale and jobbing departments.

Outlaw Band Crushed

Manila, May 20.—The Moro outlaws against whom General Wood has been campaigning have been annihilated. Since the battle on the island of Jolo, in which Wood's soldiers killed 300 of the natives, Chief Pala has been slain and the remaining 300 of his followers have been scattered through the jungle. The outlaws are adherents of the Sultan of Sulu.

Railroad Changes Ownership

New York, May 20.—Phelps, Dodge & Co. of this city have bought the control of the New Mexico Railway and Coal company, which has $3,000,000 common and $1,000,000 preferred stock. The road runs from Liberal, Kan., to El Paso, a distance of 457 miles, tapping and owning part of the Salado coal fields.

Loomis' Reply Not Received

Washington, May 20.—Few important matters were considered at Friday's cabinet meeting. There was no discussion of either the Loomis-Bowen case or matters pertaining to the Panama canal. Secretary Taft says he has not received Assistant Secretary Loomis' statement in reply to that of Minister Bowen.

Strike Disorder at Troy

Troy, N. Y., May 20.—Scenes of disorder in the collar starchers' strike were witnessed again, when nearly all the manufacturers affected attempted to haul goods to freight offices for shipment. Stones and sticks were hurled at the non-union teamsters and several were dragged from their wagons and assaulted.

Jenkins Wins at Wrestling

New York, May 20.—A whirlwind finish to a most interesting catch-as-catch-can wrestling match between Tom Jenkins of Cleveland and Frank Gotch of Humboldt, Ia., contested at Madison Square garden last night, resulted in a clean victory for Jenkins, who won two out of three falls.

Bigelow Claims Accumulate

Milwaukee, May 20.—A supplementary list of creditors has been filed in the case of Frank G. Bigelow, the bankrupt banker. The additional claims aggregate about $151,300.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The Civic department of the Quincy Women's club should extend a vote of thanks to the one who caused that row of trees and sbrubbery to be set out along the railroad track at Sheppard's coal office on Granite street. Even now with small growth they improve the place fifty per cent.

C. Howard Walker, the well-known architect of Boston and lecturer at the Institute of Technology was in Quincy for an afternoon a few days ago. When passing through Hancock street he noticed with admiration the fine old trees in the Nancy Brackett estate and vicinity. He said he hoped that whatever changes the owners and the city might make there, every effort would be made to save the trees, for it would be impossible to make good their loss. No one dared mention to him the beautiful elm which formerly stood a fit companion to our beautiful fountain and which was sacrificed a year or so ago.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Those who think Nan Patterson will go on the stage should recall the experience of others who have come into unpleasant notoriety, and then gone to starring. In every case the success has been brief, and if the course were continued it ended in disappointment and loss. Sensation endureth but for a brief season, and something more than that is needed for success. Even where there is universal talent, the unpleasant episode serves as a cloud that is sufficient to dim all the brightness that seemed to shine in the beginning. The case referred to is one for retiring, in the full meaning of the term.—Lynn Item.

☞When a man gets too old to play or to enjoy playing, he is too old to live. The longer he keeps up his play the longer will he live—providing, of course, the play be natural and wholesome and indulged in rationally. The great trouble with most of us grown folks is that we take ourselves and life too seriously. We have forgotten how to play. The child wonder long since has passed from us with all its delightful and rejuvenating excursions into mystery land. We have to know it all, and what charm can play have for the blase? Play is good for the child; it is better for the student; it is best of all for the grownup. Perhaps Isaiah had the value of play in mind when he said: "There shall be no more thence an infant of days, nor an old man that hath not filled his days; for the child shall die a hundred years old."—Chicago Post.

Wollaston Social.

The Salamagundi party in the Wollaston Unitarian vestry last evening was a great success. The party was given by the young ladies of Mr. Rollins' Sunday school class and a varied entertainment had been prepared. Progressive games were played and prizes awarded. Fruit punch and fancy crackers were served during the evening. These socials which are being given at different times by the different Sunday School classes furnish many good times and promote a feeling of sociability and friendliness among scholars and teachers.

able coming from out of town. He queried how it was that some of Mrs. Underwood's pupils appeared older than their teacher, but attributed it to the fact that the teacher had in 1875 discovered the elixer of life, and has since grown young. In hopes to discover the recipe of the elixer, Mr. Prescott offered Miss Underwood over $200 in gold.

Thomas B. Pollard, president of the Quincy Teachers Association, followed, and in complimentary terms and a review some of Miss Underwood's achievements, also presented from Quincy teachers past and present a purse of gold aggregating about $130.

Miss Underwood rose and bowed, but Miss Mary E. Dearborn, the principal of the Coddington school, responded for her in her pleasing and inimitable way. She said Miss Underwood appreciated more than the gold the large gathering of her friends and the kind words in appreciation of her labors. She wished to thank all heartily.

Mayor Thompson said: This is a rare and exceptional occasion. Picture to ourselves fifty years ago a young girl on the threshold of womanhood, with all the hopes and ambitions of youth, commencing her life work, dedicating her energies and talents to the best of her ability, to the education and upbuilding of the character of the children committed to her care. After all these years with their cares and trials, hopes and fears, she still remains with a disposition unspoiled, a kind word and sweet smile for all.

This modest woman would refuse all recognition, believing she has only performed her duty, with no expectation of praise or encomium. But her pupils and friends of fifty years ago, and all the stages of that long interval of time, were resolved that this opportunity should not be permitted to past without doing her honor and homage as teacher, friend and counsellor.

As representative of the city of Quincy, I bear to you Miss Underwood its warmest greetings and pronounce well done faithful servant, with the hope that the long and loyal years of your service may be continued, and that health, happiness and prosperity may be your portion for the future.

An opportunity was then offered to meet Miss Underwood, and there were so many reminiscences to recall that it was after 10.30 before adjournment came.

INCIDENTS.

Many former teachers of the Coddington school were present.

The purse presented by the Teachers' Association was in a silk bag of Coddington blue, inscribed in gold letters: "Julia E. Underwood—1855 Coddington 1905—Quincy, Mass."

It was a pleasure to many to see John Phillips, a colored man present. He was a former pupil and presented Miss Underwood a pretty China dish.

Previous to the reception Mr. Galen Vinton Bowditch visited the house of Miss Underwood and presented her a beautiful bouquet of Bridsmaid and Liberty roses.

CARD OF THANKS.

FORECAST OF FASHION.

Rose Colored Boas For Evening Wear—Covert Jackets.

Very lovely for evening wear are the delicate shades of rose colored ostrich boas. The curl of the feather gives a wonderfully foamy effect that is eminently becoming. These sumptuous boas are quite the leading novelties of the season.

White panama cloth is to be very smart this season both for suits and separate skirts worn with silk waists.

Panama cloth will also make the nicest kind of walking costumes both in plain color and in a figured design which is almost invisible except in certain lights.

The covert cloth jacket will be in evidence this spring in all the varying lengths. The only difference between the new jackets and those of last year is that in the recent models the bust is higher and the sleeves, which are of the tailored order, are set in the arm's eye with a square effect. The cuffs are stitched in tailor fashion.

The gown illustrated is a costume for the first months of deep mourning. It is made of lightweight henrietta cloth and crape. The underskirt is entirely of crape, and the pointed overskirt effect has a band of the same handsome material. Mousseline de soie is tucked into a tiny chemisette, and the fronts of the waist simulate a vest. Over this vest are bretelle-like pieces of henrietta trimmed with crape, which are drawn into the waist with crape rosettes to form a girdle. The sleeves finish at the elbow with double ruffles of mousseline de soie.

CLARK'S LATEST ROLE

Senator Bought Six Plants to Supply His New Mansion.

HOW HE OUTWITTED CONTRACTORS

Montana Millionaire, Determined Not to Accede to Their Demands, Has His Own Quarry and Factories to Make Everything For New York Palace—Architect Hull's Brown Hair Grown Gray Since Work on Mansion Started.

Senator William A. Clark, the Montana copper king, has established a unique record in the construction of his mansion at Fifth avenue and Seventy-seventh street, New York.

Surprise was occasioned a few days ago when he purchased the Henry Bonnard Bronze company for the purpose of supplying his new mansion with bronze, says the New York World.

Now it has been discovered that the bronze foundry is but one of similar moves made by Senator Clark since ground was broken in 1898 for his Fifth avenue home. Here is a list of the plants bought by him to defeat the plans of contractors to bleed him:

Granite quarry at North Jay, Me.

Stone finishing plant at Bangor, Me.

Marble factory at Ravenswood, N. Y.

Woodwork factory at Ravenswood, N. Y.

Decorative plaster plant at Ravenswood, N. Y.

Henry Bonnard bronze foundry, New York city.

The firm of architects employed by Senator Clark has established a new hard work record for the profession. Washington Hull, managing architect of the Clark mansion, had thick, curly hair when the work began; he is now gray.

The trouble for Senator Clark and his architects began when the Maine and New Hampshire Granite company gave notice of an advance on contract price. The firm had agreed to supply the white granite for the walls for $200,000. The quarry people suddenly demanded $650,000, claiming that alterations and additions to the plans for the mansion made the demand only fair.

Architect Hull was equal to the emergency. Anticipating possible trouble, he had employed agents who traveled through the Rangeley Lake quarries of Maine. So when the storm broke Mr. Hull knew that at North Jay, Me., there was a small unworked quarry of pure white granite that adjoined the quarries of the Maine and New Hampshire company. By some chance it had been overlooked by the big concern.

Sending the facts to the senator by cable, Architect Hull awaited the reply. It came fast, "Buy that quarry if possible."

Within twenty-four hours Architect Hull's agent was en route for North Jay. He returned with an option on the property. It is said that $20,000 was the figure.

Great was the consternation of the Maine and New Hampshire company when notified by Senator Clark's representatives that not only was their demand for $650,000 refused, but that the original contract for $200,000 had been nullified by their failure to meet its requirements. Greater was their consternation when Architect Hull and 200 laborers took possession of the little quarry on the borders of their own property.

Hurrying back from Europe, the senator decided that no contractor should bleed him again. He decided to establish a stone dressing plant. Then he decided that as a million dollars' worth of bronzes were to be used the only way to successfully escape the extortion of contractors was to own a bronze foundry. The same agreement held good as to woodwork and decorating plaster, and the senator added these to the list.

Architect Hull became president and treasurer of the new company to operate the Henry Bonnard foundry, which made a bid for general business while it devoted the most of its energy to manufacturing supplies for the Clark mansion. The foundry promises to be the only survivor of the plants bought by the Montana millionaire. It has many contracts and promises to make real money for the senator.

The granite quarry has shut down, and the stone dressing plant at Portland is for sale. They have served their purpose in saving the senator $500,000.

At the decorative marble, woodwork and plaster plants at Ravenswood, N. Y., the men understand the situation and work, or, rather, don't work, accordingly. Slow progress is being made. Architect Hull is distracted. When asked recently for the story in detail Architect Hull shook his head, pointed to his gray hairs and said:

"They were brown when we broke ground for the Clark mansion."

Costly Underground Chapel.

An underground chapel, whose cost will total at least $50,000, has been begun by workmen underneath the chapel proper in the first floor of the chief building of the St. Mary's-of-the-Woods institution at Terre Haute, Ind., says the Indianapolis Sentinel. The chapel when finished will be the largest and most costly underground chapel in America. Models for the tiling, altars and furnishings will be brought from the east.

Seeds are sold to the children for one cent per package and fertilizer will be sold for a nominal sum, yet each child must purchase both; none are given free except for the school garden. The club season now closing has been a busy one those engaged in club work of all kinds have had many demands made upon them, and they have well earned a vacation.

The annual meeting of the Philergians was held the afternoon of May 16 at the home of Mrs. C. A. Bill, Hollis avenue. There was a large attendance of club members. The season of 1904-5 has been of interest and benefit, not only to club members, but to many others, and invitations have been extended to officers of other women's clubs, to teachers and pupils of the public schools of Braintree, and to many others who will enjoy membership in the Philergians the coming season. The club is indebted to Dr. William Gallagher for an interesting talk on Shakespeare, to Mr. Thomas A Watson for a lecture on Beethoven, to Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern for the use of the stereopticon used at Monatiquot hall in connection with the lecture given by Mrs. Huntington Smith, president of the Animal Rescue league of Boston. During the afternoon the officers for the coming season were elected:

Among the contributors were: Dr. Edward Everett Hale, Charles Fleischer (Rabbi), Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Mrs. A. C. G. Ellsworth, Mrs. Otis B. Oakman, Mrs. Ella Sheppard Gallagher, Mrs. William Rogers and others.

A social hour was enjoyed, this being the last meeting of the club at the homes of members. Refreshments were served by Miss Marion Clark and Miss Eunice Kimball of Cohasset.

CHINA STIRRED UP

Resents Our Interpretation of Exclusion Law

MAY BOYCOTT AMERICANS

Hostility to Our Products Due to the Transfer of Negotiations From Washington to Chinese Capital--Regret of Diplomats

Washington, May 20.—All hope of the success of the pending negotiations of the new Chinese exclusion treaty has for the present been abandoned by the Chinese officials as a result of the wave of resentment that has swept over China since it became known that it was planned to transfer the negotiations to Pekin and that the department of commerce and labor was insisting upon its own interpretation of the exclusion law.

Reports have reached the Chinese legation of the extent of this feeling throughout the Chinese empire and of the hostility of the Chinese commercial guilds to American goods, which might result, it is asserted, in a general boycott against American products, even were it possible to conclude the exclusion treaty now.

The Chinese legation here declares that there is no intention of bringing suit in the supreme court of the United States in behalf of Chinese excluded or deported in violation of the treaty of 1888. All such infringements of that treaty the legation holds to be diplomatic matters entirely, and an appeal will be made not to the courts, but to the state department. Briefly put, the decision of the legation here, which reflects that of the Pekin government, is stated as follows:

"The expiration last December of the exclusion treaty of 1894 leaves in force the treaty of 1880. The legation does not for a moment question the right or the duty of the department of commerce and labor to enforce existing laws. The relations of the United States and China are, however, regulated by treaty and not by laws, and it is to be expected that any violation of existing treaties will be fully compensated for by indemnity.

"In the immigration treaty of 1880 article 1 provides that the limitation or suspension of Chinese immigration to the United States shall be reasonable and shall apply only to Chinese who may go to the United States as laborers, other classes not being included in the limitation."

The first claim for damages reached the legation yesterday from a Chinese merchant arrested in Seattle, and is now being investigated.

General John W. Foster, former secretary of state, and for a long time the adviser of the Chinese legation, will give the minister such counsel in the adjustment of these difficult questions as he may wish.

Sir Chentung Liang Cheng expresses keen regret that affairs have taken this turn. It was the hope of the minister and of Secretary Hay that the fact that Mr. Rockhill was to take up the matter in Pekin would be kept quiet, but this news has leaked out and has reached China. The opposition of the Chinese to this proposed move, it is pointed out here, arises from their belief that the minister at Washington is far more capable of knowing the wishes of the Chinese in this country than is their own government and that in negotiating an immigration treaty with the American minister at Pekin the Chinese negotiators would be at great disadvantage.

Sir Liang has leased a cottage at Amherst, Mass., the scene of his school days, and will spend the summer there with his family.

Means That Railroads Must Settle

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 20.—Judge Wanty, in the United States circuit court, dismissed the bill of complaint filed by 23 railway corporations against the auditor general of Michigan to restrain the state from collecting the taxes levied on them under the ad valorem tax law for the year 1902. The decision involves about $4,000,000 uncollected taxes, with interest for about two years.

Taunton Man Wants Second Place on Bay State Ticket

Boston, May 20.—Frederick S. Hall of Taunton announced his candidacy for the lieutenant governorship last night. He will contest the nomination with Eben S. Draper of Hopedale. In a signed statement, he says:

"The southern part of the state has not for many years been represented on the Republican state ticket, in either of the two leading places, although always a strong contributor to Republican majorities, and its claims ought to be considered.

"While the high office to which I aspire is not in itself concerned with the tariff question, yet I recognize the right of Republican voters to know my position thereon.

"I most heartily endorse and believe in President Roosevelt and his attitude regarding large aggregations of capital, the revision of the tariff, and reciprocal relations with other nations.

"I am not one of those who consider the ground surrounding the protective tariff too sacred for one to tread when once planted, but rather do I believe that it is our duty as Republicans at times to review its operations, to examine into its effect upon our different industries, to purge it of such iniquitous trusts as it may at all be disposed to create and foster, and to encourage reciprocity 'which reciprocates' with Canada and other countries."

Dynamite to Blow Up Train

Livermore Falls, Me., May 20.—Dynamite in sufficient quantities to have blown up a train was found placed on the rails and between the joints of the Maine Central railroad tracks just beyond this town. It was discovered by a contractor who has used large amounts and who quickly recognized it while walking along the tracks a short time before a heavy freight train was due to pass, followed by a passenger train. Officers are conducting an investigation.

Boston, May 20.—As the result of the sensational developments at the Taunton insane asylum during the past few weeks, culminating in the escape of Grace Darby, the so-called "Mad Venus," the legislature will be asked to make a sweeping investigation of the entire system of commitment and care of the insane in the state. An order to this effect is to be offered in the house on Monday by Representative Skerett of Worcester.

Steamship Rivalry

Boston, May 20.—The Herald says that Boston capital has been interested in plans which have for their ultimate object a bitter contest for supremacy with the Plant Steamship company, and that application will be made for a Massachusetts charter for the Boston and Nova Scotia Steamship company, with a capital of $100,000. The plan is at present to make two trips weekly between Boston and Halifax.

Straine Claims to Be Bankrupt

Held on Forgery Charge

Littleton, N. H., May 20.—George J. Lavasseur of Dalton was arrested here, charged with forgery. He was held in $500 bail for the September term of the superior court. It is alleged that Lavasseur passed four checks bearing the signature Robert Peckett. Lavasseur had worked at a hotel at Franconia, of which Robert Peckett is proprietor.

GUILTY OF MURDER

Jury Quickly Settles Fate of Johann Hoch

VERDICT STAGGERS HIM

Modern Bluebeard Soon Recovers Composure and Declares He is Ready to Die--Goes to Cell Whistling a Lively Tune

Chicago, May 20.—Johann Hoch, who, by his own confession, is a polygamist, and who is charged by the police with having married at least 40 women in the last 15 years, was found guilty by a jury of murdering the next to his last wife, Marie Welcker Hoch. The death sentence was recommended by the jury.

Hoch had been married to Mrs. Welcker only a short time when she became suddenly ill and died. He then married the sister of the dead woman and, securing the sister's money, fled from Chicago. This Mrs. Hoch told the police that Hoch had poisoned her sister, and a search for Hoch was begun. He was found two weeks later in New York and brought to Chicago and confronted by several alleged wives. During the trial expert testimony was offered by the state that Hoch had poisoned the woman by administering arsenic.

The verdict was reached in less than half an hour. Three ballots were taken. The first ballot was unanimous as to Hoch's guilt, and then a ballot followed as to the punishment to be inflicted. This ballot showed 10 in favor of the death penalty and two for life imprisonment. A third ballot resulted in the 12 jurymen voting for the death penalty.

"Well, I guess it's all off with John," groaned Hoch, as the verdict was read in court. He was greatly affected. He had sat in a stooping position, but when the word "death" was read, he turned pale, stared hopelessly at the jurors and then sank limp in his chair.

Hoch's attorneys will ask for a new trial, although the condemned man declared he was ready to die and would be better satisfied if they did not make an effort to save him. "I wish they would hang me tonight, now that I have been found guilty," declared Hoch. "I am not afraid to die and the sooner it is over with, the better."

Hoch expressed surprise at the finding of the jury and declared that the jurors did not take time to consider the evidence. "The evidence was all circumstantial," he said, "and my life was 'guessed' away by the jury, which did not give sufficient consideration to the testimony offered."

Hoch denied positively that he had murdered a number of wives, as has been alleged, and displayed bitterness in speaking of the matter. Hoch said he preferred the death penalty to life imprisonment and then commenced to whistle a lively air as he returned to his cell.

Lightship Missed the Racers

Newport, R. I., May 20.—No craft resembling any of the fleet of yachts sailing from Sandy Hook to the Lizard for the trophy offered by the Emperor of Germany has been sighted by the Nantucket lightship since Thursday midnight, when a vessel, believed to be the Earl of Crawford's Valhalla, was seen four miles from the lightship. It is believed that all of the yachts passed the lightship in the fog and that the Valhalla was the last to pass. The yachts, flying before a fair wind, must now be many miles out upon the ocean.

It is said that the cash involved will be over $6,000,000 and that when all are secured a new coal combine will be formed.

Wood Gets Thirty Years

Somerville, N. J., May 20.—George H. Wood, on trial for the murder of George Williams, has been sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment. His story of a Jekyll and Hyde personality has startled and shocked the country. Unnerved by the statement of County Detective Totten, that he has found the men supposed to be figments of Wood's disordered brain, he changed his plea to guilty of murder in the second degree.

The Friend Of the Stranger

A Memorial Day Story
By HOWARD FIELDING

Copyright, 1904, by Charles W. Hooke

"THERE'S a young lady over there whom I know," said Graydon in a tone which indicated a very agreeable surprise. "I believe I'll run across and speak to her." He was upon the point of rising when his companion laid a restraining hand upon his arm and asked, "Where?"

"In the little whiz cart just by the end of the reviewing stand—white hat with a black plume. See her?"

"Yes," was the reply; "I see her. But I wouldn't go over there if I were you."

Graydon turned, with a puzzled look.

"Why not?" he asked.

"You'd better get some of the names of the dignitaries on the reviewing stand before the speechmaking begins. You won't have more than five or ten minutes."

"I guess you're right," said he. "I'd better stick to my job. What the deuce I should have done without your help I really don't know. I've no more notion about reporting an affair of this kind than your horse has. And now, Mr. Blake," he added, poising his pencil, "if you'll give me a few of those names you will earn once more the blessing of the stranger."

"How long have you been doing newspaper work?" asked Blake.

"Nearly two years. But I've never done any general reporting. I began to write book notices for the paper during my last year in college, and the editor offered me a regular job after graduation. I've done a few theaters, concerts, lectures and that sort of thing, and it seemed to me that a Memorial day celebration wouldn't offer any great difficulties, especially as I write shorthand and can get all I want of the speeches without bother. But in regard to incidents and people I'd have been all at sea if you hadn't picked me up at the depot. You see, I was never here before and don't know a soul"—

"It's queer that your city editor should have sent a stranger," remarked Blake. "Couldn't he get hold of some one who knew this town?"

"Everybody else was busy," replied Graydon, "and the city editor had a row with our regular correspondent here and fired him yesterday."

At this moment the girl in the automobile looked in their direction and made the smallest possible gesture of recognition.

"Upon my word!" grumbled Graydon, reaching into the bottom of the wagon to pick up his pencil, which he had dropped in his hurry to raise his hat. "She didn't recognize me. She bowed to you."

"I have the pleasure of a slight acquaintance," said Blake, with a gravity which struck Graydon as odd and even mysterious.

He was about to address a question to his companion, but Blake seemed to perceive his intention and to avoid the subject hastened to give the names of the dignitaries upon the reviewing stand. Graydon jotted down the names mechanically, but his mind was busy with another matter. Why did Blake use this peculiar tone in speaking of Miss Lorrimer? There was a vague suggestion in it that the young lady was hedged about by some peculiar misfortune.

"I met Miss Lorrimer at class day two years ago," said Graydon in the first pause, "and I've seen her half a dozen times since then at the houses of friends in Boston, but the last time was nearly a year ago. I've led the life of a galley slave of late, with my confounded work on the paper and a soul harrowing melodrama that I've been trying to write. I haven't been anywhere nor seen anybody. Do you know the gentleman who is with her?"

"Her husband," said Blake. And, having spoken the words, he shut his lips together in a straight, hard line.

Graydon's notebook slid off his knee, but he did not stoop for it. He stared at the mass of people on the stand, and their murmur seemed to rise into an excited clamor.

"Who is he?" he asked. And he was amazed at the change in his voice.

"John C. Kirby," responded Blake, with a nod. Then Mr. Stearns pointed to you. And uncle was crazy, because if he hadn't promised he would have gone over and talked to you."

Graydon pressed his hand to his forehead.

"Let's think," said he. "Let's see what this means. That fellow met me here this morning. He introduced himself under the name of Blake and said he was on the press committee and would take care of me. I was very grateful, because I'm absolutely green about this business and hadn't an acquaintance in the city. He has stuck to me ever since and has given me points"—

"What kind of points?"

"The names of people and—and all that."

"Let me see some of them."

Graydon gave her a sheet of copy.

"You may know some of these," he said. "They're the ladies in charge of the singing"—

Miss Lorrimer glanced at the paper and burst into uncontrollable laughter.

"I happen to know them," she said as soon as she could speak, "because their names have been in the local paper here a great many times in the last few days. There has been a very amusing strike of the scrubwomen in Carvell & Co.'s dry goods store, and these"—she pointed to the sheet of copy—"these are the women!"

Graydon was pale with rage.

"In another minute," he said hoarsely, "I should have telegraphed this awful nonsense to my paper. It would have cost me my job, and Mr. Stearns, alias Blake, would have been very neatly revenged upon our city editor who fired him. If I hadn't met you"—

"That was what Mr. Stearns was anxious to prevent," said she. "Of course I should have told you who he was, and that would have spoiled the plot."

"He was clever, very clever," said Graydon between his teeth. Then he suddenly extended his right hand, pointing.

Miss Lorrimer caught a glimpse of the face of Stearns, alias Blake, at the corner of the depot, and the next moment she was alone and anxiously awaiting the noise of combat.

Five minutes later Graydon returned, wrathful and disappointed.

"I missed him," he said. "He dodged me somehow." He glanced at the sheets of copy and the notebook which she had gathered up during his absence. "What in the world shall I do about this yarn?"

"It is sublimely ridiculous," said she, "so far as I can judge. There isn't a name that's right, and some of your 'facts' are uniquely twisted. But I know most of the people, and we can fix it up together. Uncle will be here in a few minutes, and he'll help us."

"Uncle!"

"Oh, I'll engage to manage him," said she. "He has a hasty temper, but at heart he is the kindest of men."

"I don't much care what he is," said Graydon, with deep feeling, "so long as he's your uncle—only your uncle."

with the manner of a sullen and angry witness in court.

The sentiments of Blake in regard to this matter constituted a puzzle which might have interested Graydon powerfully except for the greater interest in his own. He might have interpreted one by the other and have reached the natural conclusion that Blake had been in love with Miss Lorrimer, perhaps without realizing it until too late. This was not quite his own situation, for there had been moments when the promptings of his own heart had been unmistakable.

That Blake could ever have hoped to win Miss Lorrimer's love seemed hardly probable, for he lacked the qualifications, so far as Graydon could judge, by so brief an acquaintance.

"I think I will go over and speak with Mrs. Kirby for a moment after the exercises," said Graydon.

"Don't do it," said Blake laconically.

"Is Kirby afflicted with jealousy?" asked Graydon, half in jest.

"Yes," was the grave response. "It's a mighty sad story."

At this moment there was a call to order, and the assemblage slowly grew quiet. With the aid of Blake's local knowledge Graydon was able to follow the preliminaries leading up to the oration of the day by General Philip Harwell.

There had been a rumor that the general would deal with up to date politics in a somewhat lively manner, and Graydon was fearful that important points would escape him because of his dense ignorance of political matters. But those who had started this rumor had maligned Harwell. He stuck to the theme and lessons of the day and made a really admirable address.

Just at the close of the address Blake touched Graydon's arm and directed his attention to the motor car, whose occupants the young man had been mercifully permitted to forget for a few minutes. Graydon was just in time to see Kirby reach across and take from her hand something that looked like a visiting card. He glanced at it and then glared like a dragon. Raising his head, his eyes met Graydon's, and the young man felt as if he had received a blow from a club.

"What's the matter with that old villain?" he whispered to Blake. "Is he crazy?"

"Something of the sort," was the answer. "It's a tragedy."

"But why—why in the world did she marry him?"

Blake shook his head.

"She is an orphan, as you know," said he; "she had no one to advise her."

"Advise her!" echoed Graydon. "That man's face is advice enough, I should think. Why the deuce does he glare at me so?"

"It's queer, and that's a fact," said Blake. "Can it be possible that one of her friends has recognized you and has sent that card to tell her that you are here? Some silly girl may have done it, and that would be enough to excite Kirby's jealousy."

Graydon was beginning to be angry.

"There's no reason why I should be afraid of him," said he. "I'm going over there by and by."

"To please yourself," said Blake gravely, "and to raise a trivial unpleasantness for her."

The obvious justice of this criticism affected Graydon for the moment and he devoted his attention to the proceedings. But there was a streak of obstinacy in his disposition and he held to his purpose.

"You'd better stick to me," said Blake when the speaking was done. "I'll drive you down to the depot, and you can put your stuff on the wire for Boston in time for the late afternoon editions of your paper."

"I'll be with you in three minutes," responded Graydon as he sprang from the wagon.

He made his way toward the automobile, and as he approached he was greeted with a frightful frown from Kirby, while the lady gave him a hasty nod and turned her face away. It was her manner which decided Graydon's course. He sadly acknowledged her salute and pressed on, making a circuit through the departing throng and returning to the point where his serviceable chance acquaintance awaited him.

During the ride to the depot he devoted himself wholly to business, setting his notes in order so that he could transcribe them more rapidly and adding various details suggested by his companion.

"You can sit in the wagon and write your stuff out," said Blake. "When you get a batch ready go in and file it with the operator. Then come back. Perhaps I can help you out as you go along."

"I can file my introduction and the names of the committees and notables now," said Graydon. "Then I'll come back and do the speeches."

As he entered the waiting room of the station on the way to the telegraph office he glanced through a window opposite and saw Mr. and Mrs. Kirby. Their heads were framed as in a picture. In a moment they vanished, one to the right and the other to the left.

Graydon ran across the room and went out upon the platform under the grimy, vaulted roof of the shed. Mrs. Kirby, alone, was walking slowly toward some seats where the usual human miscellany was waiting for trains. Graydon overtook her just as she was about to sit down.

"I beg your pardon," said he. "I"—

She turned, startled, and glanced at him and then beyond him in a manner most significant. Obviously she expected Mr. Kirby to appear at any moment.

"Mrs. Kirby," said he, "I couldn't go away without speaking one word"—

She stared at him blankly.

"Mrs. Kirby?" she repeated. "Who is Mrs. Kirby?"

"Why — why — you, of course," he stammered.

"I don't understand," said she. "But you mustn't stop to explain. My uncle is coming, and he will be very angry."

"Who—who is your uncle?"

"The gentleman who was with me."

"Is Mr. Kirby your uncle?"

"I don't know any Mr. Kirby. My uncle's name is Lorrimer—James Lorrimer. I have mentioned him to you."

"But what have I done to him?" gasped Graydon. "Why is he angry with me?"

"My goodness!" she replied, with spirit. "Why shouldn't he? You practically accused him of robbing the bank."

"I?"

"The story that you wrote in your paper about the Farmers' bank of this city simply made him furious."

"But I didn't write it," he protested. "I never even read it. I saw the headlines, but I didn't know there was anything in it about him."

"Mr. Stearns says you wrote it."

"Mr. Stearns? I don't know him."

"He is your paper's correspondent here, and he says"—

"The rascal! He probably wrote the story himself. He was fired from the paper yesterday. That's why I'm here today. I'll look Mr. Stearns up before I go back to Boston and gently reprove him"—

"But you were with him today. You were in a carriage with him at the unveiling of the monument, and he sent a card to us while General Harwell was speaking. He wrote on it, 'If you will promise not to make any use of the information before tomorrow I will tell you who wrote that bank story.' Uncle looked at him and gave his promise

SHE STARED AT HIM BLANKLY.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Another big "legitimate" star is to head the Keith bill the coming week. Edwin Stevens, who was lately seen in Boston as leading man with Henrietta Crossman in "Sweet Kitty Bellairs," is to be the big feature for the week of May 22. Mr. Stevens is one of the most versatile comedians on the stage today and his contribution to the Keith program will be an interesting monologue entitled, "A Night Off." The surrounding show is of exceptional strenght and includes Bert Leslie, Bob Daily and company in one of the most mirth-provoking sketches seen in the varieties, entitled, "Going Abroad;" Reno and Richards, comedy acrobats, than whom there is none more clever; Will F. Denny, a pleasing descriptive vocalist; Otto Brothers, German dialect comedians; the La Vine Cimaron trio, comedy acrobats and dancers, and Delphino and Delmora, grotesque musicians, Spessardy's Bears have been engaged for the amusement of the children. The Biograph will show a new and interesting list of motion pictures.

BOSTON THEATRE.

The high tide of popularity has been reached with "The Earl and the Girl" at the Boston Theatre, where that bright, breezy jolly and jingling musical comedy is playing to extraordinarily large patronage nightly, with a prospect of "standing room only" for an indefinite period. To the Shubert Brothers is due the credit for the magnificence of this production and the selection of so excellent a company, but the play itself bears the unmistakable stamp of the English makers of musical comedies. They undoubtedly surpass the Americans in the writing of stage songs however much we are their masters in wit and stage "business." Somehow or other they get an element of daintiness and prettiness in their musical pieces which is not found in the American product, and which is a marked characteristic of "The Earl and the Girl." Novelty is the keynote of this, the latest and in many respects the best of all the Shubert productions, It is so brand new so rich in pretty girls blest with talent, so pretty with modest, immaculate scenic investiture and costumes, and so cheery with typically clever English songs that it has proven a veritable treat for all, even for the jaded theatregoer, "The Earl and the Girl" wrs a stupendous success in London, where it has run for over a year and is still the rage. It was equally as great a success in Chicago, and Boston evidently finds it the most palatable dish of the season's menu. Missing it you miss the very best of the season's offerings at the Boston theatre. There are Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The long promised production of the romantic play "A Gentleman of France" will make next week's attraction at the Castle Square Theatre. This is the stage version of Stanley Weyman's novel made by Harriet Ford, and originally produced by Kyrle Bellew, and his company a little over two years ago. The author of the dramatic version of the familiar novel has succeeded most admirably in presenting its love story with the picturesque and often spectacular surrounding of its scenes in a most effective fashion, and has condensed the action with rare skill and judgment. The opportunities for elaborate scenic effects afforded in this play will be fully improved, much time having been given by the scenic and mechanical departments of the theatre to duplicating the designs made for the original production. A large number of extra people will be introduced in this production. It is stated that the Castle Square Theatre will, as usual continue its performances uninterruptedly throughout the summer months, a summer season, under the management of those who have been identified with the theatre during the larger part of its history, following immediately upon the conclusion of the present season, and subscribers can continue their seat holdings with the usual notice.

If there were fewer cigarette butts thrown away in Atlantic, there would be less temptation for the small boys to finish them in solitude and impish delight. A passer-by this week come upon three babies seated with their backs against a high fence, smoking a common cigarette, the limit being four puffs each and then pass. Their delight was so intense and absorbing that they did not see the base intruder until after several minutes. Then, instead of feeling guilty, they proudly answered all questions and continued building their own small coffins.

Herald Coupons.

The last coupon in the School contest will be printed by the Herald on Sunday, June 11. There are only twenty-five days more, therefore, in which to gather the votes. The chances are excellent for Miss Julia E. Underwood of this city being one of the guests of the Herald on the excursion to the Clark and Lewis Centennial at Portland, Oregan in July. Because Miss Underwood is not one of the first three in the list today should not cause discouragement because she has a very large reserve vote. However, active work will be necessary from this time out. A few additional workers would make success easier. Coupons should be sent at least once a week to Frank F. Prescott, care Quincy Daily Ledger. Those who have been holding votes, should forward them now.

FURNITURE.

Some Hints About How to Keep It In Proper Condition.

To be in proper condition a piece of furniture must shine as though just polished.

It can easily be made to do this if it is rubbed weekly with a mixture of one-quarter vinegar and three-quarters prepared table top oil.

Apply this with a flannel, polish with a large piece and then finish polishing with a fresh flannel. A brisk sponging in cold water, immediately wiped off, is said to restore the gloss to rosewood when it has assumed a gray film.

Gilt furniture is cleaned with a cream of alcohol and sifted whiting. If a spot does not come off at once touch it lightly with alcohol. Deep dirt or tarnish needs to be washed with borax suds, wiped dry and then covered with the whiting and allowed to dry on. Remove this with a stiff brush later and polish with a soft leather.

Vermin in upholstery can be removed by injecting beneath the covers a solution of white carbolic acid and turpentine, one-fifth being carbolic.

Nothing is so destructive of furniture as too much dry furnace heat. It may prove helpful to keep a large bowl of water in the room, so that the air may absorb moisture from it.—Home News.

TASTE IN THE HOME.

Do Not Mix Costly With Commonplace Furnishings.

Nothing so clearly evidences the refinement of a home as daintily served meals. The room may be plain and cheaply furnished, the table linen coarse, the tableware inexpensive, yet an air of refinement is quite possible, and there need be no hesitation in offering such hospitality to people in any walk of life, says the Philadelphia Bulletin.

It is better to have a home harmonious throughout than to mix costly and commonplace furnishings. French china and cut glass in any appreciable quantity belong to deep purses that do not feel the results of accidents. They require too much care to make them desirable for homes where there is nobody to help the mistress of the establishment. To secure the greatest amount of comfort at the least expenditure of strength and time ought to be a problem worth studying, and to further its solving there are all sorts of aids, like ready made sheets and pillowcases, bed puffs, cheaper than one can buy materials and make them at home; inexpensive washable materials for draperies and couch pillows and a host of other things.

LAUNDRY LINES.

Dish towels should always be washed by themselves.

A little borax in the last rinsing water will make handkerchiefs easier to iron and look better when done.

Two conveniences for ironing day are the small iron, only about four inches from tip to tip, for ironing lace and embroidery and the pointed iron for ironing gathers and shirt waist sleeves.

In ironing handkerchiefs it is useful to remember that the middle should be ironed first. To iron the edge first causes the middle to swell out like a balloon and makes it difficult to iron satisfactorily.

A laundress recommends inclosing knitted or crotched articles that are to be washed in a bag during the whole process of washing and rinsing, saying this prevents the stretching of the yarn, which gives the article the objectionable "stringy" appearance.

Bedroom Shoe Box.

Shoes are the greatest bugbear in the bedchamber. One device for disposing of them satisfactorily is a box made to fit under the window and covered with denim or cretonne which tones in with the predominating color of the room. Of course the top is padded in quite the usual way, and the cretonne is put on in box plaits. The unusual part is the inside. It is lined with bags, one for each shoe. Shoes no longer lie in the bottom jumbled in anyhow. The bottom is reserved for stockings or, better still, for shoe polishes and cloths.

Bruised Furniture.

Bruises in furniture may be taken out as follows: Wet the part with warm water. Double a piece of brown paper six times thick. Soak it and lay it on the place. Apply on that a hot flatiron until the moisture is evaporated. If the bruise has not gone repeat the process till the dent or bruise is raised level with the surface.

Do Not Discourage Laughter.

Do not try to check laughter among the children, and, indeed, it would be well if mothers would laugh oftener. Laughing is a healthful, lung developing exercise and is particularly good for boys and girls. Humor can be cultivated without undue frivolity and quickness of repartee without acquiring the habit of sarcasm.

Just Count Ten.

When you find your voice going up to an ugly pitch in an argument just stop for a second—at once—and count up to ten. Try it once and see what a wonderful effect it has. You begin again several notes lower, and, strange to say, you don't feel as excited as you did. It's a good piece of training.

Rice Kettle.

A rice kettle to boil rice perfectly has an inner basket with a very close mesh. The rice, washed in several waters, is placed in the basket, and this is plunged into boiling water, where the rice cooks without danger of burning. When the water boils away the rice still cooks in the steam.

—It cost $5 each for four young men to enjoy the fun of breaking a window in the Wilson school building in Natick on Tuesday evening. There are several boys in Quincy who ought to pay five dollars for the same kind of fun.

The air was a little cool this morning, although the weather was pleasant.

INFERIOR Extracts Dangerous.

Lack of Color Supplied by Aniline Dyes.

DESIRE FOR PROFIT LEADS TO ADULTERATION.

Foss' Extracts Driving Out Impure Pantry Concoctions.

FOSS' EXTRACTS ARE FRUITS IN LIQUID FORM.

Think of it housewives, chefs, keepers of restaurants, owners of hotels—a sheet of wool and silk five feet square has been dyed with the artificial coloring matter found in a small quantity of strawberry flavoring extract.

These inferior extracts are made from oil extracted by distillation, rather than by the cold or hand process. The oil obtained by distillation is colorless, and to give the extract the proper color aniline dyes are used. The desire for profit leads to the adulteration not only of the extract but of the essential oil itself. Wood alcohol, a rank poison, enters into cheap lemon extracts.

There should be a limit to the willingness of parents to give their children these poisons in ice cream, cake and desserts.

Every cook whether plain housekeeper or professional chef should refuse to keep in their pantry these poisonous substitutes for the real Fruits. Foss' Pure Flavoring Extracts can be had at any grocers. They are well known to be merely the natural fruit in liquid form.

From the first appearance of Foss' Extracts, hotel chefs, cooking school teachers, and thousands of plain housewives entirely discarded the use of artificial extracts, and began to use nothing but Foss' Pure Flavoring Extracts because they know that they are using simply the natural fruit in liquid form.

Women who have just begun the use of these extracts are delighted at the dainty flavoring imparted to their desserts and surprised that the matter of flavoring should make so great a difference in the palatableness of their cooking. This is the comment in many homes, not only by those whose business it is to "taste" the food before serving, but by the men and women who only know the proof of the pudding by the eating.

There is something better than the old fashioned artificial extracts. Foss' Extracts are Fruits in Liquid Form. Not only are these modern extracts more delicate, purer and from every consideration of health more satisfactory, but they are much more economical, as less is required. Mrs. Lincoln in her recipe for Ice Cream, on Page 364 of her Boston Cook Book, orders Foss' Pure Extract of Vanilla, simply because it is fruit in liquid form, and the best. Try it and you will agree with her.

All grocers sell it in Quincy, Wollaston, Braintree, Weymouth and East Weymouth, South Weymouth, Atlantic and Norfolk Downs.

Arbitration Day.

The W. R. C. met with Miss Caroline Newcomb, on Wibird street, on Thursday evening, to observe peace and arbitration day. The house was very prettily decorated with American flags. There were readings by the patriotic instructor, Mrs. Eliza A. Penniman, and also readings by two of the past presidents, Mrs. Isabel A. Souther and Mrs. Angie D. Loud. After an evening most pleasantly passed, the exercises were closed with the Lord's Prayer and flag esalute.

AS A FAVOR.

How the Granite Agreement Was Reached.

Explained by One of the Manufacturers.

Statements from Union Side are Fabulous.

Editors Quincy Daily Ledger:

In your issue of the Daily Ledger of May 4, I noticed a statement from the committee of the Granite Cutters' Union, replying to the Granite Manufacturers' committees' affidavit. We have been looking for a reply for nearly two months.

As one of the committee of the manufacturers' side, and present at the meeting of the State Board of Arbitration, I will say that their statements are fabulous from beginning to end, and no one knows that any better than they do themselves. The clause they refer to in regard to the minimum wage was settled in this way. The minimum rate of wage to be 37 1-2 cents per hour. Any man, young or old, that cannot earn that rate by the piece bill, that he be tried on a stone in no case to figure less than $12.00: the committees representing both associations to set his pay on his earning power on that stone.

The above is the way the trouble was settled. But Mr. Duncan asked a favor of our committee: He said that he had a lot of branches of the union on his hands, and he wanted us to let his motion with the old man's clause go through with the assurance that our motion would prevail in Quincy. And their chairman and the other members of their committee gave us the same assurance, and it was settled on that basis, which they knew sufficiently well. I would like to ask Mr. Duncan why he could not get the chairman of his committee to sign his name to their statement. It is well there is still left one of the Union committee who stands by the true agreement.

Baby Abandoned.

Some parties unknown left a four-days-old baby girl upon the door step of the residence of Medical Examiner Jones some time about midnight Saturday. Patrolman Crooker had his attention attracted to the bundle by a noise that came from it, and upon investigation found it to be a live infant.

Dr. Jones was aroused, and the little stranger was taken into the house, and cared for until morning, when it was turned over to the Overseer of the Poor.

The infant was wrapped up in a strip of cotton cloth, and an old black skirt. There was no other clew to its owner. The police will try, and locate its mother.

No One Hurt.

Saturday morning about 8.20 a Quincy bound car on the Quincy Point line left the tracks near Edison Park street and ran across the street. Chief of Police Burrell and Councilman Stone were on board, and the prompt request of the Chief to remain seated prevented a panic. The car was filled mostly with women, but nobody was hurt, and the delay was of short duration. Had not the motorman stuck to his post and applied the brake hard the result might have been different.

Successful Anglers.

An item from Bangor, Maine, reports that the Hon. Russell Sears, former mayor of Quincy, Mass., Dr. Newton of Detroit, Clarence Burgin of Quincy and John R. Graham, president of the Bangor Railway & Electric Light Company, caught one day 39 good-sized fish, and on the following day the same gentlemen caught 70, including one 12-pound togue.

MT. WOLLASTON.

Our Beautiful Cemetery Grows More Attractive Each Year.

If there is any one particular time of the year when ones thoughts naturally turn toward our public cemeteries, it is just previous to Memorial Day. Coming in the spring of the year, as it does, it finds the sacred resting places of the dead looking at their best. Mt. Wollaston cemetery always looks fine, but never more so than this year. The recent rains have freshened things up and it is at the present time indeed a beautiful place to look upon.

Those lots that are cared for by the city, or are under perpetual care, show the work that has been done upon them.

During the past year the lawn plan which has done so much toward beautifying this spot has been continued, several lots having been regraded and placed upon this plan. It will be a fine thing when the whole cemetery is laid out on the lawn plan, and it is only to be regretted that it can not all be done at once. A great deal of labor will be required before all is done and it will be a number of years before it is completed.

Nothing has been done thus far this year about completing the Sea street side of the cemetery, upon which work was commenced last year. The Managers of Public Burial Places are considering the advisability of changing the original plan somewhat, so that nothing will be done toward completing this part of the cemetery until next month.

A large number of monuments and memorials have been erected since last May. Some of these are large memorials but the larger part of them are small stones or markers. Among the large monuments that have been erected during the year are those upon the Tisdale lot, the James S. Baxter lot, William Parker lot, Theophilus King lot, S. H. Prior lot, William Field lot, and C. A. Goucher lot. Other monuments erected are on the Moore, Owen Gibson, Edward Richardson, James B. Fletcher, F. P. Loud, Forbes Craig, and Mary McIntosh lots. Aside from these a very large number of smaller memorials have been erected.

BIG FIRE.

Smoke from the big fire below us Tuesday night damaged our stock. 200 Sample Parlor Sets, odd pieces and couches were slightly smoked. New samples must be placed on show. The old ones will be sold regardless of price. Sets which retail from $30 to $40 at $15—$50 to $60 sets at $25—$100 sets at $50, the same with couches and odd pieces. A number of Buffets, Dining Tables and Dressing Cases were also slightly marred. Only perfect samples can be on our floor, so everything must go at once. Remember this is a manufacturers' complete line of samples; they are the latest spring styles, and are marked way below the cost of production for immediate sale. It's the chance of a lifetime. Don't miss it.

COLONIAL DAMES

Hold Reception at Quincy Museum.

An Interesting Colonial Mansion.

Gov. Douglas was Unable to be Present.

The Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames held an informal reception Saturday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock in the Dorothy Q. house which has recently been restored so far as possible to its original state, and is now known as the Quincy Museum.

The reception was very largely attended and a pleasant afternoon was enjoyed in inspection of the house, and its ancient and historic furnishings.

It was expected that Gov. Douglass would be present at the reception, but he was unable to come.

A lunch was served during the afternoon.

The house has been restored outside and in to its original plan, and has already quite a collection of old-time relics. Whatever new furniture has been necessary is modeled after old lines and styles. The dining room has a table and chairs contributed by the Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge and is of Chippendale pattern and very solid and handsome. The kitchen is one of the most interesting places in the house, as it has all the old utensils used in spinning, carding and weaving and other home industries. Its immense fire-place has been put in order, and holds four or five logs six or more feet long. A flight of stairs leads from the kitchen to the secret chamber above, to which food was conveyed by a pulley running through a hidden closet.

One of the bedrooms has been furnished by Mrs. Mary Butler Olney and Miss Belle Butler, who resided so many years in this house. In this room there is a wonderful specimen of needlework in a counterpane weighing several pounds covered with cording and stitching. On the mantel in the room stands the tea-cup and saucer used for 40 years by Daniel Webster.

In one of the bedrooms is a quaint, old-fashioned bed, with trundle bed attached, with bedding complete, and arranged in old-time fashion.

Tutor Flynt's bedroom attracted a great deal of attention. It has an alcove where his bed always stood, with wooden doors to shut it in through the day. From this room a steep flight of crooked stairs leads to the room below, which was Tutor Flynt's study. This has an outside door of its own, so that the old scholar, wit and humorist could go in or out and report to no one.

Here, when he "fell," as his diary records, "into a hypochondrial disorder," he could mull it out alone, and spare the other members of the family.

Opening off the study is the old north parlor. On its walls is still the paper made in and sent from Paris to adorn the room for the wedding of Dorothy Q. and John Hancock. It is appropriate in design, being a representation of Venus and Cupid, in blue, with festoons of flowers in red. The coloring remains bright and clear.

The grounds about this old house are spacious and filled with romance. Here walked Edmund Quincy's five lovely daughters with their attendant swains. Here came John Adams, attracted by the "pert and sprightly Esther," but giving her willingly later to his friend, Jonathan Sewall, while he himself sat happily with Abigail Smith.

Here on the box hedge Dorothy Q. dried her laces and tended her flower beds.

Of the distinguished people who came here, there were Benjamin Franklin, Sir Henry Frankland and Lady Frankland, with many others. It is fitting this old house and grounds should be set apart as a memorial of the eventful past, and the Colonial Dames of Massachusetts are deserving of all honor for their earnest and faithful accomplishment of this worthy task.

There is a caretaker at the house all the time, and it is open to the public for a small fee.

D. E. Wadsworth, accompanied by his mother, is enjoying a much needed rest for two weeks in Virginia.

TWO FIRES AT ONCE.

Firemen Called to Boxes 35 and 441 Saturday Evening.

The alarm from Box 35 at 5.40 Saturday afternoon called the department to a fire on the roof of a shed on the Daniel Baxter estate on School street occupied by Mrs. Nelson. The fire was caused by sparks from a passing locomotive alighting on the dry shingles.

Quite a lively blaze was in progress when the department arrived but was soon extinguished.

While the department was at this fire another alarm was sounded from Box 441 at 5.50

The apparatus was quickly dispatched to this box, a line of hose and the hook and ladder company company being left at the Baxter fire.

The alarm from Box 441 proved to be a fire in the blacksmith shop at the Franklin Hardwick quarry on Quarry street. A lively blaze was in progress, and it was half an hour before the all out was sounded.

The building was unoccupied, and the fire was evidently the work of an incendiary.

The sounding of the second box before the recall for the first alarm had sounded acted as a second alarm and brought the Atlantic apparatus to the Central fire station to cover in. It was immediately sent back to its station, however.

☞Eyeglasses fitted scientifically. No guess work.—Williams.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Not more than one-half the steam boilers in Massachusetts are inspected, and it is only a guess where or when a repetition of the Brockton horror may be recorded. There is a bill before the Senate which provides that all steam boilers shall be inspected by the State officers, and it ought to become a law. One such horror as that at Brockton should be enough to prompt the Legislature to pass remedial measures. Owners are neglectful, and it is no wonder, for defects in a boiler are not readily seen, and other matters put thoughts of an inspection out of mind. If the law should say that every boiler must be inspected at least once a year, and provision is made for a force of inspectors to carry out the provisions of the statute, it would be done, and safety assured.—Lynn Item.

☞ An English visitor, in attendance upon the congress of railway men, remarking upon the railroad catastrophe at Harrisburg, criticises the American railroad management as careless. Explosives, he says, are carried in England on special trains wherever possible, and in any event are placed under the greatest care in transportation. Should an accident of this sort have occurred there the Board of Trade would have at one made a most thorough investigation of the cause and have devised ways and means by which the reoccurrance of the accident would have been prevented. Responsibility for such an affair would actually be fixed by the coroner's jury, and usually the fixing of responsibility is followed by suitable punishment. The force of the criticism will have to be admitted. The people are shocked by the story of the accident; there is no minimizing of its awfulness, but in the course of a few weeks it is apt to be forgotten and the very same neglect or carelessness which caused it are allowed to continue and are likely to cause a repetition of it at any time.—Haverhill Gazette.

STRIKE TO GO ON

Will Spread to Greater Proportions at Chicago

A STRIKE OF LUMBERMEN

It Promises a General Industrial Upheaval Throughout the City --Firm Stand Is Taken by the Express Companies

Chicago, May 22.—Sunday brought no change in the attitude of either side to the labor controversy now in progress in Chicago and everything points towards an extension of the teamsters' strike this week.

Officers of the seven express companies, whose refusal to reinstate any of their former employes caused the collapse of the settlement of the trouble Saturday night, still adhere to their determination not to give employment to their former employes, and the other firms involved in the difficulty declare that they will stand by the express companies in the fight. The Teamsters' union has taken just as firm a stand as the employers, and President Shea says that the union will not call off the strike until the express companies come to terms.

The first spread of the strike is expected to come when the Lumbermen's association, an organization employing 2400 teamsters, issues an order to their men today to make deliveries to all business houses, regardless of whether they are involved in the strike. In anticipation of such an order, the teamsters have voted to go on strike should any teamster be discharged for refusing to obey the order of the Lumbermen's association.

With non-union drivers making deliveries for the lumbermen, the strike will undoubtedly spread to affiliated industries, as the union men employed on buildings will refuse to handle material delivered by non-union labor. Should this lumbermen's strike be called today, and there is nothing that would indicate how it can be avoided, there seems to be nothing that can prevent a general industrial upheaval throughout Chicago.

Mayor Dunne and Sheriff Barrett spent Sunday in trying to ascertain the extent of the spread of the strike. During the afternoon a conference was held in the mayor's office. President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor was invited to attend the meeting. At the end of the conference Dunne said:

"Should there be an extension of the strike with a resumption of the rioting of two weeks ago there is a probability that troops will be called to maintain order."

Sheriff Barrett will continue swearing in deputies today and will make special efforts to increase the number.

AUTO WENT OVERBOARD

Its Four Occupants Had a Most Thrilling Experience

Hull, Mass., May 22.—John L. Mitchell, former selectman, his son, Fred, a daughter, Letitia, aged 7, and Frederick W. Vogel, 6 years old, son of a relative, after narrowly escaping collision with teams and pedestrians, nearly met death by drowning when their automobile, a heavy touring car, plunged from the steamboat pier at Pemberton into the swift running tide of Hull gut. When the automobile struck the water it overturned, and but for the skill of Mitchell, who was formerly a member of the Hull lifesaving crew, the two younger children might have drowned. He was aided in the rescue by employes of the steamboat company, and his son swam ashore without assistance.

The trouble started when the levers of the machine became cramped and it was impossible to stop the car. It headed straight down the pier, and, fearing that it would plunge from the head of the wharf, Mitchell reversed the lever, the car turned sharply, backed at full speed toward the side of the pier, narrowly missing carriages and the crowds of pleasure seekers, tore off a part of the superstructure on the wharf, then plunged into the water, 10 feet below.

The machine was recovered at low tide, and found to be little injured. The participants in the accident suffered no injury other than a drenching.

Little Wanderer Located

Templeton, Mass., May 22.—Wandering exhaustedly about the streets of Gardner, 13-year-old Philip C. Sanborn was found yesterday by a friend of the boy's family, and the lost youth, who has been missing since Monday last, was returned safely to his parents. The boy's father feared that his son had sought his own life, for the boy has been melancholy since the death of his little sister, a year ago. The girl died as the result of a gunshot wound inflicted accidentally by her brother. Ever since the disappearance of the little fellow an untiring search has been made by the parents, assisted by the local police and the townspeople here.

The Whiting, Ind., pipe line will be completed in a few days and then we can handle all the oil produced west of the Mississippi river." The Whiting line is to supply an outlet for 6,000,000 barrels of oil stored by the company in Kansas, and will complete a line that will reach half way across the continent.

A TARIFE TANGLE

Russian Duties Harmful to American Exporters

FAVORED NATION CLAUSE

United States Will Get Benefit of It If Present Dispute Is Adjusted, Otherwise Greater Burdens Will Be Imposed

St. Petersburg, May 22.—The desirability of securing the revocation of the imposition by Russia of the maximum duty on American imports, levied in retaliation for the imposition of a countervailing duty by the United States upon Russian sugars, which Ambassador Meyer is trying to adjust, is assuming additional importance, owing to the fact that the new Russo-German tariff, which goes into effect at the end of the year, will form the basis for a most favored nation clause.

That treaty raises the duties on machinery and other articles in which American exporters to Russia are especially interested, and the new general or maximum tariff with corresponding increases goes into effect simultaneously. Consequently, unless the Russo-American tariff dispute is adjusted, American duties are destined to bear still further burdens. If the dispute is adjusted the United States will get the benefit, under the favored nation clause, not only of the reductions accorded to Germany, but also under the new commercial treaty about to be negotiated with France.

The Russian government seems to be anxious to again place the United States on the most favored nation basis, but naturally would like to see the old status quo restored. However, Russia realizes the difficulty in the matter of the countervailing duty on sugar, which, without further legislation, was rendered res judicata by the decision of the supreme court of the United States, and therefore is willing to waive the question of sugar, but insists upon the removal of maximum duties upon by-products of petroleum, imposed by the secretary of the treasury, which affects English vaseline and other products manufactured from Russian naphtha.

The Russian government also demands a guarantee similar to the one in the new Russo-German treaty against any possible abuse of the favored nation clause by specifically binding each country in the future, under no circumstances or pretext, to levy duties on the products of the other in excess of those levied on similar products of a third power.

Ambassador Meyer has laid the matter before the state department and is awaiting instructions.

Burglars Discovered at Work

San Francisco, May 22.—An attempt to rob the stamp safe at the San Francisco postoffice early Sunday was frustrated by Watchman O'Connell, who saw one of the burglars drilling the safe. The burglars escaped with $1400 worth of stamps found outside the safe. The safe contained $14,000 in stamps and much money, while in the cashier's room adjoining the stamp department was a large safe which contained nearly $500,000.

Wife Poisoner Weakens

Chicago, May 22.—Johann Hoch, the convicted wife poisoner, who all through his trial seemed to regard the charge against him as a joke, and its possible outcome a matter of no consequence, spends the greater part of the day in his cell weeping, and at times his sobs are audible throughout the jail. His lamentations bring scanty sympathy from his fellow-prisoners, who jeer at him and urge him to "brace up and die like a man."

Barge Freight to Panama

Philadelphia, May 22.—In view of the possible difficulty of the national government in obtaining American vessels to carry supplies and machinery to Panama to be used in the building of the canal there, barge owners of this city will make an effort to get the business. Shipping men say that the scheme is practical, although no cargoes have ever been sent to Colon in barges.

Constantinople, May 22.—Roumania insists upon reparation for the act of the Vali of Yanina in arresting several Roumanian school inspectors in spite of the privileges conferred upon them by the porte. The Roumanian government declares that unless the demand for reparation is complied with, relations with Turkey will be broken off.

Cuban Liberals' Plans

Havana, May 22.—The national convention of the Liberal party adopted a few additions to the platform, including propositions for establishing a national militia and changing the provisions covering the functions of cabinet officers. It is expected that a presidential candidate will be nominated tonight.

APPEARING OLD

Acts as a Bar to Profitable Employment.

You cannot afford to grow old.
In these days of strenuous competition it is necessary to maintain, as long as possible ones youthful appearance.
It is impossible to do this without retaining a luxurious growth of hair.
The presence of Dandruff indicates the presence of a burrowing germ which lives and thrives on the roots of the hair until it causes total baldness.
Newbro's Herpicide is the only known destroyer of this pest, and it is as effective as it is delightful to use
Herpicide makes an elegant hair dressing as well as Dandruff cure.
Accept no substitute—there is none.
Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

STRIKE ARGUMENT

It Results In Shooting and General Riot

NON-UNION MAN KILLED

His Slayer Is Mortally Wounded by a Policeman-- Saloon Made an Object of Attact by an Infuriated Mob

Chicago, May 22.—Rioting resulted last night at 29th and Dearborn streets when James Gray, a negro non-union teamster, was shot dead by Harry Bernstein, a bartender, during an argument over the teamsters' strike. Bernstein was mortally shot by Policeman Tinsley, colored, and 1000 persons partly demolished a saloon into which Tinsley had taken the unconscious bartender.

This is the latest of several clashes between negroes and whites since Enoch Carlson, 8 years old, was shot and killed several days ago by two men, alleged to have been negro strike-breakers.

In a discussion of the strike and the shooting of Carlson, Gray and Bernstein fought in the street. Bernstein drew a revolver and fired four shots. Two of the bullets took effect in Gray's body and he fell dead.

Two negroes, attracted by the noise, seized the bartender and a fight for the revolver began. Policeman Tinsley, who has been appointed as a special policeman during the strike, ran up. Bernstein swung the revolver towards Tinsley and, it was said, discharged the weapon twice. Tinsley drew his own revolver and fired four shots, each of the bullets taking effect in Bernstein's body.

A crowd hurried toward Tinsley and the wounded man. Tinsley carried Bernstein into a saloon. The crowd, which was composed largely of negroes, cried for vengeance for the killing of Gray. Tinsley shut and barred the saloon door. The mob rushed at the building, but being unable to force the doors open, large stones and other missiles were thrown at the building and every window and fixture in the place was demolished.

Tinsley, in an effort to save Bernstein from the mob, had the wounded bartender taken into the basement and telephoned to a police station. Two patrol wagons and an ambulance filled with policemen hurried to the scene, but it was only after a desperate fight, in which several of the rioters were bruised with policemen's clubs, that the mob was forced back from the saloon, shouting for Bernstein, the slayer of Gray.

The police told the crowd that Bernstein had been killed and, placing the unconscious bartender on a stretcher, covered his face and showed the body to the crowd. This had a quieting effect on the crowd and the rioters soon dispersed.

After he had been revived in a hospital, Bernstein declared that Gray had started the trouble and that he had killed the negro in self-defense.

Russians Repulsed Twice

Tokio, May 22.—The following official report is published: "On May 19 the enemy, with two companies of infantry and two squadrons of cavalry, again attacked Chiengtzu, but was repulsed. Simultaneously the enemy, with one regiment of infantry and five squadrons of cavalry, actively attacked Chingango, but was entirely repulsed. There has been no material change at Changtu, except collisions with scouts, since we repulsed the enemy on May 18."

A Sorry State of Affairs

Honolulu, May 22.—Most of the white inhabitants at Lahaina, on the island of Maui, including the military, are prisoners in the courthouse, which is surrounded by striking Japanese laborers. One Japanese was killed and two were wounded by the police during an attack on a plantation mill. All the 2300 Japanese laborers on the island are now on strike and are showing a violent mood.

Zionist Colony In Mexico

Mexico City, May 22.—Gladstone Dowie, son of the Zion "prophet," John A. Dowie, and Judge Barnes, a legal adviser, are in the city completing details for the taking over of 1,000,000 acres of land for the purpose of establishing a colony in Mexico similar to that at Zion City, Ills. The papers closing the deal have been signed.

Drowning of Lifesaver

Charlotte, N. C., May 22.—E. L. Hughes and E. S. Faucett were drowned in the mill pond at Efland. Faucett was boating with a young woman and the boat capsized. Hughes rescued the woman, but when he tried to save Faucett the latter pulled him under and both lost their lives.

Meyer Arouses Criticism

St. Petersburg, May 22.—Ambassador Meyer's institution of a special messenger service to carry embassy dispatches to Berlin evokes sarcastic comment by the press of St. Petersburg. The Novosti says the new ambassador evidently puts light faith in the government's postal service.

Good Advice to Workmen

Lodz, May 22.—The leaders of the workmen's organization have issued a proclamation urging their followers to return to work and not heed the propaganda of agitators who have brought them to beggary.

"CROSSED HIS PATH"

Blacksmith Puts Bullet Into Neck of Former Employe

Bar Harbor, Me., May 22.—Martin Davis, a blacksmith, is suffering from a bullet wound in the neck received during a quarrel at a dance hall, just outside the village, and C. A. Weaver is under arrest, charged with the shooting. It is not believed that the wound will prove fatal unless blood poisoning sets in.

Weaver, who is also a blacksmith, met Davis at the hall and is said to have asked him why he had "crossed his path." They walked away together and soon became engaged in a fist fight, but Davis broke away from Weaver, shouting that the latter had a gun. The fight was renewed and this time a revolver was fired, the bullet entering Davis' mouth, lodging in the muscles of the neck. The bullet has not been removed.

After the shooting Weaver ran to his home, where he was arrested later. Weaver is 50 years old, the proprietor of a blacksmith shop, and Davis, who is 29 years old, was at one time in his employ.

No Trace of Baby Braley

Canaan, N. H., May 22.—Another unsuccessful search by a party numbering over 500 was made Sunday for traces of Elwyn C. Braley, the 27-months-old child of Ernest C. Braley, who, according to Mrs. Braley, disappeared from the farmyard on April 27. Among the places examined was an old well, which was bailed out and the bottom searched, but no body was found. The Braley farm has now been thoroughly examined without the slightest trace of the child being discovered.

Guilty of Malpractice

Boston, May 22.—Jonathan B. Dixon, a lawyer, has been ordered suspended from practising his profession in this commonwealth for a period of two years by a decision sent down by Judge Sheldon in the superior court. He is found not to have observed the requirements of his oath of office as an attorney, not to have conducted himself as a man of good moral character, and to have been guilty of malpractice and misconduct.

Bates Will Support Guild

Boston, May 22.—Ex-Governor Bates has announced that he will support Lieutenant Governor Guild for governor. This announcement was made last evening as the result of communications exchanged between the lieutenant governor and the former governor. Ex-Governor Bates writes that not only has he no desire to be the nominee for governor, but that he heartily supports Guild for the place at the head of the Republican ticket.

Shooting Scrape at Lynn

Lynn, Mass., May 22.—John Markway, 35, was shot by his father-in-law, Otis Pike, shortly after midnight, during a quarrel at their home, one bullet entering his arm, lodging in the shoulder, and the other entering his [illegible] mouth, emerging from his ob[illegible]neck. The victim's wounds [illegible]pital dangerously [illegible]ist. The [illegible] was a small calibred affair, and to this fact the doctors say Markway owes his life. Pike is under arrest.

Hit Prisoner With Hammer

Bridgeport, Conn., May 22.—Joseph Donatello, a prisoner at the county jail, who is serving a sentence for an assault, made an attack with a hammer upon Salvatori Spirito, another prisoner, and nearly killed him. Spirito will probably recover. Spirito had only one week more to serve for a minor offense. Both men have shown signs of dementia, each thinking the other was trying to poison him.

Party Broken Up by Death

Providence, May 22.—Charles Baker, an expressman, 51 years old, started with three friends on a clamming excursion in Narragansett bay. The party took a nap while waiting for daylight, and when the other men awoke Baker was missing. His body was discovered not far from shore, and it is thought that, being despondent, he committed suicide. Baker was a widower.

Officer's Gun Cowed Burglar

Boston, May 22.—At the point of a revolver, Patrolman Dennis Casey arrested Frank Conley, aged 22, after Conley had entered the liquor store of Alfred Anderson, 5 Long wharf. Conley was prepared to give battle to the officer. He had armed himself with a large bottle which he held in a threatening attitude. The sight of the officer's gun, however, quickly subdued him.

Death Rather Than Whipping

New Britain, Conn., May 22.—George Walker, 15 years old, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid near Mountain grove. A note signed by the boy stated that he killed himself because, if his parents had found out that he was suspended from school, he would "get such a whipping that he never would forget."

Asks Police to Find Husband

Lynn, Mass., May 22.—Mrs. Francis Riley has appealed to the police to aid her in a search for her 60-year-old husband, who she says disappeared about three weeks ago. She says that she can offer no explanation of his disappearance, and that his present whereabouts is a complete mystery to her.

Suicide In a Park

Providence, May 22.—The body of Oresti Buesci, a typesetter, 22 years old, was found in Davis park. Residents of the vicinity heard the report of a revolver, but when they arrived on the scene the man was dead. Buesci was unmarried and came from Italy about three years ago.

Yale Athletes Win

New Haven, May 22.—Yale's track athletic team easily won the annual dual meet with the Harvard team. The score was Yale 65 1-6, Harvard 38 5-6. In only one event was there anything like an upset to account for reversal of the experts' previous estimates of the strength of the two rival teams. This was in the mile run, when Alcott of Yale beat Grant of Harvard by sprinting in the last quarter, after the latter had been at his heels from the start.

Amhersts Are Champions

Worcester, Mass., May 22.—Amherst's athletes won for her the New England intercollegiate championship on Worcester oval for the fourth successive year, after one of the most exciting contests in the history of the association, the Dartmouth team being beaten by only 2 1-4 points. The other colleges were never factors in the fight for first place.

Saved Three From Drowning

Swampscott, Mass., May 22.—David J. Lee, Archie D. Lyons and William D. Fellows almost lost their lives by the overturning of a dory from which they were fishing. While one was engaged in hauling in a catch, one of the other men attempted to stand, upsetting the boat, and all three were thrown into the water. For nearly two hours they clung to the overturned craft, until Henry Douglas, who was out on a launch, sighted them and went to their aid. He fastened ropes about the waists of each, and pulled them aboard his boat, all but gone. Leaving the dory drifting out with the tide, he rushed for the shore. Willing hands removed the now unconscious men to the beach, where they were rolled, and the usual methods of resuscitation were administered.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

For fresh flowers in variety call at the Monatiquot greenhouses, or order by telephone.

Rev. T. H. Vincent of North Weymouth exchanged pulpits with Rev. Leon H. Austin on Sunday morning.

All the soldiers and sailors in the city have been invited to attend the morning service at the Quincy Point church on Memorial Sunday.

Weymouth, Milton, and the Metropolitan Park officers did a good automobile business on Sunday. Weymouth held up fifteen who were exceeding the limit.

A members handicap was played by Wollaston Golf club on Saturday in two classes. Dr. J. P. Treaner had the best net score in Class A. and F. A. Esterbrook in Class B.

By the looks of the vacant lots on Walker street, where a neighbor's cows are pastured, it is fortunate that these animals do not fly, else one would never be safe without an umbrella.

There is need of a public bathhouse at the Atlantic beach. Where there is so much bathing, the absence of this necessity is keenly field. A small advancement on the part of all those interested in swimming, would cover the expense of the building. Another opportunity for a young man to get out and hustle.

Mrs. Ward Whitcher of Webster street, Atlantic, is receiving subscriptions for a lecture to be given in Memorial church, Saturday, September 23, by Professor Edward Griggs, the interpreter of Shakespeare. This lecture will be given in the interest of the Shakespeare club of Atlantic, of which Mrs. Whitcher is president.

Funeral of Mr. Godfrey.

The funeral of Thomas F. Godfrey was held from his late residence, 18 Packard street, Sunday afternoon. The services were conducted by Rev. Leon H. Austin, and were largely attended. Many of Mr. Godfrey's fellow workmen were present. The casket was surrounded with beautiful floral pieces, including pillows, wreaths, baskets of flowers and many small bouquets. A quartette composed of Mr. E. P. Barrows, Mrs. Alice C. Selleck, Miss V. M. Carter and Mr. Charles H. Tower, sang three hymns: "There is a green hill far away," "We shall meet beyond the River," and "Nearer my God to Thee."

Shared the Honors.

The extended report of the reception [illegible] Underwood in Saturday [illegible]'s Ledger to Miss Underwood was prepared under considerable pressure in a very short time, so that omissions were almost expected, but to overlook Miss Mary E. Dearborn in the receiving party was almost unpardonable. We regret the omission, particularly as Miss Dearborn worked so hard for the success of the gathering. She certainly shared the honors of the occasion. Among those who assisted as ushers were also Miss Litch and Miss Linnell, assistant teachers at the Coddington.

New English Warships.

At Chatham dockyard on Saturday the first class battleship Africa of 16,350 tons was launched. She is of the King Edward VII. type.

The new armored cruiser Cochrane od 13,550 tons displacement, and of the Duke of Edinburgh type, was launched at Glasgow the same day.

Services for Norwegian people who have recently come to the city were held Sunday afternoon at 4.30 at the Bethany Congregational church, and conducted by Rev. Ludwig J. Pederson of the Norwegian Congregational church of Boston. One hundred or more were in attendance, and there was an orchestra accompaniment for the singing. Rev. E. N. Hardy, the pastor of the church, was in attendance. These services will probably be continued weekly as an increasing number of Norwegians are now employed at the shipyard.

CHANCE IS GOOD.

For Miss Underwood to Win in Herald Contest.

None of those who are interested in the success of Miss Julia E. Underwood in the Herald school contest should become discouraged because three of the condidates apparently have a big lead. The facts are that they have not a big lead, and that they fear Miss Underwood more than any one else in the contest. Only a few thousand votes are necessary for Miss Underwood to win, even if her rivals make another jump.

Perhaps some who think their coupons are going to Miss Underwood are being fooled. Very few votes for her are being received from either the John Hancock, the Lincoln, the Willard, the Gridley Bryant, the Massachusetts Fields or the Quincy school at Atlantic. If it is the wish of people in these districts that their votes go to teachers in Needham, Braintree, Newton and other places, all well and good. But Quincy should be united to win.

The bulk of the votes for Miss Underwood are coming from the Coddington, the Wollaston, the High, the Adams, the Cranch and the Washington schools, which are giving hearty support. Some out of town schools, and numerous non-residents, as well as Quincy friends, are helping materially. Should there not be a grand rally, and more united work during the closing three weeks?

It is already an assured fact that works of art will be awarded to Quincy, because there are 24 prizes to be awarded in this district. One of the ten prizes for pupils may come to Quincy, because Henry C. Prescott now stands number nine with over 17,000 votes, but Master Prescott cares more for the success of Miss Underwood than himself, so that coupons may be sent to any of the following pupils, or directly to the Daily Ledger Office:

Henry C. Prescott,
Lucien Thayer,
Charles Leet,
Kenneth Edwards,
Ernest Taylor,
Arthur Axberg,
Aubrey Chisohlm,

Harold Curtis,
Walter Kemp,
Bertha Foss,

Walter Demelman,

John Croston,
Bessie Gardiner,
Dorothy Codman,
Sherman D. Hayden.

Coupons may also be sent to Roger [illegible] W. B. Glover at Atlantic, H. Wilde or [illegible] West Quincy, or James H. Elcock at [illegible].

Miss Underwood's [illegible] Rival.

Mrs. Carrie Torrey Couchier of Wollaston adds an interesting incident to the fifty-year record of Miss Julia E. Underwood as a teacher in Quincy. It seems that Miss Torrey and Miss Underwood were both candidates in 1855 for the same position as teacher. Miss Torrey says the School Committee seemed to want Miss Underwood to have it from the start. Miss Underwood was 18 years old and Miss Torrey 16 years, so the School Committee informed Miss Torrey that she was too young and appointed Miss Underwood. Miss Torrey, however, says she was not too young for Boston because she commenced to teach in Boston the same month. She retired however several years ago.

Merrymounts Win From the Boston Unions.

The Merrymounts won from the Boston Unions at Merrymount Park on Saturday in a game marked by hard hitting and loose fielding.

The Merrymounts scored thirteen runs in the first two innings, and seemed to have a safe lead, but in the fifth the visitors began to bump the ball and kept it up until it was anybody's game.

The fielding of Atkins and Drake and catches by Baker, Donaher and Tom Callahan were the features of the game.

FOR BOTH

One disease of thinness in children is scrofula; in adults, consumption. Both have poor blood; both need more fat. These diseases thrive on leanness. Fat is the best means of overcoming them; cod liver oil makes the best and healthiest fat and is the easiest and most effective form of cod liver oil. Here's a natural order of things that shows why Scott's Emulsion is of so much value in all cases of scrofula and consumption. More fat, more weight, more nourishment, that's why.

THE DELICATE GIRL.

Butter Is More Nourishing For Her Than Cod Liver Oil.

"No, I should not advise cod liver oil," said a physician to a woman who was sorely worried over the condition of her young daughter. "The use of cod liver oil was a fad that has very largely passed. Fifteen years ago, I remember, every person who showed any tubercular symptoms was immediately put on a cod liver oil diet. It was very heating, the stomach rebelled against it, and altogether it was a rather mixed blessing. I doubt if a quart of cod liver oil is taken on a physician's prescription today where a barrel would have been twenty years ago.

"Have your daughter eat butter. There is no more valuable aid to the person with weak lungs and a low, depleted condition of the system than butter. Over in Scotland doctors have employed what they term the butter treatment with such marked success that there is talk of establishing a sanitarium to be devoted to it. There is no reason, however, why one who can command all the butter she needs and the right kind should have to go off to an institution set apart for the purpose.

"The butter eaten should be of the fresh, unsalted kind and not more than three days old. Where the patient takes kindly to fats such butter should form a large part of the diet.

"Butter is concentrated energy. In its pure form it is very largely hydrocarbon. It feeds not only the nerves, but the depleted tissues of the body. Where children or growing boys and girls are delicate and inclined to anaemia butter eaten in large quantities is one of the best tonics I know of, and these young people can nearly always take it easily. It is only adults who find they have livers."—New York Tribune.

A PRETTY CATCH-ALL.

It Makes a Desirable Addition to the Dressing Table.

A desirable addition to the dresser is a catch-all, in which may be dropped the numerous odd little things that a woman wants to put out of sight for the time being, so as not to litter up the drawers or top of her toilet table. The illustration shows a simple and pretty one. It has a foundation like a box. The four sides and bottom are covered with a soft shade of gray green linen embroidered in violets. These are laced together with narrow violet baby ribbon, and to the top is attached a silk bag which draws up and closes the box.

Stuffed Ham.

What to [illegible] that gives directions for a stuffed ham, which [illegible] ought to be very good. For a buffet supper it [illegible] would be especially attractive. A medium sized sugar cured ham is boiled [illegible] in the usual manner. When done, either slash it with a knife, making long, slanting slashes, or puncture to the bone with the carving steel. Prepare a stuffing of breadcrumbs seasoned with prepared mustard until the crumbs are quite yellow. Moisten with the water in which the ham was boiled. Mix with the dressing one onion chopped fine, a few sprays of parsley minced and plenty of pepper, black or red. Press this dressing in the slashes or punctures and glaze the ham over with white of egg. Take a large handful of crumbs, some as large as a grain of corn and others larger. Spread these over the top of the ham and moisten them with cream. Place in the oven long enough for the crumbs to brown, which will be long enough also to let the stuffing get hot. Garnish the dish with parsley or fine bunches of water cress.

Sweeping and Dust.

The more the subject is investigated the more evident does it become that all insoluble particles breathed into the lungs tend to work harm. Knife grinders, millers and ivory turners are apt to suffer from an irritating cough and develop inflammatory states of the lungs. Trades dealing with woven fabrics often act injuriously. Small pieces of cotton, wool and linen get into the air and so pass within the lungs. It may not be practicable to wear a respirator in a shop, but that should be the rule when the work is dusty and conducted in private. Even sweeping a room quite upsets some persons. A most efficient and very cheap respirator can be made by sowing a piece of cotton wool within some coarse muslin and attaching tapes or elastic.

An Artist's Idea.

Can you use a paint brush even the littlest bit? Then you can turn any inexpensive lace you happen to have into up to date and costly looking trimming. A lace that has a little leaf in the design will scarcely know itself after that same little leaf has been touched a most delicate green. Where there is a spray of tiny roses the palest pink and green rightly put on will be wonderfully effective.

"The main thing," said the girl artist who does this sort of thing, "is not to overdo it and not to introduce too many colors."

The Things That We're Going to Do.

Oh, the things that we're going to do!
How they lurk in each nook of our brain,
How they clamor for place and they struggle for space
And cry out to be done, but in vain!
How they trouble our slumbers at night
And they add to our burdens by day,
And our shoulders they press until we in distress
Fairly tear at our hair in dismay!

Oh, the shoes we are going to wear!
They can certainly not be called slim;
They'll be easy and neat, but they'll fit to the feet
In a way that is jaunty and trim!
And the raiment in which we'll be clad!
It will be most approved of its kind;
It will be by and by a delight to the eye
And a comfort and help to the mind.

And the letters we're going to write
To the friends that are absent and dear!
They are marvels of wit and are certainly fit
To be treasured by them year by year.
Oh, the epigrams bright we will make
When we pour out our whole heart in song!
When shall come that glad day when we'll find time to say
All the things we have treasured so long?
Oh, the things we are going to do!
How they tumble about in a heap!
How they jostle around and are everywhere found
Until [illegible] despair we could weep!
Until [illegible] were going to do
But the things we [illegible] things we have
Don't accord with the [illegible] done,
So I question if we've really meant [illegible] achieve
All those things that our fancy has spun.

Balfour Is Made a Target For Liberal Shafts

VIOLATION OF A PLEDGE

Premier Wanted to Answer to Charge by Proxy, but the Latter Is Howled Down--Session Is Closed Under New Rule

London, May 23.—The sitting of the house of commons last night was marked by scenes of the wildest disorder, growing out of a motion by Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader, to adjourn the house in order that he might discuss the charge against Premier Balfour of having violated his pledge not to deal with the subject of colonial preference without first appealing to the country.

Alfred Lyttelton, secretary of state for the colonies, was put up to reply to the Liberal leader, but the members of the opposition shouted down his every attempt to speak, even after the premier had demanded a hearing for the secretary. Finally the speaker, after he had exhausted every effort to quell the turbulence, put into force for the first time a new rule empowering him to adjourn the house in cases of grave disorder.

The matter came up at the afternoon sitting, when Premier Balfour, replying to questions on the subject, said he did not consider himself pledged to inaction in regard to colonial preference except so far as parliamentary action was concerned. He reiterated that the government did not intend to deal with the fiscal question in the present parliament. The matter of colonial preference might, however, be submitted to a colonial conference in 1906, even though the country had not previously had an opportunity of expressing an opinion on the subject. The decision of the conference, however, would not be binding either on the mother country or on the colonies without legislative action.

The debate on Campbell-Bannerman's motion came up at the night session. The Liberal leader demanded a plain answer from Balfour, and Alfred Lyttelton, secretary of state for the colonies, rose to reply. The members of the opposition drowned the efforts of the secretary with cries of "Balfour, Balfour." After continuing for about 10 minutes Lyttelton sat down. Winston Churchill then attempted to speak, but the ministerialists drowned his efforts, the Nationalists joining in the din and shouting for the police.

After a number of members had failed to secure a hearing the premier rose to a point of order and a temporary lull followed. Mr. Balfour said he thought it highly improper that he should be immediately expected to follow the leader of the opposition. He said he had never before known the opposition to refuse to hear a minister and he insisted that the house should hear Lyttelton, as otherwise the dignity of the house could not be maintained.

Mr. Lyttelton again made an attempt to speak, but the uproar was renewed. Finally the speaker said it was obvious that the scene could not continue and he would therefore adjourn the house under the rules empowering the speaker to take such action in cases of grave disorder. The speaker had been unable to secure even a semblance of order after howls and counter-howls lasting over an hour.

The unprecedented and undignified scenes grew to some extent out of the Balfour-Chamberlain controversy, with the addition of the heat engendered on the opposition side by the premier's alleged breach of his pledge not to deal with the subject of colonial preference without first appealing to the country. The members generally were in feverish expectation that the debate would indirectly provide the terms of Balfour's answer to Chamberlain's compromise proposals. It was also anticipated that Chamberlain himself would make an important speech on the fiscal question. Then when Secretary Lyttelton was put up to speak instead of Balfour, a storm burst such as has not been heard in the house of commons since the days of the Gladstonian Irish debates.

The Liberal leaders afterwards held a conference and it is expected that a vote of censure on Balfour will be moved by Campbell-Bannerman.

Delay In Bowen-Loomis Matter

Washington, May 23.—The further investigation of the Bowen-Loomis matter has been postponed pending the arrival in this city of William W. Russell, late minister to Colombia, whom Bowen wants to have examined before any decision on the case is reached. Russell was secretary of legation under Loomis when the latter was minister at Caracas.

San Francisco, May 23.—The United States circuit court of appeals affirmed the judgment of Judge Knowles of the district court of Montana in the case of the United States against Senator W. A. Clark, involving the title to $500,000 worth of timberland in western Montana. Knowles decided in favor of Clark. The government appealed.

ON OUTSKIRTS.

Of the Metropolitan Park System.

Therefore Little Benefit to City.

However, Have Local Parks and Playgrounds.

The City Solicitors and legal representatives of towns in the Metropolitan district are now in daily attendance before a special commissioner appointed to determine the apportionment of Metropolitan Park Assessments for the next five years.

Chapter 407 of the Acts of 1893 provided for a Metropolitan Park Commission whose jurisdiction and powers extended to and might be exercised in certain cities and towns including the City of Quincy.

By said act the Commissioners were empowered to take land for park purposes and provision was made in said act for the appointment every five years of a special commission whose duty it should be to determine the proportion in which each of the cities and towns in the Metropolitan Park District shall annually pay money into the treasury of the Commonwealth, for the ensuing five years, for Metropolitan Park purposes.

City Solicitor Thomas, in his brief submitted, first described the situation of Quincy, claiming that nature had endowed the city with the most beautiful combination of effects in her possession, viz.—seashore, hills, valleys and rivers.

The total area of Quincy is estimated at 10,737 acres, of which the takings for Metropolitan park purposes amounted to 2,667 acres, valued at $371,591.55.

The City Solicitor claims the loss in taxes to the city by these takings amounts yearly to $6,689, in addition to which the city paid in 1904 an assessment of $9,088.94.

To quote from the brief of the City Solicitor:

The City of Quincy is essentially a manufacturing city: Wards 3 and 4 being devoted almost entirely to the granite industry as is also a large area of Ward 1. Ward 2 is the home of the mammoth Fore River Shipbuilding Company works and in Ward 5 is a large manufacturing plant.

The backbone of the city is the granite industry.

Anything which hampers in any degree the granite industry is a detriment to the city as a whole.

In Wards 4 and 1 are located the granite quarries which have been operated for over half a century.

Those quarries lie wholly in the west section of the city.

The Metropolitan Park Commission took in the neighborhood of 2,600 acres of land adjoining our quarries and most of which was available for quarrying purpose.

The quarries adjoining this reservation (the Blue Hills Reservation) are connected by railroad, and even at the time of the taking for park purposes this railroad had been projected to run into and develop a portion of this land taken for the Blue Hills Reservation.

This portion of the city is the only one containing this deposit of granite and the only portion which was susceptible of development for quarry purposes.

The portion taken for Metropolitan Park purposes is rich in granite deposits. Already the scarcity of rough granite has been experienced in the granite business, and from year to year this scarcity will undoubtedly increase.

When land assessed only for woodland is used for quarrying purposes the assessments immediately jump upward as for instance take the land immediately adjoining that taken for park purposes' fifteen years ago 208 acres of that land was assessed as woodland in the sum of $11,000.

At the present time one acre of that same land assessed as quarry land is assessed for over $2,000, and the estimated assessment on the entire tract considerably over $100,000.

What is true of land in the immediate neighborhood would be true of the land taken for and included in the Blue Hills Reservation.

The Blue Hills Reservation instead of being a help and a benefit to Quincy is a decided detriment and burden. Not only must Quincy lose this vast area of taxable property but must also contribute to its purchase and maintenance.

The tax rate of Quincy for the past five years is as follows: 1900—$18.20; 1901 — $17.60; 1902 — $117.40; 1903—$17.30; 1904—$18.00.

The situation of Quincy at the extreme southeasterly end of the Metropolitan Park District makes the use of the park system by its residents extremely limited. The only reservation which we can practically enjoy is the Blue Hills Reservation and that is situated at some distance from our centres of population in the different villages which go to make up [illegible] of Quincy.

Today the residents are hampered in its use by numerous rules and regulations adopted by the Metropolitan Park Commission where formerly such citizens as cared to use this territory were permitted to do so. Its use was naturally restricted in the past to those who went there in the pursuit of fishing and hunting.

In the Boston Metropolitan Park Report for 1893, page 97, these words are used in reference to the Blue Hills Reservation:

"The hunting of foxes and racoons is still carried on in it."

Under existing conditions this feature is a thing of the past.

The Blue Hills Reservation cannot be said to be a help in developing land in the immediate vicinity in Quincy as that land is now almost wholly utilized for quarring purposes and is totally unfit for residential purposes.

The taking from Quincy for the Blue Hills Reservation was made in 1894, over ten years ago, and at the present time not one foot of parkway or boulevard has been completed in Quincy to connect this reservation with the different sections of the city.

The distance from the centres of the different villages of Quincy to the nearest point of entrance in the Blue Hill Reservation is, by the shortest route :—

Distance from West Quincy, 4,000 feet.
Distance from Quincy Centre, 2 miles.
Distance from South Quincy, 1 3-4 miles.
Distance from Quincy Point, 3 1-4 miles.
Distance from Houghs Neck, 6 miles.
Distance from Wollaston, 2 1-2 miles.
Distance from Atlantic, 3 miles.

The citizens of Quincy, one of the poorer municipalities of the state, belonging chiefly to the laboring class, are in no position to enjoy to the fullest the benefits of the Metropolitan Park Reservation.

Its residents do not belong to the class who can afford afternoon carriage drives or mid-week automobile excursions. Their use of the park system is naturally restricted to Sundays and holidays and the great distance necessary to traverse in order to reach these parks and the meagre facilities of transportation make their use by residents of Quincy almost prohibitory.

THE CITY'S PARKS.

Through the generosity of two of Quincy's public spirited citizens the city became the possessor of two beautiful natural parks, one, Merrymount Park of 90 acres situated on the shores of Quincy Bay and Black's Creek; a beautiful undulating stretch of land wooded in parts and one of the finest natural parks in the country. This was donated by C. F. Adams, Jr. to the town of Quincy in 1885.

The other called Faxon Park was donated by H. H. Faxon in 1885. This park contains about 27 acres and is situated on one of the highest hills in the city and is heavily wooded and a beautiful recreation ground.

The city under its playground act took parks in different sections of the city aggregating about 30 acres at a cost for land alone of over $50,000.

Hence Quincy was well supplied with parks and playgrounds combining the different features embodied in the Metropolitan Park system, viz:—sea shore, hills, woods and plains.

For this reason as well as others heretofore enumerated we contend there was no need of such a comprehensive system of parks as is embodied in the Metropolitan District.

METHOD OF APPORTIONMENT.

The legal phase of this question has already been passed upon in several cases by our Supreme Court, holding that any method which was fair and equitable would be upheld in law.

Kingman et al Pet'rs, 153 Mass. 566.
Las Casas et al Pet'rs, 180 Mass. 471.

There are several methods which might be adopted, viz:—

1. Using benefits derived by the different municipalities as a basis.
2. Using population as a basis.
3. Using valuation as a basis.
4. Using any combination of the above.

As to the first method: This would appear at first glance to be a method which should commend itself, as those communities especially benefited should be called upon to pay in proportion as they were benefited, but on the other hand the difficulty of determining the benefits derived with any degree of certainty or fairness would be so great as to make such a method wholly impracticable.

As to the second method: This would tend to throw a great burden upon poorer cities and those devoted to manufacturing as it does not necessarily follow that cities having large populations have a correspondingly large valuation.

As to the third method: This is the usual manner of apportioning public burdens. It is a safe, certain and fair method and furnishes an actual working basis.

While not desiring to dictate to this Commission [illegible] manner of making its apportionment, I would urgently recommend consideration of the system adopted by the last apportionment commission, viz: to classify cities and towns within the district into three groups, viz:—

1. Those with a per capita valuation under $1,000.
2. Those with a per capita valuation of between $1,000 and $2,000.
3. Those with a per capita valuation in excess of $2,000.

Using valuation as a basis the special commission at that time made certain abatements in cities and towns in class 1 and added in proportion to those in class 3.

Such a method of apportionment has an analogy in the laws relating to school expenditure. R. L. Chap. 43.

The Commission used these words in the Supplemental report of their findings under the order of Court of March 12, 1901,—

"A valuation already hypothecated to heavy and continuous public duty is not worth its full face value for the purposes of this cause. Another valuation, which easily and at a low rate bears its existing public duties is more powerful."

Again in the same report the Commissioners say,—

"Suggestions are made to us concerning an alleged tendency of personal wealth toward places of low taxation rates in what are sometimes styled 'Refuges from Oppression.' It is a perfectly legal course for a man to select his home in reference to such a purpose as well as for the purposes of health, ocean breezes, contiguity of friends, etc. It does not, however, follow that because a refuge town has been favored with immunity from high taxation under laws regulating town, county and state assessment, it is entitled to similar immunity in respect to burdens of the Metropolitan Park District with its different mode of assessing."

This method of apportionment has been passed upon and upheld by the Supreme Court in the case of Las Casas et al., Pet'rs, 180 Mass. 471.

In the light of this decision the City of Quincy urges that the same method of apportionment be adopted by this board.

The City Solicitor has also been engaged lately on hearings relative to Wellington bridge and Metropolitan sewers.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The frequency of riots in great cities during strikes should warn visiting outsiders to avoid crowds during a period of excitement. The temptation is to wish to see what a city crowd will do, but the experience is often dearly bought. Guardians of order cannot well discriminate between mere curiosity seekers and the disorderly element, and outsiders should remember that they invite danger to themselves and may contribute to lawlessness by hanging about the curbs and increasing the throng.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ Newburyport is in trouble because one of the officials of its water department has committed suicide and carried with him to the other side a lot of valuable information about the water system of the city which had never been written in books and therefore cannot now be had by the city. According to the wail that comes from the down-river city, the dead man must have been carrying sufficient water on the brain to have killed an ordinary mortal without having to resort to violent means for ending his life—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ However the pranks of the Harvard men who commit acts of vandalism may appeal to the undergraduates, they do not strike people at large as anything to be commended. It may be very funny to break into the Phillips Brooks house and steal a bronze tablet that had been prepared for presentation to the smaller college in a distant state where Bishop Brooks once studied, but most people will be excused if they fail to see the humor of it. One of the burglars was caught in the act, and as he happens to be a senior, and a scion of a wealthy family it will be interesting to note the outcome of the affair. Lynn Item.

EXTRA CONGRESS

Will Be Called Specially to Act on Railroad Question

TARIFF A MINOR AFFAIR

Cannon Urging Delay In Calling the Session, to Leave Congressmen Free For Elections--Venezuela Case May Come Up

Washington, May 23.—The extra session of congress will be called for railroad legislation and not for tariff revision. The president's message will allude to the desirability of tariff changes, but it will not emphasize their importance by comparison with railroad legislation. He realizes that congress and the country can think of but one great subject at a time, and that the projection of two such topics would give the opponents of action along either line a magnificent opportunity for jugglery.

President Cleveland, although elected on the tariff reform issue, promptly made the repeal of the Sherman silver purchase law the first object of his administration; when that was done, and in another session, he turned to the tariff. An occasional person thought his order wrong, but all agreed that only one fight could be carried on at a time. Evidence abounds that the dominating Mississippi valley is today thinking of the railroad question and not of the tariff. The president's fight in the coming session must be focused upon what he regards the larger issue.

There is some prospect of delay in the assembling of congress. Oct. 16, the date which had been generally announced, is still in the president's mind, but Speaker Cannon, who must be reckoned with in congressional procedure, is urging Nov. 13 in order to leave congressmen free until after the November elections. These will be comparatively unimportant this year, except in Ohio and Massachusetts, in New York city, and possibly in Virginia, where the Republicans seem disposed to make a fight.

The president has not decided whether yield to Cannon's request, but he intends to consider carefully the arguments in its behalf. That would give but three weeks before the regular December session, which would be a considerable whittling down of the extra session which, it was originally contemplated, should assemble a month or two ago. It is evident that the Republican supporters of the Roosevelt policies regard delay as their best weapon, with March 4, 1909, standing out like a harbor of refuge for all the imperilled interests.

The latest news from Caracas may add a topic for the attention of congress. It is reported that the federal court of cassation has decided against the New York and Bermudez Asphalt company, in the controversy regarding the dissolution of its contract, which has been before the high Venezuelan courts for nearly a year.

The administration's probable line of action will be to give Castro every opportunity to refer the dispute to arbitration, and if such efforts fail, to report to congress the state of affairs there, leaving that body to decide what to do for the protection of American interests.

The administration does not seem eager to add the investigation of the life insurance companies to its list of troubles. W. F. King, formerly president of the Merchants' association, has been communicating with the president, urging an official investigation, but thus far Mr. Roosevelt has not moved in the matter. Life insurance companies are not natural monopolies like the railroads. The individual citizen has as large a choice of companies as of grocery stores with which to trade, and he need not deal with any unless he so elects.

THE COTTON CLAIM

Legislators Think It Would Be Good Policy to Settle It

Boston, May 23.—The house of representatives has passed a resolve favoring the settlement at once of the claim of John B. Cotton of Washington for his commission of 10 percent in the collection for the state of $1,611,740.85 from the United States government.

The contract between Cotton and the state was made by the late Governor Wolcott in 1899, at which time it was believed that the amount due the state by the national government on funds advanced during the Civil war would not reach $100,000.

When Cotton collected $1,611,740.85 and received the treasury warrant from Secretary Shaw about a year ago, Governor Bates, upon the advice of Attorney General Parker, decided to test the validity of the contract of one of his predecessors, and legal proceedings resulted. Cotton retained the warrant and it was stated in the debate in the house that the state had already lost $60,000 in interest.

Recently Governor Douglas suggested to the legislature that the original contract be carried out, in order that the state might avail itself at once of the fund, and the resolve passed sustained his view while it repudiated the contention of Attorney General Parker. The resolve will go to the senate for concurrent action.

TO PROBE ASYLUM

Trustees Want the Facts of Grace Darby's Escape

A BILL IN LEGISLATURE

Resolve Calling For General Investigation of Massachusetts Asylums For Insane Is Turned Down--Report Is Postponed

Boston, May 23.—At a meeting of the trustees of the Taunton insane asylum held in Taunton yesterday afternoon it was decidede to have an investigation of the institute's management so as to get at the bottom of the circumstances attending the recent escape of Grace Darby, the so-called "Mad Venus."

While this action was being taken in Taunton the house legislators on Beacon hill voted down the resolve introduced by Representative Skerrett of Worcester, calling for a general investigation of the state asylums for the insane.

Mr. Skerrett laid stress upon that feature of his resolve which would guard against the commitment of sane persons to an asylum. "I know of at least one case where one of the inmates of the Westboro asylum is sane," said Skerrett, "and I have no doubt that an examination would reveal a great many cases."

Mr. Skerrett said that he had considered the advisability of introducing a resolve for some time, and that he believed the moment had now arrived when the state ought to take notice of the conditions. He pronounced the system of commitments as cumbersome and dangerous.

Mr. Skerrett was asked if the escape of Grace Darby was responsible for his investigation, and he replied that it was not, although he thought the escape should be investigated.

After the adverse vote had been taken Mr. Skerrett asked that the committee postpone its report until Wednesday, and this was granted.

Gotham's Evangelical Movement

New York, May 23.—An evangelist campaign led by Rev. J. B. Ely of Philadelphia and supported by all the prominent clergymen of every Protestant religious denomination in this city was begun by a big meeting in front of the city hall. The crowd of listeners was constantly augmented and changed during the service which followed and lasted for an hour. Addresses were made by several New York city pastors. The life of Theodore Roosevelt was held up by all the speakers as a monument to right living.

Dosen't Want Tainted Money

New York, May 23.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., according to statements by members of his Bible class, is to sever his official connection with the Standard Oil company. This determination, says The World, is largely due to the "tainted money" agitation started by Congregational ministers in New England and taken up by clergymen of other denominations. It is further said that young Rockefeller had held several heated interviews with Rockefeller senior on the general subject of Standard Oil methods.

Stage For Nan Patterson

New York, May 23.—Hurtig & Seaman announce that they have signed a contract with Nan Patterson to appear in a big extravaganza. The girl has signed to appear at prominent theatres throughout an extended tour at $2000 a week. She will appear at the head of a sextet of maidens similar to those that played in the musical comedy "Florodora." The company will be known as "Nan Patterson and Her Big company."

Promised Reforms Vanish

Warsaw, May 23.—Governor General Maximovitch last night issued a letter postponing indefinitely the meeting of representative landowners specially invited by him to consider the question of the introduction of local self-government in Poland. The letter gives no explanation of the action and has created an unfavorable impression.

Yankees Will Try For Prizes

London, May 23.—Fifteen yachts have been entered in the Dover-Heligeland race for the cup offered by Emperor William. For this contest, which will take place on June 17, several American yachts, which are now taking part in the trans-Atlantic race for Emperor William's $500 gold cup, are included in the entries.

On Good Terms Again

Constantinople, May 23.—The dispute between the governments of Roumania and Turkey, following upon the act of the Vali of Yanina in arresting several school inspectors in spite of the privileges conferred upon them by the porte, has been settled.

Duke Calls on President

Washington, May 23.—The Duke of Sutherland was presented to President Roosevelt by Hugh O'Beirne, charge of affairs of the British embassy. Later the duke was the guest of President and Mrs. Roosevelt at luncheon.

HEALTHY PLANTS

Require the Most Careful Attention as Well as Good Soil.

Did you ever see a rosebush which—despite the most beneficent environment of soil—of sunshine—and of atmosphere,—seemed never to achieve a healthy growth.

A ton of manure will not help a plant that has a canker eating out its heart.

You must destroy the cause before you can remove the effect.

You cannot cure Dandruff and Baldness by rubbing on hair lotions, and rubbing in vaseline, etc.

You must look to the cause of the trouble—it's a germ at the roots of your hair which causes it to fall out.

Newbro's Herpicide destroys the germ, and healthy hair is the sure result.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

NO "BLACKLIST"

Point Which May Bring Speedy End to Chicago Strike

Chicago, May 23.—After a conference of several hours, representatives of the Teamsters' union and of the employers declared this morning that the prospects for the settlement of the strike are excellent, and that the end of the trouble may be looked for at any time within the next 48 hours.

The stumbling block in the negotiations is the declaration by the express companies that none of their striking drivers will be taken back under any conditions. All other terms submitted by the employers to the strikers have been accepted. The managers of the express companies declared last night that, while they would re-employ none of their drivers, they had no intention of keeping a "blacklist."

In the opinion of all present at the conference the absence of a blacklist opens a way for settlement. The negotiations are still in progress.

Protests Come Too Late

New York, May 23.—Requests for hearings from St. Louis fair exhibitors, who are at present in controversy with the Louisiana Purchase Exhibition company over the coming award of prizes, have been filed at the offices of the national commission in this city, but it is doubtful if the commissioners will be able to do anything to give satisfaction for the complainants. The certificates of award, it is said, are now completed and only await issuance.

Exploding Boiler Kills Six Men

Columbus, O., May 23.—Six men who were at work nearby were killed by the explosion of the boiler of an engine that was standing near the Hocking Valley railroad roundhouse on West Mound street. The engine that exploded was being tested for its first run after rebuilding. Four other engines standing nearby were wrecked. The bodies of the six men were terribly mangled, arms and legs being scattered in all directions.

Mob Finished Negro Murderer

Owensboro, Ky., May 23.—Robert Shaw, a negro, supposedly insane, killed Deputy Sheriff Brown and wounded seven other men ear Waitman. The body of the dead man lay in front of Shaw's house and the negro continued to defy those who sought to arrest him. Last night a mob surrounded Shaw's house and set it on fire. Shaw finally leaped out. A hundred shots were fired and Shaw's body was riddled with bullets.

Presbyterian Union Favored

Winona Lake, Ind., May 23.—Amid a storm of applause the general assembly of the Presbyterian church voted to reunite with the Cumberland Presbyterian body, which withdrew from the original denomination in 1810, thereby, so far as the main church is concerned, bringing together the two largest branches of the Presbyterian faith. The Cumberland conference, now in session at Fresno, Cal., has not yet decided as to union.

Objected to Russian Overseer

Honolulu, May 23.—The situation at Lahaina, on the island of Maui, where Japanese strikers had become violent, has quieted, and the soldiers and police are occupying the courthouse with a field piece in readiness for action. The Japanese have forced the Korean laborers to strike, threatening to kill them if they continue to work. It is stated that the Japanese objected to the head overseer because he is a Russian.

Takes Trade From St Louis

Chicago, May 23.—A new route to the southwest, independent of the St. Louis gateway, is to be given the Chicago shippers in the near future. This is to be accomplished by crossing the Mississippi river at Thebes, about 150 miles south of St. Louis. To make the new route possible it was necessary to construct a bridge across the river. This structure has just been completed.

Close to Terrible Tragedy

New York, May 23.—Twenty persons were injured, six of them so seriously that they were sent to hospitals, and more than 100 persons narrowly escaped death or serious injury when a swiftly moving train crashed into two others on the high elevated structure at 133rd street and Alexander avenue. Only the best of good fortune prevented a terrible tragedy.

Where Children Will Be Welcome

New York, May 23.—Brooklyn in a few months will have a 20-story tenement house and it will occupy a whole block. No apartment will be rented to a family unless it has at least one child. Oliver H. P. Belmont is the originator of the project and the plans have been discussed with financiers, philanthropists, lawyers, real estate men and society people.

Great Log Drives Held Up

St. John, May 23.—It is estimated that over 40,000,000 feet of lumber is being held in the upper St. John river, owing to low water, and that not for 40 years have the conditions been so unsatisfactory for getting the cut to the seaboard.

Three Deaths From Yellow Jack

Colon, May 23.—Three fatal cases of yellow fever which have occurred at Colon since May 14 and five convalescing cases in the hospital represent the total number here. Sanitary officials regard the outbreak as controllable.

NOBLE WOMAN DEAD.

The Spirit of Mary Livermore Passed Away Today.

Mrs. Mary Ashton Livermore, the well-known writer and woman's suffragist, died at her home in Melrose at 8.45 this morning.

Mrs. Livermore was born in Boston, Dec. 19, 1821, and was the widow of Rev. Daniel P. Livermore, a Universalist clergyman.

She has written largely for periodicals, and labored with much ability in behalf of the Sanitary Commission during the Civil war. She has also taken a prominent position as writer and public speaker upon woman's suffrage and various social and religious questions. In 1870 she was editor of the Woman's Journal published in Boston.

Among her books are "Pen Pictures," "Thirty years too late," and "My story of the war," a woman's narrative of four years personal experience as nurse in the Union army.

She was deeply interested in the Quincy Mansion school of this city to which she has been a frequent visitor. Livermore hall at this school was named in her honor.

What Wonder.

A pleasant affair in Quincy Friday evening was a reception to Miss Julia E. Underwood of the Coddington school, a teacher well beloved by generations of pupils, many of whom have grown well past their meridan since they followed her tuition. She has the remarkable record of having taught in this school for 50 years without a break. What wonder that many should greet her, whether old pupils or not. What wonder also that she should be so promising a candidate for The Herald tour.—Herald.

Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. H. Thayer observed their golden wedding anniversary on Monday at their home at 9 Wendall street. Owing to the poor health of Mr. Thayer there was no elaborate celebration.

During the day their immediate relations called, bringing tokens of remembrance with them, and wishing the worthy couple health and happiness.

Mr. Thayer came to City Square this morning where he met many of his friends who also extended congratulations.

Parade Tomorrow.

South Shore commandery, Knights Templar, will parade with a band in Quincy at 8.30 tomorrow morning, previous to their departure for Boston at 9.13. Quincy will be well represented in this commandery and other commaderies.

Books Will Not Balance.

A discrepancy of $2,000 is reported in the accounts of Walter C. Shapleigh, treasurer of the School Committee of Milton.

Herald Coupons.

The last coupon in the School contest will be printed by the Herald on Sunday, June 11. There are only twenty-five days more, therefore, in which to gather the votes. The chances are excellent for Miss Julia E. Underwood of this city being one of the guests of the Herald on the excursion to the Clark and Lewis Centennial at Portland, Oregan in July. Because Miss Underwood is not one of the first three in the list today should not cause discouragement because she has a very large reserve vote. However, active work will be necessary from this time out. A few additional workers would make success easier. Coupons should be sent at least once a week to Frank F. Prescott, care Quincy Daily Ledger. Those who have been holding votes, should forward them now.

Between Beats.

Certain parts of Quincy Point are furnished with plenty of excitment these time. Monday evening two men, pretty well intoxicated, had a lively skirmish on South street in front of one of our small stores. A young woman happened along at the time, who found it difficult to pass without getting into the tangle herself. The men were allowed to fight for some time before any of the lookers-on interrupted them. Now this occurred soon after the day-officer had left his beat and it was not time for the night-officers to go on duty. These men know that there is no officer at this time of day and generally try to take advantage of the fact.

Sunday School Conference.

On Thursday afternoon and evening May 25, there will be a conference of all the Sunday School workers of this section in St. Paul's church, Brockton. Rev. C. P. Drown of the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge.

There was also an address by Robert Sweet, Jr., Grand Guide of the Grand Lodge.

The entertainment included selections by the Ladies' Philharmonic trio; readings by Miss Maude Fowler, and selections by the Jeta Saba quartette composed of E. Ernest Armstrong, Albert C. Armstrong, E. Tyler Brigham and John E. Simmons. Refreshments were served.

Birthday Surprise.

Dr. C. W. Garey passes another milestone this week, and that the event should not pass unnoticed, a few of his friends gathered at his residence on Hancock street Monday evening. The doctor was out when the party arrived, but a telephone call soon brought him home, and although considerably taken back at finding his office full of people who were not seeking his professional services, he quickly recovered and bade them make themselves at home. The evening proved one of rare enjoyment to all, and when at a late hour the guests took their departure it was with many well-wishes for the coming years.

OCEAN YACHT RACE.

What It Means to Yachting Interests and How It Came About.

The importance of the international yacht race across the Atlantic ocean for the kaiser's cup in its effects upon yachting in general cannot be overestimated, says the New York Times. While it will prove nothing conclusive as to the value of models and rigs, it will affect the future of naval architecture not a little. Its most salutary influence, however, will be the establishment of an even more cordial feeling between American and foreign yachtsmen, which, it is hoped, will result in many more international contests of a similar nature.

To Commodore Robert E. Tod of the Atlantic Yacht club more than to any other one man does it owe its inception. It was he who induced Sir Thomas Lipton to offer a cup for an ocean race. When the kaiser signified his desire to give a suitable trophy for the same purpose, at the suggestion of the Earl of Lonsdale, Sir Thomas gracefully withdrew his offer and the kaiser's proffer was made.

The presence of the Earl of Crawford and Lord Brassey in the race, notably the latter, evinces the highest sportsmanlike spirit. These yachtsmen have made the trip more to encourage the sport they love than with a thought of the capture of the trophy. The Valhalla, to be sure, has an excellent chance to win, given favorable conditions, but the Sunbeam has none.

The German entry was to be expected. Judged on past performances and on appearance, she is a most formidable contestant. Herr Tietjin, who manages her, is a veteran in races on the other side. He met the Ingomar on her visit abroad last year and admired her handling immensely. He is a sportsman of the old school, modest in the recital of his chances and generous in his estimate of his opponents' skill.

Of the American entries the Atlantic and the Endymion were to be expected in the contest. They are esssentially racers, built with that object in view. Both have given ample evidence of their capability. The Hildegarde, too, is a racer of tested strength, while Commodore Tod, with the Thistle, has long been ocean racing's foremost exponent. While the Fleur-de-Lys has some racing experience, it is surprising that so small a craft should contest the race.

The Ailsa, too, while primarily a racer, is unfitted in rig to this sort of a competition. Nevertheless no owner is more serious in his purpose to gain the cup than Mr. Redmond, and none believes he has a better chance. In a gale she is likely to be decidedly uncomfortable, but Lem Miller believes he can handle her in her heavy rig and that he will be close by when the leader finishes.

The Apache and Utowana, while cruisers of repute and speedy, are not essentially racers. They are entered to foster the project and incidentally to win. Allison V. Armour, the Utowana's owner, has had a large share in the responsibility of the race's arrangement. He was in Germany when the proffer was made and was consulted by the kaiser as to the conditions. He was later appointed on the American committee to arrange its details.

WESTERN HEART WARMER.

Miss Eva Booth So Declares In Comparing Chicago and New York.

Miss Eva Booth, commander of the Salvation Army, arrived in Chicago from New York the other morning and spent most of the day in her rooms at the Wellington hotel, says a Chicago dispatch.

"The western heart is warmer and easier to reach than that of the New Yorker," she said. "I have seen but little of the city as yet, but I am sure there is a fine field for our work here, and it is being well received by the classes we wish most to reach."

Miss Booth hopes that a building similar to that being erected in New York at a cost of $70,000 for assistance of working women may be founded in Chicago.

Boosters' Club an Aid to Churches.

There is a unique organization at Normal, the educational suburb of Bloomington, Ill. It is known as the Boosters' club and holds a meeting at a local cigar store every Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock, says a Bloomington dispatch. The members then vote upon some church for attendance at the morning service. The church receiving the largest vote is selected, and the club marches in a body to that edifice. When the contribution basket is passed each member must contribute a dollar. As the membership of the club is fifty-five, the distribution of money is always an important item to the church chosen for attendance.

Color Change In German Army.

The authorities of the German army have decided to alter the color of the military uniform, says the London Standard. The dark blue color is to be discarded as used for service in the field, and a cloudy gray shade has been chosen. Three battalions of the German army are already supplied with the new uniforms. In shape the trousers are to remain as before, and the caps and helmets will not be changed. The tunics, however, are to be looser in the waist.

Well of Pure Oil.

Great excitement prevails at Rowsburg, Perry township, O., over the discovery of oil in a well on the property of S. Hohensil. A most peculiar fact connected with the discovery is that the oil is practically as clear when taken from the well as kerosene oil. To all intents and purposes it is refined oil and when placed in a lamp burns as well as the best quality.

THE SPRING HATS.

Attractive Millinery In Bronze Shades—Burnt Lilacs a Fad.

A most attractive spring hat is of bronze horsehair braid. The brim, which is turned up in front, gives the appearance of a tricorne hat at the sides and back. The crown is softly indented on the top. It is very simply trimmed with folded bands of bronze velvet, which tie directly in front into a five looped bow laid on the upturned brim and rest almost on the hair. The hat is encircled with one long rose colored ostrich plume. It starts at the back and continues around the crown. At the left side the plume curls over the brim and hangs down toward the back.

POLO TOQUE IN ROSE CRIN.

Burnt lilacs adorn one smart hat, and roses crushed and faded are to be seen on all the millinery of the moment.

Picture hats in smaller shapes will reign side by side with the tiny models Paris has whimsically insisted upon all the world wearing.

Linen hats are exquisite and are stunning when made of eyelet or anglaise embroidery. They launder well and may be always kept fresh and attractive.

The spring hats are simply trimmed and depend for their style entirely upon shape and coloring.

The smart little toque illustrated is called the "polo." It is carried out in rose crin, the braid forming in rows the deep upturned brim. Directly in front of the toque are an aigret and a panache of shaded ostrich feathers.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Taking Steps Accordingly.

"Whatever are you going to do with that ladder?"

"Going to be best man at Mr. Ostrich's wedding, and I've got to kiss the bride. See?"—Jester.

Candles as Bullets.

Concerning the shooting of a candle through a board a correspondent writes: "We selected a weather beaten pine fence board as a target and loaded the gun with three drams of black powder, followed by an ordinary 'stearin' candle, which fitted tightly. The candle passed through, making a clear cut hole, and buried itself in the sand back of the target. The candle, while somewhat torn, was still far from shapeless."

Saved Her Life.

Jack Ford—Did you see that girl cut me then? Frank Wilcox—I noticed she didn't bow. Jack Ford—And yet I saved her life! Frank Wilcox—How? Jack Ford—We were engaged, and finally she said she'd rather die than marry me, so I let her off.

A Natural Query.

Growell (in cheap restaurant)—Here, waiter! Are these mutton or pork chops? Waiter—Can't you tell by the taste? Growell—No. Waiter—Then what difference does it make what they are?—Illustrated Bits.

A Fatal Mistake.

Charitable Lady—But a man last week told me exactly the same story. Tramp—Yes, lady. Yer see, I made a fatal mistake in not havin' the history of me life copyrighted.

What Caused the Trouble.

"What's the trouble?"

"Oh, I just tried to make a little joke in the henhouse about never telling a lie because I did it with my little hatch it."—New York World.

Assortment the Largest,
Prices the Lowest for Quality Offered.

Our bargains are made by marking down our own stock to a low price, not by purchasing inferior goods to make an attractive price.

It is a mistake to infer that we carry only high-priced fabrics.

We have medium grades as well, and our prices are low because our expenses are proportioned over a volume of business exceeded by few in our specialty in the United States, and equaled by none in New England.

ADAMS AGAIN

Defeats Quincy High 14 to 5.

Few Safe Hits by High School Boys.

While Adams Rolls Up 21 With Three Doubles.

It was almost a walkover for Adams Academy on Tuesday in its second game of the season with Quincy High, the former winning 14 to 5.

Neither team scored in the first inning, and at the end of the second it was 3 to 3. Then Adams piled up the runs and at the same time shut out their rivals. Every one of the Academy team hit safely except Finn, some two, three and four times, while Gallagher, Hoxie and Harkins were each credited with two baggers.

Only seven safe hits were made by Quincy High, all singles. The High team, however, excelled in fielding making only two errors, while Adams made four. Gram gave fewer bases on balls, and struck out more than Finn.

DOANE--PAGE.

Former Wollaston Resident Comes Back to Marry.

Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock a pretty but quiet wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Page, corner of Beach street and Rawson road, Wollaston Park, when their daughter, Julia Madeline, was united in marriage to Mr. Harry Ryder Doane, son of Mrs. Rhoda Doane, of Medfield, formerly of Chatham and Wollaston. Only the immediate relatives attended.

The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Ernest Hunt, pastor of the Wollaston Unitarian church. A double ring service was used. The ring bearer was little Miss Edith Rhoda Doane, neice of the groom.

The bride was gowned in white French mull, and carried white Bride's roses.

The rooms were decorated with apple blossoms, pinks and roses. Miss Bertha Louise Hanson of Quincy played the wedding march. Many handsome presents were received.

Light refreshments were served after the ceremony. Much amusement was occasioned by the happy couple leaving the house unobserved by their would-be tormentors, much to their disappointment.

Mr. and Mrs. Doane will spend a week in Philadelphia. On their return they will reside at 146 Beach street and will be at home after August first.

THE GREAT FAULT.

Heavy Burden for Parks Imposed Without Consent.

It is somewhat amusing to learn the claims of the various cities and towns in the Metropolitan Park district, why the assessments upon their respective municipalities should be small. At the hearing on Tuesday, for instance City Solicitor Babson of Boston argued: "The city of Boston contends, that while the percentage to be imposed upon it must be a purely arbitrary one, it ought to be in some slight porportion to the benefits conferred upon it by the metropolitan park system. These benefits are very small. Taking everything into consideration, an assessment of 25 per cent of the annual cost of the metropolitan park district would be large, considering the fact that it has to maintain its own system of parks and boulevards. The district is doing substantially nothing for it; and so far as the reports of the park commission and the action of the Legislature indicate, nothing in the future is to be done in the way of parks or parkways in the city of Boston, except some slight work upon the Charles river reservation in the Brighton district."

City Solicitor F. W. Kaan, of Somerville, said: "If Boston paid according to its valuation it should bear two-thirds of the expense of the park system. He went on to argue that Boston was not paying a disproportionate amount, but that the cities and towns which surrounded it were large contributors to the city's share as many of their people hired business offices and stores in Boston, which increased the taxable value of property, and this went toward replenishing the treasury and to assist in meeting the city's proportion of the cost of the parks. He believed that the park system was of greater benefit to Boston than any of the other cities within the metropolitan park system."

Probably City Solicitor Babson is pretty near correct when he said: "The city of Boston would suggest that parks and parkways are a luxury, and that the fault is in the commonwealth in having imposed without the consent of the district too great burdens upon it."

SIR KNIGHTS

Off for Boston for Grand Parade.

Observance of the Centennial.

About 7000 Templars from All Parts of State.

There was a short parade of South Shore Commandery, Knights Templar, in Quincy this morning, just before taking the train for Boston to participate in the grand parade in observance of the centennial.

South Shore Commandery, nearly one hundred strong, with the South Shore Commandery band of 25 pieces, formed in front of the Hancock building where Rural lodge has its headquarters, at nine o'clock.

The time was limited and there was opportunity only to march down Hancock street as far as the residence of Dr. Gordon, countermarching to Washington street, thence through Temple, Hancock and Depot streets to the station, where a special car, attached to the 9.13 train, was taken for Boston.

The commandery with its attractive uniform, made a fine appearance and it was the general comment that the members marched well. The principal officers were: Howard Poole, E. C.; Arthur W. Stetson, G.; and Francis A. Bicknell, C. G.

A bass drum of special pattern was used by the band for the first time, and was appropriately inscribed for the occasion.

On arriving in Boston the South Shore commandery reported to Em. Sir Walter W. Burnham, the grand junior warden, who was chief of the third division.

The headquarters for the day are at Lawrence Encampment hall at 724 Washington street, where a banquet will be served after the parade. The commandery will have no special quests.

Labor and Politics.

Quincy was represented on Tuesday at a meeting of representatives of the central labor unions of the state held at the Quincy House, Boston, in response to a call issued by the Brockton Central Labor Union for the consideration of the best methods of increasing the influence of organized labor with the Legislature. There have been so many labor measures defeated on Beacon Hill during the present session that some action of this sort was deemed necessary. After a thorough consideration of the matter it was voted that no conference or convention for political action be recommended. The matter will be reported back to the several central bodies by their representatives. The Quincy delegates voted in favor of this position.

Alfred Furnald.

At the advanced age of 88 years Mr. Alfred Furnald passed away on Monday afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ellen Furnald Allen in South Lee, N. H. The funeral service is to be held from the church at two o'clock on Thursday. Mr. Fernald formerly lived in Quincy, being engaged for several years in the express business, and has relatives and friends here. Mrs. Furnald died a few years ago leaving Mr. Furnald alone in the old home at Nottingham but he has had the watchful care of his children. On Saturday he reached the age of 88 years. All his life he has been active and a lover of work caring for his farm personally, up to a year or two ago.

Electric Light Hearing.

The Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners will give a public hearing in the Council chamber, City Hall, Thursday morning, at 10 o'clock, on the petition of Henry L. Kincaide & Co. and others, customers of the Quincy Electric Light and Power Co. praying for a reduction in the price of electricity supplied by said company, and an improvement in the service.

PROSIT LAUNCHED.

The Handsome 90 Foot Yacht for J. B. Schoeffel.

There was quite a large gathering of invited guests and interested spectators at the shipyard of the O. Sheldon Company at Neponset, Tuesday afternoon, to witness the launching of the Prosit, a handsome 90-foot gasolene yacht built for John B. Schoeffel, owner and manager of the Tremont theatre.

The stars and stripes floated gayly over her taffrail as she slid gracefully down the ways into the water, while the crowd cheered good luck. Mrs. Agnes Booth Schoeffel, the wife of the owner, gave the boat her name.

After the launch the boat was warped to the pier near the Neponset bridge, and a lunch was served on board by Mr. and Mrs. Schoeffel to their guests, who included many prominent lights in the theatrical world and others.

The Prosit is 90 feet over all, 16 feet beam and 6 feet 6 inches draft. She is finished throughout in cherry and has every modern equipment for comfort. She has a large pilot house, roomy cabin, four staterooms, big bathroom, gallery, engine room and extra large ice chest.

She is double-ended and painted white above the water line, with dark green anti-fouling paint for he under body. She is a big, able boat, and while she will not be speedy, she will be fast enough for pleasure sailing and cruising where comfort is the main object sought.

A BOLD THEFT.

Peddler Skips with $25 from Sea Street Residence.

A man supposed to be a peddler stole $25 from the house of Frederick W. Tirrell on Sea street this morning. The man agreed to purchase a lot of bottles. While the people in the house went after the bottles the fellow helped himself to $25 which was on a shelf. When the people came back with the bottles the man and money were gone.

The police were notified and a description given of the man. He was of medium height, stout, smooth face, and wore a black cap and clothes.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Lumber is ordered up the ladder another round or two by the Christian gentlemen forming the combine to to whom, to quote Baer, the Almighty, in his infinite wisdom, has committed the lumber property of this nation that they may care for the comfort of his people. Snow did it, says the combine. Price goes up now because there was too much snow, just as in other years it has gone up because there was too little.—St. Paul Dispatch.

☞ It is now said that the family of Governor Douglas is opposed to his again being a candidate for Governor, but that his political friends desire him as the party leader. He will probably announce on June 15 that he is ready to sacrifice the wishes of his family and his own inclinations to the exigencies of his party and will once more lead the Democracy. But the conditions have changed since last November and the Republicans who elected him because they did not want Bates, may this year elect Guild because they prefer him to Douglas.—Lynn Item.

☞ It is an interesting fact that Portuguese farmers take the old farms, abandoned because Americans could not get a living from them, rapidly bring the land up to fertility and soon have comfortable homes with evidence of general prosperity. Perhaps the explanation lies in the fact that they are workers and no member of the family, big enough or well enough to do anything, is an idler. The old willingness for hard work seems to have died out in parts of New England, so far as natives are concerned, and the tendency of the past two or three generations has been to look for "soft jobs." To that is due abandoned and wornout farms and scrub growth where once the scythe swung or the cattle pastured. The independence of farm life has been exchanged for the uncomfortable flat, the uncertain wages of the shop and wearing experience of cities. If the spirit of sturdy independence survived these farms which have gone into the hands of immigrants would always have fed, clothed and much more than that, a contented and prosperous community of native Americans. As it is, a great change is sweeping over rural New England.—Taunton Gazette.

Stars Win.

In an exciting game on Tuesday the Star juniors defeated the Second Granite streets by a score of 25 to 13. The game was played at Clark avenue grounds. Galvin the Spalding A. C. pitcher was hit hard in the fourth inning. Cremins of the Stars began the rally with a home run. C. Nelson and Johnson were the battery for the Stars, and Sullivan and Clare for the Granites. Nelson of the Stars was well supported by Johnson.

PLANS OF FIELD MUSEUM

Men of Wide Experience to Hunt For Big Animals In the Interest of Science--A British Party Going on Similar Errand

Chicago, May 24.—The Field Columbian nuseum of Chicago, endowed by Marshall Field, the millionaire merchant, will send in the early summer a great exploring and collecting expedition into equatorial Africa. The expenses will be paid by the Marshall Field fund and in part by Vernon S. Kennedy, another Chicago millionaire, who will accompany the party.

The expedition is planned upon a scale greater than that of any ever sent to the dark continent by a scientific institution. It will be headed by Professor Carl A. Akley of the sociological department of the museum, Professor Daniel G. Elliott being unable to go, having lost his health in an African exploring trip eight years ago.

The hunters will attempt to get family groups of all the great African animals which inhabit the equatorial regions. The museum is especially anxious to get rhinocerous, leopard, giraffe and lion specimens, adult and young. The party will leave Chicago for London and will then sail to Mombassa, on the east coast of Africa, where 50 natives will be employed as guides, guards and burden bearers. The party will go into a country towards Lake Tanganyika, where the natives are treacherous and warlike. The climate is of the worst.

The museum management realizes that the big game of Africa is disappearing rapidly and for that reason the expedition is to be hurried. English scientists are to dispatch a like collecting party and there will be a rivalry in the matter of results between the two institutions of the two countries.

Professor Akley, on the expedition sent out under Daniel G. Elliott eight years ago, nearly lost his life in an encounter with an African leopard which he had wounded slightly and which attacked him. Vernon S. Kennedy has shot big game in nearly every country of the globe. He has done his hunting largely for scientific purposes and nearly all his pelts have been turned over to museums, the bulk of them going to the Field institution.

Preparations for the trip are being made on a large scale, for a vast amount of material has to be carried. In addition to guns and ammunition for the killing of everything from humming-birds to elephants, chemicals in bulk are to be transported to preserve the animal and bird skins from the attacks of climate and insects.

At Mombassa a herd of goats will be bought and these are to be driven before the explorers into the interior, where they will be used singly as bait for the lions and leopards and carnivorous animals.

In addition to collecting animals already known to science, it is the belief that new species of birds and mammals will be found. In this matter the rivalry between the American and the English expeditions will be particularly keen. The last Field museum party went into Somaliland and it was successful in discovering and in securing specimens of whose existence the world's scientists were in ignorance.

New Method of Advertising

St. Petersburg, May 24.—While the public was promenading the Taurida garden, back of the Taurida palace, consternation was caused by the explosion of three boxes in different parts of the garden, scattering multi-colored revolutionary proclamations in every direction. Another box was found to be provided with a time mechanism and some new explosive, the character of which the authorities have not yet discovered.

Mrs Gould Loses Touring Car

New York, May 24.—A large touring car belonging to Mrs. Howard Gould exploded in front of a garage, a street sweeper having thrown a lighted match underneath the machine, where there was a quantity of gasoline which had leaked from the tank. The automobile was wrecked, the damage being estimated at $8000. The machine was unoccupied.

GOMEZ FOR PRESIDENT

Governor of Santa Clara the Choice of Cuban Liberals

Havana, May 24.—The national Liberal convention nominated Jose M. Gomez, governor of Santa Clara province, for president, and Senator Alfredo Zayas for vice president. Gomez received 103 out of the 109 votes cast. The full membership of the convention numbered 150. General Masso received one vote. There were five blank ballots and these were presumably cast by the Nunez delegates. Several of the latter were present, though they did not vote. After the result was announced at 11:40 last night harmony appeared to be complete.

Jose Miguel Gomez is 50 years old and a native of Santa Clara province. He participated in the two great revolutions, in the first of which he reached the rank of major and in the second that of major general. He was one of the commissioners sent to Washington to advise as to the practical method for dissolving the revolutionary army.

Gomez was elected a delegate to the constitutional convention by the almost unanimous vote of his province and participated prominently in the work of the convention. He was selected governor of Santa Clara province by the intervention government and when his term expired he was elected governor as a Republican or Conservative. During his terms in the gubernatorial chair he won a high reputation for ability and progressiveness.

Trust Company Succumbs

New York, May 24.—The Merchants' Trust company of this city has been closed by order of state superintendent of banks because it had made loans amounting to about $1,250,000 upon which it had not been able to realize a sufficient sum to pay depositors and save the capital of the company from impairment. The trust company owes depositors about $2,200,000 and, according to the state bank examiner, it will be necessary to realize $950,000 to pay depositors. The stockholders are liable to the extent of $500,000.

Two Years More For Machen

Washington, May 24.—August W. Machen, the former general superintendent of the free delivery service of the postoffice department, was taken back to the Moundsville (W. Va.) penitentiary last night after being sentenced to another term of two years following his plea of guilty of conspiracy to defraud the government. Including his present two-year term he has two years and eight months yet to serve in the penitentiary in punishment for the postal irregularities in which he was implicated.

Young's Third Trial For Murder

New York, May 24.—Twice found guilty of murder, and both verdicts set aside, Duncan Young is facing a jury for the third time. It is alleged that Young, with two companions, committed a burglary in George Eberhardt's saloon in Sixth street on Jan. 24, 1899, and that he killed the saloonkeeper in attempting to escape. He has been in prison more than six years. Both his former convictions were set aside on technicalities.

Mining Pits Overcrowded

Spring Hill, N. S., May 24.—Although the dispute of last March over the wage rate at the Cumberland Coal and Railway company's mines has not been resumed, notwithstanding the expiration of the two months' agreement, a new grievance has arisen. It is claimed by the miners that owing to the number of men in the pits it is impossible to work full time on account of the lack of room.

May Stop Sunday Games

New York, May 24.—An opinion given by Corporation Counsel Delany finds that Sunday baseball playing by professionals is illegal and that any professionals taking part in such a game should be arrested and tried for violation of the Sunday law. Delany suggests that a test case be made and the matter finally adjudicated by the courts.

Considered Too Broad

Allentown, Pa., May 24.—When the general synod of the Reformed church convened here a resolution deploring the prevalence of card playing, dancing and theatre-going among Christians, and urging the pulpit, the Sunday schools and the young people's societies to teach against it, was withdrawn on request, after a brief discussion.

End of Railway Rate Hearing

Washington, May 24.—The senate committee on Interstate commerce has closed the hearings upon the regulation of railway rates, but will devote the remainder of the week to consideration of a plan of report and other suggestions to facilitate proceedings when congress reassembles. The present investigation began April 17.

Refused to Answer Questions

Milwaukee, May 24.—The taking of testimony in the case of the government vs. the General Paper company has been resumed. Counsel for the government sought information from Secretary Alexander relating to sales and dividends, but Alexander, acting on the advice of counsel for the paper company, refused to answer.

Herald Coupons.

The last coupon in the School contest will be printed by the Herald on Sunday, June 11. There are only eighteen days more, therefore, in which to gather the votes. The chances are excellent for Miss Julia E. Underwood of this city being one of the guests of the Herald on the excursion to the Clark and Lewis Centennial at Portland, Oregan in July. Because Miss Underwood is not one of the first three in the list today should not cause discouragement because she has a very large reserve vote. However, active work will be necessary from this time out. A few additional workers would make success easier. Coupons should be sent at least once a week to Frank F. Prescott, care Quincy Daily Ledger. Those who have been holding votes, should forward them now.

THE PEOPLE ALL

In Chorus Cried, Give Us Newbro's Herpicide.

This word of late has been in everyone's mouth, and many are wondering what the word signifies, though no one has yet been found, who will deny that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE does the work. Well, for the information of thousands of people who like to know all about a good thing, we would say that HERPICIDE means, a destroyer or killer of "Herpes," Now "Herpes" is the family name of a disease caused by various vegetable parasites. A similar microbe causes dandruff, itching scalp, and falling hair; this is the microbe that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE promptly destroys; after which the hair grows. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

OFFICIALS BOUNCED

One Result of Gas Lease Fight at Philadelphia

WERE ASKED TO RESIGN

Two Men Who Have Large Part of City's Interests In Charge Refused to Comply With Mayor's Request--Legal Fight On

Philadelphia, May 24.—In his effort to defeat the consummation of the plan to lease the city gas works to the United Gas Improvement company for 75 years for $25,000,000, Mayor Weaver dismissed from office the two principal members of his cabinet and thereby delivered a staggering blow to the dominant political organization of this city, which has caused probably the greatest sensation in the history of Philadelphia municipal affairs.

While the citizens were expecting some move on the part of the mayor they were not prepared for the immediate removal from office of David J. Smyth, director of the department of public safety, and Peter E. Costello, director of the department of public works, which occurred yesterday. The mayor has announced that he is in the fight to the bitter end, which means that a great political battle is now on and will be carried to the polls next November.

The mayor has called in as counsel Elihu Root of New York and former Judge Gordon of this city. The mayor's stated purpose in going outside the city for his principal counsel is that he wants a man who is not identified with any faction in the struggle now on.

Simultaneous with the dismissal of the two directors, Frederick J. Shoyer, director of the department of supplies, by direction of the mayor, suspended Arthur R. H. Morrow, the assistant director of the department, pending an investigation.

The removal of Directors Smyth and Costello did not come until after the mayor had asked them to resign immediately. In reply each sent a letter offering his resignation, to take effect when his successor "shall be qualified." The mayor answered them by demanding their immediate resignation. The answers the directors returned were to the effect that they had tendered their resignations "in the usual form and in accordance with the provisions of the city charter" and that they would stand by them as tendered. Mr. Weaver then ended the correspondence by sending to each a letter in which he said:

"I feel that the best interests of the city require that our official relations shall terminate at once. You therefore place me under the painful necessity of immediately removing you from the position, as I feel that I must have someone in that office responsible only to the mayor and to the city at once."

After the removals had been announced the mayor made public the names of the men he had selected for the places. They are Sheldon Potter, to fill the office of director of public safety, and A. H. Acker, to be director of the department of public works, both ad interim.

The fight over the form of the resignation was an important one in that the new directors can only be qualified by the confirmation of councils, which is controlled by the organization. The department of public safety has charge of the police and fire bureaus, electrical bureau, prisons, building inspectors, boiler inspectors, city property and inspectors of fire escapes. The bureaus of gas, highways, lighting, surveys, street cleaning, water and city ice boats are under the supervision of the department of public works. Each director receives $10,000 a year, and together they have control of 10,000 officeholders.

It is not likely that the city councils will confirm the men appointed by the mayor, but they will hold the office ad interim.

Neither Mayor Weaver nor the removed men would make a statement as to the specific reason for the changes, beyond the general statement that the proposed lease of the gas works was the cause of it. The organization to a man was in favor of the lease, while the mayor was unalterably opposed to it. He was utterly ignored in the transaction and he has been urged by the newspapers and reform organizations to veto the ordinance passed by councils last Thursday. This he has announced he will do. In the meantime he brought every influence to bear on councilmen to sustain his veto. In this he has had little success. The two directors refused to use their influence to help him and this led the mayor to ask the directors for their resignations.

PEACE VANISHES

Open War From This Time on at Chicago

LUMBER DRIVERS GO OUT

Strike Will Soon Involve Carpenters, Stone Masons and Other Affiliated Unions--Calling of Militia May Be Necessary

Chicago, May 24.—All prospects of peace in the teamsters' strike have disappeared and it will be open war from this time on. The last conference looking toward a peaceable adjustment was held last night between J. R. Barry, business agent for the Express Drivers' union, and the local managers of the seven express companies. The conversation was brief and pointed. Business Agent Barry opened the negotiations by saying:

"Our position is this: I want all the men reinstated except those who have been guilty of violence. I cannot do anything different. That is what the local union wants and that is what the local officers have told me to demand. That is all I can do. The men told me they all want to go back in a body or they won't go back at all. That is the position of the union and the union officials."

The reply of the representatives of the express companies was: "Our opposition to the reinstatement of the men will be the same four years from now as it is today. We will not take them back under any circumstances."

This brought the conference to a close and all parties concerned in it left the city hall.

The spread of the strike yesterday was not as large as was anticipated, it being understood in many quarters that there was still a possibility of peace being reached. Nearly 500 drivers employed by 28 firms belonging to the Lumbermen's association went out. In each case the men were ordered to make deliveries to boycotted houses and the usual strike followed. Other firms, to the number of 51, belonging to the Lumbermen's Exchange, will make similar requests of their men today and by night it is expected that the full number of 2000 drivers employed by these lumber concerns will be on strike.

A meeting of the United Employers' association of wood industries, which embraces 135 firms owning lumber yards, planing mills, sash and door factories, etc., was held, and it was decided to call upon their drivers to make deliveries. This will force out 1800 additional men.

With the union drivers employed by the Lumbermen's association on strike it will be only a matter of a short time until outside unions will become involved in the trouble. Unless the strike is settled within a short time the carpenters, stone masons and other affiliated organizations are bound to become involved in the difficulty.

The possibilities for increased rioting are vastly enlarged by the spread of the strike to the lumber district. The territory which generally goes under this designation extends along the river from east to west about 3½ miles and for probably a mile to the north and south of the stream. It is a district noted for the fierce mobs which have marched through it during former strikes and is the place which has invariably caused more trouble than any other part of the city.

Sheriff Barrett said: "At the first outbreak of trouble which in any way approaches the rioting we have had I shall call for troops. I will do everything in my power to maintain order, but the minute it gets beyond me I will appeal to the governor and the troops will be on the ground within less than two hours."

Every preparation has been made for a prompt response by the National Guard and a large consignment of riot cartridges has been received. These differ from the ordinary rifle cartridges, in that they contain three buckshot each in place of the single steel bullet.

"Manslaughter and Conspiracy"

Chicago, May 24.—The grand jury has indicted 12 men in connection with the death of Charles Carlstrom, the members of the Carriage Makers' union who died as the result of the beating he received at the hands of thugs, hired by the officials of the union, according to their own story. The indictments charge manslaughter and conspiracy.

Convict Labor Tabooed

Washington, May 24.—The president has issued an order prohibiting the employment of convict labor on government works. The question of the employment of such labor was raised in connection with certain river and harbor improvements in Arkansas, the contractor for which desired to employ a number of state convicts under contract with the state authorities.

Appropriation About Used Up

Washington, May 24.—Diplomatic and consular officers of the United States have been informed that, in view of the depleted condition of the appropriation for contingent expenses, no further payments for the current quarter, except for salaries and clerk hire and urgent telegrams, can be made.

Vladivostok Reported Cut Off

London, May 24.—The Tokio correspondent of The Daily Telegraph cables that the railroad to Vladivostok has been severed, as the result of which the fortress is isolated.

MARX ADMITTED GUILT

Said to Have Had Accomplice In Murder of Rodecki

Hartford, May 24.—The Hartford Times prints an interview with Attorney John J. Cuneo of South Norwalk, who was associated with counsel in the trial of Gershon Marx, in which Cuneo declares that Marx admitted to him that he and another man killed Rodecki, Marx holding his farmhand while the friend struck the blow which killed him. Marx was executed for the crime last week.

Cuneo says that the confession was made at the depot at New London on the day Marx was convicted. Marx, it is alleged, related the full details of the killing of Rodecki and said that if his instructions had been carried out the dismembered body would not have been found where it was. A townsman of Marx in Colchester, it is stated, received $25 for killing Rodecki by a blow on the head with an axe.

Marx, it is alleged, first related the story to a Hebrew newspaper man, telling him that the man who struck the blow that killed Rodecki advised Marx to "do away with Rodecki" rather than pay him $53 he owed him as wages.

Mourning For Mrs Livermore

Melrose, Mass., May 24.—From all quarters come expressions of sorrow and mourning for the death of Mary A. Livermore, the noted woman suffragist and temperance reformer, who died at her home here yesterday. Tributes to the work she has accomplished can be heard on every side. Mrs. Livermore was taken ill with bronchitis last Friday, and her heart was not strong enough to withstand the disease. She was born in Boston in 1820 and was the widow of Rev. Daniel P. Livermore.

Thieves Nabbed Automobile

Fall River, Mass., May 24.—A 10-horse power touring automobile belonging to Henry C. Chase of Taunton was stolen and run as far as Westport, 25 miles away; broke through the railing of the Westport river bridge and went into the river; was hauled ashore by the villagers and finally reached here some time before it was missed by the owner. Of the two men who, it is believed, stole the machine, one came here with it to superintend the repairs, but disappeared later.

Election Fraud Charged

Danbury, Conn., May 24.—A political sensation was sprung here last night when papers were served on Mayor Braun for his removal from office on the ground of illegal voting at the March election when Braun, who is a Democrat, defeated Mayor Boothby by a plurality of 13 votes. The papers give several specific instances of alleged crooked work at the polls. They are returnable to the superior court next Monday.

BATHING IN THE SEA.

It Originated In England In the Eighteenth Century.

Sea bathing had its origin in England before 1750, when Dr. Richard Russell published his treatise on the virtues of sea water. The healing virtues of the sea bath were not understood, nor was the practice of sea bathing generally resorted to. There seems to have existed a horror of the sea; indeed, in mediaeval times a compulsory dip in its waters was a sentence often passed on the public offender. In the earlier decades of the eighteenth century western Europe suffered heavily under "king's evil," the popular name for that tuberculous affection which scourged all classes from peer to peasant.

Dr. Russell, a Sussex practitioner, had observed that dwellers on the coast used to drink of the sea water, bathe in it, even wash their sores in it and bind them up with sea weed. Having satisfied himself as to the efficacy of the practice he began to prescribe for his patients with most satisfactory results. His treatise resulted in the coasts becoming largely patronized by the ailing, and the demand for seaside lodgings was soon a growing quantity. This gradually spread to the continent. Then people commenced to see that fresh water was a good thing, and the vital importance of the skin as an excretor of waste was greatly emphasized somewhat later (in 1834), when the morning "tub" was instituted and has since acquired a worldwide reputation.

RECEPTION.

To the Seniors of the Quincy Mansion School.

The Quincy Mansion school was ablaze with light, and brimming over with hospitality on Tuesday evening, when Dr. and Mrs. Horace M. Willard gave their annual reception to the Senior class of the school. There are eight in this year's class, and all when receiving the congratulations of their friends expressed regret that in a few short weeks, they were to leave the school.

In the receiving line were Dr. and Mrs. Willard, and the eight seniors all daintily gowned. The guests were introduced by the Juniors, who also were prettily gowned in light. Twenty states were represented by the guests. There was a large attendance of Quincy, and Wollaston friends, among them Mayor and Mrs. Thompson.

Ices and cake were served in the dining room, and coffee in the library. The floral decorations were simple, consisting mostly of bouquets of lilies of the valley. A pleasant feature of the evening was the singing of the class song by the Seniors.

The pleasures of the reception were saddened by the news of the death of Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, a grand woman, a personal friend of Dr. and Mrs. Willard for years, and one who had always taken a great interest in the school. Beautiful Livermore hall in the Canterbury building is a fitting memorial to her memory and contains a fine bust of Mrs. Livermore.

ONLY A RUMOR.

William H. Flynn Denies Reports That Were Circulated.

Editor of the Ledger:

After being discharged from the contagious hospital on Saturday evening as I came in contact with a great many people who congratulated me upon my discharge, I was greatly surprised to learn during the conversation, that my sickness has caused a great deal of comment, and that numerous remarks have been uttered that are unwarranted and untruthful. My friends called my attention to an article that appeared in an issue of your paper dated May 17, relative to a case of smallpox, the victim being a very dear friend of mine, viz: Joseph J. Kelley of Main street. The article stated that Mr. Kelley contracted the disease from me, owing to the fact that he was a constant visitor to my home, and that it was his practice to rub my back.

I wish to say most emphatically that such an assertion is absurd and untruthful. While it is true Mr. Kelley did call to see me, besides a great many more of my friends, I will say his visits were made previous to the time of my physician proclaiming my sickness to be that of a case of smallpox, and that after such time no one was allowed to enter my home.

Any assistance that was rendered during my illness was administered by my mother, and it is only fair to assume that my wants would be attended to by her and not by my friends.

Furthermore I wish to say that I think too much of my friend Mr. Kelley to allow him to endanger himself by assisting me during my illness.

The person or persons who started such a rumor, had in my opinion very vague knowledge of the circumstances and I class such people among the list of worthless gossipers.

I take the liberty in writing this communication in justice to myself and Mr. Kelley, and hope that henceforth the gossipers (for in my opinion they are such) will abstain from making false utterances and acquaint themselves with the facts of a case, rather than to guess work.

Trusting this will prove worthy of your kind recognition, and hoping it will appear in your next issue, so that the public will know the truth, I beg to remain, very respectfully yours,

William H. Flynn,
130 Summer street.

Boat Capsized.

Dr. Middleton, Mark Read and Morton Smith are candidates for medals. They were coming up the river in the doctor's launch the other day, and when off Germantown, saw a boat containing a man and boy capsize. The man swam for the overturned boat, but the boy unable to swim, was greatly in danger of being drowned. Dr. Middleton headed for the boy, and succeeded in rescuing him from a watery grave.

The Kicker.

"'Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast,'" quoted the young lady with a simper as she seated herself at the piano.

"That may be," muttered a savage bachelor, "but there are some of us in this crowd who are civilized and deserve a little consideration."

Purse Presented to Architect of Y. M. C. A. Building.

The board of directors of the Young Men's Christian Association met Tuesday evening at the association building, fourteen members being present. The architect, Mr. A. C. Sprague was present by the request of the directors. After some routine business Mr. A. D. Albee presented to Mr. Sprague a purse of $100 in gold from the members of the board as a slight token of their appreciation of his service as architect, which service he agreed from the start to contribute to the association. Too much cannot be said of the faithfulness which Mr. Sprague showed in the work from the start to the finish. He could have done no more had he been paid a handsome commission. The planing and the perfect detail of the whole structure has earned for Mr. Sprague an enviable reputation as an architect. All who are interested in this work for young, and the men themselves, owe to Mr. Spragne a great debt of gratitude.

Just a Hint.

"John," she said softly, "have you been saying anything about me to mother lately?"

"No," replied John. "Why do you ask?"

"Because she said this morning that she believed you were on the eve of proposing to me. Now, I do not wish you to speak to mother when you have anything of that kind to say. Speak to me, and I'll manage the business with mother."

And John said he would.

Not an Episcopalian.

When Bishop Codman was appointed to the Episcopal diocese of Maine he made a tour of his diocese and happened to stroll into a woodman's cottage. Asking the woman of the house if there were many Episcopallans around there, she replied: "Well, I don't know. They caught some wild thing out here in the woods a couple of weeks ago, if that's what you mean, but I think my husband said it was a woodchuck."

THE RIVAL RIVERS.

Fore River and Fall River Association Teams to Play.

The season will be practically brought to a close on Saturday with what promises to be one of the most spirited contests of the year. On that day the Fore River team journeys to Fall River, to join issue with the team of that name, for the championship of New England, and when the rival Rivers meet there will be a flood of good things in the football line.

It was only three weeks ago that the teams met in a friendly game at the home of the millworkers, and the shipworkers suffered defeat by 3 goals to 2. The absolute incapacity of the referee on that occasion, however, taken in conjunction with the rough tactics adopted by Fall River in the second half (on both of which points they were heavily scored by the local press), impressed the shipbuilders with the belief that they could vanquish their opponents if given fair treatment. The matter was taken up, and a game arranged.

Great interest is being taken in the match in both cities, as the teams are very evenly matched, both holding the championship of their respective leagues. A fight to the finish is to be expected. A large delegation will accompany the local team, and those desiring to avail themselves of the special rate for the journey can do so by making application to the secretary, Mr. N. Fraser.

The lineup for the Quincys will probably be as follows:

Goal	Neill
Right back	McGregor
Left back	Artis
Right half back	A. N. Other
Centre	Lyons
Left half back	MacDevit
Outside right forward	Hendry
Inside right forward	MacDonald
Centre	J. MacDonald
Inside left forward	MacAlliston
Outside left forward	Forsyth

With Jack MacDonald leading the front rank and the defense strengthened by "A. N. Other," the shipbuilders hope to reverse the score registered three weeks ago.

MILTON.

Bishop Lawrence will visit the Mission of Our Saviour church next Monday evening and administer the rite of confirmation to a class of thirty.

Memorial day exercises will be held in all of the public school buildings next Monday.

The flag pole in the square opposite the East Milton depot, which was taken down some weeks ago, has been erected again.

The repairing of the State highway on Granite avenue has been completed.

Boys while playing in the dump off Granite avenue found a broken jar containing the body of a still born child. It was one that had evidently been preserved in alcohol by some physician who had thrown it away.

There will be a smoke talk at a meeting of the Thursday Evening club this week.

The children of the Mission church Sunday school go to St. Michaels church next Thursday to attend the Ascension day services. They have been invited by Mrs. Rivers to visit the colonial gardens on the Gov. Hutchinson estate after the services.

The Milton Academy nine was defeated on Wednesday by the Harvard '08 boys 5 to 2 and Milton High succumbed to Adams Academy of Quincy 17 to 7.

Tibbets—Bowles.

The services of N. B. Furnald, the special justice of the peace, seem to be much in demand to tie the matrimonial knot. Wednesday evening two couples were at his residence at 90 Washington street at the same time to be united for better or worse. Unfortunately one couple had neglected to procure the necessary license, so that a postponement was necessary. Mr. Willis B. Tibbets and Miss Alice G. Bowles of Neponset, however, had the necessary credentials and the two soon became one. They gave a reception later at 389 Neponset avenue, Neponset.

Y. M. C. A. Conference.

General Secretary Gay of the Quincy Y. M. C. A., will leave Friday for Niagara Falls to attend a conference of paid workers in the Association. The topic for general discussion will be: "Association efficiency as others see it." A strong corps of speakers from various parts of the country will give their views. These include Rev. W. J. Dawson of London, Dr. Carroll D. Wright, G. Stanley Hall and many others.

—The good stories to be found in "Walnuts and Wine," June Lippincott's Magazine, are apt and timely and compel a laugh even amid the realities.

COSTS TOO MUCH.

Lower Rates for Electric Lights Wanted.

Hearing Today Before Commission.

A Large Attendance of City Square Business Men.

A gathering of upwards of one hundred citizens were present at the Council Chamber, City Hall, this morning, at the hearing given by the Gas and Electric Light Commissioners on the petition of Henry L. Kincaide & Co., and other business men for a reduction in the price paid for electricity and for better service.

All three commissioners were present.

Henry L. Kincaide was the first speaker. He spoke at length. There had been a feeling for some time that we were paying too much. We are paying $2 for gas, but we are unable to get what gas we want. The Electric company have a new plant but there have been annoying breakdowns, and in place of lower rates we get a circular raising them from 18 to 20 cents with a sliding scale. With a modern plant it seemed reasonable we should have a reduction. Then there was more or less friction with the officers. He quoted rates from other places, all of which were less than Quincy. We are anxious to use electricity but the rates are so high we cannot.

If there was a good gas plant the merchants would use it. To sum up the matter, what we desire is lower rates, more uniform service, and a more liberal policy. He also believed that the company should give free renewals as in other places, instead of paying the company 25 cents each. He also referred to the manner in which customers were met by the company, and spoke of the mistakes that were made by the company in their bills.

Mr. Kincaide was questioned at length by Counsel Pattee of the Company.

Others to speak in favor of cheaper rates were: D. E. Wadsworth, Mr. Emanuel, Peter T. Fallon, George W. Jones, Rupert F. Claflin, J. H. Fitzpatrick, Mr. Crocker of the N. Y. & B. Express Co., W. H. Teasdale, for Board of Health, Fred L. Zoler, V. E. Miller and W. P. Pinel.

The chairman announced that several letters had been received which were open for inspection.

All of the speakers spoke of the bills paid for their service, and several who had stores in other places than Quincy compared the prices paid in other places with the price paid in Quincy. In all cases the price in Quincy was the greater. Several who had substituted gas for electricity told how much cheaper it was, even at $2 per thousand, to use gas than electricity. They would be glad to use electricity if it was cheaper.

Fred W. Austin, supt. of the company was called, and said that there had been but two breakdowns within a year, both caused by outside trouble. On both of these occasions the lights were out about seven minutes. When complaints were received he had attended to them, and endeavored to do what was right:

W. G. A. Pattee said the investors in his company only expected a fair return. It has never been a speculative corporation. The advance in science has resulted in great depreciation. We started the company not for making money. Have tried to have citizens receive the benefit and the stockholders a fair return for the investment. Naturally public service corporations should receive a certain amount of kicks, and we have a good deal of that.

We try to accommodate customers. We built an entire new plant from top to bottom at cost of over $100,000, throwing away the old machinery, sinking $50,000 for which we got back perhaps $8,000.

We have had trouble but no unreasonable trouble. We claim we have given good service. We have charged off something like $33,000 for depreciation. We have got to pay out $60,000 to put in another unit at the plant.

Are prepared to put the light as low as we can after charging for depreciations and giving investors six per cent. Had large number of small consumers; were a few large consumers.

We have 107 $1 customers.
240 between $1 and $2.
162 between $2 and $3.
82 between $3 and $4.
44 between $4 and $5.
109 between $5 and $10.
78 over $10.

He also spoke of the fluctuation of lights at the first of operating new plant.

At 1 o'clock the hearing adjourned until 2 o'clock.

ANOTHER VICTORY.

Adams Academy Wins From Milton High School.

It was an easy victory on Wednesday at Merrymount Park for Adams Academy in the game with Milton High, the score being 17 to 7.

With one exception all the Adams team hit safely, the aggregate being 20 singles and 2 doubles, to 9 singles a double an one three bagger for Milton.

Holiday Yacht Race.

There will be the usual Memorial day yacht race off City Point under the auspices of the South Boston Y. C. There is always a great deal of interest in this race as there are a lot of new boats that yachtsmen are very anxious to get a comparative judgment of.

The two larger association classes, the cat boats and the two Boston bay classes, will sail over a nine mile course. The 15-footers and dories will go over a seven mile course and the tenders a three mile course. A time limit of four hours is set for all classes.

There are five M. Y. R. A. classes provided for—the 22's, 18's, 15's, cat boats and dories. Two classes—boats over 25 ft. and boats under 25 ft. are provided for in the B. B. Y. R. A. classes, and there are also two classes for tenders over and under 12 ft. in length.

The 22-footers will be sent away at 11.15 A. M., the other classes following at five minute intervals.

Merrymaking.

Bethany ten of King's Daughters had a merrymaking on Wednesday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Crane, Revere road, one of the requirements being that each "Daughter" should have a male escort. After a conversation contest the gentlemen tried their hands at millinery with colored tissue paper, while the ladies made neckties. Then the gentlemen bought, at fancy prices, lunch baskets prepared by the ladies, and a tete-a-tete lunch closed the festivities. Several prizes were awarded.

College Man Hurt.

A dispatch from Middletown, Conn., says George B. Craft of Milton, Mass., a freshman at Wesleyan University, was taken to Middlesex Hospital Wednesday as the result of injuries that may leave him a cripple for life. Crafts was celebrating the baseball victory over Amherst on that day, and was pushed over a high fence, it is alleged, tearing the muscles from his left thigh and breaking the hip.

FIREWORKS EXPLODED

But One Employe of Big Plant Was Seriously Injured

Rockland, Mass., May 25.—Ten small, one-story buildings of the National Fireworks company's plant of 60 similar structures at West Hanover were wholly or partially destroyed last evening by an explosion in the mixing room or laboratory. Of the 100 persons employed at the plant, only one man, Arthur Cate, was severely, but not fatally, injured.

The plant had a similar explosion about two years ago, which was also unattended by any loss of life. The explosion at that time wrecked a large two-story brick structure, and in its place the company built nearly 60 small wooden shanties, covered with galvanized iron and scattered over 22 acres of land.

Cate was alone in the mixing room when he saw several piles of explosives begin to smoke and flame and he started for the door. Just as he reached it the explosion came which shattered the building, and threw him to the ground.

A short distance from the mixing room was a room in which four girls were employed making firecrackers, and upon the sound of the explosion they instantly realized their danger and were able to get outside their building when that too was blown to pieces. They were all hurled to the ground by the shock, but sustained only a few bruises. By this time the other employes of the plant were running for the woods.

The loss on the buildings is insignificant, but several thousand dollars' worth of fireworks and firecrackers were destroyed.

Knights Templars Celebrate

Boston, May 25.—For the first time in nearly 10 years Boston witnessed a big turning out of Knights Templars. It was a picturesque spectacle and a pleasing pageant to view. The event was in honor of the centennial celebration of the Grand Commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, the oldest in America, and in every way was a perfect success. Nearly 7000 men were in line. The celebration was brought to a close at a banquet last night, during which an elaborate musical program was rendered. Several addresses were made.

New Head of Police Board

Boston, May 25.—James Tansey, chairman of the Fall River Textile council, who was nominated to be a member of the Fall River police board, was confirmed as such at the meeting of the executive council. Thereupon Governor Douglas designated Tansey as chairman of the Fall River board.

Killed in Carriage Accident

Drift of Opinion.

☞A happy disposition turns everything to good, yea, the want of one thing lacking which so many melancholy beings want everything. I forgot my loneliness in the cheerful realities that touched me. I knew there was a rich store of experience outside my comprehension, but the little I could grasp was wonderful enough, and having contentment I was possessed of the boon whereof I had been beggared. A happy spirit is worth a library of learning I think I derived from the daily walk to college with Miss Sullivan, more genuine pleasure than comes to many a girl who sits in a corner and works the sunshine, the fresh air, and even good humor out of her morning lessons—all for high marks."—Helen Kellar in June McClure's.

Mountain Climbing.

Judging from reports received, the climbing of Mount Rainier will be comparatively easy this year. Charles E. Cutter, of Tacoma, recently returned from a trip over the Tacoma Eastern Railroad to Longmire's springs, where he was the first to register for the season of 1905. He reported very little snow at that point, and said that Longmire found less snow on the mountain this spring than for any similar season during the past twenty years.

Owing to the scarcity of snow, visitors to Paradise Valley and those who contemplate climbing the glaciers of Mount Rainier will be enabled to make the trip much earlier than otherwise. The members of the Nazamas and the Sierras, two noted mountain climbing clubs of the Pacific coast, are planning to ascend Mount Rainier in company next July, when some members of eastern Alpine clubs will participate in connectoin with a visit to the Lewis and Clark exposition.

All the hotel keepers along the line, as well as the Tacoma Eastern Railroad which is the only means of reaching the mountain, are making special preperations to handle a great number of visitors during the coming summer who are expected there from the exposition.

Secretary Taft Talks to Ohio State Convention

THE PRESIDENT'S POLICY

Defense of Methods Pursued In Dealing With Domestic and Foreign Affairs--"Big Stick" and Big Navy Are Necessary

Columbus, O., May 25.—Although the opening session of the Republican state convention was routine the fact that Secretary of War Taft, the temporary chairman, made his debut in his native state as a state convention orator, drew a large and attentive audience. During the reading of his speech hearty applause greeted the mention of President Roosevelt and the allusion to the president's action or policy.

The secretary sketched the attitude of the Republican party on the currency question since 1896, referred to the Spanish war and its results and said:

"In the campaign of 1904 the Democratic managers ignored the fact that it ever had been in favor of free silver, and sought to make the chief issue the personality of Theodore Roosevelt. Against him they charged imperialism, militarism, usurpation of power, violations of the constitution, a dangerous foreign policy of intermeddling, and an attempt to introduce a personal government."

This, the secretary said, brought in review the action of the president in various matters which he pointed out, notably the recognition of the republic of Panama, the settlement of the anthracite coal strike, the bringing of the Northern Securities suit, and his Philippine policy. "It made manifest," the secretary continued, "the consistent attitude of Mr. Roosevelt in that he was neither a plutocrat nor a 'mobocrat.'"

"It is not true," he went on, "that we Republicans, merely by past success, can escape the responsibility of working out other great questions as to the solution of which all Republicans do not yet seem to be in full accord."

The secretary said that the interstate commerce law had accomplished much, but that inequality and injustice remained. "We can certainly trust our lawgivers," he said, "to respond to the popular demand and to regulate the railways so far as they ought to be regulated, without interfering with that control over their own property and with that motive for efficient and economic management which are still required to make successful the enormous business of railway transportation in America. This question must be settled by the Republicans.

Secretary Taft discussed the deficit in the revenues and said the Republicans must provide a suitable means of avoiding a real and permanent shortage of cash if next year witnesses a repetition of the deficit. In this connection he said that cutting down the army or naval estimates or pensions should not be thought of. The secretary said that there remain two alternatives, either to impose additional internal taxes or to readjust and revise the tariff.

"A congress of the United States has been elected," continued the secretary, "before which the issue of regulation of railroad rates and the method of meeting the deficit must come for decision. In the solution of these questions we can be certain that Ohio's representatives will support her part in bringing about a wise result.

"Mr. Roosevelt has insisted that the United States bear its part in the settlement of those questions between the nations in which, by reason of that guardianship which we maintain over this hemisphere under the Monroe doctrine, we have always claimed a right to be heard, and in those new questions arising in the far Orient in respect to which, by reason of our ownership of the Philippines and our immense growing trade with China and Japan, we may properly claim a hearing.

"Nearly at our doors in the Caribbean sea is one government, weakened by revolution and insurrection, tottering to a fall. Burdened by a debt whose face value is far beyond the means of the country to pay, it has turned to the United States for assistance in settlement with its creditors. The president concluded a treaty by which, if ratified, San Domingo will go into the hands of the United States as a receiver."

Secretary Taft said that never before has the influence of the United States for good been greater than today, because it is known not to desire an increase of territory, and because it is known that, with a navy of most respectable proportions, should it unfortunately be engaged in such a conflict, it is ready to protect itself.

"People," he continued, "are prone to say that a large navy induces bravado, pugnacity and a recklessness of peace. In one of the South American republics we are at present engaged in attempting to rescue the property of American citizens from what is said to be an unjust confiscation by the sovereign under color of judicial sanction. We have asked for arbitration and it has been refused, and we are waiting now only until congress meets before submitting the facts to it for its consideration. Meantime, we are exercising toward this republic all the forbearance that is due to a weaker nation. And so it is with the general policy of Theodore Roosevelt, that while he insists upon carrying a 'big stick,' he does in fact speak softly and exercise a degree of forbearance that the confidence of strength and a righteous purpose justifies."

Secretary Taft said that we shall hold the Philippines, certainly for a generation, probably for several generations, in our efforts to lead the people on to education and prosperity and a knowledge of self-government. During that time we must give the islands the advantages of a member of our family. This benefit, he said, can never exist as long as we maintain a high tariff wall between us and the islands.

The remainder of Mr. Taft's speech was devoted to state issues.

Captivating Cape Cod.

Of purely ocean scenery and the experiences that belong to ocean shores and surroundings, southeastern Massachusetts presents the finest examples that the United States coasts possess.

Cape Cod, the islands of Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard and Buzzards Bay shores teem with attractions for ocean-lovers and employments and enjoyments for recreations seekers such as no succession of shores of equal extent can ever rival.

These resorts are veritable sanitariums, as potent and efficacious in their ministratrations for wearied bodies as are the most favored of human institutions, and with the added attribute in their favor that their natural claims fascinate every person who comes within their influence.

The facilities furnished by the New Haven railroad for reaching these resorts are unexcelled.

Merrymounts vs. Braintree.

The Merrymount base ball team go to Braintree Saturday afternoon to play one of the best games of the season. The Braintrees have an exceptionally strong team and the Merrymounts will probably have their hands full. In preparation for a good game Manager Baker has been busy this week getting new players to come out to practice, and he will be accompanied by an excellent squad. It is hoped that a large number of rooters will go to Braintree and give the cheering necessary to encourage a team and help it to play good base ball.

Y. M. C. A. Expansion.

John Wanamaker announced in Paris at the World's Conference of the Young Men's Christian Association, that he would give $100,000 for buildings in Pekin, Seoul and Kyoto, and Mr. James Stokes of New York offered $75,000 for the erection of a building in St. Petersburg where the Association already has 1,000 members. Prince Hilkoff, Minister of Railways, and Prince Oldenberg are members, The Czarina is its most interested patron. To show his good feeling the Mikado gave $5,000 to the Japanese Army work. And thus it grows.

A FACT PROVEN.

Should Convince Even the Most Skeptical of Its Truth.

If there is the slightest doubt in the minds of any that Dandruff germs do not exist, their belief is compelled by the fact that a rabbit innoculated with the germs became bald in six weeks' time.

It must be apparent to any person therefore that the only prevention of baldness is the destruction of the germ—which act is successfully accomplished in one hundred per cent. of cases by the application of Newbro's Herpicide.

Dandruff is caused by the same germ which causes baldness and can be prevented with the same remedy—Newbro's Herpicide.

Accept no substitute. "Destroy the cause you remove the effect."

SEA FIGHT RUMOR

Manila Hears That Japanese Met With Defeat

SITUATION IN MANCHURIA

Latest News Points to Proximity of Fighting on Large Scale--Cossacks Pay Dearly For Daring Expedition

Manila, May 25.—There is an unconfirmed rumor that the Russian and Japanese fleets have met south of Formosa and that the Japanese were defeated.

Indications of Great Fight

St. Petersburg, May 25.—The news from the front continues to point to the proximity of fighting on a large scale. Lieutenant General Linevitch sent Lieutenant General Rennenkampff's Cossacks on a daring expedition around Field Marshal Oyama's left. Rennenkampff succeeded in penetrating to the rear of the Japanese, but paid dearly, his Cossacks being badly cut up.

Many believe that Linevitch is trying to take the offensive out of Oyama's hands. The latter has made all preparations against the possible interruption of his communications and the cessation of the transport service from Japanese ports. All reinforcements available and the immense quantities of provisions and munitions of war have been landed at Yinkow and Dalny since Vice Admiral Rojestvensky appeared in the Straits of Malacca.

Newspaper correspondents at the front are prevented by the censor from telegraphing any intelligent view of the situation and this has always been the precursor of important developments. Linevitch has taken far greater precautions than did Kuropatkin to prevent his plans leaking out.

In naval circles it is now generally assumed that Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's squadrons are in the Pacific steaming northward and giving the Pescadores, Formosa and the Luchu islands a wide berth in order to minimize the danger of a concentrated torpedo attack under cover of these islands and to force Vice Admiral Togo, should he elect to accept battle, to meet him in the open.

The Linevitch-Kuropatkin Feud

London, May 25.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Times says that Lieutenant General Linevitch has demanded the recall of General Kuropatkin.

$10,000 For Brockton Fund

Pittsburg, May 25.—The Carnegie Hero Fund commission has made the initial awards. Nine cases were acted favorably upon by the commission. Three silver medals and six bronze medals were awarded. Three widows whose husbands lost their lives in the performance of acts of heroism were cared for, and in one case a money grant was made to a heroine for educational purposes. The commission made a grant of $10,000 to the general fund for the relief of the dependants upon the victims of the Brockton, Mass., disaster of March 20 last.

Russian Prince Assassinated

St. Petersburg, May 25.—Though no details of the assassination yesterday of Prince Nakachidze, governor of Baku, have been received, the impression here is that the outrage was the work of the Armenian revolutionary committee in revenge for the attitude taken by the prince during the racial war between Armenians and Tartars in Feburary last. The Armenians laid the responsibility for the deaths of those slain in February at the door of Nakachidze.

Frenzied Finance in Ohio

Canton, O., May 25.—The Canton state bank, with individual deposits of more than $600,000, has closed its doors. The directors state that the bank will not be able to resume business. The failure was brought about by loans of more than $400,000 to W. L. Davis, vice president of the bank, by the cashier, for which no adequate security has been furnished to the bank.

Stage Guard Turned Highwayman

San Diego, Cal., May 25.—The Ensenda-San Quentin stage was held up in La Gruella canon, Lower California, the driver shot and $700 government funds in transit stolen. The money was guarded by a special messenger, who, it is alleged, shot the driver and clubbed him until he was apparently dead and then decamped with the funds.

Barney Oldfield Has an Accident

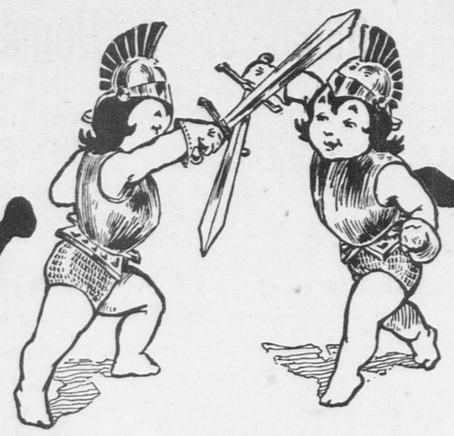

Chicago, May 25.—Barney Oldfield, the automobile racer, had a narrow escape from death while speeding his machine in a try-out here. While he was going at high speed a tire exploded and the machine plunged through a fence. Oldfield was picked up unconscious, but no bones were broken.

National Bank Short of Cash

Oklahoma City, O. T., May 25.—The First National bank of Lexington having failed to open its doors, Vice President Voltz explains that he found there was insufficient cash on hand for his needs. The failure is due to inability to realize on collateral.

Capture of Alleged Deserter

RATE REGULATION.

It Might Seriously Affect Cotton Shipments

SOUTH IS CHANGING VIEW

Railroad Argument of Danger From Approximation of Rates to Mileage Basis Sets Leaders to Thinking

Washington, May 25.—One important result of the delay in railroad legislation, according to members of the senate committee who have just concluded their hearing, has been a considerable change in southern sentiment, especially among influential leaders of opinion. The south started in squarely behind President Roosevelt's movement for qualified government rate regulation.

The Democratic platform adopted at St. Louis last year declared for "an enlargement of the powers of the interstate commerce commission to the end that the travelling public and the shippers may have prompt and adequate relief from the abuses to which they are subjected in the matter of transportation."

Mr. Bryan early came out in advocacy of Mr. Roosevelt's efforts, and the southern Democrats voted solidly for the Esch-Townsend bill, after advocating something still more radical. It accordingly looked as if the president's campaign on rate regulation would be aided by the minority party in congress, which would make it necessary that all the opposition should come from his own ranks.

But the railroad arguments have made so deep an impression upon many southern public men that they privately acknowledge that, while they may vote for a step toward rate regulation, because of political necessities, they hope that the situation may be so controlled by internal strategy that they will not have to do this, and any aid that can be given to such strategy in the senate, several southern Democrats stand ready to furnish. This feeling need not show itself in the house, because the senate will draft the bill.

The argument that seems to be catching the southern leaders is the danger to their section from any approximation of rates to a mileage basis, and particularly in the movement of cotton. They realize that the next few years may see a bitter struggle in the export cotton trade, due to competition with the new sources of supply that the British colonies are developing, over which British opinion is now so optimistic. America is more dependent upon the export of cotton than of any other crop, and if anything should break its supremacy abroad, the southland would be severely injured.

One great advantage which the south today has over the possible cotton areas of East Africa and India is in cheap transportation from the interior to the coast. The American railroads, controlling their own rates, in such a struggle for supremacy would haul cotton from the uplands at rates which would keep the cotton-growing area intact in the face of serious competition. Added to this argument, there is hardly a prominent southern city that has not been partly convinced that it owes its importance in some industry to a cheap long haul, and these instances have been emphasized by the railroad agents in such a way as to make sentiment. Moreover, railroad interests are so strong in the south that few aspirants for political advancement will dare to disregard them.

These considerations in part account for the absence of all but three Democratic members from the committee hearings, and the known desire of several of the minority is to break, if it can be done quietly, with the railroad rate regulation wing of the party.

Incidental to the general subject under consideration, it is likely that the committee will recommend legislation along lines suggested by James J. Hill to put trainmen who, by violating their rules or orders, bring on accidents, under the operation of federal laws, and punishable through federal courts.

Mr. Hill believed the penalties now available for the railroads were insufficient, and that a large number of accidents were occasioned by the carelessness of employes and their disregard of orders. Senator Elkins asked how it would do to have a federal license required of all trainmen engaged in interstate commerce, in order to establish standards of efficiency.

It is alleged that Young killed Eberhardt while seeking to evade capture.

QUAKER CITY GAS FIGHT

Weaver's Appointees Had Two Hours' Term of Office

Philadelphia, May 25.—The gas lease fight has been carried into the courts and in consequence Sheldon Potter and A. L. Acker, the two directors appointed by Mayor Weaver, are out of office, and P. E. Costello and D. J. Smyth, the directors who were dismissed, have again taken up the duties of their positions, as a result of a temporary injunction issued in common pleas court. What the next move will be cannot be foreshadowed. The leaders of the Republican organization announce that their lines remain unbroken; that the gas lease will be passed over the mayor's veto next week and that the lease will be put into operation.

The new directors were in office about two hours. All the morning a stream of visitors had been calling to congratulate them. After the new directors went out and the old officials went in visitors were still arriving.

Regarding the injunction, Mayor Weaver said: "I am still the mayor of the city and I mean to exercise all the rights of my office. The injunction cannot prevent me doing my duty."

Railroad Men to Be Deported

St. Thomas, Ont., May 25.—Judge Winchester has ordered the deportation of some of the officials of the Pere Marquette railroad in Canada as the result of an investigation into charges that the railroad has been following a policy of replacing residents of Canada and men of unquestioned competency with officials brought from the United States. It is understood that steps already have been taken toward an appeal on the ground that the alien contract labor law of Canada does not apply in this case.

OLD SOLDIERS' BILL.

Is Also Vetoed by Gov. Douglas. Full Text of Veto.

Gov. Douglas has vetoed the Veterans gratuity bill. Similiar action by his predecessor Gov. Bates, is attributed as one of the principal reasons for his defeat at the polls. The full text of the veto follows:

"I return herewith an act entitled 'An Act to Authorize the Payment of Money to Certain Veterans of the Civil War.'

"The bill seeks to authorize the payment by the commonwealth to every veteran of the civil war who served to the credit of Massachusetts, living at the passage of the act, and who was not a conscript or substitute, the sum of $125, excepting those who received a bounty. This payment is to be met by the use of a sum not to exceed $350,000.

"Bounties were paid to certain soldiers of the civil war at the time of their enlistment, some by the state and some by certain cities and towns. The number of veterans who are now living who would be entitled to a bounty under the provisions of this act it is impossible to ascertain. The cities and towns paid bounties to certain men who enlisted, but the records of such payments are in many instances incomplete and unreliable.

"This act would attempt to impose on the state an unascertained liability. An investigation based on such facts as can be obtained, however, indicates very clearly that the amount appropriated, $350,000, would be entirely inadequate to carry out the intent of the act, and that the amount required would be several times the sum provided for.

"This bill is similar to chap. 458 of the acts of the year 1904. On July 20, 1904, the Governor and council passed an order requesting the opinion of the justices of the supreme judicial court upon certain questions relative to that act, one of which was its constitionality. On Sept. 21, 1904, the justices returned an answer to this request, which may be found in vol. 186 of Massachusetts Reports, page 601, stating that the expenditure of money proposed in that act was for a use which was not public but private, and that therefor the statute was not in conformity with the constitution of the commonwealth.

"The act herein returned bore so close a resemblance to the previous act of 1904 that it was deemed wise by the Senate to request the opinion of the attorney-general, and in pursuance of that request the attorney-general advised the Senate on May 15, 1905, that the act which is now before me is open to the objections of the act of 1904, and is unconstitutional.

"The provisions of this act are designated as unconstitutional by the legal adviser of the commonwealth, on an opinion sustained and based on several decisions of our supreme court.

"The authority of the Governor is measured by the constitution. He is chosen to do what it permits and nothing more, and has taken solemn oath to obey and support it. Should he disregard its provisions, he would usurp his authority, abuse his trust and violate the promise which he made to the people, confirmed by his oath of office. To sign an act which is shown to be in violation of the principles of the constitution is to treat as of no force the most imperative obligation any person can assume.

"I, therefore, return this act, as I deem it unsatisfactory by its provisions, as it imposes an uncertained liability on the commonwealth, and that the money which the act seeks to appropriate would be insufficient to carry out its intent, but especially in view of what I feel to be my duty on account of my advice that it is unconstitutional."

The Magazines.

"The Lady from the Sea," a new novelette by Cyrus Townsend Brady, appears complete in the June number of Lippincotts. As the title indicates, this is a tale of the sea, so thrilling, so romantic, so full of adventure that it compels devouring interest from its first to its last page. The heroine is named Ellen Smith, and the Captain, who is her gallant lover, and her jailer as well for a time, is named Jones, and he had begun his career at the age of eleven as captain's servant.

The publishers of Everybody's claim the June number, the second anniversary number, is the best they have ever issued. They have given us in addition a remarkable story by Robert Grant, the author of "The Undercurrent," in which his keen insight is turned on one phase of our civilization. There is a novel and entertaining article on "Opper, Outcault & Co.," the story of the Comic Supplements, by Roy L. McCardell, with interesting personal items about the creator of "Foxy Grandpa," the father of the "Yellow Kid," and the rest of the comic-artists. The pencil drawings of the Hudson River by Vernon Howe Bailey are full of beauty and distinction.

—The Frank A. Robbins Co.'s circus will be in Quincy June 9th, at the corner of Washington and River streets.

MEDAL AND PURSE.

Presented by Carnegie to Miss Ernestine F. Atwood.

A Carnegie medal and $500 has been awarded to Miss Ernestine F. Atwood, aged 17, a student at Melrose, for saving the life of Harry M. Smith, 36 years of age, at Rose Cliff, North Weymouth, last summer. Mr. Smith was coachman for ex-Councilman Joseph C. Morse of Quincy.

An Aug. 22, 1904, while in bathing, Smith became exhausted and sank under a float. Miss Atwood dived under the float and dragged the drowning man to the surface.

Miss Atwood is the daughter of Mr. Frank H. Atwood, 16 Parker street, Melrose. She was 16 when the rescue was made, and to this day she insists that she does not know how she did it. Mr. Smith was 36 years old, and weighed 200 pounds. He was a dead weight at the time, being unconscious.

Speaking of the rescue she said: "I was hurried away as soon as I reached shore. It was all a blank to me until half an hour after, when it seemed like a bad dream. That is all I know about it."

Miss Atwood is such a frail girl tha it hardly seems possible she could do the deed. Her health was so delicate that she was unable to complete her studies at the Melrose High School. She has a decided taste for art, and her talent for designing is marked.

She will soon comple her second year at the school of design connected with the Boston Art Museum. Friends have been aiding her financially to pursue her studies. The gift of $500 from the Carnegie fund will enable her to finish her studies during the next two years independently. She expects to earn her living by designing.

Mr. Carnegie also gives to the families of the persons who lost their lives in the Brockton shoe factory explosion and fire a short time ago $10,000.

He also awards several other medals for heroism.

Our National Drink Bill.

The American Grocer prepares yearly an estimate of the drink bill of the people of the United States. These figures, while not official, are recognized as being the best data obtainable on the question. Of course, much of the work is estimated, as is shown by the statement that liquor is figured on the basis of sixty drinks to the gallon, the average price per drink being taken at seven and a half cents. The entire drink bill for stimulants is placed at the enormous total of almost one and one-half billion dollars, far more than the bonded indebtedness of the United States, and almost three times the ordinary yearly expenditures of the government inclusive of the postal item. On a per capita basis this means more than $18 a year, the more harmless stimulants, such as tea, coffee and cocoa, accounting for less than $3, while alcoholic beverages make up the remainder. Of course, no small part of this drink bill goes into public treasuries either as internal revenue, as customs duties or to the various municipalities in license fees, etc., but the drink bill is a great burden on the people, a burden that cannot be fairly measured by the cost alone of the liquors consumed. To the over-indulgence in alcoholic stimulants must be attributed the greater part of the crime and poverty in the country. Were those all reckoned into the accounting, our national drink bill would be advanced from its present figures, large as they are, to a total that would be appalling. —Herald, May 25, 1905.

Power from Niagara Rapids.

The Niagara River decends 100 feet and develops 2,500,000 h. p. between the base of the great cataract and the foot of the encampment at Lewiston and Queenstown, five miles down stream.

This energy, represented by the normal discharge of 222,000 cubic feet of water per second, is now expended in excavating the great gorge in which the White Horse Rapids, the Whirlpool, and Niagara Glen are located. Fully 80 feet of this fall along the rapids occurs between a point of several hundred feet south of the Cantilever Bridge and another at the lower end of the glen, which can be connected by a tunnel some 10,000 feet long, on the New York side of the river. With the head of 80 feet and the discharge 222,000 cubic feet per second, named above, these rapids thus develop 2,000,000 horse power, as mechanical motion and heat.

This power is fully one-half as great as that of the American and Horse Shoe Falls combined, since the volume of water is substantially the same in the falls and the rapids, and the descent of the former is only twice that of the latter. Making the fair assumption that 60 per cent. of the gross energy in the water of these rapids can be transformed into electric current, the output of plants utilizing the entire flow would reach 1,200,000 horsepower. This capacity is nearly double that of the six great electric power stations that are now in various stages of completion about Niagara Falls, three on the New York and three on the Canadian side of the river.—Alton D. Adams, in The Engineering Magazine for June.

DEALING FAIRLY.

The Claim of Electric Light Company.

At Hearing Before the Commissioners.

Good Discount Given on Prompt Payment of Bills.

There was not as many at the Electric Light hearing at the afternoon session on Thursday as at the morning session. The greater part of the afternoon was taken up by the Electric Light Co.

Mr. Pattee, continuing, said that the matter had been well advertised through an anonymous circular and through the press. He assumed all the parties who had a grievance were present. The statements so far as service is concerned does not seem to amount to much. As to the prices parties say that bills jump. Perhaps they have been leaving the lights burning in the cellar or back shop. We suppose we have the best meters. We always say that if they think the meters are wrong they can have the commissioners test them. We try to do the best we can by our customers. We find at times that the building is poorly wired. Then the blackening of the lamps make lights poor. These are beyond our control.

Our present base is 20 cents per Killawatt hour. If you will examine our system you will find that it is of as much benefit to the consumers as others. We did have a basis of 18 cents with a discount on bills over $10. We found that some bills run five or six months. We adopted this system to get our bills is quicker. All bills paid before the 15th get a discount on the sliding scale.

We did not intend to raise or lower the rates, but to insure payments within reasonable time. They all were supposed to figure out on an 18 cent basis. We have 78 consumers who pay over $10 per month. To this number the schedule in beneficial up to $18; then it becomes a disadvantage to the consumer, but only affects a very few.

We propose to remedy this so that the schedule will stand at 18 cents with a discount of 10 per cent. on all bills over $10. Upon these figures we think we are dealing with consumers and stockholders fairly.

In reply to a question by Mr. Kincaide as to the amount charged to depreceation, Mr. Pattee said that the total amount charged since incorporation was about $33,000. All petitioners are within a half mile of the centre. He did not find any complaint from consumers outside this territory.

In addition to the proposed change in rates the company were also considering the matter of free renewals.

In reply Mr. Kincaide said that the petition was not sent outside of the centre. We have had a fair representation of the business men here today. It is almost impossible to get the house consumers here as their business calls them out of town.

One of the Commissioners asked the company to furnish them with the amount received from consumers whose bills were less than $10, the number of killawatts sold to consumers whose bills are over $10 and the total output in killawatts.

Henry M. Faxon, treasurer of the company, explained the present system of discounts which the company proposed to revise.

Chairman Barker said this was a purely business proposition, and that the board would take it under advisement and give it their careful consideration. Continuing, he said, that on Tuesday he had received a petition from Quincy citizens asking that the price charged by, and the service furnished by the Citizens Gas Co., be investigated at this hearing. Owing to the lateness of its receipt no notice could be issued. If there was anyone present however who desired to say anything they might speak.

There was no one, however, who had anything to say, and the chairman said that it may be assumed that the petition is filled.

He further said he knew that the service of this company had been bad in the past, but that since the matter was before the board the ownership had changed, and it was the policy of the present company to run the plant on a business basis, as it did other properties which it owned. There had probably been unavoidable delays which had prevented the company from doing what it had planned to do.

The hearing adjourned at 3 o'clock.

THE LOSS SMALL.

Quincy Institutions Not as Heavy Creditors as Reported.

There is no occasion for alarm because two Quincy institutions appear in the list of creditors of the brokerage firm of Burnett, Cummings & Co. of Boston, who have filed a petition in bankruptcy.

It would take more than that to shake the Quincy Savings bank and Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company. The claim of the Savings Bank is among the smallest, only $1,707.30, and the officials of the bank inform the Ledger that their loss will not be half of that, as they have realized on collateral. The surplus of the bank today is over $260,000, so that a loss of about $1,000 is really very small.

While the claim of the Quincy Mutual Insurance Company is placed at $22,464.40, the officials of the company do not expect to lose over $5,000, as the company holds good collateral. The Quincy Mutual was never in a better financial condition than today. It has greatly improved its class of risk, and its surplus is large, and yearly increasing. The condition of Burnett, Cummings & Co. has been known for a year, so that their failure has been discounted.

The Blue Hill National bank of Milton is a creditor for $2,121.34; the Hingham National bank for $4,398.41, the Union National bank of Weymouth for $19,120.80, and the three Savings banks of Weymouth for $7,542,42, $10,581.67 and $10,801.39.

While there is a disposition to attribute the failure of Burnett, Cummings & Co. to small earnings of street railways built in thinly settled districts, the real cause is over-capitalization and all that goes with it.

Knights of Malta.

The Knights of Malta held an enthusiastic convocation in Greenleaf hall on Thursday evening, the occasion being a visit from officers of the Grand Commandery. A substantial donation to the paraphernalia fund by Dr. Middleton of Quincy Point was announced. The Red Cross degree team from Cambridge is expected to give an exemplification at the first meeting in July.

—The Nebraska Legislature has appropriated $16,000 for an exhibit of the state's resources at the Lewis and Clark Exposition, and Governor Mickey has appointed three commissioners.

☞Eyeglasses fitted scientifically. No guess work.—Williams.

HEAVY STATE TAX.

Nearly Twice as Large as Last Year—Record Breaker.

Quincy must add to its tax rate this year about fifty cents to pay the increase in State tax. Last year the city's apportionment was $18,050, whereas this year it will be $28,880, an increase of $10,830.

Last year the total State tax was $2,500,000 which was above the average, but this year a tax of $4,000,000 is proposed. This levy will be the largest since 1867 following the Civil war.

If the State tax is $4,000,000, Boston's part, which is over one-third, will be $1,440,200. Only two other cities, Worcester and Cambridge, will pay over $100,000. Those called upon for $90,000 and less than $100,000 are Fall River, Springfield and Lowell. Newton is alone in the $80,000 to $90,000 division, and then come New Bedford and Somerville.

Above $60,000 and less than $70,000 is Lynn, and above $50,000 are Holyoke and Lawrence. None of the cities pay between $40,000 and $50,000.

These 21 cities will contribute less than $40,000 each:

Beverly	$23,725
Brockton	39,850
Chelsea	30,560
Chicopee	13,120
Everett	26,000
Fitchburg	32,440
Gloucester	26,280
Haverhill	34,280
Malden	39,560
Marlboro	12,240
Medford	25,920
Melrose	18,600
Newburyport	14,160
North Adams	18,880
Northampton	16,240
Pittsfield	22,120
Quincy	28,880
Salem	38,080
Taunton	29,160
Waltham	27,760
Woburn	13,880

It will be seen that 13 of the 33 cities will pay a smaller state tax than Quincy, and therefore have a smaller assessed valuation, viz: Waltham, Everett, Medford, Gloucester, Pittsfield, Beverly, Chicopee, Marlboro, Melrose, Newburyport, North Adams, Northampton, and Woburn.

But one town in the State pays a larger State tax than Quincy, and that is Brookline, which stands fourth in valuation among the cities and towns of Massachusetts. Quincy stands number 20 among the 33 cities and number 21 among the cities and towns.

Mistress Mary, by Miss Marion Hardy.

Little Miss Muffet, by Miss Ruth Blaisdell.

Little Boy Blue, by Master David Bailey, assisted by Master Edward Bullock.

Little Bo Peep, by Miss Beulah Church, assisted by Miss Muriel Badger.

Jack and Jill, by Master Roland Hall and Miss Evelyn McFarland, assisted by Master William Cahill.

Little Tommy Tucker by Master Percival Fenton.

The Little Hunter by Master Joe McGrath.

Sing a Song of Sixpence by Miss Dorothy Seeley, Miss Gertrude Bullock and Master Samuel Drew.

Recitation, Pitty Pat and Tippytoe by Miss Bertha Hill, represented by Master Albion Hill and Master Everett Hill.

Ice cream, candy and fancy articles were on sale. The proceeds will be used to purchase a piano for the department.

Holiday Game.

The South Quincy base ball club will have as their opponents on the morning of Memorial day on the Ward Three playgrounds the Norwood team. In the afternoon on the Ward Four playgrounds the South Quincys and West Quincys will be pitted against each other. The batteries for South Quincy for both games are Patterson and Drake, while the batteries for Norwood are Hauck or Coughlin and McCready. The West Quincy battery will be Mansfield of Holy Cross, and Forbes or Dyer.

Ice Cream Social.

The ice cream social held in the Universalist vestry Thursday evening was well attended. The ice cream, cake and candy tables were well patronized. An excellent entertainment was thoroughly enjoyed. Piano solos by Mrs. White and Miss Merritt, vocal selections by Mrs. Blanche Richardson and Mr. Temple, and violin solos by Mr. Trout were given during the evening.

Assistant Registrar.

Judge Flint has appointed J. Raphael McCoole of East Dedham assistant registrar of probate for Norfolk county to succeed the late Edwin M. Grover of Needham. He began at the court house eleven years ago as telephone boy, becoming a clerk in the registers office in 1895. He was born March 26, 1879, and is now in the Boston Y. M. C. A. law school.

Needless Alarm.

An alarm from Box 25 at 7.40 Thursday evening called the apparatus to the unoccupied blacksmith shop at the McKenzie & Paterson granite plant on Canal street. The alarm was unnecessary as the fire was slight. A chemical stream from H. & L. No. 1 was used. The apparatus from Quincy Point and Wollaston made remarkable quick runs.

—Coupon parties are being held in the interests of some of the candidates in the Herald school contest.

Drift of Opinion.

☞A statue of Senator Hoar is to be erected in Worcester, and what is most to his honor it is to be paid for by popular subscription. Everybody is to have opportunity to give, and small sums will be as gratefully received as large ones. In the first place, it is a good thing that the expenditure is not the formal tribute expressed by the coldness of a city council appropriation; and in the second place, it is a better thing that the community is not leaning up against the millionaires for the funds. Senator Hoar was of the aristocracy of intellect, but he was preeminently a man of the people. He believed in democracy. He believed in folks. A memorial which did not recognize that animating spirit of his life would be a partial and imperfect memorial.—New Bedford Standard.

☞No one objects to the gentleman who smokes. It is the rowdy and hog who is the nuisance. The "smart Aleck" who is regardless of the rights of the woman, into whose face he blows his smoke, should be denounced by all decent men, as our wives, daughters and mothers, when alone, have no defence against that hog. A woman gets into the smokers' seat because she is nervously hurried into the first seat that comes to her. If she sits next to a gentleman he will not have to ask anyone what he should do, if his smoke blows into her face. Any old kind of cheap perfume is nicer than an old pipe or cigarette smoke blown down through a diseased nose. The non-smoker should not have to look out for the smoker. It is the smokers place to see that he does not befoul the air that others breathe.—Letter in the New York Globe.

—The Goldfield, Nev., Bank & Trust company, with liabilities of $78,227, has failed. The assets so far discovered are $4,821, of which $4,800 is in notes. There was $16 in the vault and a five dollar gold piece was found under the counter.

—In response to the request of Governor General Wright, Mayor General Corbin has detailed Brigadier General William H. Carter, commander of the department of the Visayas, to secure the pacification of the east coast of Samar.

—Secretary Hay will arrive at Paris next Monday for a stay of two days. Arrangements have been made for him to meet Foreign Minister Delasse. Mr. Hay's only purpose is to make a visit of courtesy.

BANKS HEAVY CREDITORS

Speculation In Stocks of Street Railways Which Went Into the Hands of Receivers Hastened Financial Embarrassment

Boston, May 26.—Seventy-one banks and trust companies, most of them in Massachusetts, but many located in various parts of the country, are among the creditors of the banking firm of Burnett, Cummings & Co. of this city, which has filed an involuntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court with liabilities placed at $1,714,368.

The assets are stated to be uncertain. The creditors have been given to understand that they will not exceed $200,000, if, indeed, they prove to be of any value whatsoever. The bankruptcy petition is the heaviest filed in this district since the present bankruptcy laws went into effect in Massachusetts.

Attorney Auerbach, counsel for the bankrupt firm, said that the cause of the failure was the building and financing of the Concord and Boston Street Railway company, the Middleboro, Wareham and Buzzards Bay Street Railway company, the Lowell and Boston Street railway and the Bristol County Railway company.

These roads were in thinly settled districts and were unable to make suitable connections with roads running to Boston. The four companies were placed in the hands of receivers and thereupon the notes given by them became valueless. Furthermore, the Massachusetts Securities company's bonds, which were secured by obligations of these electric railways, lost their value and entailed losses upon the firm. Auerbach stated also that the buying of the Hampden Trust company of Springfield, and of the Taunton Safe Deposit and Trust company, which, unknown to the firm, were in serious financial straits and which were placed in the hands of receivers, hastened the firm's financial embarrassment. The refusal of the extension of credit by the banks then made a continuance in business impossible.

The secured creditors number 87 and the unsecured 81. There are 32 savings banks in the list of creditors and 13 Massachusetts national banks. It is understood that the securities given the banks for their loans were bonds of the Massachusetts Securities company, which, in turn, were secured by notes of the bankrupt electric railways.

The firm of Burnett, Cummings & Co., composed of Archie C. Burnett and Charles S. Cummings, 2nd, has been in business three years and a half, succeeding the firm of C. S. Cummings & Co. Burnett has had no connection with the business for over two years. According to Lawyer Auerbach, he left the firm upon finding that its business was devoted to financing suburban street railways instead of the purchase and sale of municipal and railroad bonds.

In connection with the bankruptcy the state savings bank commissioners said that so far as their investigations had gone the savings banks which had loaned money upon the Massachusetts Securities bonds had not violated any laws of the commonwealth. The office of the bankrupt company is at 43 Milk street, this city.

CHECK FOR $161,174

Cotton Gets It After Giving Governor $1,611,740 Warrant

Boston, May 26.—John B. Cotton has received the check for $161,174.09 that settled his long-contested claim against the commonwealth for 10 percent commission for the collection of the commonwealth's Civil war claims from the federal government.

What happened in the governor's office was substantially this: Mr. Cotton handed to the governor the warrant for the payment of $1,611,740.90 from the United States government, and took the governor's receipt, the governor turning over the draft to State Treasurer Chapin, and taking his receipt. The state treasurer then signed the check made out to Cotton for the payment of the 10 percent commission, and Cotton signed a receipt for it, thus closing the transaction as between himself and the state officials.

As soon as State Treasurer Chapin had signed the check, however, he took the draft for the $1,611,740.90, and went directly to Assistant Treasurer Marden's office in the federal building and presented the draft to be cashed. The assistant treasurer had the money ready for him in gold certificates of the denomination of $5000 and $10,000, and Chapin had only to present the draft endorsed by the governor, with the secretary of the commonwealth's certificate that William L. Douglas, the endorser, was in fact governor of the commonwealth, and the money was paid over.

Deserters From Fort Ethan Allen

Burlington, Vt., May 26.—A sentry and two prisoners in his care, all privates in the United States cavalry, left Fort Ethan Allen without authority. One of the prisoners returned voluntarily late yesterday afternoon and a searching party was sent out last night for the two deserters. The man who came back, Edward Fayson, says that he was compelled by the sentry, Norman Mercier, and Earl C. Huntley, the other prisoner, to accompany them for an hour, after which he was released and made his way to this city, where he gave himself up to the police.

Automobile's Fast Climb

Worcester, Mass., May 26.—More than a score of motor vehicles of various descriptions essayed the steep grade of Dead Horse hill at Leicester, the course being a mile in length and the rise from start to finish of 325 feet. The best time was made by a 90-horse power gasoline car owned by Samuel B. Stevens of Rome, N. Y., which rushed up the hill in 1 minute and 3 seconds. With two exceptions the contests, of which there were 12, were captured by New England manufacturers.

Express Train Overtook Them

Swanton, Vt., May 26.—Two men were killed and one fatally injured on the Central Vermont railroad last evening. Joseph Campbell, aged 60, and James Bushey, 40, were killed. Charles Vinclette, 40 years old, had his skull crushed. The three men had been fishing and were returning to the town on a handcar, which Bushey, who was a brakeman, had borrowed from a railroad company. Just before reaching the railroad yard they were overtaken by an express train.

Girls Shun Census Men

Northampton, Mass., May 26.—The question, "How old are you?" is causing annoyance among census takers who have been trying to make progress among the fair students at Smith college. The young women, 1065 of them, have found it convenient to be at recitations, away from the dormitories on recreative stunts, or "not at home" when the enumerator called.

Part of Dam Gone

Bangor, Me., May 26.—A 60-foot section of the wooden dam at the foot of Webster lake, on the east branch of the Penobscot river, has been carried away. It is believed that the break will not seriously affect the lumber drives in this portion of the river. The dam will be in a condition to hold water in about 10 days.

Lumber Plant Destroyed

Fort Fairfield, Me., May 26.—The mills of the Aroostook Lumber company at Stevensville, together with several hundred thousand feet of lumber, were destroyed by fire last night. The loss is estimated at $75,000. The fire originated in one of the mills from some unknown cause and burned the entire plant.

Kiln Tenders Lose Strike

Rockland, Me., May 26.—It is expected that the strike of kiln-tenders in this city will be settled today, and that the men will return without having obtained an advance from $1.87½ to $2 a day. About 100 of the tenders, however, may refuse to go back unless the original demands are conceded.

Protest Against School Support

IN WEAVER'S FAVOR

Court Suspends the Temporary Injunction

OLD OFFICERS ELECTED

Important Positions Are Turned Over to New Appointees-Popular Demonstration In Approval of Executive's Action

Philadelphia, May 26.—The bitter feeling that has been engendered by the gas lease fight was intensified when Mayor Weaver practically ejected from the offices of the departments of public safety and public works his two former directors and again installed the men appointed by him on Tuesday night.

The action of the mayor yesterday was the most sensational move that he has yet made. The moment the news flashed through the city buildings that the old directors were out and the new men in rumors flew thick and fast that a wholesale dismissal of bureau chiefs and other officials was about to occur.

The news created considerable excitement in the city hall and on the political "rialto" and nearly all that were interested assembled in the vicinity of the mayor's office to learn of the next move. This came quickly, but from an unexpected quarter—the state supreme court. While the mayor was ordering his old directors out of their offices, his attorneys appeared in the supreme court and obtained a special supersedeas suspending the temporary injunction granted to the old directors Wednesday by the county court.

Another dramatic incident of the day was the great ovation given Mayor Weaver by several thousand persons while on his way from city hall to the Union League for lunch. It was a sensational demonstration and was looked upon by those opposed to the lease as an indication of the trend of popular sentiment.

In the thick of the fight came the story, but from where no one appears to know, that the mayor is to be impeached. For what particular offense was not clearly defined. One rumor had it that he would be brought before the bar of city councils for his conduct of an election fraud case while he was district attorney and another rumor had it that he was to be made to answer for some alleged lapse of duty while in his present position. All attempts to confirm the impeachment rumor failed, but at the same time no one could be induced to deny them. The leaders of the organization were closeted all day. All were silent on the impeachment story and on all proposed plans for the future.

The organization leaders say they continue to "stand pat" on the gas lease and that their ranks are solid all along the line. On the other hand, Mayor Weaver announces he has assurances that the vote in both council chambers when his veto is considered will be changed materially from the vote taken last week. One councilman publicly announces that he will change his vote, and it is understood that the mayor has the direct promise from several others that they will sustain him.

The situation is daily growing more tense. In all sections of the city the reform organizations and the newspapers have aroused citizens to take a hand in the fight. The councilmen who favor the gas lease are having a hard time of it. They are being swamped with protests and delegations of neighbors are calling on them. Many of them reply that they are for the lease so long as the "peerless leader" as Commissioner Durham is called by the organization men, is for it.

The mayor was greatly elated by the reception he received on his way to the Union League, two blocks from city hall, for lunch. The instant he stepped from city hall he was recognized by citizens and surrounded. The demonstration was perhaps the most enthusiastic and spontaneous since his induction into office. As he walked down the street a great cheer was sent up. From the windows of almost every building from city hall to the Union League people clapped their hands and waved handkerchiefs. On the return to the city hall the demonstration was repeated and so great did the crowd grow that several policemen had to rescue the mayor from the enthusiastic populace. The chief executive appeared happy, and bowed his acknowledgments to all.

It is reported that President Roosevelt will be asked to issue special warning to federal employes to keep out of the gas lease fight. Leaders against the organization say that they know that government employes are bringing pressure to bear on the councilmen and that if it continues a delegation of citizens will go to Washington to see the president.

Mayor Weaver is receiving hundreds of letters and telegrams of congratulation.

HAS AVOIDED TOGO

But Two Northward Paths Left For Rojestvensky

JAPS' SHIPS NEAR HOME

Vladivostok Can Get All the Military and Naval Material Needed So Long as Rail Communication Is Kept Open

London, May 26.—If Rojestvensky has succeeded in avoiding Togo in the Straits of Formosa and the channels north of the Philippines, as it seems likely he has, he can reach Vladivostok only by passing through the Straits of Korea or the Straits of Esugaru or La Perouse strait.

The Korean strait is 200 miles wide, but for a year has been thoroughly patrolled by Japanese war vessels. To the east of this is the narrow Strait of Shimonoseki connecting the inland sea of Japan with the Korean straits, and for stragetic purposes may be considered as a part of the latter.

The Tsugaru strait separates the Island of Kiushu from the Island of Yezo, and is from 12 to 20 miles wide. It has been reported that Japan would close this channel, 60 or 70 miles long, to commerce, and by use of mines prevent its use by the Russian fleet. Such action, however, is not likely to be taken, as the channel is as much open sea as the Straits of Bibraltar.

Tsugaru strait is 1000 miles due east of Vladivostok, while the Korean straits are 1200 miles south, and La Perouse strait, between the Japanese Island of Yezo and the Russian Island of Sakhalin, is 1200 miles northeast of Vladivostok. The latter is 30 miles wide, and is not dominated by Japanese forts as is the Tsugaru strait.

The Japanese are keeping the bulk of their ships within their home waters, probably in the neighborhood of the Island of Quelpart, south of Korea, which offers exceptional facilities as a point of observation, and has lately been fortified and garrisoned and fitted with wireless signalling apparatus.

A base of operations in the south, in addition to that at Vladivostok, would be of immeasurably greater advantage to the Russians just now than a single one in the north if a reinforcement strong enough to make the Vladivostok squadron a serious factor can be thrown in through one of the northern straits. Vladivostok is not a trap like Port Arthur, and until both its lines of communication with Russia by rail, one to Harbin on the northwest, and the other to Khabarovka, on the north, are cut off, it can depend on receiving all the war material needed for military or naval purposes.

The Japanese fleet would have to be kept permanently divided in order to preserve the communications even across the Straits of Korea with the army in Manchuria, and in the meantime the fourth division of the Baltic fleet, with its two new battleships, will be on its way to add to the aggressive force of the Russian eastern squadron. For this reason, and for the chance that the Russians may be able to seize some Japanese islands that can be utilized as a temporary base from which to act against Japanese commerce and the communications between Japan and Liao Tung peninsula and New Chwang, there may be some unexpected developments in a short time in the seas between Formosa and Japan.

The reports of skirmishes at Changtu Yandi and points west of Fakuman are of interest only because they indicate the positions of the Russian and the Japanese armies. Changtu is about 30 miles north of Tie Pass and west of the railroad on the trade road extending from Tie Pass and Kaiyuan to Changchun at the junction of the Kirin road with the road from Sipinghai and Gunshu pass to Harbin. Changtu was occupied by the Japanese a few days after the Russians left Tie Pass in March, and marks the limit of the Japanese advance on the west.

The Russians who were reported as engaged in a wild race with the Japanese for the bridge across the Sungari at Chantchiatu, stopped at Fenghua, on the Changtu road, and at Sipinghai, on the railroad, and established headquarters at Gunshu pass, midway between Sipinghai and Changchun. They have remained in these positions since, and the Japanese have remained at Changtu, west of the railroad, and at Kaiyuan, on the railroad, where the road to Changtu leaves the road to Kirin. There has been as little change on the Russian left east of Kirin, the Japanese making no serious attempt to drive the Russians from the roads occupied in March.

No news has reached London up to this morning confirmatory of the rumor from Manila that the fleets had met south of Formosa and that the Japanese had been defeated.

The news that Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron had passed Formosa served to harden insurance rates at Lloyds.

POILLON-BROKAW SUIT

Report That Defendant Has Settled by Paying $50,000

New York, May 26.—The Poillon Brokaw $250,000 breach of promise suit has been withdrawn from Justice Dowling's court and it is understood it was later settled for $50,000.

The suit promised in many ways to be the most sensational action of the kind ever brought in the civil tribunals of this city. In point of damages asked it was the biggest suit of the kind on record. The social prominence and wealth of W. G. Brokaw and the remarkable career of the beautiful young French woman would have added sufficient piquancy to make the case a memorable one. But the public is to be shut out.

The plaintiff's case depended upon a batch of letters she alleges were written to her by Brokaw after he had obtained from her a promise of marriage. There are 200 letters in all.

The motive for the act is not known.

This is the third time a jury has disagreed after hearing the evidence against Lundberg.

All of them were sentenced to short terms of imprisonment, while the victim of the assault who defended himself with a revolver was fined $12.50.

A Lull In Hostilities

Chicago, May 26.—The strike has not spread to any great extent and there is little disorder. For the first time since the commencement of the strike a large number of coal wagons handled by colored teamsters have passed through the down town streets without police protection. There is no apparent prospect in any direction of a settlement of the strike.

Queer Life Preservers

Trenton, May 26.—The government's case against the four officers of the Nonpareil Cork works of Camden, charged with increasing the weight of cork blocks for life preservers by inserting iron bars to attain the required standard weight, has concluded. Several of the company's employes testified to seeing the iron bars inserted in the cork blocks.

Two Potato Crops a Year

Guthrie, O. T., May 26.—The harvesting of the first crop of potatoes in Oklahoma this season has already begun, or three weeks earlier than ever before in this territory. Never in the history of potato growing in the territory have the prospects for a bumper crop been better at this time of the year. Up to July 5, last year, 800 cars were shipped from Pottawatomie county alone of the first crop. For this the growers were paid $150,000, nearly half of which was clear profit. This did not include the second crop, which was just as ample, and which brought the growers twice the market price of the first crop, and the profits were proportionately great.

Racial Strife In Russia

St. Petersburg, May 26.—The most disquieting news regarding the internal situation and of the renewal of hostilities between Armenians and Moslems in the southern Caucasus has reached St. Petersburg. Simultaneously with the assassination of Prince Nakachidze, governor of Baku, comes information that the province of Erivan is aflame with racial strife.

"Coming Out" of Princess Ena

London, May 26.—Princess Henry of Battenberg gave a grand ball at Kensington palace last night to celebrate the debut of her daughter, Princess Ena. The 700 guests included King Edward, the Prince of Wales and many other royal personages and the diplomatic corps.

NEWS IN BRIEF

As the result of renewed agitation among workmen at Limoges, France, 1100 bootmakers have voted to strike.

The barn of George H. Atkinson, a grocer, at Reading, Mass., was totally destroyed by fire and 10 horses and eight new delivery wagons were burned. The loss is about $5000.

The Southern Presbyterian General Assembly has decided that it does not now see its way clear to undertake the establishment of a university at Atlanta for the entire southern church.

Frank L. Kramer, the American cyclist, made a new record for 500 metres at Paris, covering the distance in 34 4-5 seconds.

John Dean, a justice of the supreme court of Pennsylvania, died at Hallidaysburg, Pa. He was born in 1833.

Fire starting from causes unknown totally destroyed two icehouses of the Pawtucket Ice company at Happy Hollow pond, Cumberland, R. I., as well as partially burning adjoining buildings. The loss is about $5000.

FRILLS AND FANCIES.

Double Beading a Novelty—The Tucker Much Worn—Crystal Buttons.

Double beading is one of the lingerie novelties of the hour. This double beading, combined with narrow German valenciennes, is made up into the daintiest and prettiest of collar and cuff sets and the dearest little yokes.

Duplicates of the old fashioned tucker are to be seen everywhere in the dress world. All over embroidery is used for this purpose, and sheer tucked material with entre deux of lace is quite as smart. The tucker is used as a small yoke to give the fashionable touch of white about the face or fills in the V front formed by the surpliced waist effect.

Another quaint conceit of the summer will be the matching of a prominent color in a flowered dress design to be carried out in girdle, shoes and stockings. This touch gives an individuality to a gown.

Some of the charming spring models Paris has sent over are trimmed with flat crystal buttons.

French ribbon embroidery is occasionally to be found on the elaborate spring frock, but braid, lace and oriental embroidery are the trimmings most used.

The dress in the cut is suitable for a girl of ten. It is developed in fancy dotted beige voile. The full gathered skirt has two puffings of beige chiffon taffeta. A puffing of this silk outlines the shirred yoke, which extends surplice fashion down the front of the bloused waist. The girdle and pompadour bows forming the bodice trimming are of almond green velvet. The sleeves are formed of two puffs above deep cuffs. JUDIC CHOLLET.

White paper for sale at this office at two cents a sheet or twenty cents a dozen, suitable for shelves in closets, etc.

Games Wanted.

In an interesting game of baseball at Robertson field on Thursday, the Golden Rods defeated the Commons by a score of 14 to 3. The Golden Rods executed two pretty double plays, one of which retired the Commons in the ninth inning with the bases full. The pitching of Birmingham for the Golden Rods, who struck out 8 men and allowed but 4 hits, and the batting of O'Niel, Blaine and Donaher who made three hits each, were features. For the Commons J. McPherson played a great game at catcher, besides getting 2 of the 4 hits. Umpire Ryan decided some of the closest decisions of the season. The Golden Rods are out for the championship of the city with 13-14 year old teams. Games can be obtained by uniformed teams by addressing Henry Donaher, Common street, West Quincy. The Golden Rods have been defeated only once this year out of five games. American Boys, Defenders, and Bigelows preferred.

Bounty Bill Killed.

The Massachusetts House reconsidered on Thursday its vote supporting Gov. Douglas in his veto of the soldiers gratuity bill, and then voted 136 to 60 to pass the bill over the veto. Representative Nicoll was with the majority and Representative Freeman was not recorded. The Senate, however, killed the bill by a vote of 20 yeas to 14 nays, not the necessary two-thirds.

8 Cents

Eight cents a pound is what a young woman paid for twelve pounds of flesh.

She was thin and weak and paid one dollar for a bottle of Scott's Emulsion, and by taking regular doses had gained twelve pounds in weight before the bottle was finished.

Eight cents a pound is cheap for such valuable material. Some pay more, some less, some get nothing for their money. You get your money's worth when you buy Scott's Emulsion.

We will send you a little free.

Big Guns Arriving

A shipment of 8-inch guns for the the battleship Rhode Island building at Quincy has arrived.

The Rhode Island's 12-inch guns and the rest of her 8-inch guns are all ready for delivery, and will soon be shipped to Quincy to be mounted. These guns are the principal ones the Rhode Island will carry and were made at the Washington navy yard. They were given the usual tests at the Indian Head proving grounds. All the tests were successful.

When these guns were completed and sent to Indian Head they were fired five times with progressive charges until the final chamber pressure was one and one-quarter times that required in service.

The maximum service pressure for the 12-inch guns of the Rhode Island is about 16 tons to the square inch. The proving pressure is about 20 tons. A shell from one of the Rhode Island 12-inch guns at a distance of 1000 yards is able to go through 23 inches of the best Kruff armor. It starts with an initial velocity of 2800 feet a second.

The Rhode Island is about 88 per cent. completed and the guns will be mounted as soon as they arrive. None of the guns of the New Jersey have yet arrived, but they are ready for delivery.

Holiday Temperature.

The average temperature at noon on Memorial day for the past nine years has been between 68 and 69 degrees. The highest it has been at noon on that day during these years was 82, which occurred in 1899 and 1900. The lowest was 49 degrees which was in 1901. Last year it was 73 degrees.

AN OCEAN ENIGMA.

Mystery of the Fate of the Crew of the Ship Marie Celeste.

Undoubtedly the most extraordinary of all the mysteries of the sea is the fate of the crew of the ship Marie Celeste, a more fantastic creation apparently than novelist ever wove. She left New York in 1887 for Europe, her personnel being thirteen, including the captain's wife and child. Two weeks later a British bark sighted her in the Atlantic. There was no sign of life on board. A boat was sent to her, and a most exhaustive search proved her to be as silent as the tomb, as deserted as a pesthouse. Everything was in its place, even the boats at the davits. The hull was undamaged, the cargo untouched. Rigging and spars were intact; the sails were all set. The crew's weekly wash hung above the forecastle; an awning covered the poop. Binnacle and wheel and rudder were complete. The sailors' kits and dinners were seen in the forecastle. In the cabin was a sewing machine, with a child's garment under the needle, and on the table a half eaten meal. The chronometer ticked undisturbed in the chartroom; the cash box was unrifled. The logbook, posted to within forty-eight hours of the visit, showed the passage to have been favorable; the ship's appearance proved there had been no storm. Evidences of a struggle or piracy or murder there were none. Yet thirteen people had disappeared as if spirited away by some supernatural agency, and from that day to this the mystery has never been unraveled, though the United States government spared no effort to solve it.—P. T. McGrath in McClure's Magazine.

AN EMPEROR'S FURY.

Paul of Russia's Order to His Regiment of Horse Guards.

On one occasion during a parade of his horse guards the Emperor Paul of Russia was extremely dissatisfied with the manner in which the troops performed their evolutions. At length, after a more than ordinarily stupid blunder on the part of the troops, the czar could stand it no longer, and he determined to preside over the drill in person. The troops were well aware that the czar's temper was on the verge of bubbling over, and the knowledge so unnerved them that things went from bad to worse until at last a blunder supervened—a blunder in which officers and men shared alike—which proved the climax.

Galloping up to the disorganized lines and reining up his charger at their head, livid with fury which he no longer attempted to suppress, Paul gave vent to the following original and effective speech: "Officers and troopers of the Imperial horse guards, right about face! Quick—march—to Siberia!"

The entire regiment, with unbroken composure and dignity, wheeled to the right and started off then and there upon their terrible march into exile. By the time they had arrived at a point lying some few days' march from the capital, the czar's temper having cooled down, swift couriers were dispatched after the exiled guards with news of the imperial clemency, and the troops were allowed to return.

A horse attached to a carriage containing four men ran away on Coddington street Thursday afternoon, and before he was stopped he jumped the wall on the Sea street side of Mt. Wollaston cemetery. The men were thrown out but not injured and the only damage to the team was a broken shaft.

—The merchants along Morrison street, from Second street to the Portland Hotel, in Portland, have subscribed to a fund for illuminating that thoroughfare with thousands of vari-colored lights, beginning May 1 and continuing during the Lewis and Clark Exposition, which opens June 1, and closes October 13.

What It Costs
... AND ...
What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchan has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in cheaper papers?

Park Apportionment.

Arguments on the apportionment of the cost of maintenance of the metropolitan park system were continued before the special commission Thursday, says the Herald, William D. Turner for Brookline resuming the presentation of the town's case. He, as well as Attorney C. C. Mellen for Braintree, Charles Warren for Dedham and Mr. Burdett for Hull and Hingham, contended that their respective towns had open spaces of their own from which they derived benefit and for the support of which they paid. If Boston had shouldered the cost of the park system that city had also derived almost exclusively the benefit. They urged generally that the cost be apportioned, with valuation taken as a basis.

Attorney Rackeman, for Milton, declared that Milton had suffered material loss from the execution of the park scheme.

Attorney William H. Niles, for Nahant and Swampscott, said it was a monstrous injustice to assess Swampscott $4000, and Salem, whose access to the parks was a hundred times better, not a penny. Nahant, he said, was a park itself, and gets no benefit from the park system.

T. E. Grover of Canton would have the cost borne by the crowded sections.

Mr. Cutler of Cutler & James, for Revere, said that the beach reservation had been a decided detriment to the town.

Golf Tournament.

The Wollaston second team made the best score in the handicap tournament at the links of the Wollaston Golf club on Thursday, when teams played against bogey. The scores were:

	Holes Up.
Wollaston second	13
Harvard first	17
Oakley first	17
Harvard second	18
Alpine club	24
Wollaston third	29
Oakley second	30
Wollaston first	35

The best individual play was made by Fay Ingalls of the Harvard first team, who made the course in 76 strokes, with a handicap of two.

The Social Realm.

The mounds are sinking level with the plain
As if Time's hurried footsteps gently pressed
With tender memories where our heroes rest,—
Those mounds above our country's buried slain.
And may the passing years weave closer yet
The interlacing ties of human kind,
As in the sod the knotted grasses bind
And hold the springing daises closer set.

MARBLE STATUES

Recommended for John Hancock and Two Adamses.

At a Cost of $20,000 Each.

To Be Placed in Memorial Hall at State House.

The City of Presidents and Statesmen may in a few years be signally honored by the erection of marble statues in Memorial hall at the State House to three distinguished sons of National renown. Thomas Wentworth Higginson, Charles Eliot Norton and Edward Robinson, the commission to report upon the subject of a memorial to John Adams, John Quincy Adams and John Hancock reported to the Massachusetts House yesterday as follows:

To the General Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts:

We, the undersigned, having been appointed by the Governor of the Commonwealth, under chapter 109 of the resolves of the Legislature of 1904, a committee to consider the matter of erecting a public memorial or memorials of John Adams, John Quincy Adams and John Hancock, and to recommend to the next General Court such legislation as we might deem proper concerning the location, character and cost of such memorial or memorials, have the honor to report as follows:

1. In view of the great and lasting services rendered by these men to the nation and the commonwealth, we believe that the most appropriate memorial to each would be a portrait statue of him, to be erected by the State.

2. In our judgment the most suitable place for the erection of these statues would be the nitches of the Memorial hall of the State House.

3. After examination of the statues already placed in the Memorial hall, it is our opinion that the material and architectural character of the walls of the said hall are unsuited for sculpture in bronze, and consequently that the statues herein recommended should be of marble.

Upon investigation we are of the opinion that these statues could be obtained of sculptors of high standing and acknowledge merit at a cost not exceeding $20,000 each, including the pedestals; and, having in mind the many atrocious statues of public men with which this country is now afflicted, we would respectfully urge the great importance of exercising the utmost care and judgment in the selection of the sculptor or sculptors for this task, to the end that the memory of those to whom these statues are erected shall be honored, not maligned, by the works of art with which the commonwealth commemorates them.

We therefore recommend that the sum of $20,000 each be appropriated respectively for statues of John Adams, John Quincy Adams, and John Hancock, or such of them as the commonwealth can afford to erect at the present time, upon the understanding that said statues shall be of marble, and shall stand in the niches of the Memorial hall of the State House; and, further, that this money shall be expended under the direction of a commission consisting of five citizens of the commonwealth, said commission to be appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of his council, and to serve without pay.

The House referred the report to the next Legislature, but favorable action is sure to be taken within the next few years. What other municipality in the United States can claim the proud distinction of being the birthplace of three such distinguished statesmen?

SENIORS AS GUESTS.

Reception Given by High School Sophomores and Juniors.

The reception of the Sophomores and Juniors to the Seniors of the Quincy High school last evening was a very pretty event, and a social occasion long to be remembered.

The hall was beautifully decorated in the colors of the three classes: 1905, green; 1906, blue, and 1907, red. Promptly at 7 o'clock the young people were introduced to the following matrons: Mrs. C. F. Harper, Miss Shoeder, Mrs. W. M. Packard, Mrs. E. W. James and Mrs. M. O. Thompson. In the receiving line were also Mr. Eugene Saunders, president '06, and Miss Persis Thompson, president '07.

The following acted as ushers: Miss Fay, Miss Bates, Miss Robbins, Miss Loud and Miss Packard '06; Miss Thompson, Miss James, Miss Hutchins, Miss Pawsy, Miss Allen and Miss Mitchell '07; Mr. Howe, Mr. Synder, Mr. Coffin, Mr. Jordan and Mr. Prescott '06; Mr. Nicholas, Mr. Given, Mr. Hall, Mr. Weston and Mr. Curtis '07.

After the reception there was a brief entertainment, when Mrs. H. J. Gurney of Wollaston read two pleasing selections.

Promptly at 7.45 dancing was commenced, the floor being in charge of William E. Howe, '06. From 7.45 to 11 P. M. dancing was enjoyed by all while Ferguson's orchestra of Bridgewater rendered inspiring music.

For the benefit of those who did not dance, games were provided in the hall, and Mrs. Gurney gave additional readings.

Frappe was served by four members of the Class of 1908,—Miss Scott, Miss Seely, Miss Doyle and Miss Chase.

On the whole it was an enjoyable time and all spoke in praise of the management of so delightful a school affair.

The following committees did admirable work: Miss Thompson '07, as chairman; Mr. Howe '06, as floor director.

Music—Mr. Howe, Miss Loud, Mr. Hall and Mr. Weston.

Dance Orders—Mr. Prescott, Miss Fay, Miss Bates and Mr. Synder.

Games—Mr. Given, Miss Hutchins, Miss Allen and Miss Nicholas.

Refreshments—Mr. Jordan, Miss Pawsy, Miss Mitchell and Miss Rollins.

Decorations—Miss James, Miss Packard, Miss Curtis and Miss Coffin.

Through Cars.

It will be good news to patrons of the Neponset line of street cars to learn that the street railway company have commenced to lay a temporary track over the west side of the new bridge at Atlantic, connecting with present tracks on either side of the bridge, so that through cars may be run between Quincy and Neponset.

It seems that this part of Hancock street is closed during the building of the bridge and its approaches, and as the city has not accepted the bridge and approaches it could not well grant a location until accepted.

Jealous Woman Killed Herself

Boston, May 27.—The police spent a day in investigating the death of Miss Jennie Lewis, aged 22, a collector, whose body was found in her apartments of a lodging house on Village street. A bullet wound in the mouth indicated the cause of death and, although one hand tightly grasped a revolver, the authorities did not accept the theory of suicide at first, but after a careful investigation they decided that the young woman had killed herself on account of jealousy of a young man to whom she was engaged to be married.

Vessel Founders Off Brazil

Montevideo, May 27.—The three-masted ship Kambira, of Windsor, N. S., of 2009 tons, foundered at sea about 120 miles east by south from Rio Janeiro. The crew of the vessel were rescued and have been landed here. The vessel had been only a few days out of Rio Janeiro on a voyage to Baltimore when she sank.

Objection to British Consul

St. Johns, May 27.—The French fisherfolk of St. Pierre, Miq., bitterly resent the presence there of the new British consul and are agitating for his removal, regarding the presence of such an official as the last step toward the utter ruin of the prosperity of the place.

GAS LEASE FIGHT

Philadelphia Councilmen Are In a Quandary

UNDER STRONG PRESSURE

Cannot Yield to Public Opinion Without Being "Disloyal" to the Organization--The Mayor Making Converts--Mass Meeting Protests Against Lease

Philadelphia, May 27.—"The situation is growing brighter every minute," said Mayor Weaver last evening, when asked what progress was making in his effort to defeat the extension of the lease of the city gas works. He would not give figures nor go into other details, but contented himself with saying he had received assurances from many councilmen who had voted for the lease last week that they would support him in his veto.

There are signs that some of the councilmen are breaking away under the tremendous pressure of their constituents and will probably go along with the mayor. The all-absorbing point of interest is whether the mayor will succeed in getting enough to defeat the bill when it shall come up next Thursday for passage over his veto. The organization still stands on the statement that it will pass the lease ordinance in spite of disapproval.

The record shows that the mayor has 10 select councilmen and 20 members of the common council with him. In select council there are 42 members. To pass the ordinance over the mayor's veto the organization needs 26 votes and the mayor 17 to sustain him. The membership of common council is 84. Here the organization needs 51 and the mayor 34.

The first important move of the new administration—a move that was of vital importance to organization men who hold city contracts—was taken when the new director of public works, Mr. Acker, annulled the advertisement for bids for street cleaning for 1906. The contract will aggregate about $1,000,000. The contract for this year is held by the Vare Bros., one of whom is a state senator and another recorder of deeds.

All the principal figures in the struggle for supremacy kept behind closed doors most of yesterday. The mayor had numerous conferences with his attorneys and lieutenants on matters pertaining to the legal battle that will have its real start next Monday. In the offices of Senator Penrose, where the organization headquarters have been temporarily established, many conferences were held during the day and evening. The deep silence at headquarters remains unbroken and the only word that can be had from the leaders is that the organization is confident of the outcome.

The struggle to hold or win councilmen is growing hotter, and many of the "city fathers" have expressed the wish that they had never been elected to the legislative body. They declare that they owe all their success in life to the organization and that it would be an extreme act of disloyalty to go back on it in time of trouble. Then, on the other hand, the pressure brought by neighbors and other constituents and even business associates to abandon the organization and uphold the mayor is so great that they do not know what they shall do. Some of the councilmen are pursued even into the privacy of their homes, and delegations are calling on them at all hours of the day and night.

There was a demonstration when the mayor left the city hall yesterday for lunch. Instead of going to the Union League as he did Thursday, the mayor went to the University club. His reception as he walked along the streets with Director of Public Safety Potter was a noisy one. He reached the club after considerable effort and after remaining there about an hour, returned to city hall in a cab. A crowd of about 300 persons was awaiting him and followed him to his office. As he entered some one proposed singing the "Star Spangled Banner," which was done with all hats removed.

Amid tremendous cheering and the waving of flags several thousand persons who last night were packed in the Academy of Music to hear prominent Philadelphians express their protest against a gas lease adopted this resolution:

"Resolved, That we, citizens of Philadelphia, without regard to party or politics, do hereby before God and man pledge our life, liberty and sacred honor to the complete overthrow of despotic methods in municipal affairs and the restoration of the American principles for which our fathers fought, and which shall ever be our glory while we remain worthy to be called their children."

W. W. Justice, a wool merchant, presided at the academy meeting and the principal address was delivered by Charles E. Smith, former postmaster general of the United States.

PISTOL AND TORCH

Beverly Man Said to Have Attempted Murder and Arson

Beverly, Mass., May 27.—Fred Hayes, aged 27, was shot in his room at the Cabot house last night. A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Foster W. Waddell, 44 years old, who is charged by the police with the crime, and who left the city immediately after the shooting. The police allege that Waddell set fire to the hotel before leaving, and the fire department was summoned to extinguish the blaze. Hayes is on the dangerous list at the Beverley hospital.

The Cabot house is a boarding place, of which Mrs. Waddell is the proprietor. Waddell runs a small variety store. The police state that last night's occurrence was the result of ill-feeling of long standing between the two men.

Recently Waddell and Hayes had an altercation, at which time Waddell knocked Hayes down. Last night, it is asserted by the police, Waddell went to Hayes' room and fired three shots, two taking effect, one entering the neck, the other the left leg. When the police arrived Hayes said: "Waddell did it." Investigation showed that three attempts had been made to fire the hotel, twice in the hallway and once in the closely adjoining barn. Witnesses assert that Waddell started the fires.

Kissed and Hugged Patrolman

Boston, May 27.—A well-dressed, good-looking woman about 40 years old walked up to Patrolman Houghton on Tremont street and, throwing her arms about his neck, began kissing him and rapturously exclaiming that he was her "Dear, dear sweetheart." The officer had some difficulty in getting the woman to accompany him to station 2. There it was ascertained that she had just been released, on parole, from Austin farm. Officials from that institution eventually took her back there.

Bid In For Bondholders

North Adams, Mass., May 27.—The property of the Johnson-Dunbar Mills company was sold at auction to satisfy the claims of the Commercial Trust company of New Jersey, which held a mortgage of $250,000 on the property. Work at the mills was suspended nine months ago.

The fire in Greenfield was in the southern part of the town, and burned over an extended tract of land.

The autopsy showed that death was caused by a blow on the head.

Good News Had Not Reached Him

Readsboro, Vt., May 27.—Angelo Bulduzzi, who was on Thursday awarded $9000 by the United States circuit court at Brattleboro in a suit to recover damages for the loss of his sight, killed himself last evening by shooting. It is thought that Bulduzzi had become despondent over the suit, not having received the news of the verdict when he took his life. He is survived by a widow and several children.

Bishop to Settle Wage Question

Providence, May 27.—In accordance with an agreement between the committees from the Carpenters' unions and the Master Builders' association, an umpire to settle the wage question was selected in Bishop McVickar. The bishop will hear both sides of the question from three members of each contending party and decide upon the wages.

Shot Himself In Wife's Presence

Boston, May 27.—Albert Mancinci, 20 years of age, was unsuccessful in his search for work and suffered from melancholia. Last night he called his wife into his bedroom, locked the door and placed a revolver against his right temple and sent a bullet into his head. He will probably die. The couple had been married but four weeks.

Bees Occupied Old House

Melrose, Mass., May 27.—Over 100 pounds of honey and wax was found between the walls of the old Baldwin estate, in this city. The house has been unoccupied for 10 years. Bees had crawled under the clapboards near the roof, and had stored away the products of their toil.

Heroes In Arlington Cemetery

MEMORIAL day this year finds 20,000 of the nation's heroes in the national cemetery at Arlington. The roster of the illustrious dead grows in increasing ratio as the civil war passes farther into history, while the Spanish-American war has added many names to the charts on the walls of the old Lee mansion on which are marked the last resting places of Uncle Sam's soldiers and sailors. Half a mile south of the historic home of the Custises, from which Robert E. Lee went forth to command the armies of the Confederacy, lie the bodies of men who gave their lives to their country on the battlefields of Cuba and the Philippines. Here stands a noble shaft commemorating their deeds of valor. Near it is the grave of General Lawton, the hero of San Mateo. In Arlington also lie Rear Admiral William T. Sampson, General Guy Henry, first American governor of Porto Rico, and Captain Allen K. Capron of the rough riders, who was killed at San Juan hill. Not far from their tombs are the graves of the Maine martyrs.

They sleep in gallant company. Among their neighbors is General Philip Sheridan, his grave completely covered with ivy so carefully trimmed that its shape is distinctly marked in the short grass, although there is little or no mound. At the head of the grave stands the monument erected by Mrs. Sheridan, a pyramidal piece of granite bearing on its front in bronze a medallion portrait of Sheridan's bust, showing his medals, the face looking south, the likeness remarkably good, the medallion being superimposed on a graceful flag. Below it is the single word "Sheridan."

Not far away is the grave of Admiral David D. Porter, whose tombstone records his glorious services to his country—the capture of Tabasco, the engagement at New Orleans, that at Vicksburg, that at Grand Gulf, the assault on Arkansas Post and the attack on Fort Fisher.

THE SPANISH WAR SHAFT.

At the entrance to the cemetery is the grave of Major General George Crook, of whom General Sherman said, "He was the greatest Indian fighter and manager the army of the United States ever had." Crook's grave is covered with a huge granite bowlder bearing this simple inscription:

GEORGE CROOK,
Major General U. S. Army.
Sept. 8, 1828.
March 21, 1890.
Society of the Army of West Virginia.

General Meigs, Abraham Lincoln's quartermaster general, who founded Arlington cemetery, rests in the ground which he assisted in dedicating to its noble purpose. With him are Generals Baxter, Berdan, Burdette, Ricketts, Rousseau, Watkins and Doubleday; General Gresham, who was Cleveland's secretary of state; General John Gibbon, who helped turn back Pickett's charge at Gettysburg, and a host of others not less memorable.

Many and magnificent as are the individual and regimental monuments in Arlington, perhaps the most striking feature of the cemetery is the vast level plateau given over to private soldiers. Here seemingly endless rows of headstones, uniform in shape and style, stretch as far as the eye can see. Near the Lee mansion is the famous tomb of the unknown dead, where over 2,000 bodies brought unidentified from the great battlefields of the civil war are buried in a wide, deep grave.

Officers of the regular army and navy are more and more coming to feel that after death they would like their bodies to rest in the sacred soil of Arlington. For a long time after the war the eleven full regiments and something over buried there, after Quartermaster General Meigs made a cemetery out of Robert E. Lee's park, held the ground without re-enforcement.

Arlington was beautiful then. It was always beautiful. But for some reason it was not until recently that the regular army and navy officers turned longingly to it as they died. Perhaps it was the burial of Lieutenant General Sheridan, commanding the army, and Admiral Porter, ranking officer of the navy, on the crest of the billowy green hill running down from the noble mansion which drew their subordinates to this charming spot. Certain it is that they are going there so rapidly that before long the cemetery will have to be enlarged.

PERHAPS A FEINT

Story of Whole Russian Fleet at Woosung Is Doubted

SETTING BAIT FOR JAPS

A Probable Intention to Force Togo to Divide His Force and Transfer Part of His Fleet From Japan Sea to the Pacific

London, May 27.—A Tsingtau dispatch says that the "whole Russian fleet' is assembled near Woosung, which is at the mouth of the Woosung river, 11 miles north of Shanghai. All Japanese steamers plying in the southern part of the eastern sea have been ordered held in port until further notice.

It is not believed in Tokio that the whole Russian fleet is at Woosung. It rather is believed that Rojestvensky has sent only part of his ships there as a diversion for the purpose of compelling Togo to divide his fleet. It even is possible that Rojestvensky intends to intern some of his slower craft at Woosung. If the "whole" Russian fleet were at Woosung it would be surface indication that the Russians intended to attempt the passage of the Korean straits, as Woosung is hundreds of miles off the course to be laid if the fleet were going to the eastward of Japan.

It probably will be found that the ostentatious display of Russian ships at this point is for strategic purposes. The report may be a magnified version of a dispatch from Shanghai saying that it was credibly reported there that certain Russian vessels had arrived at the mouth of the Yangtse river. Both Woosung and Shanghai are situated on branches of the Yangste river. The Chinese ashore doubtless exaggerated this report into a statement that the whole Russian fleet was assembling off Woosung. There is no doubt that if the Russian fleet really had assembled off Woosung such important news would have been flashed from Shanghai, which is only 11 miles south of that place.

By entering the Pacific through the channels north of the Philippines, if this was his route, Rojestvensky avoided the Formosa channel and the Pescadores and escaped close observation. If this Woosung incident is nothing more than a feint by a few insignificant vessels, Rojestvensky's purpose still remains concealed.

By taking the Pacific route to Vladivostok, the Russian admiral has two courses open. He may sail near enough to the eastern coast of Japan to induce Admiral Togo to divide his fleet, retaining a part in the Japan sea, or he may sail so far east of Japan as to screen all his movements by side expeditions. It does not follow, however, that he will be able to avoid the Japanese fleet. As Togo probably has expected that Rojestvensky would take the Pacific route, preparations to meet the Russians undoubtedly have been made.

However, the Russian admiral has the advantage of holding his own fleet together while maneuvering, to compel a division of the Japanese fleet. The channel north of Luzon is, by the Pacific route, 1200 miles from the Korean straits, 1600 miles from Tsugaru strait, 1900 miles from La Perouse strait, and by the latter 2300 miles from Vladivostok. If Rojestvensky follows the route marked out for him by the English naval strategists he will touch at the Izu islands, 100 miles east of Tokio, and demonstrate at the same time against the Japanese ports and the two straits, Tsugaru and La Perouse. The object of this demonstration will be to induce Togo to use his shorter lines of communication, and transfer a part of his fleet from the Japan sea to the Pacific, the Russian fleet meantime moving to Vladivostok along the line of least resistance.

The fact that Rojestvensky has gone into the Pacific does not mean necessarily that he will not attempt the passage of the Korean straits. It does not mean that he is limited to one route to Vladivostok, but that he has entered upon the last stage of his voyage, holding the choice of three straits open to the last. The new development increases interest in the naval situation in the east, because it opens a wider field for speculation, maneuver and strategy.

Russian Warning to China

St. Petersburg, May 27.—M. Pokotiloff, the new Russian minister to China, has left St. Petersburg for Pekin. The Russian government for the third time has warned China that unless she can bring Japan to make an agreement defining the line of the neutral zone north of Tie Pass Russia will consider herself forced to use Mongolian territory for military operations.

New York, May 27.—Armitage Mathews, S. L. Ferguson and J. W. Rothschild, who was president of the defunct Federal bank, is now serving a sentence in Sing Sing, having been convicted of irregularities in handling the bank's funds.

RIOTING RESUMED

Attacks Upon Drivers of Lumber Wagons at Chicago

Chicago, May 27.—Rioting broke out afresh in the teamsters' strike and, although no one was seriously hurt, there were a number of vicious fights in the lumber yards during which the police were compelled to use clubs and in one instance revolvers to disperse the crowds.

Last night general rioting was prevalent throughout the lumber district. Lumber wagons returning from making deliveries were attacked by crowds at every available opportunity. Large numbers of men armed with clubs, slungshots and bricks, accompanied by jeering women and excited children, filled the sidewalks, awaiting the passage of wagons, which were believed to be unguarded.

Trucks appeared with one policeman on each. The drivers were immediately bombarded with bricks and stones and several air rifles were brought into play. A bullet from one of these weapons wounded a policeman in the right hand. Two policemen drew revolvers and fired over the heads of the rioters, holding them at bay until the drivers reached the lumber yards.

A patrol wagon and a detail of policemen were sent to protect other lumber wagons which were on the way home. Stones were hurled at the patrol wagon and the policemen were forced several times to jump from the wagon and charge the mobs before the streets could be cleared.

At a meeting of the associated building trades last night, at which 29 trades affiliated with the building industries were represented, it was decided that no action will be taken which will tend to drag the building trades into the teamsters' strike.

Starvation In Remote Region

Moscow, May 27.—A dispatch from Vladivostok to the Russky Slavo indicates that the inhabitants of the whole maritime region of eastern Siberia, including the island of Sakhalin and the Kamchatka peninsula, are facing starvation on account of the situation produced by the war. The fish supply of Sakhalin was exhausted last winter and the inhabitants ate their dogs. There is no flour on the island and the people are confronted with death by starvation. A similar situation exists at Kamchatka, where the people are practically left to their fate.

A Great War Spectacle

New York, May 27.—The Boer war spectacle opened at the new Brighton Beach park with a special performance last night which was attended by 20,000 invited guests. The new arena, comprising an area of 14 acres, presented a realistic picture of South African scenery. In addition to the regular Boer and British contingents there appeared in the battle scenes a detachment of the famous Irish brigade and a corps of Red Cross nurses, whose activity in caring for the wounded under fire added to the realism of the spectacle.

Opposition to Federation

Fort Worth, Tex., May 27.—By a vote of 94 to 82 the general assembly of the Southern Presbyterian church decided to accept the recommendation of the committee on federation that the committee be continued for another conference with other branches of the Presbyterian church. The committee is instructed to make its report next year. Leaders of the church are strongly opposed to any sort of union with other bodies.

Japanese to Settle In Texas

Washington, May 27.—Japanese colonization is contemplated in Texas by a wealthy Japanese agriculturist who recently visited the United States, according to a report submitted to the department of commerce and labor by Fred D. Fisher, the American consul at Tamsui, Formosa. A thousand farmers are to be collected in Japan and as a first undertaking 9800 acres will be cultivated in paddy fields in Texas.

Warsaw Rioting Suppressed

Warsaw, May 27.—After nearly 48 hours of mob law the authorities interfered, patrols of infantry and Cossacks speedily dispersing the rioters, who were engaged in the demolition of disorderly houses. In two instances the troops fired on the crowd. There were three deaths of persons who received injuries in the rioting of Wednesday night. Martial law was proclaimed late last night.

Policeman Shot Dead

Philadelphia, May 27.—Policeman Matthew J. Curren was shot and instantly killed last night when responding to a call for help from an old woman. The shot, it is alleged, was fired by Charles Streeper, son of the woman to whose aid the policeman had gone. Streeper could not be found after the shooting.

Dynamiter Rosseau Sentenced

New York, May 27.—Gessler Rosseau, who was convicted of sending an infernal machine to the pier of the steamship Umbria in May, 1903, was sent to state prison for not less than three nor more than five years. Sentence was pronounced by Recorder Goff, who referred to Rosseau's act as a "hellish design."

End of Albania Fighting

Cetinje, Montenegro, May 27.—The fighting between Mussulmans and Christians in three villages of Albania has ended and there is no probability of further trouble.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

With the big increase in the State tax, and also a large county tax, larger metropolitan tax, new assessment for extermination for moths, and the possibility of assessments both for the Fore river bridge and the Hancock street bridge at Atlantic, the prospects are good for a big tax rate this year.

Trip to the Pacific.

Next week Thursday another World's Fair will make its appearance for the patronage of this and other countries. On that day the Lewis and Clark Exposition at Portland, Or., will open its gates and invite the people of all nations to come in. The occasion gives the cross-country tourist the best opportunity for seeing the most for the least money that is likely to be presented to him in many years, if ever again.

The Union Pacific, the Northern Pacific, the Wabash, the New York Central lines, and other railroads have made special and very favorable rates, which permit the traveller to linger on the way, make side trips and study the various and facinating wonders that lie between the two coasts. Exposition standards have been raised to a very high pitch in recent years, but the Oregon enterprise will not disappoint those who are familiar with such as have already come and gone, which to the inexperienced in such matters it will reveal marvels worth a transcontinental journey.

The summer climate of St. Louis has a rather repellant notoriety and doubtless deterred many from patronizing the big show at that place last year; but the climate of Portland in the summer time is one of its general attractions. Heat and rain are not looked for, and health as well as enjoyment are likely to be experienced by those fortunate enough to be counted among pilgrims to the industrial Mecca at that city.

To Play Two Games.

The Copeland club will meet the strong Randolph team at West Quincy, Tuesday morning at 9.30. These two teams have played the finest kind of ball for the last two seasons and each game was contested until the last man was out.

The Copelands have secured Reardon to catch Desmond who will alternate with Galvin. Elcock, Egan and Rooney will cover the bases, while Kappler takes care of short. The field will be covered by McTierman, Boyd and Reilly.

In the afternoon these two teams will meet at Randolph. The West Quincy team and rooters will attend in a barge and feel confident that they can take both games.

Baptist Convention.

Rev. and Mrs. E. D. Webber and Mrs. Frank Burgess of Wollaston, returned yesterday from St. Louis, Mo., where they have been for the past week attending the Baptist convention.

Of this meeting, The Watchman says, "No event in Baptist history for many years is of greater significance and of more farreaching consequence than the formation of The General Convention of the Baptists of North America, at St. Louis, Mo., May 17, 1905." Rev. Dr. Thomas S. Barbour of Wollaston, was also present at the convention, and gave his report as foreign secretary of the executive board of foreign missions.

Noon Wedding.

A pretty home wedding took place this noon at the residence of the bride's brother, Serafino Salvucci, No. 1 Larry place. The contracting parties were Luigi Cardarelli and Eleanora Salvucci, both of this city. The nuptial knot was tied by William M. Marden, Esq. The young couple will reside on Liberty street and will be at home tomorrow to receive their friends.

Union Literary Circle.

The Union Literary Circle of Weymouth and East Braintree, a well established and flourishing organization, closed the season of 1904 and 5, on Tuesday evening, in the lecture rooms of the Union Congregational church.

This last meeting of the season is usually devoted to sociability and entertainment, and each member is allowed to invite one guest.

On Tuesday evening the circle was assisted by by Miss Louise Richardson, reader; Messrs. Ernest M. Sheldon and F. Stuart Mason, violinists, and John H. Gutterson, pianist. The program consisted of the roll call, symphony for two violins with piano, reading, duet for two violins, violin solo by Mr. Sheldon, reading, and violin duets with piano.

The roll call gives an opportunity for the display of the varied talents of the members. Special mention should be made of a paraphrase by Mrs. Worster of the song, "Where are you going my pretty maid," adapting it to the circle and proclaiming Mr. Hyde, the president, as still a bachelor; of a bright and entertaining account of a trip to Scotland, given by Mr. Chamberlain, who wove into the narrative an account of the work of the circle during the past season; of a visit to the spirit land by Miss Macgregor, who called up in a witty and graphic manner the shades of departed philosophers, statesmen, novelists, poets, saints and sinners, to prove that the circle should have in its search for knowledge, the support of the wisest and greatest minds, and of the admirable recitations by Mr. Hyde of a Scotch poem in dialect.

Miss Richardson's readings were bright and entertaining and adapted to her style and temperament. Every one was delighted with the violinists, and applauded their skill and expression. Mr. Gutterson maintained his well-known reputation as an excellent and tactful accompanist.

After a short interval the company adjourned to the banquet room, where they were served with ice cream, sherbet and cake by a bevy of active and pretty young maidens.

Memorial Day at Weymouth.

Owing to the depletion in the ranks and inability of many af the soldiers to participate in an all-day march, Reynolds post, 58, will for the first time in its history decorate the graves of departed comrades by detail instead of in a body as has been their custom. The Weymouth band with comrades of Ward 3 and school children of that ward will report to Past Commander Charles E. Bicknell in Lincoln square at 8 o'clock when they will proceed to the Village and Catholic cemeteries and perform decorating services.

The entire post will have dinner in the Davis Clapp Memorial building where they will be guests of Edwin Clapp the remainder of the day. The address of the day will be given at 2.30 by Rev. Dr. Galush Anderson of Newton Centre. Following the address the exercises will conclude with a dress parade on the spacious lawn.

WITH FRUIT FLAVOR

Eat Plenty of Ice Cream in Warm Weather.

PHYSICIANS RELY ON IT TO REFRESH AND NOURISH.

Nothing Better for Children in Moderation

IF ONLY NATURAL FLAVORING IS USED.

If there ever was any prejudice against ice cream in the minds of physicians it has entirely disappeared. The prejudice has been not against the creamy, palatable, cooling mixture of such nutritious ingredients as eggs, sugar, cornstarch and cream, but against the harmful unscrupulous flavoring extracts that imitated the natural fruits by means of chemicals.

None of these doubtful or harmful extracts need ever be used. Chefs and cooking school teachers some time ago refused to have their labor spoiled by the addition of rank, strong, sickening flavors. Foss' Pure Extracts was the result of this determined agitation for a pure, honest extract that should simply be the natural fruit in liquid form.

Because Foss' Extracts are the natural fruits in liquid form, cakes, pies, puddings, and ices always come up to your expectations. When other Vanilla Extracts besides Foss' are used, the cook is apt to keep on increasing the amount of the flavoring to secure the proper strength. In this way the delicious vanilla flavor is destroyed, and a rank, strong taste imparted to puddings, pies, cakes and what not.

Foss' Vanilla is especially recommended. No other flavoring shows to better advantage in ice cream. The manufacture of vanilla extract is a business in itself, demanding long acquaintance with the selection of the bean and the best extractive processes. Unscrupulous extract manufacturers adulterate their goods with Tonka Bean, which does not cost one twentieth as much as the Vanilla. It imparts a rank, strong sickening flavor resembling the odor of sweet grass. Tonka Bean is erroneously supposed by many people to be Vanilla Bean. It takes one year to make Foss' Vanilla and the resulting product is distinctly superior to any known vanilla extract in purity, strength and desirable flavor. This assertion is certified to by the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanics' Association, who awarded over all competitors the Gold Medal issued in 1892 to Foss' Pure Flavoring Extracts. Also by the Boston Cooking School, large confectioners and Hotels, North, East, South and West, and the public at large.

CITY BREVITIES.

City Treasurer H. G. Fay is out of town for a few days.

Miss Kathrine Taylor is the guest of Miss Maude Miller of Whitman.

In the School league this morning the Adams school defeated the Wollaston school, 6 to 2.

Many Wollaston Unitarians have attended and enjoyed the anniversary meetings held in Boston this week.

Mr. G. F. Gridley of Hyde Park, will have charge of the services at St. Chrysostom's church on Sunday.

The regular meeting of the school committee will be held tonight instead of Tuesday night, which is a holiday.

The letter carriers of Quincy and Weymouth have arranged a ball game Memorial day afternoon, to be played in Quincy.

L. Grossman & Son, junk dealers, are locating platform scales at their yard on Water street, which others will appreciate.

Manet Council, Royal Arcanum, will have an entertainment and collation after their meeting on Monday evening in Doble's hall.

There will be a tournament in handicap club singles on the courts of Quincy Tennis club on the morning of Memorial Day.

The alarm from Box 38 at 2.56 Friday afternoon was for a slight fire in the stone sheds of McIntosh & Sons on Columbia street.

Rev. E. N. Hardy conducted the funeral services of Mrs. Elizabeth T. Adams at Mattapan yesterday. The interment was at Mt. Wollaston.

Many are away on a few days' outing, taking today Sunday, and Monday as well as Tuesday for holidays as several large business houses close until Wednesday.

Mr. J. Frank Nightingale of Easton, Pa., has been called to Quincy to mourn the loss of relatives, twice within the past week, the last occasion being the death of his only uncle James Nightingale, who passed away Thursday.

The big gong on the outside of the street railway car barn broke loose about midnight and it rang nearly half an hour before the employes were able to stop it. Meanwhile the slumbers of the neighborhood were somewhat disturbed.

The kinds of blanks for reporting base ball games have been issued by the Daily Ledger, one for full scores, and one for junior games. They will be given free upon application at the office. The Daily Ledger wants prompt reports of all games.

A reception to Rev. and Mrs. Ernest W. Hunt by the members of the parish will be given in the Wollaston Unitarian vestry next Monday evening. During the remainder of the week following the reception, Rev. and Mrs. Hunt will be at home to their friends every afternoon and evening.

AS AN EXAMPLE.

Streets Not to be Littered with Handbills.

A barge containing a band went through City Square last evening advertising a dance. Accompanying the wagon was a young fellow distributing hand bills in bunches. Standing near City Hall was Chief of Police Burrell, Lieut. McKay and Officer Goodhue.

As the wagon passed them the man threw a large bunch of handbills into the air. The wind took them and scattered them all over the street. This was too much for the Chief, and Officer Goodhue was ordered to make the fellow pick them up. Officer Goodhue overtook the barge near Granite street and marched the man back to City Hall.

After that job was finished the fellow was taken to Washington street in the rear of the First church, where he was made to pick up another bunch of the bills that were scattered about the street.

The young fellow did not relish his job but he had to do it, or be locked up. It is safe to say that he and others will think twice before they scatter handbills about City Square in the future.

Won by Tarbell.

The prize for the best net score in the open handicap tournament of the Wollaston Golf club was won yesterday by E. C. Tarbell of the Wollaston club. A. G. Lockwood, the scratch man, had the best gross score, and was second in the net column.

CARD OF THANKS.

AMONG THE WOMEN'S CLUBS.

The New England Wheaton Seminary club held their annual meeting at the Vendome, Boston, May 20th. Sixty-five members sat down to luncheon. The old officers were unanimously re-elected for the coming year. Mrs. Estelle M. H. Merrill spoke for fifteen minutes on her pet theme, "The Children." She called this century "the children's century." The reports were read. The finance report showed no debts, but a small surplus, which was applauded. The senior class was present with Mrs. Cole and brought a welcome from the school. Miss Nancy Adams, in a few well-chosen words, told of the good times they had had during the year. The next meeting will be in October.

So enjoyable have been the meetings of the Clifton Literary club the past season that they are loth to give them up for the summer so that one more gathering has been planned—a picnic on June 27th.

The Ashmont Tourist club is to hold its annual luncheon on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. C. H. Gallagher, Russell street, Milton.

The executive committee of the Dorchester Woman's club gave a breakfast Saturday at the clubhouse in honor of its retiring president, Mrs. Linda Gould Page. The table decorations were apple blossoms, and Mrs. Page was presented with a beautiful basket of American Beauty roses.

The breakfast which was to have been given at The Tuileries, Boston, to Mrs. Julia Ward Howe by the New England Women's club, has been postponed to next Monday at 1 P. M. on account of the death of Mrs. Livermore. The breakfast is tendered in honor of Mrs. Howe's long service as the club's president, which office she has held for more than a quarter of a century.

During the summer a committee of the Chelsea Woman's club will look after the gardens which the children are preparing for the prize contest arranged by the club. The exhibition of sewing by pupils of the schools, for which the club has provided a teacher, was held May 25.

"The school garden is making its appearance in country schools. Prizes are offered by some of the women's clubs of country towns for school-ground improvements, and a similar movement is on foot in Boston. The cooking classes have made use of some of the garden produce, and in one school fruit was preserved and sold at a fair for the benefit of the Teachers' Mutual Fund."

The Ladies' Physiological Institute, probably the oldest woman's club in Massachusetts, observed its 57th anniversary Thursday evening in Woolson hall, New Century building, with a banquet and entertainment. Nearly 200 women and many men were present. Dr. Gertrude T. Bodfish, the president, in her address told of the work accomplished during the year and said that $50 had been donated by the institute for a scholarship in the Tennessee Mountain school. Horace F. Brown of California spoke on "The Gentlemen Guests." Darius Cobb, the well known artist, spoke fittingly of his mother, Mrs. Eunice Cobb, who was president of the institute in 1850.

Mrs. Emeline C. Ricker for two years president of the New England Woman's Press association and for thirteen years an active worker in the Dorchester Woman's club was on Tuesday elected president of that club. Mrs. Ricker is a broad club woman and the Dorchester club is bound to prosper under her administration.

One of the largest women's club houses in the world is about to be put up in San Fransisco. It will be a twelve-story building, facing Union Square. Presidents and directors of nearly every organization of Women in the city are interested in the plan, and ample money is said to be assured. About $1,500,000 will be needed to buy the site and put up the building. It will bear the name of the discoverer of San Francisco Bay, Cabrillo.

Club women of Quincy should be greatly indebted to the Shakespear club of Atlantic for giving them an opportunity to hear Prof. Edward Howard Griggs, who on Saturday afternoon September twenty-third is to lecture at the Atlantic Memorial church, taking for his subject, Julius Caesar. Subscriptions are being received by Mrs. William Ward Whitcher, president of the club, and Miss Annie L. Prescott of Quincy.

Mrs. Alice P. Bates of Dorchester was on Thursday morning for the ninth time elected president of the Thursday Morning Fortnightly club at the annual meeting held in the Dorchester Woman's clubhouse. A donation of $250 was voted, to be distributed among different charitable organizations throughout the city.

LOST CHILDREN.

One Found Asleep and Protected by a Dog.

The lost child call was sounded at 4.15 yesterday afternoon to summons aid to search for four children who had been reported lost. The children were Robert Smith, aged 3 years of Rodman street, James and Frank Keniley of Granite street, and a little boy named Steer, also of Granite street.

The Smith boy was found on Avon way. When he wandered away he had a little fox terrier dog with him. The little fellow wore a pair of blue overalls. He became tired when he reached Avon way and taking off his overalls made a pillar of them and laid down and went to sleep. Meanwhile the little terrier dog stood guard. The boy was asleep when founn and the dog growled and showed his teeth when the people who found the boy tried to take him away.

The other children were older and all turned up in due time.

THE REAL TEST

Of Herpicide Is In Giving It a Thorough Trial.

There is only one test by which to judge of the efficiency of any article and that is by its ability to do that which it is intended to do. Many hair vigors may look nice and smell nice, but the point is—do they eradicate Dandruff and stop falling hair?

No, they do not, but Herpicide does, because it goes to the root of the evil and kills the germ that attacks the papilla from whence the hair gets its life.

Letters from prominent people everywhere are daily proving that Newbro's Herpicide stands the "test of use."

It is a delightful dressing, clear, pure and free from oil or grease.

Is the Big Beef Trust on the Run?

By J. A. EDGERTON

Magnates Off on Foreign Vacations.

Employees Who Are Wanted as Witnesses Also Hear the Call of the Sea.

"Laughsome" the Word For Rebate.

How the Yellow Car Does Its Work Against Shippers, Consumers and Railroads.

IS the beef trust on the run? Has the federal grand jury made Chicago so warm that unusually early vacations are desired by the presidents and other officials of the various packing companies? Else why the recent exodus for Europe of J. Ogden Armour and Edward C. Swift, heads of the respective companies bearing their names, and of Edward Morris, vice president and active manager of Nelson Morris & Co.? And why the still earlier flight of various lesser trust officials to various points in Europe, Canada and South America? Why also have many of these lived under assumed names? Furthermore, why—the most important why of all—do these absentees happen to be the very men whom the grand jury wishes to question in its investigations of the trust? Incidentally the district attorney is also asking the question, Why is it necessary for the trust books to go on extended journeys for their health?

Meat eaters and meat buyers have seen the price climbing—climbing until it has become a luxury in many families. They have heard the charges that the beef trust was responsible. They have heard these charges denied as vehemently as they were made. They have heard of prosecutions and "trust busting" and great things to be done, but nothing definite seemed to be accomplished. Still the price of meat has kept going up. Befogged with conflicting statements, the poor people have been unable to determine whether the beef trust was above suspicion or whether it was too big to be reached.

If it has begun to make motions that can be seen and understood it is time for the laymen, unacquainted with the mysteries of injunctions and legal technicalities, to sit up and take notice. Early vacations mean something. If the packers are hieing themselves to England, Canada and other points where the stars and stripes do not hold sway, is not that fact a little suspicious?

It is perhaps worth while to notice just what has been done. While the packing companies have made many promises, they have been careful not to produce important witnesses when wanted.

The grand jury has even turned in several indictments for tampering with witnesses. Thomas J. Connors, general superintendent for Armour & Co., was indicted for seeking to influence the testimony of former employees.

Four officials of the Schwarzschild & Sulzberger company, a member of the trust, were indicted for obstructing a United States marshal in serving a subpoena on an employee of that concern.

Edwin B. Fish, the employee in question, suddenly concluded that his health demanded a trip to Canada.

J. A. McNaughton of Omaha, traffic manager for Cudahy & Co., was another employee wanted badly as a grand jury witness. His presence was promised, but he, too, heard the call of the sea and, it is said, is now doing Europe.

Others who found that their physical condition required a change of scene are George D. Roberts, manager of the beef department of Hammond & Co.; James Brennan, department manager of Swift & Co., and George Marples of the Cudahy company, who are all recuperating in Europe; G. V. Brecht of one of the St. Louis companies, who is having an outing in South America, and Harry Carr, manager of the provision department of one of the Chicago companies, who is enjoying the air of Canada. A dozen or so more of traffic and department managers and other important trust officials have also found it necessary to repair their wasted constitutions in the Dominion, and secret service men report that many of these have also concluded a change of name healthful. Thus Richard W. Howes, department manager for Swift & Co., is said to be known as William Jackson over the border, while Irving A. Vant, assistant treasurer, and A. R. Fay, traffic manager, both of the same company, are known in Canada as plain John Adams and Mr. Harris. In fact, the more the federal grand jury wants a witness the more the object of their desire yearns for some sylvan retreat where business affairs do not worry and United States marshals trouble not.

It is true that none of these men had been actually subpoenaed with the exception of Fish and one or two others. The rest did not wait for subpoenas. The mere fact that the grand jury expressed a desire for their presence or they thought it was going to do so was enough.

The seizure by the government of six trunks full of trust papers, containing much sensational and valuable evidence, may have given the packers an uneasy feeling that Uncle Sam is in earnest and that the few indictments returned are merely a prelude to other and more important ones to follow. If so, the sudden vacation mania would find a further explanation than the mere desire to avoid the witness stand. The fact that the secret hurrying away occurred on the eve of the close of the grand jury's work and that there were actually rumors in the air of wholesale indictments about to be returned lend an air of probability to this view.

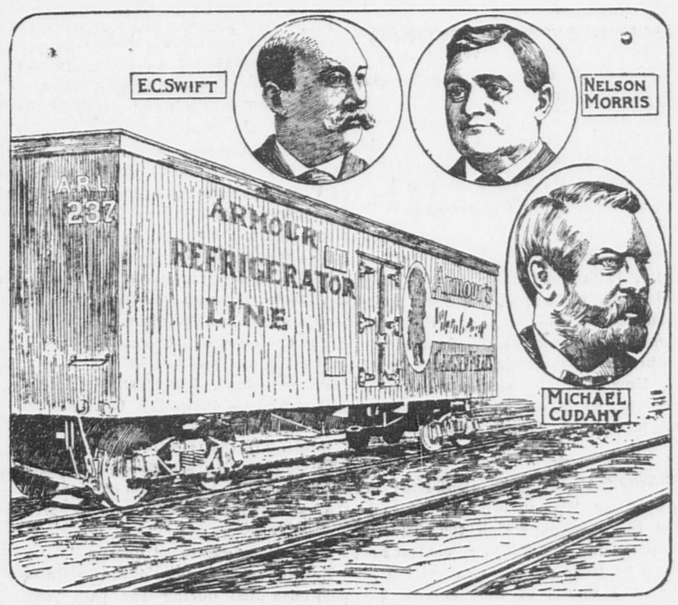

The six trunks containing secret trust records have proved an important find for the government. They had been placed for safe keeping in the National Safe Deposit vaults, from which they were taken by United States marshals. To prevent the packers from recovering them an order was issued by Federal Judge Sanborn impounding the trunks and their contents for the use of the grand jury Upon examination the secret transactions of the Aetna Trading company, a corporation through which the packers have carried on their business under a common agreement, were unearthed, proving the existence of an understanding in violation of the anti-trust law. Upon each of the trunks were the initials "R. H. C.," belonging to R. H. Cowan, one of the officials of the Aetna company, who is believed to be in Canada.

One of the most juicy bits of testimony brought out in the hearing concerns the use of certain cipher and code terms employed by the packing companies in correspondence with their agents. The frequent occurrence of the equivalent word for rebate is significant. Mr. Streyckmans, a former confidential employee of the Armour company, swore to the identity of the code book and gave the interpretation of a number of the terms. Among these the following are especially interesting:

Laughsome—Rebate.
Launch—Better arrange rebate there.
Launched—Burning the stick at both ends.
Launching—Can make rebate.
Laura—Handle rebate matters carefully.
Lava—Pay rebates from cash on hand.
Laveallo—Rebates must be confidential.
Kinsley—Shade rebates a little rather than lose business.
Junk—If necessary to secure shipments you can make rates to—
Kaland—Meet rate by voucher.
Kalanta—Meet any rate offered.
Kashger—If this rate will not secure, advise what is necessary.
Woodpath—Interstate commerce commission.
Woodprint—Avoid service of summons from interstate commerce commission.
Footnot—Meet interstate commerce commission.
Imprinted—Judson C. Clements.
Imprintings—J. C. Yeomans.
Imprison—Charles A. Prouty.
Improbitas—J. W. Fifer.
Improbity—A. R. Mosely.
Armour—Arrange with utmost secrecy.

The references to the interstate commerce commission and the various individual members of that body show that the packers keep quite close track of the commission and its doings—naturally, since the giving or acceptance of rebates is in direct violation of the federal statutes and comes under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission. The revelations of Mrs. Mary E. Marcy, former stenographer of two of the companies, plainly indicate the existence of an illegal combination.

It has been shown by Charles Edward Russell in Everybody's Magazine and by other writers and in testimony offered in various hearings that just as the secret railroad rebate built up the Standard Oil monopoly so has it built up the beef trust. The manner of exacting these rebates by the packers has been ingenious. It all came about through the famous yellow refrigerator cars. These for the most part are owned by the beef trust, and by a series of icing and trackage charges the railroads on the one hand and the private shippers on the other are forced to pay handsome tribute to the modern feudal barons whose castles are packing houses. The trackage charges are simply another name for rebates. The icing charges, which have been shown to be so exorbitant as almost to stagger belief, are exactions from private fruit shippers and others who are forced to use the refrigerator cars in transporting their perishable goods to market. This process has gone on until the beef trust itself has come to control the most considerable part of the fruit shipping business of the country, so that it is no longer a mere meat trust, but has become a gigantic food trust, receiving its toll from almost every article that comes to the table. On one end of the line it exacts tribute from the stock raiser, the farmer and the fruit grower by forcing down their prices. On the other end it exacts tribute from the consumers, who constitute practically the entire urban and much of the rural population of the nation, by forcing up prices. In the middle it exacts tribute from the railroads and the shippers. It is for these and other reasons that it has been named the greatest trust in the world, and it is for similar causes that the machinery of the laws and the courts has been invoked to break up this gigantic combination.

THE FAMOUS YELLOW CAR AND PROMINENT BEEF TRUST OFFICIALS.

It was in the spring of 1902 that Judge Grosscup of Chicago issued his famous injunction against the meat barons to prevent their forming or continuing a monopoly in restraint of natural competition and trade. It was in the neighborhood of two years later that this decision was affirmed by the United States supreme court. In spite of adverse judicial action, however, it has been a matter of common belief that the packing companies continued reaching their ends by other means. It was to investigate reports and charges to this effect that the special federal grand jury was impaneled at Chicago. Most of the testimony taken by this body has been in secret, but enough has leaked out to keep public interest keenly on the alert. That the investigation would result in criminal prosecution of a more or less wholesale order has been the general hope of the public, and if these precipitate vacations are an indication has become the fear of the trust magnates.

To run away from a federal grand jury investigation is not a new thing with the packing house representatives. Back in the spring of 1902 a similar inquiry was being carried forward, and four of the trust officials were asserted by the New York Herald and other papers to have fled into Mexico, carrying important books and papers. These four men were Captain W. A. Fitzgibbons, manager for Nelson Morris & Co.; William C. Douglas, manager for Armour & Co.; Louis Ashby, manager and secretary for the Armour Packing company, and E. C. Bailey, manager for the Cudahy Packing company. This rumored flight occurred just after the call of a grand jury to find certain books and papers that were spirited from New York to New Jersey, again disappeared and were traced to New Orleans, from which place it was charged that they were taken to Mexico.

It was during the 1902 probing that the secret cipher code books and letters of the Cudahy company were brought into evidence, clearly proving the existence of an understanding between that and other packing concerns. As the same system, with a different code, is still doubtless in existence, some of these are valuable as throwing a light on trust methods, for example:

Urbanize—All interested have agreed to following prices effective—
Urchin—All interested have agreed to—
Urology—Agree to hold— Want you to do the same.
Useful—Have too many complaints your violating schedule.
Tenderly—Get in line with other houses.
Southerner—All agree to co-operate for—
Southly—Make combination price—

In one of the letters unearthed occurred this significant passage:

"After talking with some of the general managers personally and with others on the telephone we have decided to have our first meeting Saturday morning and will report the result."

This was written from South Omaha, where all the companies have branch houses, and clearly indicates a meeting of the general managers of the various companies, as there could scarcely be more than one general manager of one company.

There are few more interesting chapters in modern history than the development of this fight between the government and the greatest of trusts. Is the government about to win and are the trust generals fleeing from prosecution? These are the questions that those interested in the struggle are asking and that time and future developments alone will answer. The fact that representatives of the packers are complaining to the president of the methods of the investigation, averring that they have been treated as criminals, that they have been subjected to secret service espionage, that their papers have been seized and that they have been forced to give away business secrets, would indicate that they are considerably wrought up by the inquiry. The further fact that Mrs. Irving A. Vant and Mrs. Richard W. Howe, wives of two of the absent managers, have been placed under bonds by the United States district court to appear as witnesses at the July term in the event of indictments being voted against the packers is extremely significant. At the time this action was taken against Mrs. Vant and Mrs. Howe they were on the eve of departure for Europe to join their husbands.

In the meantime prices of meat remain as high as before and the tribute gathering from both ends of the line and the middle continues.

UNIQUE GOLF CLUB.

Features of a Novelty Course Proposed For Long Island.

Charles B. Macdonald, former president of the United States Golf association and champion of the United States, has made known an idea to a small coterie of millionaire golfers of New York and a select number of members of the Chicago Golf club that may result in the formation of the most unique golf club in the world, says the Boston Globe.

Macdonald, by many given credit for introducing golf to the west, seeks to get a hundred rich men to subscribe $1,000 each and a larger number to come in on a basis of $200 for the purchase of a tract of land on Long Island, where will be built an eighteen hole course, each hole to be a replica, so far as topographical conditions will permit, of some famous hole at one of the world's most noted courses.

Mr. Macdonald thinks little of the "layout" of holes on American golf courses, and Scotland and England, therefore, will provide the schemes for the entire eighteen holes at the proposed course.

In his letter to Chicago millionaires and his Wall street friends in New York Mr. Macdonald sets out the benefits of this novelty course. Golf on it would be a test of the game and would afford the critics an excellent opportunity to see just who could play the game in the United States.

The plan to purchase the needed acreage and the expenditure of more than $100,000 on the course is believed to be feasible.

SOLONS ADJOURN

Very Short Session of the Bay State Legislature

SUMMARY OF WORK DONE

Much Discussion of Railroads and Railways, but Little Legislation on the Question--The Bounty Bill Turned Down

Boston, May 27.—The Massachusetts great and general court of 1905 completed its business and with the time honored ceremonies was prorogued by Secretary of State Olin at 6:15 o'clock last night. During the closing hours of the session the customary congratulatory resolutions were offered and presentations made to the presiding and executive officers of both branches.

President Dana of the senate and Speaker Frothingham of the house announced the following personnel of the important recess committee, which is to consider and revise the general laws relative to railroads and street railway corporations:

President Dana, and Senators Cummings, Munroe and Peters, and Representatives Taft, Hayes, Pingree, Cole, Schofield, Lowell, Davis, Andrews, Peabody, Ames and Moody.

The session of the legislature just brought to an end was one of the shortest in the history of Massachusetts. It has been 24 years since a session closed in May. While many important matters were touched upon during the sitting, comparatively few measures of consequence were enacted.

Upon the most important of all subjects taken up, the general question of railroads and railways, the general court devoted much time, yet adopted little pertinent legislation. The general merger bill, so-called, which authorized the purchase of street railways by Massachusetts steam railroads under certain restrictions, was passed, but later defeated on account of a difference between the two branches over a proposed amendment. A general bill authorizing street railways to be constructed over private lands by the exercise of the right of eminent domain met a similar fate, as did also a proposition to construct an electric railway between Boston and Providence. Finally all the railroad and railway questions were submitted to a special committee which is to investigate the entire matter during the recess.

The most important bill passed was that authorizing the consolidation of the Boston gas companies, which will mean within a year a decrease in the price of Boston gas from $1 to 90 cents a thousand feet. The legislature passed another "bounty" bill, authorizing the payment of $125 to the veterans of the Civil war. Governor Douglas vetoed the measure on the ground that it was unconstitutional, and the senate upheld the veto. The measure was similar to one vetoed last year by Governor Bates, which the legislature then passed over the veto, but which the Massachusetts supreme court then declared to be unconstitutional.

A proposition to transfer the state prison from Charlestown to the Island of Nashawena, as suggested by the governor, was referred to a special committee to investigate the general question.

Among the last acts of the legislature was the authorization of the construction of a subway to Cambridge by the Boston Elevated Railway company. Several years ago a bill was passed for an elevated structure to the university city, but public opinion worked for a subway substitution.

During the session the governor affixed his signature to 479 bills, 108 resolves, and vetoed four measures. One measure, the Natick loan bill, was passed over the governor's veto.

Rumor Needing Confirmation

St. Petersburg, May 27.—The Tenotechestva prints the startling rumor that the United States government is in the market for the purchase of the Island of Sakahin. The paper says the United States government evidently believes that it can pick up the island with its rich forests and mines at a bargain, as Russia is unable to protect it.

Hay Needs a Long Rest

Bad Nauheim, May 27.—Secretary Hay has finished the course of baths here and started today for Paris, where Mrs. Hay awaits him. Professor Groedel has advised Hay to abstain from all official work for several months. During his visits to London and Paris Hay will remain very quiet and will make no formal official calls.

Dropped Dead After Oration

Utica, N. Y., May 27.—Jesse B. Anthony, well known as a Mason, fell dead here just after delivering a funeral oration. He was once grand master for the state of New York and for some years had been superintendent of the Masonic home in this city.

Tells Story of Wreck

London, May 27.—A piece of a boat bearing the name Glenburn has been picked up on the Cornwall coast. It is supposed to belong to the overdue British ship Glenburn, which left San Francisco Oct. 25 last, bound for Liverpool.

Geronimo Won on Geronimo

Lawton, O. T., May 27.—Geronimo, the Apache chief, rode his sorrel horse, Geronimo, in a race at the fair grounds here and won $150.

De Collashun Day

A Story of Memorial Day

ONE 30th of May morning back in the early seventies as the rising sun peeped through a certain grove "way down souf" he saw a strange sight.

Beneath an immense moss draped live oak, upon a low bench, were seated half a dozen little negroes. Their faces fairly shone with cleanliness. Innumerable tiny braids stuck out at all angles from their round heads, looking like veritable "pigtails." Their hands were crossed demurely on their laps. Thin black legs of all degrees of crookedness hung rigidly from beneath petticoats and trousers of spotless white.

Facing them at a distance of a few feet sat an aged negress. Her ample form was clothed in a linsey woolsey gown, which was nearly covered by an immense white apron. Upon her head was a turban, high and imposing, of the same snowy material. A cotton handkerchief of brilliant orange hue was folded across her bosom, and a pair of huge iron bowed spectacles were pushed up on her forehead. In her hand she held a carefully folded white cotton handkerchief and a large palm leaf fan.

Her wrinkled, kindly face wore an expression of the utmost gravity. Slowly waving her fan to and fro, she thus addressed the children before her:

"Compose yo'se'ves now, chilluns, an' listen good while yo' ole mammy splains to yo' 'bout dis yer De Collashun day. Yo' all gittin' to be right smart pickaninnies, an' yo' kin onderstan'. De Burnham niggers alluz wuz notoribus fur dey sense, an' yo' all is ob de ole stock, shore. When the chilluns ob Israil got t'roo wid all dey mighty flust'rin' journeyin's 'cross de wilderness ob Syny an' pitched dey tents fur de las' time in de happy lan' ob Caynan dey made de feas' ob de Passober in 'memberance ob all dey trials; dey sung hymns, an' dey made a gre't supper—dat's what a feas' is, honeys—an' dey tole de chilluns all 'bout de ole times, so to instruc' dem in de way dey ought to go.

BOWING HER HEAD, SHE REMAINED FOR SOME MOMENTS MOTIONLESS.

"Now, my chilluns, de people ob de souf, de Burnhams an' de Gridleys an' all de res', has jes' b'en t'roo some mighty flusterin' times jes' lak dose odder chilluns ob de Lawd, an' de good Lawd he raised up a Moses fur dem, only dis Moses he name Marse Linkum. An' Marse Linkum he brung us all t'roo safe—glory to God—an' all de people dey mek anodder gre't feas', jes' lak de feas' ob de Passover, an' dey call dis feas' 'De Collashun day.'

"Yo' all wuz too leetle to rickolec', but ahfter de wah wuz ober yo' paw he sent fur yo' all ter cum ter Wash'ng'n ter be eddicated. Yo' maw she wuz weakly—she wa'n't no rale Burnham gal nohow—an' so I tuk ye all along wid her.

"Dey wuz nobuddy hyar fer to stay fer. Ole mis' she died right ahfter young Marse Gridley wen' up norf fer ter fight, an' ole marse an' young Marse Jack an' young Marse Dan dey wuz all killed in de wah. Miss Pet she jes' fade away lak de moonshine ahfter her maw died. Den de ole house burn up when Marse Sherman cum 'long, an' all de darkies dey scatter lak de cotton in de win'. So, when yo' paw sen' word, I pack up, an' we all wen' norf. But yo' maw died, an' yo' paw wuz killed on de kyars, an' yo' old mammy too ole to wuk up dar in de cole, an' I brung yo' all back ter de ole home, an' hyar we's be'n eber sence. I's wukked hard fer ye, chilluns, but I's growin' stiff fas'er 'n yo' all's growin' big, an' sum day yo' po' ole mammy gwine ter leabe yer. But I wan' yer ter know all 'bout yer fambly, lak well raised chilluns boun' ter do, an' mebbe I won' be hyar nex' De Collashun day.

"A collashun, honeys, means a big supper, jes' lak a feas'. Laws, don't I wush yo' all c'd ob seen de collashuns dey used ter hab at de big house. Dey wuz collashuns dat wuz collashuns, darkies!"

The turbaned head sank upon her breast, and for some minutes good old mammy seemed lost in the years of long ago.

"Ob co'se," the negress resumed, as if there had been no interruption—"ob co'se it can't be spected dat our collashuns now will be lak dose. But we all mus' do de bes' we kin out of lub an' spec' to de ole times.

"I doan' know zac'ly how dey duz 'range t'ings in do norf, only dat dey goes to all de grabes an' puts flowers dah, so, honeys, I's 'ranged dat we alls goes ober de road to de ole Burnham grabeyard now, afore de sun gits high, wid our flowers, an' den dis eb'nin', jes' afore he goes down, we'll hab de collashun. An' all de res' ob de day, min', is lak Sund'y. Dis yer ain' no common day."

At her bidding they formed into a little procession and, each taking a bouquet of mingled wild and garden flowers from a large dishpan beside her chair, they marched, bareheaded, in reverential silence, down the dusty road.

With indescribable dignity and love the old mammy approached the resting place of her adored mistress. Kneeling, she laid a bunch of fragrant blossoms above the heart which had never harbored an unkind thought toward her. Bowing her head, she remained for some moments motionless. The mercurial little creatures, standing side by side near her, were touched by the scene. A vague feeling of awe crept into their small souls.

The grandmother presently arose, slowly and with much difficulty, and wiped away the tears which flowed over her cheeks.

"Sam," she said, "cum, lay your flowers hyar, whar ole marse lies. Yo' is de last ob de Burnham stock lef' now on de ole place."

Sam walked forward and laid his bouquet on the stone which bore the name of Horace Burnham.

"Bill, cum hyar, honey. Dar ain' no grabe hyar, but dis is de spot whar young Mars Jack would lie ef his bones 'd been brung home. Put yo' bukkay dah.

"An', Jinny, yo' cums nex'. Walk aroun' an' lay yo' offerin' hyar in de place whar young Marse Dan orter be. Dey wus de two halmsumest brudders dat was ebber borned into de worl', an' Marse Gridley he wuz de bes', bress he heart! De Lawd only knows whedder he dade or alibe, but I hopes dat deze eyes see him 'fore I's t'roo.

"Dat's all now, 'cep' Miss Pet's, ober hyar by ole mis', bressed baby dat she wuz, wid her sweet blue eyes an' shinin' hair. Molly, honey, put yo' leetle bunch ob white roses right dar. Nothin' but white fur dat bressed chile."

She marshaled the children into line again and, taking a well worn book of Psalms from her vast pocket, read aloud, slowly and impressively, the Twenty-third Psalm.

It was very quiet in the lonely place as she repeated, more from memory than from the page, the words which, with many others, she had been taught to read by her beloved Miss Pet. Overhead the leaves rustled softly; the birds sang in hushed tones; the very sunbeams seemed to fall gently.

* * * * * * *

About sunset on this same 30th of May Gridley Burnham and his young northern bride were driving slowly along the shady road which led to his boyhood's home. He had heard of the burning of the house, of the death of all the family, of the scattering of the negroes, and he had never before had the heart to visit a place saddened by so many changes. He knew nothing of mammy's return, and as he passed the graveyard he was surprised to see the withered blossoms lying there. The two young people alighted and walked inside the inclosure.

"These flowers are fresh, Mary," said Gridley. "I cannot imagine who could have possibly put them there. None of our people are left. But God bless their kind hearts, whoever they were. They have even remembered Jack and Dan."

Tears filled his eyes as he thought of his brothers. Mary slipped her hand in his. Her heart was touched, too, by these evidences of loving remembrance.

"It is but a step to the house, Mary. Let us walk there," he said presently.

They went noiselessly through the avenue of oaks and when near the ruins stopped still in amazement. There upon the lawn under a grand old tree was a table decked with flowers and loaded with eatables. A large turkey in dress of richest golden brown occupied the place of honor, a juicy pink ham graced the opposite end of the table, and between them was an enormous frosted cake. Dishes of roasted potatoes, corn bread and honey stood in tempting confusion.

Around the table at a little distance stood six children arrayed in white. At the head was mammy.

"Now, chilluns, bow yo' heads while I asks de bressin'," she was saying.

"O God," she began, with childlike simplicity and devout fervor—"O God, our Marse dat libs up in hebben, we cums ter ask yo' to look down an' bress us an' dis Collashun day dat yo' good an' bressed sarvant, Marse Linkum, done made. We po' niggers is all dat lef' hyar ob de gre't an' scrumshun Burnham fambly; but, O Lawd, we's hones', an' we tries to lib lak de dare ole mis' brung us up. Dey's all dade 'cept maybe young Marse Gridley. O Lawd, de same Lawd dat ole mis' lubbed so true, bress dat boy dis day wharebber he is; bress his dare heart an' doan' let him allers forgit he ole mammy. Now, cum, O Lawd, an' bress de po' collashun dat is de bes' we kin mek, an' bress dese chilluns an' tek care ob dem when I's dade an' gone forebber. Amen."

As she opened her eyes she saw coming quickly toward her, hat in hand, a tall stranger. One swift glance, one low cry of intense joy, and the brown eyed baby she had so often cradled upon her loving breast was again clasped in her arms.—Elizabeth Olmis in New York Ledger.

The "Force" of Herpicide.

Even the first application of Newbro's Herpicide (THE ORIGINAL REMEDY THAT "KILLS THE DANDRUFF GERM") shows the hair-saving and satisfying "force" that is in it. This "force" is the sum of two characteristics that are united in no other hair remedy.

Herpicide has the ABILITY to destroy the dandruff microbe, and the QUALITY to delight those who wish a dainty hair dressing. It holds the secret of popularity and pleases every one who is discriminating enough to have a preference. It is not sticky. It will not stain the hair.

The curative effect of Herpicide is sometimes little short of marvelous, for after the dandruff germ is destroyed, and kept out of the scalp, the hair is bound to grow as nature intended. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

A Healthy Hair.

AFTER USING TWO BOTTLES.

"I have been using your herpicide and find it satisfactory in every way. I was troubled with my hair falling out at an alarming rate but after using two bottles of Newbro's Herpicide this was overcome.

Signed—EDWARD A. ALBRIGHT.

Reading, Pa.

"HERPICIDE IS THE ONLY REMEDY FOR DANDRUFF."

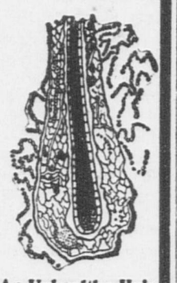

"I have been using your Herpicide and have received great results from it. It has completely cured me of dandruff and itching of the scalp."

Signed—J. H. LANGE.

HOLIDAY NOTICE.

The Daily Ledger office will be closed all day on Tuesday next, Memorial day, no paper being issued. See Ledger of Wednesday for report of the observance of the day and sports.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

The postponed children's party of Miss Lena Crane's dancing class is to be held on Monday, June fifth.

W. R. C. executive committee met at the home of Mrs. Annie Grignon, Norfolk Downs, Friday afternoon.

Paul Revere Post requests contributions of flowers for Memorial Day; also food for the noon day lunch at Hancock hall.

The Granite City base ball league will play its opening games on the afternoon of Memorial day. Victors vs. Makaria at Ward Three playgrounds; Orients vs. Athletics at Ward Six playgrounds.

One should be careful, and not get mixed on the text of Rev. J. G. Miller for Sunday morning: "The disadvantages of advantages; the advantage of disadvantages." At the evening service the Boys' Brigade will furnish music.

On Friday evening, May 19, Miss Ella Ames Horton pianist, and Miss Norma Stafford Mitchell reader, gave a recital in Hardwick hall before an appreciative and numerous audience. Miss Horton's rendering of difficult selections showed her artistic temperament as well as her remarkable technical ability. Miss Mitchell is a graduate of Emerson college and is well known in the literary circles of Boston. Special mention should be made of the effectual manner in which the "Lie" by Annie Hamilton Donnell was given. Miss Mitchell and Miss Horton think of repeating their program in Quincy some time in the near future.

BOSTON THEATRE.

At the Boston Theatre, where "The Earl and the Girl" is rounding out its second triumphant week, audiences large enough to put standing room at a premium are nightly witnessing London's latest and liveliest musical comedy and voicing their appreciation by enthusiastic applause, laughter and hearty encores. There are no two ways about it—this piece which has run for two seasons in London, and which Chicago reviewers pronounced the best of all the latter day London importations, has caught the town. It came well heralded, but Bostonians are accustomed to take nothing for granted, preferring to abide by the judgment of "first nighters" here rather than elsewhere. That verdict was altogether favorable, and with the spread of the story that "The Earl and the Girl" is the biggest, brightest, breeziest and best of the season's attractions, the attendance at the Boston Theatre has swelled mightily. It is a play brimful of novelty, novelty in costume, stage "business," songs, dances and every other department. The songs one and all are very tuneful, and they are prettily and cleverly sung. Doubtless the most dainty and catchy of all is that sung by Georgia Caine and Victor Morley, with chorus, entitled "Spooning," in which the novel episode of the electrically illuminated swings is introduced. By the courtesy of Mr. Lawrence McCarty lessee and manager of the Boston Theatre, and the Shubert Brothers, producers and managers of "The Earl and the Girl," the performance on Monday evening, June 5th, will be in the nature of a testimonial to Mr. William H. Walsh, press representative, and Mr. John Osborne, ticket agent, of the Boston Theatre.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The management of the Castle Square Theatre make an interesting announcement regarding next week's attraction at this popular play-house. The famous war drama, "The Girl I Left Behind Me," has been secured, and its revival after five years will undoubtedly be a welcome event to all who realize its value as a picture of the stirring events of its time of action. The play is the joint work of David Belasco and Franklyn Fyles, and its original production, a dozen or more years ago, gained it an immediate recognition as one of the most successful plays dealing with the civil war period. The scenes of the play afford many opportunities for strikingly realistic stage effects, which will be as fully improved in its revival as they were in the performances given at the Castle Square Theatre five years ago. "The Girl I Left Behind Me" is announced for only a single week, and at the Monday matinee the usual free distribution of boxes of choice chocolate bonbons will be made.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

It would be difficult to find a topic of more general interest than that which forms the basis of the story of "On Satan's Mount," the novel by Dwight Tilton, a dramatization of which by Ira B. Goodrich Jr., will be presented at the Hollis Street Theatre next week, beginning May 29th. As a drama it will carry striking warning to the people of the United States as to what might happen in our national government in the event of certain conditions arising in the cabinet and executive office. The play deals with a series of imaginary national events supposed to take place at some time in the future. Nearly all of the scenes are laid in Washington. One of the most striking situations is in the last act when a cabinet meeting is supposed to be in progress in the White House. In order to bring about certain ends the Vice President and the entire cabinet, with the exception of one member, have resigned their offices. News is brought that the President has died suddenly. The nation is left without a head and apparently there in no one who may lawfully take the office except the member of the cabinet who has not resigned. It is a unique climax. There will be a number of special G. A. R. and W. R. C. performances during the engagement and on Tuesday, Decoration Day, there will be a holiday matinee.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

The Empire Theatre, formerly Boston Music Hall, will be the scene, and Monday afternoon, May 29, the time, of the first appearance in vaudeville of the sterling young American actor, Mr. Edgar L. Davenport. It is not essential to call attention to Mr. Davenport's relationship to the late Fanny Davenport, one of America's greatest actresses, or to Harry Davenport, his younger brother, also a popular player. Mr. E. L. Davenport stands on his own merits and talents, and his five years at the Boston Museum, as a valued member of the famous stock company, and his subsequent successful stage career entitle him to exceptional consideration. For his vaudeville debut, Mr. Davenport, who appears by arrangement with Mr. Henry W. Savage, will present "The Only Way," an episode by Stanislaus Stange, author of "Quo Vadis," "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," "The School for Husbands," etc. There will be several other exceptional features in next week's vaudeville show.

Cape Cod Attractions.

Of purely ocean scenery and the experiences that belong to ocean shores and surroundings, southeastern Massachusetts presents the finest examples that the United States coasts possess.

Cape Cod, the islands of Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard and Buzzard's Bay shores teem with attractions for ocean-lovers and employments and enjoyments for recreations seekers such as no succession of shores of equal extent can ever rival.

These resorts are veritable sanitariums, as potent and efficacious in their ministrations for wearied bodies as are the most favored of human institutions, and with the added attribute in their favor that their natural claims fascinate every person who comes within their influence.

The facilities furnished by the New Haven railroad for reaching these resorts are unexcelled.

What It Costs

What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in cheaper paper?

NATIONAL ZION.

Grand Army Attend Services at Quincy Point.

Address by Rev. L. H. Austin.

Hopes to See Reunion of Soldiers of North and South.

"Our National Zion" was the subject of Rev. Leon H. Austin at the Quincy Point church Sunday morning before Paul Revere Post, G. A. R.; Camp Boyd, L. S. W. V.; Paul Revere Woman's Relief Corps and the Ladies' Aid Society. There was a large congregation, every seat being taken. A large American flag covered the desk, and small flags were also used in the decoration. Also beautiful flowers including tree peonies, lilies, wisteria, horse chestnut blossoms and other flowers.

The music was by a chorus choir of twelve with the following soloists: Mrs. G. K. Carter, Miss Mabel Drew, Harry Sherburne and James Melville. Mr. Melville also rendered a beautiful violin solo. The musical selections by the chorus included "God of our fathers," and "Low in the ground they're resting."

Mr. Austin's text was from Psalms 48:12-14, "Walk about Zion and go round about her: tell the towers thereof. Mark ye well her bulwarks, consider her palaces; that ye may tell it to the generations following. For this God is our God for ever and ever: he will be our guide even unto death."

Today and Tuesday the thoughts of every true American ought to turn to our honored guests, the Veterans of the Civil war and Spanish war, and to their work. The thoughts which came to the speaker were patriotism, union, the cost, peace and future generations. He enlarged on each.

Under patriotism come familiar terms — America — land of freedom; American—I am an American; the stars and stripes—old glory; My country, tis of thee.

Union is emphasized by the fact that there is no south, no north, no east, no west. That the Blue and the Gray meet together, and their sons fought together in the Spanish war. The monuments erected by the Union command in the South are never molested. The Blue and the Gray will strew flowers together on Memorial day. We should remember only the glory of the Civil war.

The speaker hoped to see soon a reunion of the soldiers of the North and the South at Washington.

The losses in the Civil war were reviewed under the thought of cost.

Under peace we have this glorious twentieth century and it should always be our endeavor to overthrow evil with good; to preserve that which we have won.

We must tell our children of the golden days ahead; of the spotless flag and what it stands for; of the deeds of our fathers. Memorial day should be kept sacred, and we must point to God as our help.

Brief reference was made to members of the Post, who have passed away during the year—Thaddeus H. Newcomb, Thomas Smith and Elijah S. Brown.

The service closed with the singing of America and the benediction.

The Great Holiday Game.

Quite a few of the members of the Granite City club have conceived the idea that they are not only authorities on the national game of base ball, but that if given an opportunity on the diamond they could show some of the league teams a thing or two. There are some who doubt this, however, and to demonstrate the truthfulness or untruthfulness of the matter, two nines have been made up to play an exhibition game Tuesday morning. One nine will be composed of married and one of single men. Dr. H. H. Hill will captain the married men, and Lieut. A. R. Shedd the single men.

They have agreed to meet at Merrymount Park at 8.30 o'clock to show what they can do.

The game has been called thus early as the field has been engaged for another game at 10 o'clock.

John Hall and W. E. Brown have agreed to have their ambulance wagons on hand, and the club physicians have promised to be present with a keg of liniment.

Chief of Police Burrell and a squad of brass buttoned blue coats will preserve order.

ALL BILLS PAID.

For Current Expenses of the Y. M. C. A.

The annual meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association was held Saturday evening in the new building. The treasurer reported the year closed with all bills paid for running expense. A statement of the building fund will appear later.

The following named persons were elected directors for three years: D. King, N. G. Nickerson, E. R. Johnson, A. N. Weeden, G. E. Thomas and F. W. Crane.

These together with A. D. Albee, R. D. Chase, G. H. Brown, E. D. Gourd, W. F. Cummings, H. B. Bailey, J. B. Cornish, R. C. Drinker, A. Falconer, W. G. Shaw, G. A. Sidelinger and H. M. Willard constitute the Board.

The board of directors met immediately afterwards and elected the following officers: R. D. Chase, president; G. H. Brown, vice-president; E. D. Gourd, clerk and W. F. Cummings, treasurer.

Seriously Burned.

Mrs. George D. Perkins of Billings road was severely burned Saturday afternoon. She was using a lighted torch to burn gypsy moth nests when her clothing took fire, and in an instant she was one mass of flames. Neighbors heard her cries and rushed to her assistance. Fortunately there was a large rug on a line near where she was, and the neighbors quickly rolled her in this and extinguished the flames. Before they were extinguished, however, Mrs. Perkins' clothing had all been burned with the exception of her stockings. Dr. Record was called and he found that she had been frightfully burned about the legs and arms. Fortunately she did not inhale any of the flames. Although her condition is serious she will probably recover.

A Fortunate Escape.

There came near being a serious automobile accident on Washington street Sunday afternoon, and but for the coolness and quick judgment of the chauffeur a little child would certainly have been killed. An electric car stopped on the hill just north of Elm street to let a woman with several children get off.

As they alighted the children scattered all over the street. Just then an automobile came along, the driver sounding his horn. People shouted to the woman and children which only seemed to confuse them. The machine was too near for the driver to stop and he had to zig-zag through the party to keep from striking them. When almost onto the little boy he suddenly swung to the right clearing him by a few inches. The auto struck the end of the electric car and then swung off into the street again and stopped. The forward wheel of the auto was badly damaged but the child was unhurt. Had the boy remained still there would have been no danger but he kept moving to and fro and it was only a miracle that he escaped.

—The Japanese officers in the field consider it a point of honor to avoid luxury. General Nogi was given a beautiful cloak at one time and sold it at once, turning over the money to the Red Cross. He said that he had one cloak, and that there were those in his army in need, so that he could not keep anything which was not an absolute necessity.

SCHOOL MEET.

Dual Games Between Ward Five Schools.

Massachusetts Fields School Wins.

Defeats Wollaston by Just Ten Points.

Interesting field day events, in which the girls as well as the boys participated, were held at Merrymount park on Saturday by pupils of the Massachusetts Fields and Wollaston schools. The meet was a great success, and fully 1,000 people were present to witness the sport. Massachusetts Fields pupils won by ten points, their total being 60 1-2 to 50 1-2 by Wollaston.

The chief marshal was Charles E. Finch, the master of both schools, and the meet was the outgrowth of a special course in physical training which Mr. Finch took at the Normal school at Hyannis last year. Some weeks ago he organized a boys' club and a girls' club in each school, and the pupils have been very much interested, and have profited by his instruction. It was the first grammar school meet in which girls have participated.

The winners of each event follow, also the time, and the points scored for each school:

The most points for Massachusetts Fields were won by Leaman Robbins, who had a total of 21. He had a close rival in Charles Packard of the Wollaston school, who rolled up 18 1-2 points. Considerable enthusiasm was shown over each event, and the meet was a great success.

Q. Y. C. FIRST RACE.

Marvel Wins in Cat Class and Aleppo Among Launches.

The first race of the Quincy Yacht club was sailed off at the club house Saturday afternoon in a wholesail southwest breeze, which was a little stiff for some of the cat boats.

The course for the cat boats was twice around a triangle, a distance of 3 1-2 miles, while that for the launches was once around the triangle, a distance of 7 1-2 miles.

In the cat boat class the Harriet was disqualified, upon her owner's request, for fouling the Moondyne at Sheep island, when her steering geer was temporarily deranged.

The Iona finished first but as her owner reported that he had cut inside of Jackknife ledge he was disqualified.

It was a warm pleasant day and there was quite a crowd of spectators at the club house and out in launches. The summary:

NOW NUMBER FOUR.

Miss Underwood Has Moved Up in Herald Contest.!

Big gains have been made by Mis Underwood in the Herald school contest the past two weeks, and she now has 44,527 to her credit. This is a gain of 7,223 in one week, and 13,063 in two weeks. This has been done without taking from the reserved vote, which has instead been increased.

The three teachers now ahead appparently have a good lead, but they must work to retain their positions. The latest reports are good that Miss Underwood will be one of the three winners at the finish, particularly if there is no faltering among her supporters.

Miss Underwood is receiving votes from all the New England States, also from New York and California. The number of cities and towns which are contributing are in excess of a score, former pupils and friends being heard from nearly every day.

The last coupon will be printed on Sunday, June 11, so the close of the contest is near at hand. Please forward coupons promptly to the Daily Ledger office.

SEVERAL REPORTS.

Busy Night Ahead for the City Council.

An unusual number of committee reports will be received at tonight's meeting of the City Council. The Committee on Streets alone having nearly forty. They will report on a number of petitions for telephone and electric light pole locations and attachments.

Also on the order to discontinue a part of Sea street, on the petition to extend Sea street from high to low water mark, on petitions to widen Granite street, Coe street, Holmes street, Freeman street, Hunt street, Bromfield street, extending Bigelow street to Glencoe place, accepting Broadway, widening Hancock street, extending Maple place and accepting Upland road.

They will also report upon the orders for a catch basin on Taylor street, gravel sidewalk on Beach street, and taking land for slopes on Hancock street.

The Committee on Licenses will report on petitions for minor licenses.

The Committee on Finance will probably report on the order for enlarging the High school, and other matters.

A Dangerous Bed.

Daniel Murray, said to be employed at the Fore River as a blacksmith, was run over by a car on Farrington street at 12.30 Sunday morning and had his right foot so badly crushed that it will have to be amputated.

As near as can be learned the man was lying along side of the track in the tall grass between Wilson street and North Central avenue. It was so dark that the motorman did not see the man until his car was almost onto him and it was impossible to stop.

The lower part of the car evidently turned the man throwing his right foot over the rail. The car was not moving fast and was stopped before the second wheel reached him so that but one wheel passed over the foot. The man was removed to the City Hospital in the police ambulance.

Abused His Benefactors

Chicago, May 29.—Armed with a revolver and a cane, John Corning, a cripple, crept into the sleeping room of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Shirlander, who had taken care of him from babyhood, and fired a bullet at the bed on which the man and the woman lay asleep. Corning then belabored his benefactors with a cane. Shirlander finally choked Corning into helplessness. As soon as he was released Corning shot himself dead. Both Shirlander and his wife were severely cut about the face with the cane. No reason is known for the attempted murder.

Brave Trainmen Rewarded

St. Paul, May 29.—Express Messenger Laud and Engineer Wilson have received $1000 each for capturing a man who held up the east-bound north coast limited train Saturday midnight on the Northern Pacific railroad near Bearmouth, Mont. The robber had blown open the safe with charges of dynamite, aggregating 25 pounds, when Laub, by the aid of a match, struck by Wilson, knocked the robber senseless with a piece of iron. The robber was bound and taken to Drummond. This is the third hold-up of the same train near Bearmouth.

A Waiting Room Tragedy

Chicago, May 29.—Azel S. Reid of Fall River, Mass., died of a shot wound self inflicted in a railroad waiting room. Six hours before he attempted to kill himself Reid was arrested by the police, who believed that he was insane. A physician found nothing to warrant his detention. On the representation that he was going home on the first train, Reid was released.

Police Assailed by a Mob

Stockholm, May 29.—There were riots here in connection with the scavengers' strike. A mob stoned the police, who drew their swords and cleared the streets. Many persons were injured and a number were arrested. Much damage was done to property.

RUSSIANS LOSE FIVE WARSHIPS

Fleets In Desperate Encounter In the Korean Straits

FULL DETAILS LACKING

All the Press Dispatches Point to Japanese Victory In Contest ForSupremacy of Oriental Seas --Running Naval Engagement In Sea of Japan--Washington Without Details as to United States Vessel Sunk by Russians

Washington, May 29.—The following was received by the state department:

"Nagasaki, May 28.—Japanese sunk the Russian battleship Borodino and four more warships and a repair ship."

Another dispatch read as follows:

"Tokio, May 27.—Japanese fleet engaged the Baltic squadron this afternoon in the Straits of Fushima, which was held. Cannonading heard from shore."

From information received in Washington it is believed that two of the Russian ships reported to have been sunk in the Korean straits by the Japanese are the Orel and her sister ship, the Borodino. They are battleships of 13,000 tons. Three other vessels reported sunk are believed to have been cruisers, the remaining one being a repair ship.

London, May 29.—According to the latest information, the battle between the Russian and Japanese naval forces for the supremacy of the Oriental seas, on which hangs the outcome of the far eastern struggle, has begun, if it has not terminated decisively.

All the dispatches received by The Associated Press point to a Japanese victory, though it is not yet known whether the full force of Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's fighting ships took part in the contest which, according to the dispatches, took place in the comparatively narrow waters of the Straits of Korea.

The first information came in a dispatch from the American consul at Nagasaki to the state department at Washington telling that the Japanese had sunk one Russian battleship, four other warships and a repair ship in the Korean straits, and this was followed by a dispatch received by the state department, the date of which was not given, that the Japanese government had made the announcement that its fleet had engaged the Russians in the Straits of Korea Saturday and had held them.

The state department also received information that two of the vessels reported to have been sunk were the sister battleships, Orel and Borodini, and that three of the other ships were cruisers.

From Tsingtau, the German port on the Shantung peninsula, came a report that a running naval engagement took place near the Island of Oki, in the Sea of Japan, 200 miles northeast of the Strait of Korea, and that the whole Russian fleet did not participate, the slow vessels having been sent around Japan. Russian sources give no news of the battle, while the Japanese government, following its custom, is silent as to either the battle or its outcome.

The Orel and Borodino are of 13,516 tons displacement each, heavily armed, well protected and were designed to make 18 knots. They measure 397 feet by 76 feet, with 26 feet draught, and each have a lofty spar deck fully 30 feet above the water line, extending from the bow to the quarter deck. Forward is mounted a pair of 12.4-inch guns in a turret protected by 11 inches of Krupp armor. Another pair of guns, of the same size, is mounted aft. There are 30 other guns of the intermediate battery and the vessels carry two submerged torpedo tubes and two above water. A special feature of the vessels is their vertical longitudinal bulkheads of inch-armor running throughout the whole length of the ship at a distance of 9 or 10 feet in-board from the ships' sides, designed to localize the effect of a blow from a torpedo.

Paris Fears Russian Defeat

Paris, May 29.—Late editions of the morning papers here express the fear that the Russians have met with defeat in the naval combat. The Matin, remarking that the dispatches from Washington are far from reassuring, recalls the words of Vice Admiral Rojestvensky when he entered far eastern waters: "If I am victorious I shall inform you. If I am vanquished Togo will inform you."

Mixed In Murder Charge

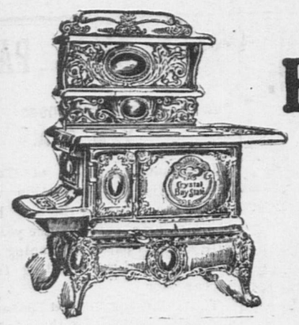

Chicago, May 29.—George Mellor, president of the Carriage and Wagon Workers' union, who has been sought for two weeks by the police in connection with the murder of Gus Carlstrom, who was beaten to death by "sluggers" hired by the officials of the union, has been arrested.

Four Pleasure Seekers Drowned

Springfield, Mo., May 29.—Fred Lee, Frank Gray, Miss Lou Rhodes and Miss Sarah Gates, all of Springfield, were drowned through the capsizing of their boat on the James river. They were members of a picnic party which went up the river on a boating and fishing excursion.

PERHAPS JUSTIFIED

Reported Sinking of an American Ship by Russians

St. Petersburg, May 29.—Nothing is known at the admiralty of the reported sinking of an unknown American steamer off Formosa by Vice Admiral Rojestvensky. It is recognized at the admiralty as quite possible that Rojestvensky may have been compelled by military necessity to destroy a neutral. If he feared that to allow it to proceed and report the whereabouts and direction of the Russian fleet would endanger his strategic plan he had no other alternative except to take off the crew and sink the ship. If the ship was unjustifiably sunk from the standpoint of international law Russia, of course, will have to foot the bill; but any cost is cheap if it furthered Rojestvensky's mission.

Washington, May 29.—In the absence of any official information whatever regarding the reported sinking of an American steamer by Rojestvensky, officials in Washington profess a disinclination to discuss publicly any international aspects the case may have. Much depends upon the action of the vessel when she was halted, whether the cargo she carried was contraband and on other matters. If the vessel refused to stop when the Russians ordered it to, the latter, according to the views here, in the exercise of their rights under the existing war conditions, had a right to sink her on the spot. Many Americans, as well as vessels of other nationalities, are asserted to be carrying contraband of war in the far east, and if the vessel sunk was doing this she was liable to seizure under the law as to prizes, and disposed of according to the rules of war.

Tokio, May 29.—The name or destination of the American steamer which Vice Admiral Rojestvensky is reported to have sunk off Formosa about May 21 is unknown here. Details concerning the sinking of the vessel are expected to be made known when the crew of the steamer reaches Japan. Although nothing is known here about the case, it is expected in official circles that Vice Admiral Rojestvensky will claim that the vessel was cruising.

Passed Two Cup Racers

New York, May 29.—Two of the contesting yachts, supposed to be the leaders in the ocean race for the German emperor's cup, were roundly cheered in mid-ocean by the passengers and crew of steamer Celtic, at this port from Liverpool and Queenstown. On Wednesday last the German schooner Hamburg and the American schooner Endymion were passed. Both yachts presented beautiful pictures, as they were under full sail, every inch of canvas they could carry being spread to catch the fresh southerly breeze that was blowing.

Status of Chicago Strike

Chicago, May 29.—Nothing has developed to indicate an early settlement of the teamsters' strike, which has been in progress for two months. With over 7000 policemen and deputy sheriffs detailed on strike duty, the employers declare that during the present week they will be able to demonstrate to the strikers that any further continuation of the fight will be suicidal to the Teamsters' union.

King Peter Has New Cabinet

Belgrade, May 29.—A new ministry, in succession to that of M. Pasics, who resigned May 22, has been formed. All the new ministers belong to the extreme radical party. The Pasics ministry resigned owing to a crisis brought about by the failure of the government candidate for the presidency of the house to secure a majority when the skupschina was summoned to sanction a proposed loan.

Hay Taking Life Easy

Paris, May 29.—Secretary Hay has arrived here for a three days' stay. He has profited greatly by the treatment he underwent at Bad Nauheim, but, by order of his physician, he is observing a very strict regimen, which will compel him to refrain from accepting any invitations or the making of engagements.

Engineer and Conductor Out

Columbia, S. C., May 29.—As a result of the official investigation into the cause of the wrecking of Robert C. Ogden's special train near Greenville, the Southern railway officials have discharged Engineer Hunter and Conductor Acker because they are alleged to have entered the yard without having their train under control.

A Painter's Great Courage

Chicago, May 29.—Benjamin Quinette, a painter, fell from a building and broke his neck. He then walked a mile and a half to his home, holding his head in his hands the entire distance. His wife sent for the police ambulance, and Quinette was taken to the county hospital. The man's injuries are expected to prove fatal.

Results of Rio Grande Flood

El Paso, Tex., May 29.—A half million dollars is a conservative estimate of the damage done by the overflow of the Rio Grande north of El Paso in the Mesilla valley. Some 7000 acres of farm lands are under water, crops and farm machinery have been lost and all houses in the path of the waters washed away.

An Increase In Insanity

New York, May 29.—The number of insane persons in New York state hospitals and licensed private asylums increased nearly 1000 during the past year, according to an official report which has just been submitted to the state commission of lunacy. The previous total average yearly increase was 738.

Pupils of Mrs. Sellar will give a recital at the Quincy Point church on Wednesday evening.

Scorers for all local base ball clubs should call at the Daily Ledger office for blanks for reporting games.

Mrs. George Vinton of Chestnut street has a beautiful gloxinia. It has eighteen large blossoms of a rich deep pink, and attracts considerable attention.

A Swedish picnic for the benefit of a sick girl was held on Sunday at Nash's old hotel off Winter street. A band of music enlivened the occasion.

Sunday was the first real summer day of the season. Everybody seemed to want to get outdoors, on the lawns or piazzas. Many hammocks, lawn seats, etc., were noticed.

C. E. Union.

Monday, June 5, the East Norfolk C. E. Union will hold its first meeting of the new year's work "For Christ and the Church" with the Randolph Baptist Society, at 7.45 P. M. The invitation given the union by this society at the last executive meeting was very cordial. Now it is for each society to go with as large a representation as possible. The form of the meeting will be a variation from that of the previous meetings, this one being a C. E. prayer meeting, with the topic "The Evangel—its spread," Scripture, Acts 8: 26-40.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Coming to Keith's for this week is a list of entertainers the mere announcement of whose names is a sufficent introduction to theatregoers hereabouts. Included in the list are George Evans, black face humorist, long known by the soubriquet of "Honey Boy," and the author of "Good Old Summer Time," a song that had a great vogue a few years ago; Callahan and Mack, in their beautiful Irish character playlet, "The Old Neighborhood;" Paul Barnes, monologue and singing comedian; Otto Brothers, German dialect comedians; Louise Brehaney, one of the best soprano vocalists ever heard in the varieties, and Morton, Temple and Morton, comedy acrobats. Meehan's comedy dogs, one of the prettiest and best trained troupes of educated canines now before the public, have been specially engaged for the amusement of the children. The Biograph will show an entire new list of comedy and interesting motion pictures. Underlined for the week of June 5, are McIntyre and Heath, the inimitable blackface comedians, who are making their farewell tour in vaudeville.

YOUR HAT

May Be a Stylish One, But It Makes Trouble.

A man usually buys a hat that's "in style," but the modern hat for men has lots to answer for.

Baldheads are growing more numerous every day. Hats make excellent breeding places for the parasitic germs which sap the life from the roots of the hair.

When your hair begins to fall out and your scalp is full of Dandruff it is a sure sign that these countless germs are busily at work.

There is but one way to overcome the trouble and kill the germs—that way is to apply Newbro's Herpicide to the scalp—it will kill the germs and healthy hair is sure to result.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

DENIED NEW TRIAL

Mrs Rogers May Go to the Gallows Next Friday

COUNSEL STILL FIGHTING

Will Appeal to Federal Supreme Court in Hope of Saving Woman's Life--Decision on Insanity Plea of the Murderess

Montpelier, Vt., May 29.—Mrs. Mary M. Rogers, the convicted murderess of her husband, Marcus Rogers of Bennington, was denied a new trial in a decision handed down in the Vermont supreme court. Two of the justices dissented.

Counsel for Mrs. Rogers, after appealing in vain for an opportunity to present additional newly discovered evidence before the court, and to secure a continuance of six weeks, announced their intention of carrying the case to the United States supreme court.

A writ of error will be presented to the state supreme court for the endorsement of the chief justice and clerk and will then be filed with the clerk of the United States supreme court. The endorsement of the writ of error by the chief justice of the Vermont supreme court will act as a stay of execution.

In carrying the case to the United States supreme court the counsel for Mrs. Rogers will have exhausted every means in their power in behalf of the prisoner.

On Friday next the reprieve granted Mrs. Rogers last February by Governor Bell will expire. If her counsel are unable to get the case before the United States supreme court previous to Friday, the woman will be hanged, as Governor Bell granted the reprieve only for the sake of allowing Mrs. Rogers' counsel to present newly discovered evidence to the state supreme court.

The last portion of the court's opinion took up the theory advanced by Mrs. Rogers' counsel that the woman was insane at the time of the murder. The court said:

"In spite of the evidence introduced and the affidavits produced, the court has no reason to doubt but that the petitioner at the time of the homicide was of the mental ability to distinguish between right and wrong and to comprehend the nature of the crime which she was to commit, and that she had sufficient will-power to enable her to refuse to commit it.

"It was through a deliberate exercise of will-power that the crime was committed. She deliberately planned to make it appear that her husband committed suicide, to conceal her crime. In her appearance at the inquest she affected ignorance of the means of her husband's death, in the hope that the theory of suicide might be adopted. She was sound and healthy of mind, not weak and disabled; intelligent, not unintelligent; she acted with the reason of sanity, not as one insane, and the evidence showed that she was guilty of murder—of wilful, deliberate killing.

"After careful consideration of the new evidence, it does not appear in our judgment sufficient to warrant a new trial. It is the opinion of the court that the petition ought to be and is dismissed."

The decision covered 42 closely written pages.

First Time In Thirty Years

Yale was a close second with 28 points. Harvard third with 20¼ and Pennsylvania fourth with 18, while the other eight colleges shared as follows: Princeton, 15; Syracuse, 8; Colgate, 8; Amherst, 8; Stevens, 8; Swarthmore, 2; Haverford, 1, and Columbia, 1.

Steamers Collide In Fog

New York, May 29.—Steamer Exeter City, for Bristol and Swansea, returned to port after being in collision with steamer Kentucky, bound in from Copenhagen, during a fog. The damage to the Exeter City was well above the water line, otherwise the steamer would have filled and sank. She has a full cargo, with deckload of cattle.

Apprentice Scott's Great Feat

Vallejo, Cal., May 29.—In target practice in San Pablo bay, Kempstehorne Scott, an apprentice on the torpedo boat Preble, broke the American navy record with a six-pound gun. While the Preble was moving at a speed of 10 knots, Scott struck the target at 1000 yards 19 times out of 21 shots.

Schooner Was Leaky

North Sydney, N. S., May 29.—The fishing schooner Henry L. Phillips of this port, but formerly owned in Gloucester, sprang aleak and sank in 15 minutes off Scatterie. The weather was such that the crew were able to launch their dories at once, and arrived here after a long row.

Mystery Partially Solved

New York, May 29.—The body of the man which was found in the North river on May 26, and on which was the sum of $1000, has been identified as that of Thomas Roche, a young farmer of Greenwich, N. Y. He had been missing from home since April 22.

CAR JUMPED THE TRACK

Stopped by Sand Bank After Shaking Up Passengers

Attleboro, Mass., May 29.—An electric car carrying members of the William A. Streeter G. A. R. post and of the Women's Relief Corps to this city from divine service at the Methodist church of Hebronville jumped the track on South Main street and was brought to a stop by a sand bank and stone wall about 50 feet from where it left the track.

The car was moving at reduced speed on a slight down grade when the accident happened, but the momentum and compact were sufficient to throw the alarmed passengers about and from the car, several of them being badly injured and all more or less shaken. There were 42 passengers on the car, in addition to Motorman Dubuque and Conductor Evans, both of whom escaped injury. All of the injured live in Attleboro.

A wrecking car and crew were hurried from Pawtucket and traffic resumed after a block of about two hours.

Pledge of the "Med Fac"

Cambridge, Mass., May 29.—A large number of members of the Harvard so-called secret society, "Med Fac," have signed a paper pledging themselves to break up the society providing that Benjamin Joy, who was arrested on a charge of stealing a valuable memorial tablet to the late Bishop Phillips Brooks, is not expelled from college. It is expected that no action will be taken in regard to Joy by the college authorities. Criminal proceedings against him, however, are pending in the Cambridge municipal court.

School Age Is Sixteen

Boston, May 29.—The state board of education calls the attention of school committees and superintendents to the facts that by the acts of 1905, the age for compulsory school attendance has been raised from 14 to 16 for children "who cannot read at sight and write legibly simple sentences in the English language," and that no employment certificate may be issued to a child under 16 who is not able to read at sight and to write legibly simple sentences in the English language.

Rivals In Love Try Shooting

Saugus, Mass., May 29.—The police are searching for Louis Kentie, 20, charged with trying to shoot Louis Sylvester, 18. The alleged shooting was the outcome of a love affair, in which Miss Edith Hobbs, 16, is the heroine. It occurred at 9:30 o'clock last night. The shooting occurred in the vicinity of the Hobbs house, both Sylvester and Kentie firing 10 shots. The former gave himself up to the police. Kentie escaped.

Two Young Men Drowned

Arlington, Mass., May 29.—Two drowning accidents occurred in different parts of Spy pond about the same time, the victims being Daniel Bennister, 21 years old, and Allen Patterson, 17. Bannister was in a boat which capsized not far from the shore. While the police were dragging for Bannister's body they were notified that Patterson, who was alone in a canoe, had fallen into the pond and drowned.

Boy Frightened Into Suicide

Lewiston, Me., May 29.—The body of Philie Levasseur, 8 years old, was found in the Chestnut street canal. The boy had been missing since Thursday. He had been absenting himself from school, and on Thursday he broke a store window. He told a playmate that he was going to kill himself by jumping into the canal because he was afraid the police would punish him for breaking the window.

Mother and Child Killed

New London, Conn., May 29.—The bodies of Mrs. Selina Clark, aged 29, and that of her daughter, Rose, aged 5, were found beside the railroad tracks at Midway. It is supposed that they were struck and killed by the Merchants' Limited express, as a woman's hat was found on the pilot of the engine of that train at Providence. Mrs. Clark was a resident of Midway.

Drowning at Revere Beach

Boston, May 29.—While being exercised in the surf at Revere beach a horse, ridden by Edward Seegent, 26 years of age, became frightened, and the rider was thrown into the water and drowned. Although Fred Bardella, 19 years old, made an heroic attempt at rescue, Seegent had drowned before he could reach him.

WEAVER'S BIG VICTORY

Gas Grab Advocates Forced to Bow to Popular Will

Philadelphia, May 29.—After a contest lasting five days the Republican "organization" has been forced by public opposition and clamor to abandon its efforts to extend the lease of the city gas works to the United Gas Improvement company for 75 years.

Thomas Dolan, president of the gas company, forwarded a formal letter to the presidents of the select and common branches of city councils withdrawing his proposition to advance the city $25,000,000 in consideration of the extension of the lease which the company now holds.

The withdrawal of the United Gas Improvement company's offer is undoubtedly a signal victory for Mayor Weaver. It became evident that the leaders were losing control of councils, but they were saved from putting their strength to the direct test when the gas company withdrew its bid.

Commissioner Durham, State Senator McNichol and Councilman Seger held a two hours' conference with Dolan with the result that they officially assumed the responsibility of withdrawing the lease. Dolan's letter to councils stated that owing to the opposition on the part of the people the company was unwilling to enter into a contract with the city looking to any variation of its present lease.

Ought to Count 100.

Foreign countries have been added to the list of voters in the Herald school contest for Miss Julia E. Underwood. One of her old pupils now in business in Paris discovered a few weeks ago a Boston Herald in Place de l'Opera, Paris. He was not only pleased to see a familiar newspaper, but he also took the pains to cut out and forward the school coupon that it might count for Miss Underwood and the Coddington. It was clipped from the morning Herald of April 18, and counts but one, but in an exceptional case like this it should count 100. Miss Underwood has already received several coupons from California, so that she can testify that the Herald's constituency and her friends almost encircle the globe. The vote is displayed in the show window at the Daily Ledger office.

The members of Quincy council, 96, Knights of Columbus, will attend holy communion in a body at St. Johns church next Sunday.

ONE GOAL TO NONE.

Fore River Foot Ball Team Shut Out at Fall River.

On Saturday last, the Fore River football team visited Fall River, and engaged the Rovers of that city in a tussle for the premier position in association football circles of New England. Leaving Quincy at 12.49, accompanied by an enthusiastic crowd of supporters, the team arrived in the "Mill city" at 2.30, and proceeded straight to the field of play.

The kick-off took place at 3.30, before an interested gathering of 3,000 people, whose expectations of a hard and fast game were fully realized, as the final score of one goal to none in favor of the Rovers fully indicates.

Losing "the toss," the visitors kicked off and were immediately in the home territory but the local defence was all there and soon had the ball transferred to the other end.

During this half the effects of a slight rain, prior to the game, were very noticeable, many kicks being "foozled" on account of the greasy condition of the ball as the result of its contact with the wet grass.

Throughout the game the difference in the refereeing from that of the game on May 6, was very apparent, and it can be stated that no more efficient nor impartial man officiates at the whistle, than Robert Pickup of Fall River, and through his strict enforcement of the rules the rough tactics of the previous meeting were entirely eliminated from the game.

Both teams soon settled down to a goal getting policy, but the poor shooting of the forwards, due to the slippery ball, on almost every occasion sent it wide of the mark, and it was not until almost the close of the first half that the Rovers scored the only point of the day.

Time was called shortly after and the teams gladly retired for a welcome respite, both showing signs of the fast game which was played.

After a ten-minute rest the game was resumed and desperate efforts were made by the visitors to equalize, but with the local men playing a splendid defensive game, they failed to get the ball, although it may be stated that on more than one occasion the Rover's goal keeper was forced to leave his charge and tackle the anxious Fore River forwards himself, and but for their erratic shooting, a draw, if not a victory would have crowned their efforts.

Throughout the second half play continued very fast and of an even nature, being first in the home ground and the next minute in the visitors' territory. Neither side however could find the net and the game ended as at half time with the score standing Rovers, 1; Fore River, 0.

The spectators were highly delighted with the splended exhibition of the game given by the visitors, while the latter have every reason to be pleased with the reception given them by the management of the Rovers and by the spectators generally.

WERE SHUT OUT.

Merrymounts Unable to Score in Game at Braintree.

The Merrymounts went to Braintree Saturday and were defeated by the local team, 5 to 0.

Both pitchers were very effective but the Merrymounts in field was shaky at times and four of the Braintrees runs were the result of erros. The Braintrees scored the only earned run of the game in the seventh on Orr's triple and Hufford's fly to left-field:

THE GREAT GAME.

Married Men of Granite City Club Win in Three Innings.

There are base ball games and base ball games, but it is seldom that such a game as was played Monday morning at Merrymount park is ever seen. The game was between the married and single men of the Granite City club. Lieut. A. R. Shedd was the sponser for the single fellows, and Dr. Hill looked after the interest of the married men. There was a scarcity of single men and it was necessary to draw from the ranks of the married men in order to complete the team of their opponents.

Game was called at 8.30 and for an hour and a half there was an exhibition that was well worth going miles to see. Some of the plays were wonderful and the base running and stick work of the players was marvelous, so much so that words are lacking to properly describe them.

Capt. Shedd's team was made up of Ex-Commodore Sheppard of the Quincy Yacht club, who knows all about sailing yachts but little about playing ball. He played all around second and bravely let every ball slip through his hands or legs.

Ernest Saunders played at third and so distinguished himself that he was put in the box as a last resort to relieve pitcher Shedd, who had worn himself out contradicting the umpire, who by the way was the young son of one of the players on the married men's team.

Eddie Marsh played all over the field, that is, everywhere he was not wanted, never being in the place when a ball bounded where he was supposed to be.

Mark Read held down the first base and saw to it that no one ran away with the big block of granite that marked the base.

Little Jackie Bainbridge stood behind the bat and refused to wear a catcher's mask as he was afraid that he might disfigure his face as well as hide his feature from the admiring audience.

Bob Smith and Frazier managed to always be in the place where they were wanted the least, and frequently illustrated how little they knew about the game.

Harry Hill the captain of the married men was in the catcher's box, and did his best to stop the balls that were pitched at him by Ben Johnson in true Collins style. It was a noticeable fact that few of the balls pitched by Ben went over the plate, but as the batsmen tried to hit everything that came along, and could not, he proved of great assistance to his team in winning the victory.

Billy Dewhurst played on third, and never once stopped a ball thrown at him. Dr. Jones was on second and G. Jones in left field, and proved conclusively that the Jones family were natural ball players, although it was not previously known to anyone but to themselves.

Jim Lally by his playing, left no doubt in the minds of the crowd that he knew more about painting Uncle Sam's war vessels than he did about base ball.

John Curtis, an old time ball twirler, showed that he had not forgotten how to find the ball when it was pitched to him, and to catch a fly ball as well.

Jim Penniman and Hen Tilden were the all round sports. Jim hired a small boy to run the bases for him, and Hen. by his brilliant plays at first did noble work in disputing the umpire, and coaching the base runners.

The single men had the first try at the bat and succeeded in getting five runs before the side was declared out. Then the married men came in and got four runs. In the second innings the single men scored three more runs and the married men seven. In the third the single men scored four more, making their total 12, and the married men four making their total 15, and time was called.

For the single men, Frazier scored three runs, Saunders, Marsh and Read two each, and Shedd, Sheppard and Bainbridge one each.

For the married men, Johnson scored three; Dewhurst, Dr. Jones, Curtis, and Penniman, two each, and Hill, Lally, Tilden and G. Jones, one each. It might be well to add that there was no discount on G. Jones' run.

For errors the single men captured 999 and the married men 565. These were by actual count.

After the game the players were entertained by Jim Penniman on his farm. The cows and hens were inspected, and he was given quantities of advice about farming by those who knew not the first rudiments of a farmer.

Over the clock in the billiard hall in the club rooms is all that remains of what was once a broom. It is gaily decorated with yellow cigar bands and bears a card reading 15 to 12.

☞ White paper for sale at this office at two cents a sheet or twenty cents a dozen, suitable for shelves in closets, etc.

MEMORIAL DAY

Greater Interest Than Ever Manifested.

Thousands at Mount Wollaston.

G. A. R. Veterans Assisted by Spanish War Veterans.

Fair skies and dustless streets greeted the Grand Army Tuesday morning when they reported at Headquarters in compliance to General Orders to perform the sacred duty of decorating the graves of those who have gone before. During the early morning details of comrades visited the Mt. Wollaston, the Hancock, the English, and the National Sailors' Home cemeteries in this city and Mt. AT WEST QUINCY.

Alighting at the junction of Crescent and Copeland streets the command marched to Hall cemetery where it formed about the Willard monument and held appropriate exercises. The graves of heroes in this cemetery were decorated while the band played a dirge

At 10.30 the command entered St. Mary's cemetery where appropriate exercises were held by Rev. A. F. Roche and the graves of comrades were decorated.

Meanwhile John A. Boyd Camp, L. S. W. V., decorated the graves of their comrades and held appropriate services at the grave of John A. Boyd for whom the camp was named.

The services at West Quincy over, the command marched back to the junction of Crescent and Copeland streets where barges were again taken for headquarters where dinner was served.

AT THE CEMETERY.

There was a very large gathering of citizens at Mt Wollaston, probably in excess of all past years, the day being very favorable.

Services were first held at the Soldiers' Monument in charge of the Grand Army, the program being:

Prayer,	Chaplain Austin
Address,	Commander Warner
Hymn,	City Band
Lincoln's Address at Gettysburg,	Adjutant Curtis
Nearer My God to Thee,	City Band

Proceeding to the Rumpus lot there were exercises in charge of Camp Boyd, L. S. W. V., including.

Prayer	Chaplain Austin
Address	Past Commander Adams
Selection	Drum Corps
Taps	by Buglers

At the grave of Francis L. Souther services were conducted by the officers of the Ladies Aid Society.

The exercises at the "Unknown lot" were in charge of the Woman's Relief Corps and included:

"Nearer My God to Thee,"	Band and Corps
Reading, "Memorial Day,"	Mrs Kate A. Hayden
W. R. C. Service,	Officers of W. R. C.
Benediction,	Chaplain Austin

Paul Revere Post fired a salute of 24 guns before leaving the lot.

This concluded the exercises at Mt. Wollaston cemetery and the command returned to City Square. Paul Revere Post served refreshments at Hancock hall, and the duties of the day were over.

INCIDENTS OF DAY.

Over 300 graves were decorated by the Grand Army.

Past Commander George Phillips, accompanied by Henry Chubbuck went to Mount Auburn and decorated the graves of Paul Revere and Samuel Spear.

The color bearers of Paul Revere Post were W. C. Baker and Charles Cummings, and the guard of honor which fired the salutes was composed of James W. Pierce, Wyman Nightingale, Charles Newcomb, Elwood Litchfield, George Carney, Lewis McIntire, Lewis Soule and George M. D. Thomas.

The two squads of police under Chief Burrell and Lieut. McKay made a fine appearance in the parade.

Memorial Day in Schools.

The Memorial day exercises at the different school buildings throughout the city on Monday were of a patriotic nature, consisting of the singing of the national airs, recitations, and salute to the flag as it was raised by a comrade of the Grand Army. Comrades and others addressed the children briefly dwelling on some of the important events of the Civil war that had come under their personal observation during these trying times.

The children of the lower grades held exercises in their own rooms; later gathering in the yard around the flag saluting it as it was raised to the peak.

The time of holding the exercises were at different hours so that the comrades of the Grand Army could attend more than one school.

Those at the Willard school were held at 3 o'clock and the pupils were addressed by Col. Charles H. Porter.

At the Lincoln school Comrade Samuel D. DeForest officiated at the exercises which were held at 2.30.

Comrade Edward J. Lennon spoke at the John Hancock school at 1.30.

Senior Vice Commander Thomas C. Ring was present at the exercises at the Gridley Bryant school which were held at 2.30 o'clock.

At the Cranch school Comrade James W. Pierce represented the Grand Army.

At the Washington school exercises were held in every room with exhibits of the work. A large number of parents and friends were in attendance.

As usual the Coddington school had the assistance of the City Band at the exercises which were held in the school yard. The attendance was larger than ever, including nearly 100 babies and children under school age. The pledge to the flag, singing, concert recitations, laudations and cheers were particularly good. The speakers were Dr. Hallowell, Col. Porter, Rev. A. A. Ellsworth and Charles H. Johnson. Among those in attendance were Dr. Hunting, Rev. E. N. Hardy and several Grand Army veterans. The band gave a concert at the close of the program.

Leg Amputated.

J. J. Murray, a well known blacksmith of Fore River works had his left leg amputated at the knee Sunday morning. Mr. Murray was run over by the last car Saturday night on Farrington street, almost in front of his home. The car broke several ribs and crushed his leg, so badly that amputation was necessary. Mr. Murray is resting as comfortably as possible at Quincy Hospital. The family has the sympathy of their many friends in Wollaston and Boston. Mrs. Murray is cared for by her daughter Mrs. George Fraser of Beach street.

WASHING WITHOUT WATER

Is Like Trying to Get Rid of Dandruff Without Herpicide.

Did you ever see any one trying to wash themselves without soap or water?

If you did what would you say of him?

It is every bit as foolish to try to get rid of Dandruff and to prevent Baldness by feeding the germs which cause it, with Cantharides, Vaseline, Glycerine and similar substances which form the principal ingredients of most so-called Hair Vigors.

Newbro's Herpicide is successful because it attacks and kills the parasitic germ which feeds on the hair roots.

It is the original and only genuine scalp germicide manufactured.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

ROJESTVENSKY IS A PRISONER

Another Admiral and Staff Officer Also Caught by Japs

RUSSIANS LOST TWENTY-TWO SHIPS

Togo Reports That No Japanese Ship Was Seriously Injured So Far as Known--Complete and Overwhelming Victory For the Japanese In Straits of Korea

Washington, May 31.—The official Japanese report on the latest details of the great naval battle in the Korean straits is made in a cablegram received last night by the Japanese legation here from the foreign office at Tokio, conveying Admiral Togo's dispatches up to yesterday afternoon.

The report says that Admiral Rojestvensky and another admiral and staff officer were taken prisoners on the sinking of Rojestvensky's flagship, the Kniaz Souvaroff, Saturday night, south of Urleung island, off the Korean coast.

The total number of vessels lost to the Russians, according to Admiral Togo, now reaches 22, and he adds that, although the full particulars are not yet in, none of the Japanese ships was seriously injured and the loss to the first division of the Japanese fleet was over 400.

The report says that the armored cruiser Dmitri Donskoi ran aground on Ureleung island; that the battleships Osliabya (already admitted by the Russian admiralty) and the Navalin were sunk; that the battleship Sissoi-Veliki went to the bottom Sunday morning; that the coast defense ship Admiral Oushakoff was sunk after a vigorous pursuit, her crew being rescued, and gives other details as to vessels sunk or disabled. Japanese Admiral Misu was slightly wounded. The protected cruiser Almaz, which has already arrived at Vladivostok, is referred to in the report as "suspected to have sunk."

Washington, May 31.—The Japanese legation has given out the following cablegram from Tokio:

"Fifth report from Togo received afternoon, May 30: The main force of our combined fleet, upon accepting surrender of the remaining Russian main force near Liancourt Rocks, in the afternoon of May 28, as already reported, stopped pursuit and while engaged in the disposition of surrendered ships found, in a southwestern direction, the Admiral Ushakoff, a coast defense ship. Thereupon Iwate and Yakumo were immediately dispatched in pursuit and invited her to surrender, but she refused and was sunk at 6 p. m. Her crew of over 300 men were rescued.

"Cruiser Donitori Donskoi was also found in the northwestern direction at 5 p. m. and was immediately overtaken and fired on vigorously by our fourth division and second destroyer flotilla. She was attacked that night by the second destroyer flotilla and the next morning was found aground on the southeastern shore of Urleung island, off Korean coast.

"Our destroyer Sazanami captured, toward the evening of May 27, in the south of Urleung island, the Russian destroyer Bicdovy, wherein were found Admiral Rojestvensky and another admiral, both severely wounded, together with 80 Russians, including staff officers from the flagship Prince Suvaroff (Kniaz Souvaroff), which was sunk at 5:29 p. m. on May 27. They were all taken prisoners. Our cruiser Chitose, while cruising to the northward on the morning of May 28, found and sank another Russian destroyer. Our cruiser Niyitaka and destroyer Murakumo attacked also at noon on May 28 a Russian destroyer, which finally went aground.

"According to the various reports hitherto received and statements of prisoners, the result of the battle from May 27 to May 29 is as follows:

"Prince Suvaroff, Alexandre III, Borodino, Dmitri Donskoi, Admiral Nachmoff, Monomach, Jemtchug, Admiral Oushakoff, one converted cruiser and two destroyers, sunk.

"Nicholas I, Orel, Admiral Apraxin, Admiral Senkavin and destroyer Biedovy, captured. According to the prisoners, the Asliabia sunk about 3 p. m., and the Navalin also was sunk. Almaz on May 27 was observed in a disabled and sinking condition, but her final fate is yet unknown.

"The full particulars regarding the injury to our ships are not yet in hand, but, so far as I could ascertain, none was seriously injured, all being still engaged in operations. The whole casualties are not yet ascertained. Casualties of first division are little over 400. Prince Yorhito in excellent health, Admiral Misu slightly wounded, May 27.

"Sixth report received the afternoon of May 30:

"Loss of Osliabia and Navalin confirmed. Sissoi-Veliki also definitely reported to have sunk on the morning of May 28.

"Official statement of Russian losses so far as ascertained:

"Following six battleships sunk: Prince Suvaroff, Imperator Alexandre III, Borodino, Osliabia, Sissoi-Veliki and Navalin.

"Following five cruisers sunk: Admiral Nakhimoff, Dmitri, Donskoi, Vladimir, Monomach, Svietlana and Jemtchug.

"Coast defense ship Admiral Oshakoff sunk.

"Two special service ships Kamtchatka and three destroyers also sunk.

"Two battleships Orel and Imperator Nicholas I, two coast defense ships, General Admiral Apraxin and Admiral Senyanvin, and one destroyer, Piedovy, captured.

"Thus Russians lost altogether 22 ships, the aggregate tonnage thereof amounting to 153,411 tons, beside cruiser Almaz, suspected to have sunk."

Figuring on Russian Collapse

London, May 31.—The English newspapers are completely mystified regarding the fate of Vice Admiral Rojestvensky. A Vladivostok dispatch shows the reports that Mme. Rojestvensky received a telegram from her husband dated Vladivostok must be placed among other unfounded reports. It now seems practically certain that Rojestvensky is a prisoner.

Every successive dispatch adds to the completeness of the Russian disaster and the European press is busily casting about for an explanation of the extraordinary collapse of the fleet. It is taken for granted that the difference in the morale of the Russians and Japanese was the most important factor in the result.

Togo's Triumphant Message

Tokio, May 31.—Admiral Togo has wired Admiral Yamamoto, minister of the navy, as follows: "The main force of the Russian second and third fleets is nearly annihilated. Please feel assured of it."

Reported Sinking of Gromoboi

London, May 31.—The Tokio correspondent of The Daily Express reports that the cruiser Gromoboi of the Vladivostok squadron, with nearly 500 men on board, issued from Vladivostok in the hope of joining the remnant of Rojestvensky's fleet and that it struck a Japanese mine and sunk with all hands. The correspondent says it is believed that Vice Admiral Skrydloff was on board the Gromoboi.

Transport Badly Battered

Shanghai, May 31.—The report that a Russian cruiser has arrived at Woosung is incorrect. The Russian transport Korea arrived there yesterday, apparently from the Straits of Korea with a big shot hole in her side and her boats shot away. The Russian sea tugboat Swer has also arrived at Woosung from Jibutil, French Somaliland.

American Vessel Not Sunk

Tokio, May 31.—It now appears that the report of the sinking of an American vessel by the fleet of Admiral Rojestvensky grew out of the seizure of the British steamer Olhamia, bound for Japan, which was later retaken by Japanese warships.

Thinks Victory Too Sweeping

Vienna, May 31.—The Fremdenblatt, which is the semi-official exponent of the government's views, declares the Japanese victory was too sweeping to be fully acceptable to Great Britain and the United States, and says it may not bring peace, but rather give the diplomats new work along the lines of the readjustment of international relations.

Soon to Fight In Manchuria

Godzyadani, Manchuria, May 31.—The Russian army is waiting with intense expectancy news of the outcome of the naval battle, which, it is realized, will be the signal for the opening of a land combat. Everything indicates that the Japanese are ready to strike a blow and are only waiting in case the issue at sea is decided unfavorably to them.

Air Pumps Sustain Life

Montrose, Col., May 31.—A cave-in occurred in the Gunnison tunnel, one of the largest irrigation projects of the United States government, entombing a number of workmen, variously estimated at from 20 to 25. It is not likely that any of the men are dead unless they were caught and crushed to death by the falling earth, for the air pump pipes running into the tunnel have been working almost without interruption since the accident happened.

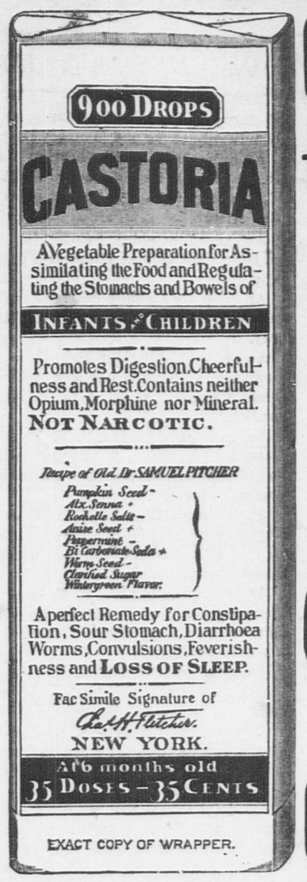

Big Elephant Strangled

Buffalo, May 31.—Prince, a gigantic trick elephant, had shown signs of madness and his owners decided to kill him. It took 100 men with block and tackle and 90 minutes to put the animal out of existence by strangulation. Prince offered no resistance, submitting quietly to the commands of his trainer. The hide was removed from the carcass and given to the Buffalo Historical society.

CITY BREVITIES

The last day of May.

All the ball fields were in use on Memorial day.

More delightful weather for a holiday could not have been desired.

Rev. E. N. Hardy will address Quincy Lodge, L. O. L., Thursday evening, at Wilson's hall.

The Copeland club held a poverty party Monday evening at St. Mary's hall. The affair was largely attended and was very enjoyable. J. J. Flaherty was floor director and L. S. McLeod, assistant.

The Rosebud club were entertained Friday evening, May 26, by Lillian McGilvray, the occasion being her eleventh birthday. Games and music were enjoyed and a luncheon was served. The club is making arrangements for a lawn party to be held in June.

The building of the temporary track across the Atlantic bridge was completed Monday afternoon and that evening cars were run through to Neponset bridge for the first time for months. Through cars were appreciated on the holiday, and many extra cars were run.

Luigi Canzi, a quarryman employed by the Quincy Quarries Co., was caught between two flat cars at the Lyons quarry on Monday afternoon and was severely crushed about the abdomen. The police ambulance was called and he was removed to the City Hospital.

The members of the Junior Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. are looking forward to the last meeting of the season, when they hold a social at the home of Mabel E. Lovejoy, 53 Butler road, each member inviting a friend. The afternoon will be spent in having a jolly time and at the close refreshments will be served.

Anniversary of Ancients.

The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company will observe their 296th anniversary on Monday next, with a parade, services in the New Old South church, election on Boston Common, and banquet at Faneuil hall. At the church the Rev. Allen Hudson will deliver the sermon: Mr. Frank J. Bonnelle will read the ode, and there will be the customary elaborate musical service.

Manslaughter Charged

Boston, May 31.—Mrs. Bridget Cunniff, 43, and Joseph Powers, 45, both of 24 Prentiss street, Roxbury, are under arrest on suspicion of manslaughter in having caused the death of Eugene McCormick. According to the stories told by witnesses, the injuries which resulted in McCormick's death were inflicted with a bottle in a dispute at the Prentiss street house.

Adjournment of Reichstag

Berlin, May 31.—Emperor William closed the reichstag yesterday, the vice chancellor reading the imperial communication to that effect. All the Socialist members left the house, thus showing their disregard for the crown. The house probably will not be called together again until October.

Royalty Visiting Gay Paris

Paris, May 31.—The royal train bringing King Alfonso of Spain for a week's visit has arrived here. President Loubet and the cabinet greeted the king, while batteries of artillery thundered a royal salute of 101 guns. A large force of troops rendered military honors and the vast assemblage gave an enthusiastic popular greeting to the king. A slight incident occurred when an individual shouted "Long live anarchy." A squad of police immediately pounced on the man and carried him off without confusion. Last night Loubet gave a gala dinner in honor of the king.

Was Behind the Record

New York, May 31.—An attempt by Guy Vaughn to break the 1000-mile record in an automobile at the Empire City track was stopped by the judges because the track had been made so slippery by a shower as to place it dangerous to race. At the completion of 500 miles Vaughn was 1:46:41 behind the record established by Charles G. Wridgeway. The race was stopped in the 504th mile.

Cycling Derby of America

Newark, N. J., May 31.—The annual Irvington-Milburn 25-mile road race, commonly known as the Cycling Derby of America, which was run over the famous course between the above named towns, was won by William Hofsess in 1:12:3-5. He had a handicap of 5½ minutes. The time prize was won by Eugene F. Battaille, who went over the course in 1:08:30. Battaille finished 18th.

Mettling Wins at Cambridge

Cambridge, Mass., May 31.—Louis Mettling of this city won the 30-mile motor-paced bicycle race at Charles River park, the other contestants being William C. Stinson and Harry Caldwell. The race proved extremely exciting throughout. The time was 41:06:2-5.

ONE CRUISER SAFE

Almaz and Torpedo Destroyer Reach Vladivstok

DISPUTE TOGO'S REPORT

Officers Say They Saw Two Japanese Battleships Go Down and Two Cruisers on Point of Foundering--Eighty Torpedo Boats Took Part In the Attack Upon Russians

St. Petersburg, May 31.—The Associated Press' Vladivostok dispatch, received at an early hour this morning, accounts for only two ships of the great Russian flotilla—the cruiser Almaz and the torpedo boat destroyer Grozny, and the absence of news about the battleship Navari and the cruisers Oleg and Aurora, which are the only fighting ships of any value not enumerated in the Japanese lists of destroyed or captured, and which have not reached Vladivostok, renders almost idle any hope that they were able to shake off the pursuing Japanese cruisers and reach the shelter of the fortress at Golden Horn.

The officers of the Almaz dispute Admiral Togo's report of victory with practically no loss, and declare they saw two battleships go down before their eyes and that two cruisers were on the point of foundering when they last distinguished the battling fleet. But they admit the distance of their ship from the scene of battle and fog made the view difficult.

Information brought by the Almaz and published in an official dispatch is supplemented by the results of the interviews had by the press correspondent at Vladivostok with the officers of the Almaz and Grozny. This information is very incomplete, as the Almaz, being scantily armed and carrying light guns of little use in battle, drew off after the first collision with the Japanese and headed for Vladivostok at full speed. The last view the officers had of the battlefield was at dusk Saturday, when the torpedo attacks had already commenced and the Kniaz Souvaroff, the Borodino, the Osliabia and the Ural had gone to the bottom, while the Alexander III had been badly damaged.

The unpublished portion of the official dispatch, the contents of which were sent by a wireless dispatch to Vladivostok before the arrival of the cruiser there, says that the Kniaz Souvaroff was blown up, Captain Chagin of the Almaz giving it as his opinion that this destruction was the work of submarine boats. The captain gives the number of Japanese torpedo boats participating in the attack as 80.

Tokio's account of the arrival of the captured warships at Japanese ports was more humiliating to the Russian naval authorities than the news of the defeat.

The opinion expressed here is that nothing can excuse the failure of the Russian commanders to sink their ships under their feet rather than to allow them to fall into the enemy's hands, the admiralty advocating the supposition that the steamers were stranded on some shoal before being surrendered.

The question of inaugurating peace negotiations is not likely to be opened until full reports of the Russian disaster have been received.

Sad News Distressed Czar

Tsarskoe-Selo, May 31.—The dispatch received by the czar from Vladivostok containing details of the battle in the Straits of Korea announced heavy losses, according to which the squadron commanded by Rear Admiral Nebogatoff was attacked by a swarm of torpedo boats and all the ships were either sunk or captured. The main squadron, commanded by Rojestvensky, was attacked by Admiral Togo and lost two ships.

The news of the disaster has caused deep depression in official Russia, though it is not yet known generally among the Russian people. The czar wept when he heard that Rojestvensky's fleet had been practically annihilated.

Court Proceedings Abandoned

Philadelphia, May 31.—Attorneys for Peter E. Costello and David J. Smyth, who were removed from their official positions by Mayor Weaver during the gas lease fight last week, have notified counsel for the mayor that they will withdraw the injunction proceedings brought against Weaver and his new directors when the case comes up for argument in common pleas court. The attorneys have already notified the court.

Knocked From Running Board

Holyoke, Mass., May 31.—Fred J. Elliott, aged 35, a conductor for a railway company, while collecting fares on the running board of an open car, was accidentally knocked off the car and died an hour later. Passengers were standing on the running board, and as Elliott attempted to pass he collided with a telegraph pole. His neck was broken.

A FIRST CLASS NAVY

President Says It Is the Surest Guarantee of Peace

New York, May 31.—In a stirring address delivered at the unveiling of a big statue of General Henry W. Slocum in Brooklyn, President Roosevelt paid a splendid tribute to the men who composed the northern armies, but did not forget those of the southern hosts.

Most notable in his speech was an expression of his hope that as the nation increased in strength there would come a corresponding increase in its sense of responsibility which should prevent its people from either injuring or insulting other people; his declaration that the surest way for a nation to invite disaster is to be opulent, aggressive and unarmed.

Significant, in the light of recent events, was his assertion that: "If our navy is good enough we have a long career of peace and prosperity before us, and the only likelihood of trouble ever coming to us as a nation will arise if we let our navy become too small or inefficient. A first-class navy, first class in point of size—above all, first class in point of efficiency and the individual unit, as units in combination is the surest and cheapest guarantee of peace. I should think that any man looking at what is happening and has happened abroad and in our own history during the past few years, must indeed be blind if he cannot read that lesson clearly."

The president was in New York city five hours. The entire trip was without unhappy incident.

An Immense Floating Bombshell

New York, May 31.—The four-masted schooner Goodwin Stoddard of Bridgeport, Conn., sailed for San Juan with a cargo of gasoline, naphtha, dynamite and gunpowder. On her deck was stored 2500 gallons of gasoline and 500 cases of naphtha. In the hold, with a large quantity of gunpowder, was packed away five tons of dynamite. Before the Stoddard sailed away, Captain Miller lined the crew of 10 men up on deck and said: "If I catch any of you smoking or lighting a match you will go overboard to feed the fishes. There ain't going to be any monkey business about it either—over you'll go." The Stoddard lay in the upper bay for several hours before a tugboat captain who would venture to tow her out to sea could be found.

Confederates Remembered

Boston, May 31.—The graves of those who have died as participants in, or survivors of, both the Civil and Spanish-American wars, were decorated yesterday throughout New England in observance of the time set apart as a memorial. Not a few Confederate soldiers were thus honored. The day was well suited for the occasion, the pleasant weather resulting in a general visit to the cemeteries. The holiday also marked a notable turning to outdoor life. In this city a feature of the day was a parade of work horses, for which preparations had been made for many months.

Quarrel With Disastrous Results

New York, May 31.—Detective John McDonald of the Brooklyn police suffered a fracture of the skull and is believed to be dying as a result of his attempt, with the aid of another detective, to quell a small riot between Russians and Poles who were quarreling over the victory of Admiral Togo. Detective Rasch was stabbed in the fight and both detectives were unconscious when rescued by the police reserves. Of the Russians and Poles one was shot and may not live, and four others were so badly battered by the detectives as to be unable to get away.

Murder and Attempt at Suicide

Bridgeport, Conn., May 31.—Frederick T. Tomlinson shot himself after shooting and killing his wife because she refused to live with him. Tomlinson is still alive, but his condition is said to be very critical. Tomlinson has been out of work lately. His wife, after separating from him, took their two children to a boarding house, and had secured work as a waitress in a restaurant.

Human Foot In Fire Ruins

Providence, May 31.—Workmen engaged in clearing away the ruins of the burned Durfee carriage repository in Cranston found the charred remains of a shoe containing fragments of a human foot. The foot is believed to be part of the remains of Terrence Rogers, a laborer, who disappeared on the night of the fire and who was in the habit of sleeping in factories and stables.

Missing From Sanitarium

Nashua, N. H., May 31.—Police and private searching parties have been scouring the country about here for John J. Kelly of Brighton, Mass., who left a local sanitarium last Saturday and has not been seen or heard of since. Kelly, who is a cattle dealer, came here seven weeks ago. As he was not mentally deranged, he was given the freedom of the grounds.

ALANTIC EASY WINNER

Yaukee Boat Wins Ocean Race and Kaiser's Golden Cup

London, May 31.—The German schooner yacht Hamburg crossed the finish line off the Lizard at 7:21 last night, being the second yacht to finish in the trans-Atlantic race for the kaiser's $5000 cup. This makes the Atlantic, which finished at 9:15 Monday night, a winner over the Hamburg by 22 hours 7 minutes.

The auxiliary schooner Atlantic is owned by Wilson Marshall of Bridgeport, Conn. She was commanded by Captain Charles Barr and carried the colors of the New York Yacht club.

The Atlantic sailed across the Atlantic in about 12 days 4 hours, actual sailing time. Captain Barr said the Atlantic had made an average speed of 10½ knots since leaving Sandy Hook.

The Better Way

The tissues of the throat are inflamed and irritated; you cough, and there is more irritation—more coughing. You take a cough mixture and it eases the irritation—for a while. You take and it cures the cold. That's what is necessary. It soothes the throat because it reduces the irritation; cures the cold because it drives out the inflammation; builds up the weakened tissues because it nourishes them back to their natural strength. That's how Scott's Emulsion deals with a sore throat, a cough, a cold, or bronchitis.

Opening of Granite City League Schedule.

Merrymounts Defeat the Atlantics.

Close Between West Quincy and South Quincy.

The Merrymount-Atlantic game at the Park on the morning of the holiday attracted a large number. Both clubs were retired without a run in the first inning; then the Atlantics broke the ice for two and the Merrymounts went them one better in their half, and it looked like a close game. But from this out the Merrymounts shut out their rivals in six innings and rolled up a total of 14, winning by a score of 14 to 4.

All the Merrymounts hit safety except Weston, Gram and Atkins, 13 with a total of 20. A double by Bennett in the second inning brought in three runs, and a three bagger by Donaher in the fourth also added three runs. In the eighth Osgood put the ball into the street for a home run. Baker also hit a clean two bagger.

For Atlantic every man got a safe hit but they were scattered except in the seventh when Brennan made a single and Jackson and Granahan each a double. Welsh made a drive into the hole in right and nearly scored a home run being caught out at the plate. Fay also hit for two bases in the ninth, and was the only member of the team to get two safe hits.

The score by innings:

Merrymounts,	0	3	1	6	0	0	3	1	—	14
Atlantics,	0	2	0	0	0	0	2	0	0	—4

AFTERNOON GAME.

In the afternoon at the Atlantic playgrounds the Merrymounts again defeated the Atlantics in an exciting ten-inning game.

The home team made three runs in the first inning, but after the second, Kolson went to the slab and held them down to one hit and two runs in the remaining eight innings. By opportune hitting, the Merrymounts gained a lead in the seventh which was tied in the same inning by the Atlantics, and staid so until the tenth, when the Merrymounts won out on successive two-base hits by Baker and Cole.

West vs. South Quincy.

A very large crowd attended the opening game of the season at West Quincy, against their old rivals, the South Quincys. The South Quincy started off the game with a run in the first inning and kept the lead until the fifth inning, when West Quincy scored five runs with the assistance of the empire. The South Quincys put up a good battle.

The features of the game were the hitting of Dunn and Drake for the South Quincy and Reardon for West Quincy. Patterson did excellent work for South Quincy, allowing only 6 hits for West Quincy team, while South Quincy got 12 hits from Maroney.

South Quincys Win.

Over 2,500 saw South Quincy open the season at Ward Three playgrounds against Norwood on the morning of Memorial day. It was a very good and exciting game from start to finish, the visitors trying hard to win from the Quincy champions, but were unable to do it on account of the good battery work of A. Dunn and Drake of the home team. Hauck and McCready did excellent work for the visiting team.

The features of the game were the hitting of Drake, Oswald, Patterson, Birnie, J. Duffy and A. Dunn, of the home team, and J. C. Coughlin, and Alexander and McCready of the visiting team.

The score by innings:

The Cranch A. A. defeated the Faxon A. C. of Roxbury on Tuesday at Merrymount park 12 to 2.

The W. P. S. A. played an excellent game of base ball at the Wollaston Park field on the afternoon of Memorial day. They defeated a picked team of men by a score of 19—18.

Watch for Bargain Heralds.

It is announced that a coupon good for five votes will soon be printed in some weekday Herald, and also a coupon good for ten votes in the Sunday Herald either June 4 or June 11. Friends of Miss Underwood should be alert and secure as many of these coupons as possible. Better still, if you are not already a Herald reader, place an order in advance for the Sunday Herald for the next two weeks, and help along the Quincy candidate. The chances of success are good if we get a large number of the "bargain coupons." If 1000 extra Sunday Heralds are purchased it will mean 10,000 extra votes for Miss Underwood.

THE NEW LEAGUE.

Athletics and Victors Win in the Opening Games.

The opening games in the Granite City base ball leagne were played on Memorial day, the Victors defeating the Makaria, while the Athletics won from the Orients, and the standing at the start is:

Athletics	1	0	1.000
Victors	1	0	1.000
Makarias	0	1	.000
Orients	0	1	.000

Victors 6; Makaria 2.

The Makaria Fraternity and the Victor A. A. played their first league game Memorial day at the Ward Three playground, the latter winning a most exciting game by the score of 6 to 2. Although the Victors were outbattled, errors by the Makarias at critical periods gave them chances for run getting. The features of the game were the batting of Mitchell and the fielding of Nicoll for the Makarias and the batting of John Smith and the fielding of James Smith, E. Collins and Dackers for the Victors. It was a most interesting game.

Among the interested spectators were Mr. and Mrs. Theopilus King, Delcevare King and President Cowe of the league.

Two Holiday Alarms.

There were two alarms of fire early Tuesday morning. The first was sounded from Box 25 at 12.30 and was a false alarm. The second alarm was from Box 48 and was sounded at 3.30. This was for a fire in the house of John Flaherty on Willard street and was caused by a defective chimney. The loss is estimated at $150. Box 48 was pulled twice for this fire, and many thought there was a serious fire.

Refusing to Pay Rent.

A judgment debtor from West Quincy was before Judge Avery in the District Court this morning on petition of J. W. Donovan for refusing to pay a claim for house rent. The debtor protested vigorously that he could not pay, but the Court decided otherwise, and made a decree to be made ordering him to pay the debt in instalments. The proceedings were conducted under the Equitable Act known as the Dubuque Law which was passed six years ago for the protection of landlords and grocers. Failure to comply with a decree of the court under this act is contempt of court punishable by not more than fourteen days imprisonment in the county jail. Judge Avery is inclined to rule in all these cases that a reasonable effort ought to be made to pay all honest debts, and he generally makes a decree to that effect.

W. Y. C. SMOKER.

Crackajack Entertainment by Hawthorne Musical Club.

The evening of Memorial day was the opening night of the season of 1905 for the Wollaston Yacht club, and the commodious hall at the clubhouse was filled with members and gentlemen friends, who enjoyed a crackajack entertainment.

At the door cigars and tobacco were passed, and the guest were pleased at the hospitality of the club and admired the attractive and well-appointed clubhouse. The bulletin boards showed that numerous applications for membership were pending, and several good times were ahead.

The entertainers were the Hawthorne Musical club, Messrs. Willis Ray, C. F. Messer, L. W. Osgood and W. E. Colby, assisted by a reader. It would be impossible for four men to give in two hours a more varied program than the club presented. All were soloists on several instruments, some of these new to the audience. The club gave mandolin and guitar selections, others on Swiss bells, the chimes and marimba-phone. There were also duets and solos, and Mr. Gsgood, the trick violinist was very clever.

The most elaborate numbers were the descriptive sketches, "A trip to the county fair," and "A trip to New York," which were replete with variety and interest.

The reader was recalled each time, and his numbers took well.

TWO SHOTS FIRED.

There was an Italian shooting affray on Hayden street at 1 o'clock this morning, but owing to the poor aim of the fellow who held the revolver the bullets went wide and no one was injured. There was a crowd of Italians on West street and during the night an argument arose. Just what the argument was no one seems to know.

It is alleged that one Carmini Cantilli, who resides on West street, followed the rest of the crowd to their boarding-house on Hayden street, kept by Beniamino Carderelli.

Carderelli put Cantilli out, and told him to go home. This angered Cantilli, who drew his revolver, and fired two shots at Carderelli.

Neither of the shots took effect. Officer Hinchon was notified, and finding Cantilli at his boarding house placed him under arrest.
